Slew Man to Get Money For Liquor

Youth of 18 Confesses Complicity in Murder at Burlington, Mass.

Bulington, Mass., Oct. 5.—Harry Mobray, a youth of 18, confessed early today, according to local and state police, to coplicity in the murder of Frederick A. Clements, Burlington garage proprietor, whose body was found in the Shawsheen river at Bedford last Thursday weighted down with automobile parts. Mowbray implicated two other men for whom the authorities are searching.

According to Chief of Police Pollock of Burlington, Mowbray, who had been employed for several months in Clements' garage here, said that after a midnight drinking bout at the place his two drinking companions, whose names he did not know, went to a loft over the garage where Clements slept, and killed him. Their motive, the youth said, was to obtain money with which to purchase more liquor. The murder, he said, occurred on the early morning of September 17.

Mowbray, who gave himself up early today and told his story voluntarily, declared that he knew nothing about the death of Clements until after it was an accomplished fact. The two strangers, after a visit to the loft, returned and told him Clements had been killed. They forced him to assist in wrapping up the body and in disposing of it in the river. Later, he said, he was compelled also to aid in repainting and whitewashing the interior of the loft, to remove the stains.

"If I refused to help them, they said, they would wrap me up too," Mowbray told Chief Pollock.

"They would have done it."

Clements, battered to death as he slept, was wrapped in a quilt from his bed. The body was then weighted with two automobile cylinder heads and a lifting jack, which were lashed on with rope. The three transported it by a circuitous route to Bedford and threw their bundle from a bridge into the Shawsheen river. Returning at once to the garage, they worked the remainder of the night erasing the marks of their work.

Acting on clues given by Mowbray two state officers went to Everett in search of the two men implicated by the confession. Mowbray is held in jail at Woburn on a charge of murder.

Clements' body was found by boys fishing in the river. It was identified by Graham, who has been looking for his missing partner for weeks, and later by Clements' wife, a Spiritualistic medium. The woman told police she had warned her against a "dark man with a club." Clements was a native of Prince Edward Island, and had formerly been a clergyman in Newfoundland.

GOV. TEMPLETON TO PROPOSE AN EXECUTIVE MANSION

Hamden, Conn., Oct. 5—Governor Charles A. Templeton, speaking at the Hamden Plains M. E. Church today, said that he would propose that an executive mansion be built for the governor of this state. He declared that Connecticut was the best state in the Union and declared that the state could afford to build and maintain such an executive mansion.

Throughout the entire history of this state, the governor said, nearly all of the men who had been instrumental in making, interpreting and administrating the laws of the commonwealth were men who were guided by Christian principles and cherished Christian ideals. He did not believe, he said, that the government was safe in the hands of men who did not have these principles and these ideals.

Mother, Four Sons and Two Daughters Killed

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 5—Mrs. John Fitzolli, 46, her two daughter and her four sons, were instantly killed and John Fitzolli was so badly injured he may die, when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train at a grade crossing near Port Allegheny, Pa., this afternoon.

The eight members of the family were riding in a small touring car and apparently not seeing the train, drove onte the tracks. The train struck the automobile and threw it into the air. The locomotive pilot was torn off.

Fitzolli's condition was critical late tonight. If he does, the entire family will have been wiped out. The family lived at Port Allegheny, Pa.

WILL CONTINUE BUSINESS OF MYSTIC WOOLEN MILL

Mystic, Conn., Oct. 5.—An order authorizing Receiver William Z. White of the Mystic Manufacturing Co., a woolen mill, to continue business for two months, beginning October 9, was approved by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson at a short calendar superior court session in New London, Friday. The account of Receiver White for the period from Feb. 9 to August 30 was approved by the court, and an order was entered allowing and disallowing certain claims.

Judge Nickerson granted a motion to have Lottie B. House, administratrix of the estate of the late Isabella U. Church named as co-defendant of the city of New London in the damage suit brought by Emma Spiers, administratrix of the estate of the late James Spiers. The plaintiff is asking damages, alleging that a fall on the ice on the sidewalk of the property of the Church estate at the corner of Brainard and Broad streets resulted in injuries that caused Mr. Spiers' death in February, 1923.

Motions for disclosure of defense were granted by Judge Nickerson in the cases of Ford vs. Harwood, et al., and Ford vs. J. P. Rohan, et al.

Following arguments of demurrer in the case of Ralph B. Haas, against Archibald C. Haas, Judge Nickerson took the papers.

After ordering disclosure of defense in the case of the National Bank of Commerce vs. Jeremiah Twomey, et al., Judge Nickerson listened to arguments of demurrer and motions, upon the conclusion of which he took the papers and reserved decision.

Court will not be in session next week, adjournment until Tuesday Oct. 14 having been taken at the conclusion of Friday's session.

POLICE SQUAD ESCORTED PASTOR OUT OF TOWN

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 5—Escorted by a squad of policemen, the Rev. Father A. G. Lenza, pastor of the Church of San Antonio, termed an independent Catholic church, today left Hackensack following a receipt of a letter from the board of trustees in which was written a warning to vacate the parsonage within twenty four hours.

The police declared early this morning a call for protection was received from Father Lenza, who complained a large crowd of people had congregated in front of his home.

Upon their arrival, the officers said they were asked to accompany him to the railroad station. The clergyman was quoted as having said: "I'm leaving Hackensack for good. I'm going to New York."

It was later made known that the board of trustees will meet tomorrow evening to decide upon the future of the church which they declare is heavily mortgaged and without funds.

The trustees charged that Father Lenza in December, 1923, had secretly married a young girl in Mamaroneck, N. Y. Although it was denied by the priest, the church officers said they got from Albany a certificate of his marriage and that their demand for his withdrawal was founded on that evidence.

BANDITS GOT $7,000 IN SOCIAL CLUB AT NIAGARA FALLS

Niagara Falls, N. Y. Oct. 5—Two masked robbers invaded a social club at Niagara Falls early Sunday morning and robbed sixteen men whom they found in a dice game, of $7,000 in cash and valuable jewelry.

The victims were lined in a row and forced to kneel with their heads against a wall. After the pockets of all had been emptied on the dice table one of the robbers examined their clothes and hats. One man reports being robbed three times. The first search emptied his pockets. The second disclosed bills pinned inside his shirt and on the third search the enterprising robbers found bills pinned inside a trouser leg. He cut the trouser leg off with a knife.

MRS. MARIA H. CHAPPELL DIED AT AGE OF 102 YEARS

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 5—Mrs. Maria Horton Chappell, 102 years old, died early yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank B. West in Seekonk, R. I. Her friends claimed she was the oldest woman in New England. She ascribed her longevity to hard work, regular hours and abstention from eating sweets. One of her sons is former Mayor Chappell of Willimantic, Conn. She was born in Rehobeth, Mass.

CAR LOADINGS INDICATE HEAVY MOVEMENT OF GOODS

Approximately 1,076,000 Cars of Revenue Freight Last Week Was Close to a Record Week For all Time—Rally in Cotton Continues—Foreign Buying Has Been a Factor in the Market and Export Clearances Have Been Heavy.

New York, Oct. 5 (By the A. P.)—Much attention was directed in business and financial circles last week to further rallies in the grain markets. The leading deliveries of wheat sold above $1.50, setting new tops for the current year. Rye also reached a new high price. While advances in corn were due partly to crop damage, rallies in wheat and rye were caused by strong foreign buying, stimulated by reports of smaller crops in other parts of the world.

Cotton also continued the rally that started when the department of agriculture reduced its crop estimate to 12,596,000 bales. The principal futures sold around 26 cents, or approximately five cents above the prices of two weeks ago. It is now recognized that the market had been oversold before the last government crop report was issued. In addition, however, foreign buying also has been a factor here and export clearances have been heavy.

Coincident with these signs of more liberal foreign purchasing, have come reports suggesting that the much discussed German loan is impending. Dispatches from London indicated that the negotiations had reached an advanced stage and that a public offering by the middle of the month was within the probabilities.

Successful flotation of a German loan, it is generally expected, will further stimulate foreign purchasing and open the way for additional foreign loans.

In the domestic situation interest was displayed in a tightening money market. An advance in the call rate on the New York stock exchange to 3 per cent was attributed to the demands occasioned by October 1 settlements. The rate declined to 2 1-2 per cent before the week closed.

Reports from the steel industry indicated that the confusion occasioned by the change in the system of basing prices still was exerting a restrictive effort on buying. With the independent manufacturers operating at 55 per cent of capacity and the U. S. Steel corporation at 63 per cent the rate for the country as a whole probably is slightly less than 60 per cent.

Car loadings continued to furnish the bright spot in the industrial picture, partly because they indicated a heavy distribution of goods and partly because they mean good earnings for the railroads. During the week ended September 20 approximately 1,076,000 cars were loaded with revenue freight. This figure exceeded that for the corresponding week last year and al close to the record week for all time.

GERMANS CHEERED NAME OF LATE WOODROW WILSON

Berlin, Oct. 5 (By the A. P.)—Prolonged cheering interrupted a reference by Paul Loebe, former president of the reichstag, to the late President Wilson as "the father of the league of nations" at a memorial meeting for the war dead held in the reichstag building today under the auspices of the world peace congress. German pacifists, liberals and socialists punctuated Herr Loebe's designation of President Wilson as an idealist, a far-sighted statesman and the initiator of a new era, with approving nods a nd handclapping.

Dr. Fredtjof Nansen of Norway, just arrived from the Geneva meeting, was prevented for several minutes from speaking by the touching ovation given him. He declared that the dawn for Europe is beginning as the outgrowth of the work accomplished by the league of nations meeting.

The German contributions to the Filene peace prize contest have failed to measure up to the expectations of the German judges, who announce a division of the first prize money and a distribution of the remaining amount in small allotments.

There were 4400 contributions in the German contest. Organized and coordinated cooperation by all nations to the league of nations is suggested by one of the prize winners. Clarification of the question of "war guilt" as an essential to the moral rehabilitation of Germany in the community of nations is demanded by one competitor.

SUIT TO TEST VALIDITY OF THE 14TH AMENDMENT

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—A suit attacking the validity of the fourteenth amendment from a new angle will be filed in federal d federal district court here tomorrow in the form of a petition seeking to enjoin Walter L. Cohen, negro controller of customs of the port of New Orleans, from exercising the duties of that office, according to the Times-Picayune. The action, if successful, would have the effect of disfranchising every negro in the United States.

The petition as published by the newspaper, charges that Cohen "falsely alleged himself to be a citizen of the United States" when he took the oath to office. It asserts that the defendant is not a citizen of this country but is a "person of African blood and descent and is inherently incapable of being a citizen of the United States."

HEAVY DAMAGE WROUGHT BY TYPHOON ON LUZON ISLAND

Manila, Oct. 5—(By the A. P.)—A typhoon that swept over the northern provinces of Luzon Island has caused much damage. At Apparria seven natives were drowned and 400 small houses were blown down.

Lilloc also suffered heavily. Nearly all its houses were blown down or damaged. The Cuguyan River, overflowing its banks, carried away many houses. The channel at the mouth of the Caguyan was so changed by the typhoon that it is unsafe for vessels to enter or depart until a resurvey can be made.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, will undergo an operation at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, for the removal of gravel from the bladder.

PLANS FOR PEACE AND PROSPERITY OF GERMANY

Boston, Oct. 5—The winning plans in the competition on "Plans for Peace and Prosperity Re Reparations by Germany and in Europe Through International Co-operation", for which Edward A. Filene of Boston offers $10,000 in prizes were announced today. The British and French plans under similar competition, were announced last month and the contest was also held in Italy. From the list of 4,400 plans submitted in Germany the committee chose two to share the first award of $5,000. A second prize plan was also announced today.

One of the first prize winners states that; The Versailles treaty provides a breeding ground for new war and behind a new world war a world revolution threatens; the question whether new war can be checked turns on the solution of the reparations problem with the experts' report as a basis: to accomplish permanent pacification of Europe the economic sources of conflict must be eliminated or restricted so that a decision by arms is needless.

It also states that the measures of force connected with the occupation of the Ruhr must be undone; and that the league of nations is considered a valuable instrument for peace but its capacity for action must be strengthened by admitting Germany as an equal member and supplementing its activities through the co-operation of the interparliamentary union and a special propaganda center for peace.

The other plan sharing in the first prize endorses many of these ideas and also advocates the abandonment of self-defense, expressed in the cessation of military equipment exceeding that required to guarantee the power of the state within its borders, the unconditional subordination of the individual nations to the verdict of the international community; and the disassociation of the league from the treaty of Versailles.

The second prize winner would have the war debts paid by the scrapping of war materials; the subjection of all colonies not ready for independence to the league of nations; and the neutralization of all frontiers.

TUG RESCUES 86 FROM A BURNING FISHING BOAT

New York, Oct. 5.—The ocean-going tug Marie Olson, rescued 86 passengers, 22 of whom were women, from the fishing boat Mistletoe which was destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin off the Ambrose lightship this afternoon. Captain Richard Reynor, commander of the tug, sent out a wireless call for help which brought two boats of the marine police to the scene. By the time of their arrival, however, the passengers had been safely transferred to the Marie Olson.

The Mistletoe was returning from the fishing banks when flames began to sweep the aft hold. Despite the work of the crew, the fire was soon beyond control, and as the boat had no wireless with which to call for help, some of the women aboard became panic stricken. Shortly after the fishing boat had been deserted it sank.

'49 TOWNS IN STATE TO HOLD ELECTIONS TODAY

New Haven, Oct. 5.—One hundred and forty-nine towns in the state will hold their elections toorrow, electing local officers and one, the town of Stratford, will vote on nominations for representatives and judge of probate, and is practically the only town in the state where there will be no contest. The town will have two tickets in the field, one selected by the republicans and the other by the democrats, but as the names on each ticket are identical, the winning candidates will be satisfactory to all of the voters.

Woodbridge, in New Haven county, will be the only town where a prohibition ticket will be in the field, and nominally there will be three tickets in the field. One will be nominated by the republicans, one by the democrats and a third a citizens' ticket coming from partisan preference. Madison voters also will have three tickets to choose from, one by the democrats one by the republicans and one representing the independent republican sentiment.

The city of Stamford is included in the list of places that will vote today. The election in that city is combined with interest throughout the state due to the fact that voters will express their opinion on the constitutional amendment recently adopted by the state legislature giving the governor veto power over parts of appropriation bills while approving others. Most of the small towns will vote on the amendment, the only exception being Middlefield, in Middlesex county, the only small place to cast a vote on it this year.

With the exception of the following small towns will vote tomorrow: Bethel, Bridgeport, Cove[n]try, Danbury, Derby, Greenwich, Hartford, Huntington, Ansonia, Milford, Montville, Naugatuck, New Britain, New Haven, New Canaan, Norwalk, Norwich, Orange, Redding, Torrington, Voluntown, Wallingford, West Hartford, Willington, Woodbridge.

TWO PERSONS DROWNED IN A DERAILED COACH

Havana, Oct. 5—(By the A. P.)—Two persons were drowned today in coaches of the train on which former president Monocal is making a campaign tour in his race for the presidency, when the train was fired upon in the province of Camaguey.

Later four coaches or the train were derailed, but no one was injured.

The two injured men received gunshot wounds in their legs as the train was passing between the towns of Florida and Esmeralda.

The derailment of the cars took place at Agramonte and was due, according to advices received here, "to defects in the rails." The dispatches did not say whether the derailment was caused by an accident or whether the cars were purposely derailed.

General Monocal and his party took automobiles at Agramonte and proceeded to Camaguey, where they arrived in time for a political demonstration tonight.

ENGINEER WAS KILLED BY ESCAPING COAL GAS

New York, Oct. 5—Escaping coal gas killed Harry Excelers, an engineer in the basement of an office building and overcame John Thompson, building superintendent and Jeremaih Maher a policeman, as they went to his rescue today. BANDITS ENTERED UNION LEAGUE CLUB, NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Oct. 5—Two well dressed bandits entered the Union League club in Chapel street last tonight and after asking for O. L. Johnson, struck the clerk, James Buchanan, over the head with a blunt instrument, knocking him unconscious. The hold-up men then rifled the cash draw which contained only one dollar in pennies and took $20 from Buchanan's pockets. The clerk was found by John Gudley, a waiter, who notified the police. The bandits escaped.

FAREWELL TRIBUTE TO THE PRINCE OF WALES

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 5—Ten thousand persons joined in a farewell tribute to the Prince of Wales, who left here today for Victoria, aboard the Princess Louise.

The prince attended a party Saturday night and had not retired until six o'clock this morning. The sun was rising as he returned to his hotel and he suggested a round of golf, saying that it was useless to go to bed for so short a time. He decided to retire, however.

SIX MEN KILLED IN CLASH WITH CUBAN POLICE

Havana, Oct. 5—Six men were killed and 58 wounded, 18 of them seriously, in a clash tonight at Camaguey between the police and partisans of former President Menocal, who is campaigning for re-election to the presidency according to dispatches to El Mundo. Order was finally restored after intervention by soldiers.

76th ANNIVERSARY OF LITTLE CHURCH AROUND THE CORNER

New York, Oct. 5—"The little church around the corner," officially known as the "Church of the Transfiguration," celebrated its 76th anniversary today with special services conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Randolph Raybn its rector.

The rector announced that more than 3,000 marriages were solemnized there during the last year and an almost equal number of baptisms.

A heavy fog was blamed for the deaths of five persons in New Jersey in automobile accidents during Friday night.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 5—Smoldering ruins marked the site of three departments of the Cudahy Packing company's south side plant, which was destroyed by fire early today in a fast spreading blaze which for a time, until a shift in the wind, threatened to equal the two day fire of February 1923, which swept the Armour plant nearby with a loss of over a million dollars.

Starting soon after midnight, the fire quickly consumed lumber storage sheds and three box cars of lumber on a spur track, razed the washing powder storage building adjoining, and destroyed the greater part of the box factory. Cudahy officials early estimated the loss at $250,000.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined tonight.

His condition was pronounced by his physician to be very painful, but not serious.

WILLIMANTIC

For the annual town election held today (Monday) final preparations were completed Saturday, when the voting booths were put in order. Portable booths are used in the third and fourth districts, while in the first and second districts, booths were set up in the old and new town buildings. The final results will be announced at the town building in the first district where the moderator is William Kingsley. The moderator at the second district voting place is James Haggerty.

The revised voting lists of the four districts show 5,779 names. At the annual town election last year, out of 5,250 names on the list 3,695 ballots were cast, which was 686 more than were cast in 1922.

The first meeting this fall of the Parent-Teachers' Association is to be held in the assembly hall of the new school at Windham Center this (Monday) afternoon at 3:15 o'clock, the new president, Mrs. John Webster in charge. Three continued cases were disposed of in the police court Saturday morning by Judge Frank H. Foss, Attorney Samuel B. Harvey prosecuting. Joseph Racicot of Prospect street, charged with reckless driving, was represented by Attorney William A. King. No evidence was taken. Prosecuting Attorney Harvey stated that there were some circumstances about the case which would not tend to prove conclusively that Racicot was intoxicated. He asked that the charge of intoxication be nolled which was granted by the court. On the charge of reckless driving, a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs was imposed, amounting to $33.95 and was paid. This case was the aftermath of an accident on Ash street about two weeks ago, at night, when a horse attached to a wagon belonging to a man named Bay of Arcoodville was run into by an automobile driver by Racicot. The horse was injured and a shaft of the wagon was broken. It was said at the time that Racicot was under the influence of liquor.

The other cases were those of George Stimpson of Ash street, charged with reckless driving and Maurice Welch, charged with intoxication. Officer Nicholas Orlando told the court how his attention was attracted to a crash on Main street opposite North street on the night in question. He investigated and found Welch, who had been injured, in Stimpson's automobile. He learned that the latter had been hit by the machine. Officer Orlando said that he did not see the car before the accident nor the accident itself. Welch was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where he received treatment.

Welch was not present in court and as there were no witnesses to show that Stimpson had driven his automobile in a reckless manner, the case against him was nolled at the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Harvey. In a like manner, the charge against Welch was also disposed of.

At the annual meeting of San Jose Assembly, No. 14, Knights of Columbus, Patrick A. Connors was reelected Faithful Navigator. Other officers chosen were: Faithful Captain, Salvatore E. JEWETT CITY

Mrs. Lucy Jeffers, 81, died late Saturday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Smith in Phenix, R. I., the body being brought to the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Gilbert, in Jewett City. Mrs. Jeffers was born in Jewett City July 4, 1842, the daughter of George and Mary Heffion Yerrington. She was married by Elder Allen in Jewett City to Joshua Jeffers, June 4, 1864. He died December 24, 1906. Since then Mrs. Jeffer's home has been with her daughters, who have given her the most devoted care. She had been a member of the Baptist church since she was fourteen and in her younger days was one of its most active workers, sewing in many offices in a most efficient way. She was a charter member of the Jewett City, W. C. T. U. Mrs. Jeffers was noted for her hospitality and neighborliness, and retained her interest in her church and friends nearly to the end of her long and useful life. She is survived by three sons, William C. Jeffers of Jewett City, Herbert T. Jeffers of Lisbon and Frank Jeffers of North Attleboro, Mass., and by two daughters, Mrs. Robert Smith of Phenix, R. I., and Mrs. F. H. Gilbert of Jewett City. Another son Walter B. S. Jeffers died a few years ago in Montville. She leaves seven grandchildren and five great grand-children.

A public stereopticon lecture on Japan is to be given in the Congregational church vestry this (Monday) evening at 7.30, by Franklin D. Warner. The churches at Pachaug, Newent, Plainfield and Canterbury have been invited to attend. This lecture is to be given at different centers throughout Eastern Connecticut. Mrs. Warner who is president of the Woman's Board of Missions and Miss Abby G. Willard president of the Eastern Connecticut Branch will be present.

Vandals again visited Jewett City Cemetery, this time some time Friday night. Two stones that of Henry Olin and the late Edwin Soule's father were knocked over, base and all. Another across the drive was broken off and can only be fixed by removing the base and placing the stone in the ground. Finding the middle gate locked the lower gate was opened and tracks of an automobile can be seen on the turf in several places. A reward is offered by the association for information. If this had happened in the Baptist cemetery everybody would have said it was because there is no fence or protection, or any association. But fences and gates seem to be no protection against such vandalism.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Driscoll and two children of Westerly were week-end visitors at P. F. Driscoll's.

German Death Rate

An analysis of the German death rate during the war shows that men between twenty and twenty-five years of age suffered most heavily. Between 1913 and 1915 the mortality rate between those ages jumped from 4.4 a thousand to 66.9. During the two following years it decreased but rose in 1918 to 58.8. For women between twenty and twenty-five years of age the death rate increase did not begin until 1917, when the scarcity of food, coal and other supplies was reaching a climax.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The hunting season opening Wednesday holds great allurement for scorexs of Killingly's citizens. It would be interesting to know what the game thinks about it. Possibly one might hear a suggestion from that side that this being leap year it might generously be observed by leaving out the hunting season, leaving it, as it were.

But that is not to be. From now until well into November the game birds must exercise every bit of ingenuity they have if they would outguess the hunters and their dogs and at the same time keep up the usual hustle to get a living. That also goes for the deer. They are supposed to be protected at all times, but you can't make a deer believe it's true, for most of them know what it is to have a man with a dog and a gun chasing them about. In fact, many thoughtful hunters carry a shell or two loaded with a lead ball in their kits, in case they should meet up with a grizzly bear or some other such ferocious animal. Viewed from another standpoint, this is also in the nature of being anxious to protect the farmer from any damage that deer may do, and they have done plenty on some properties in this town.

In any event, it appears that all the creatures of the woods and fields have some friends excepting the fox. There's an animal that gets no protection beyond such as he is able to provide for himself. That he is more or less successful in taking care of himself is indicated by the fact that his numbers are said to be increasing hereabouts.

Wednesday is the day when the hunting begins. The prospects are for a good season. There are many pheasants in this etrritory, a considerable number of partridges, some woodcock and a few quail. The hunters will tell you that there are too many leaves on the trees just now to allow of getting best hunting results, but that does not dampen their enthusiasm nor hope for some good bags on Wednesday and the days of the week that are to follow.

Several matters of interest to taxpayers and citizens generally are included in the list to be passed upon at this afternoon's annual town meeting. The business session promises to bring out a large attendance. Among other things, there is the matter of the trees in Reynolds street near Davis park and a proposition to lay out a new street—Danielson street—running easterly from Broad street, between the properties of Mrs. Agnest H. Paine and E. B. Wilbur.

Because of there being three tickets in the field, it is likely that the counting of ballots will be a slow and tedious process. Especially as to the vote for selectmen, much splitting is forecasted. Candidates for selectmen have been active and so have their friends in their interest. The republicans will strive particularly hard to keep John A. Gilbert as first selectman. His election is conceded by many competent observers, but the point is to see that the splitting of the voters' tickets does not lose him first place, something not likely to happen, but within the rang of possibilities under the circumstances. Republican workers here have been urging their party members to vote a straight ticket.

Lyman C. Hull of Providence visited friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Marching from their hall in a body Sunday morning, members of Moriah lodge, A. F., and A. M., attended service at the Westfield Congregational church and heard an address by Rev William F. English, D. D., grand chaplain and past grand master of the Connecticut Grand lodge, A. F. and A. M.

The splendid results obtainable from spreaying fruit trees is demonstrated at the Lester B. Williams place in Brooklyn, where apple trees are laden to the limit of their capacity with perfect fruit.

Members of Plainfield and of Canterbury granges will come to Danielson this (Monday) evening to attend a Neighbors' night meeting of Killingly grange. A special program of music has been prepared for the event.

Mrs. C. H. Pellett, Mrs. Ella Lathrop and Everett Pellett spent Sunday motoring over the Mohawk trail and through adjoining sections of New England.

In view of the fact that there are three party tickets in the field, a heavy vote is anticipated in the town election. There is a prospect of the vote being the heaviest in the history of the town, in view of the fact that there are so many new voters.

The case of state vs Arthur Chabot of Goodyear is scheduled for a hearing in the town court Tuesday.

Dr. W. H. Judson will be one of the speakers at the coming semi-annual meeting of the Windham County Medical association.

Sunday developed some perfect hours for an October day, the bright sunshine running the temperature up to 70 degrees during the early afternoon.

Getting hunting licenses is one of the things interesting some sportsmen not already provided with such authority. The open season on protected game birds begins Monday.

The old stone mill burned out at Elmville last winter, has been repaired in part and is in use by a manufacturer of nails. The northerly half of the mill is also being repaired.

In country east of here on Saturday the barking of shot guns indicated that a little hunting was being done in advance of the open season, although that was not definitely established.

Many automobiles will be pressed into service today (Monday)) getting voters to the polls. This is one day when free automobile rides can be had wihtout asking for them nad the convenience will be appreciated by a great many.

Radio returns from the World's series baseball game in Washington were available here through the courtesy of a dealer in radio equipment. A loud speaker kept the fans posted Saturday and Sunday afternoon on what what going on in the big event.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gartland, Mrs. James R. Walsh and daughter, Miss Mary Walsh, and Miss Olive Burns spent Sunday in Providence.

Some two hundred new voters will have their first experience in balloting when they participate in the annual town election today.

John C. Lowell of Worcester spent the week end with relatives in Danielson.

Rev. F. T. Ledwith, M. S., of LaSalette mission band, assisted in the services at St. James' church Sunday.

Brooklyn is one of the towns where there is lively interest in the town election today. As in Killingly interest over there centers in the campaign for places on the board of selectmen.

The polls will be open at the town hall today from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. Immediately after the close of the polls the annual business meeting of the town will be held.

And as to things political, persons who desire to be made voters prior to the state nad national election in November will have the opportunity to fil their names with the registrars on Tuesday.

PUTNAM

With Winthrop Buck of Wethersfield, most worshipful grand master of the grand lodge of Connecticut, A. F. and A. M., and his suite, an honored guests, Putnam lodge of Woodstock, under bright October skies, dedicated its new Masonic temple at South Woodstock Saturday afternoon.

Prveious to the exercises, the visiting grand officers and guests were given a dinner in Grange hall in the fairground building near by, the building which was for many years the former home of Putnam lodge of Masons.

There was no set program. Besides dedicating the new temple according to the Masonic ritual, addresses were made by a number of visiting officers and others.

The new temple was occupied as a lodge room many years ago but was abandoned in favor of the building on the fairgrounds. When the lodge room in this building became inadequate to the needs of an increasing membership the lodge decided to own its own temple. The building formerly occupied by the lodge, which had since been used as a store and upstairs tenement, was purchased and moved south less than an eighth of a mile to its present site on the main highway which passes the entrance to the fairground.

The building was renovated and repaired and remodeled to meet the needs of the lodge. On the ground floor is a kitchen and banquet room, while the second story is devoted to lodge room and anterooms.

It was at first planned to dedicate the new building last spring, but because it was impossible for the grand officers to be present the dedication was postponed. There was again talk of postponing the exercises on account of funds being tied up in the First National bank of Putnam, but a majority of the members thought it better to have the event at this time, even though the program could not be as elaborate as at first planned.

The dedicatory exercises were in charge of Martin Nelson, worshipful master of Putnam lodge. There were visiting brethren from Quinebaug lodge of Putnam, Moriah lodge of Danielson, Cornerstone lodge of Thompson, Quinebaug lodge of Southbridge and Webster lodge of Webster and others.

At the close of the exercises and speechmaking there was a fraternal scoial session, during which a collation was served.

The only real contest at the annual town election today (Monday) is that between the republican and democratic candidates for the office of town tax collector. The republican, Attorney Irving H. Miron, starts the race with a big handicap over his democratic opponent, Capt. John J. McGarry. While it is agreed that the democrats could not have picked a stronger candidate than Captain McGarry, the election of Attorney Miron is practically assured, if the vote is gotten out. Unless there is a condition greatly out of the ordinary, a democrat in Putnam has little chance, for the town is a republican stronghold, and always has been.

Attorney Miron is already holding the office. He was elected a year ago and has made one of the best tax collectors the town has ever had. This is evidenced by his record of $121,716.33 collected out of a total of $133,981.12, and the balance of $5,322.49 is made up of an appeal from the board of relief and a tax on which an attachment has been placed and legal proceedings started against the delinquent.

Captain McGarry of the Putnam Headquarters company fo the 43d division has held the office of mayor of the city, member of the democratic state central committee. is one of Putnam's best known citizens, and a man who has devoted a great deal of time to movements for the public welfare. He would make an excellent incumbent of the office of tax collector if elected.

At a special session of the city court Saturday afternoon Joseph Savage was sent to jail for six months, being found guilty of non-support of his family, consisting of a wife and two boys, aged 8 and 6 years. The man's wife and mother-in-law testified that he did nothing toward the support of the family, who live on Church street in Putnam, and that the mother-in-law has been obliged to furnish them with the necessities of life. It was stated that Savage was living as a boarder with a woman in Pomfret and has totally neglected his own family.

Frank Lizak, charged with drunkenness and breach of the peace, was fined $1 on the first count and $5 on the second. Like charges against Stanley Novak were nolled by the prosecuting attorney.

Tuesday is the last day to enroll with the registrars of voters in order that one may vote at the state and national elections. No applications to be made voters will be received after 9 o'clock p. m. on that day.

Mrs. Gladys Packard and Mrs. Leon N. Walker have been chosen delegates to represent the Putnam W. C. T. U. at the convention to be held in Bristol Friday, Oct. 17th. Mrs. William Tyler is alternate.

The request of Attorney William A. King, counsel for G. Harold Gilpatric, that Gilpatric's arraignment in court be postponed from Oct. 6 to 9, so that he might appear, plead and be sentenced, to save trips between Putnam and New Haven, leads to the conclusion that the defaulting bank cashier is to plead guilty to some of the several counts against him.

The annual town report of the selectmen and treasurer shows that the town finished its fiscal year with a balance of $24,787.67, of which over $20,000 is locked up in the First National bank, now in the hands of a receiver. This surplus is applied to reduce the town debt of $223,500. The net indebtedness of the town at the close of the year is $98,717.32.

It is setimated that it will cost the town $146,000 to conduct its business next year. Half of this amount, $73,500, will be spent for schools. The next largest items are interest on the debt and contributions to outside poor, the proposed appropriation for each being $10,000. State and county taxes will amount to $17,000.

The Windham County Medical society is to be addressed by Dr. Stanley H. Osborne, state health commissionre, at its semi-annual meeting to be held at the Putnam inn Thursday, Oct. 16th. Interest centers in the coming of the state health commissioner, for he has chosen for his subject "The Investigation of Quack Doctors in Connecticut." Other speakers will be Dr. Charles C. Gildersleeve of Norwich, formerly of East Woodstock, Dr. Karl T. Phillips of Putnam and Dr. William H. Judson of Danileson. Dr. Judson will speak on "The Diagnose of Smallpox," as he has recently been through an epidemic of that disease in Danielson. The business meeting will be preceded by a luncheon. Dr. Frank P. Todd of Danielson is president of the association and Dr. Henry C. Dixon of Danielson secretary and treasurer.

A funeral service for Mrs. Eliza Mayotte Parmentier, 45, was held at the Catholic church in Quinebaug Sunday morning, burial being in the Sacred Heart cemetery, Webster. Mrs. Parmentier died at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, Wednesday night following an illness of only three days. She was born in Canada and leaves, besides her husband, Alfred Parmentier, four daughters and four sons. She had been a resident of Quinebaug for the past fifteen years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Leonard motored from Philadelphia and were week end guests of Mr. Leonard's mother, Mrs. M. G. Leonard, South Main street. Mr. Leonard, a former Putnam boy, is United States representative of an English clothing manufacturer and travels from coast to coast.

Mrs Edward H. Burt has returned from a visit of several weeks with relatives in Arrowshat, Nova Scotia.

Louis N. Girard has been the guest of friends in Middleboro, Mass., where he was at one time employed as manager of the station restaurant.

Rally Sunday was observed in Woodstock Sunday with services at the Woodstock church at 10.30 a. m. and at the North Woodstock church at 1.30 p. m. Large congregations attended the special services.

Mrs. Wood and son Arthur, Mrs. C. C. Talbot and Mrs. G. W. Gifford motored to Brockton, Mass., Wednesday and attended the fair.

Mrs. G. W. Gifford visited her daughter, Mrs. C. G. Webster, at the private hospital in Willimantic Monday.

HOW APPLES ARE RUINED BY APPLE MAGGOT

Many fruit growers every year complain that more or less of their fruit shows the effects of the apple maggot, commonly called the railroad worm, owing to the nature of its work inside the fruit. There has been found no desirable control measure for specifically destroying this particular pest.

A tiny fly lays its eggs under the skin of the fruit during the summer months. These eggs hatch and the larvae begin their boring through the flesh of the fruit, and many times when the fruit is first picked it appears to be quite sound and free from damage, but during storage this peculiar conditions arises. The badly infected fruit shows on the outside small depressed spots and on being cut or broken is found thoroughly riddled with tiny borings or channels made by the grub. The earlier borings sometimes fill up, leaving what appears to be a tiny hard thread from the outer surface of the apple toward the core, but in the center of the fruit the channels become quite marked. Of course, the fruit is worthless for practical purposes and in severe cases becomes very quickly undesirable shortly after being put into storage.

Apparently the fly prefers apples of soft flesh and sweet quality. Hubbardstons, Porters, August Sweets and Northern Spys are particularly susceptible to attacks of this insect, other varieties in the same orchard maturing quite free from damage where these former varieties are frequently rendered worthless.

The most practical method of ridding the orchard of this pest is to keep all windfalls and droppings picked up from the ground leaving no fruit under the tree as a harboring place through the winter for the insect. Fall plowing and especially spring plowing is also an aid in ridding an infested orchard of this trouble. In large orchards where it seems impractical to pick up all windfalls by hand the common practice and one very successful is to turn hogs in to the orchard. They devour all of the fruit and their rooting serves the purpose of cultivation. In orchards where spraying is thoroughly carried on throughout the growing season very little damage is done by the apple maggot. Apparently the arsenical sprays control this particular insect.

There is no definite knowledge as to the particular time that this insect may appear and work on the fruit, so that such sprays are applied for other insects will have to serve as a control for the apple maggot.

IT PAID TO FERTILIZE

The reason for this change is simple. In 1919, the receipts from the sale of apples on the Johnson farm amounted to only $308, while in 1922 and 1923 the apple crop brought in around $2000 each year. This big increase in income from the orchard was due entirely to fertilizer which was used for the first time on one acre in 1921. In 1922 each tree received eight pounds of sodium nitrate, and in 1923 the fertilizer applied consisted of five pounds of sodium nitrate and eight pounds of acid phosphate per tree. A half-acre plot was left without any fertilizer for comparison.

A carefully kept record shows that for the past two years the fertilized trees yielded an average of 345 bushels per acre, while the unefrtilized trees only averagd 120 bushels per acre. After deducting the cost of the fertilizer, the net profit from its use was $157.84 per acre, or 352 per cent on the investment.

SOMETHING WRONG WHEN CLOVER FAILS

When Earl Jones, extension soil specialist at Ohio State University, made a careful inspection of 80 hay fields in northeastern Ohio and found only 5 good, uniform stands of clover, he was sure that something was wrong with the soil. And yet, his experience was not at all unusual, since the same situation might easily have been found to exist in many sections of practically every middlewestern and eastern state.

Mr. Jones says, "There is a serious soil problem involved when the new seedings do no show good, uniform stands of clover." He further states, "An important problem before the farmers in northeastern Ohio is not one of deciding whether fertilizers are also essential, but as to how to use them most effectively. Failure to use limestone is ordinarily the important reason for clover failures, but plenty of phosphorus, a liberal supply of organic matter, and good drainage are also necessary for good clover crops."

ADVANTAGE OF "DRY PICK" METHOD

Many farmers know how to kill cockerels quickly, but they do not know the "dry pick" method. This method is as quick as any other method after one has thoroughly mastered it. The big advantage of this method is the better appearance of the bird after being killed and picked. There are two operations in killing the bird which consists of two cuts—one cut to bleed the bird and the other cut to kill the bird. A knife is drawn diagonally on the jugier vein in the roof of the mouth of the bird to bleed it. Then the knife is thrust into the center lobe of the brain to kill it. The center lobe is the center of the nerves which control the muscles of the feathers. When the brain is pierced it causes the relaxation of the muscles that hold the feathers, consequently, they will come out much more easily than they would if this lobe were not pierced. In cutting the vein rather than the artery all the blood will leave the veinous system causing less pale blue veins appearing on the body after the bird is killed than would be the case if an artery were cut. Also, when no hot water is used there is less injury to the flesh and the skin of the bird will keep a better appearance much longer than when the wet pick is used.

HINTS ON PROPER STORAGE OF VEGETABLES

The Extension Service of the Connecticut Agricultural college has just issued a bulletin No. 77 on Vegetable Storage—Both Home and Commercial which gives some valuable advice on how, when and what to store. In this bulletin they have made tables of vegetables according to temperature and moisture requirements. Those requiring a temperature range of 30 to 35 degrees and a moist atmosphere are beets, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celeriac, celery, French endive, horseradish, kohlrabi, leek, parsnips, potato, rutabaga, salsify and turnips. Those requiring a range of 32 to 35 degrees and a dry atmosphere are garlic and onions. Those requiring a range of 50 to 55 degrees and a dry atmosphere are sweet potatoes, peppers (medium to dry,) pumpkin, dry, squash, dry. Tomatoes require 60 to 65 degrees and dry atmosphere. It is significant that crops in each group cannot be stored successfully in the same root cellar or pit.

NEW JERSEY LEGHORNS PUSHING R. I. REDS

Two months ago the odds were about ten to one that Fernside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., would win the Storrs Laying contest. Today these Reds are worth just about even money. A pen of Leghorns from New Jersey is now in hot pursuit. On August first the Reds were leading by 94 eggs and on September first they had a margin of 64 eggs, but on October first their lead had been whittled down to only 36 eggs. Both of these pens have made a magnificent record. It's still a safe gamble that the Reds will have the highest producing individual. Hen No. 501 in the leading pen has already come through with 298 eggs and there are still four week to go.

She has a chance to beat the best previous record of 308 eggs made in 1918 by a White Wyandotte. The second best record of 301 eggs was made in 1922 by a Barred Rock. These are the only two 300 egg hens that have ever been trap nested at Storrs.

In the forty-eighth week a pen of Leghorns owned by George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Mich., headed the list with a score of 50 eggs. Deer Brook Poultry Farm's pen of Reds from Short Falls, N. H., was second best for the week with a production of 47 eggs. Hilltop Farm's pen of Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., and H. F. Barber's White Rocks from Dover, Mass., tied for third place with 46 eggs each. Two pens of White Leghorns entered by C. T. Darby of North Branch, N. J., and Meadowedge Farm, from Cedarhurst, L. I., tied for fourth position with 45 eggs each. The total production for all pens was 2,685 eggs or a yield of more than 38 per cent.

Plymouth Rocks

H. F. Barber (White), Dover, Mass.	1959
Edgar Stoughton (Barred), Wapping, Conn.	1945
Purdue University (Barred) Lafayette, Ind.	1940
Ontario Agricultural College (Barred) Guelph, Ontario.	1886

White Wyandottes

D. O. Witmer, Joplin, Mo.	1904
Albert W. Buckbee, Wisner, N. Y.	1767
Harvey S. Byerly, Sharpsville, Pa.	1727
Frank P. Mattison, Davisville, R. I.	1662

Rhode Island Reds

Fernside Farm, Attleboro, Mass.	2410
Red Mount Farm, Franklin, Mass.	2043
Pinecrest Orchards, Groton, Groton, Mass.	1902
Sunset Poultry Farm, Amherst, Mass.	1853

White Leghorns

C. T. Darby, North Branch, N. J.	2380
Hilltop Farm, Suffield, Conn.	2332
F. M. Johnson, Waldoboro, Maine.	2070
St. John's Poultry Farm, Orungo, Me.	2070

No matter how well you treat the world you will never get out of it alive.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Norwich Music Association

Miss Clara Shear is the artist chosen to open the present season for the Norwich Music Association. This recital will be given in Slater Memorial hall on Tuesday evening, the 7th, at 8 p. m. Miss Shear brings her own accompanist.

The association is presenting an attractive series of seven recitals, to be given one each month including April. Membership in the association is open to all who are interested in good music. Application should be made to Mr. William H. Collins, 63 McKinley avenue. The fee, $2, which includes admission to all of the seven recitals, is certainly a very moderate one. Prompt action by mail or phone will permit Mr. Collins to prepare the season's ticket in advance nad have it ready at the door on Tuesday evening.

Beginning To-day Congoleum Week

October 6 to 11 only

A Six-Dav Sale of America's Most Popular Floor-Covering

For the first time in two years, genuine nationally-advertised Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs, By-the-Yard and Rug-Border are now offered at special bargain prices. Unlike sales that feature cut prices on left-overs at the end of the season, Congoleum Week gives every woman the opportunity to beautify her floors at the lowest possible cost just at the time when she is putting her home in order for the winter.

Instead of putting down the same old rugs and carpets after everything else has been cleaned and looks like new, a few dollars spent now for Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs will do wonders in brightening up the home.

One of the greatest charms of Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs—the warmth and artistry of their color schemes — cannot be appreciated from this advertisement. You must see them to realize how beautiful your floors can be made at such small cost.

Beautiful — Durable — Easily Cleaned

A delightful note of brightness and color is introduced into the home by Congoleum Rugs. Beautiful to begin with, the unusually durable surface resists the hardest wear.

These popular rugs banish the tiresome beating and sweeping necessary with old-fashioned, woven floor-coverings. One minute with a damp mop and the rich, artistic patterns of Congoleum Rugs are revealed in their full beauty — cleaned as easily as highly glazed tiles.

Designs for Every Room

There are appropriate Congoleum patterns for every room, for every manner of taste, for every color scheme. There are warm-toned designs to enrich the appearance of dining and living-rooms; exquisite floral patterns to give fresh beauty to bedrooms and neat conventional reproductions for kitchen, pantry and bathroom.

Waterproof and Stain-Proof

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs are made in one strong, seamless piece. They are absolutely unaffected by water. They will not fray along the edges. Spilled liquids cannot stain and dirt cannot penetrate their smooth, sanitary surface.

No Fastening Required

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs lie absolutely flat without fastening. They won't wrinkle or kick up; they never curl at the edges.

Genuine, Guaranteed Goods

All the Gold-Seal Congoleum offered in this sale is fresh, new goods. All of it carries the famous Gold Seal pledge of "Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back." For your own protection, remember there is only one "Congoleum" and it is identified by the Gold Seal pasted on the face of every pattern.

Gold-Seal Congoleum By-the-Yard

The same material as Congoleum Rugs, and made in tasteful unbordered designs for use over the entire floor.

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rug-Border

If it is desired to cover the floor space between a large centre rug and the walls, there is Congoleum Rug-Border in realistic reproductions of hardwood flooring.

Don't Miss This Opportunity

Wherever you may live — you will find a Congoleum dealer near you. He will be glad to show you the many beautiful patterns. Don't delay. Reduced prices are in effect this week only.

SHEEP IN CONNECTICUT.

Compared with a half century ago sheep raising in Connecticut is almost a lost industry. But the changes which have taken place in the state in that time are not such as to require such a change. The opportunities for raising sheep here have not been nullified. There is still plenty of land for such purposes and there's no doubt about a demand for the products.

In this connection the club and community efforts which are devoted to such ends are interesting, but they also demonstrate not only what can be done but what ought to be done on a much larger scale.

Through the farm bureaus efforts to bring about a revival of interest in sheep husbandry is making some headway. Some have entered the business on a larger scale, others have put sheep on their farms, while among the boys and girls there has been created an interest which may have its greatest fruition in years to come. When they are being shown that there is a demand for Connecticut grown wool, for native lamb and for mutton, when it is shown that such flocks as the farms of this state will maintain will produce the wool for blankets and suitings, it is likely to make a good impression upon those who are interested in getting the most out of the farms and overcoming the many wastes.

The demonstration work which is being done in this direction by the farm bureaus is of no small importance. It is bolstering up a worthy branch of farm activity, but above all it is directing attention to that which has been seriously slipping under the impression that Connecticut has little or no chance in such a direction. There's no good reason why Connecticut cannot produce more sheep, more apples, more garden truck and more timber from its present acreage, much of which is not utilized and which offers an excellent opportunity for turning it to a profit. It will be to the great benefit of Connecticut when the purpose of such farm bureau efforts get the response they deserve.

CHANCE FOR UNIFORMITY.

When a commission on uniform state laws reports a bill for ratification by the states it has come to the conclusion following its studies that uniformity should prevail, that it is for the best interests of the states to have such a law and the quicker there is a general adoption of it the quicker will there come the ending of many infractions of motor vehicle laws through ignorance.

Those who go from one state to another constantly must get acquainted with the laws and their points of difference in the several states. Those who go only occasionally into neighboring states must depend upon a quick perusal of the laws in other states or depend upon what they can acquire or their good judgment.

For the most part there is no intention to violate the laws of other states but it is next to impossible and it is believed will be found entirely unnecessary for states to have laws which differ concerning the use of the highways. Uniformity would eliminate much of the trouble. Those in Connecticut would know what they must do when going into Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York or any other state. What is required here would be required there, and vice versa and there is no reason to suppose that the interests of the respective states would in any way suffer through such a general law. On the other hand there would be ground for expecting improvement since the law would not change as the boundaries were passed.

There are many points made necessary in the regulation of highway traffic upon which the states could unite. When it comes to traffic regulations in cities it is a different matter. For the most part there might be uniformity there, but each city, because of its layout has its own particular problems which are not like those of other cities. Regulations there must be governed by the amount of traffic, by the width of the streets, by the congestion in various districts and similar problems.

Uniformity in state motor vehicle laws is required by the rapid increase in motor vehicles and in the interest of greater highway safety.

DON'T BE A FIRE KINDLER.

We are on the eve of that season of the year when the great quantity of leaves will mean a serious fire menace to the woodlands. The leaves are turning and soon they will carpet the ground. The hunting season is at hand and a greater number persons will be tramping the woods and field where there is so much of this tinderlike material. Just because there are leaves and hunters thrown into close contact doesn't necessarily mean that there should be fires. It is only when there is a failure to take proper care with firebrands that trouble results.

California has apparently reached that period which will soon be here. There we are told that the national forests are on fire at ten different points and the acreage burned over by the first reports ranged from 3,000 to 10,000 acres with a number of ranch buildings and cabins consumed.

Connecticut hasn't any national forests and it isn't favored with the woodland area of California, but there is good and sufficient reason for the one as well as the other to guard well what it has and to prevent that destruction which requires but little properly directed attention to prevent. It is prevention that is needed.

When inflammable material and fire are brought together there is no question what happens. When a little care is exercised there is a whole lot of prevention accomplished, and it should not be overlooked that the prevention of fires in woodlands, or which would threaten woodlands, means the saving of someone's property. It is this destruction which ought to get a bit of thought before the careless throwing aside of a firebrand starts something which cannot be easily stopped, with money going up in smoke every second.

The cause of the fires in the California forests is not disclosed. The human agent is responsible for the great majority of all fires so that no matter where it is there is an opportunity for persistent fire prevention work. Don't be fire kindlers.

JUDGE AYLING'S ENDORSEMENT

When the democratic probate convention assembled Saturday it placed in nomination Judge Nelson J. Ayling. In so doing it anticipated the action of the republican probate convention called for this week, but it was action in accord with what has been done in the past and which unquestionably expresses the sentiment of the people of this probate district.

Such a nomination means of course an endorsement of the manner in which Judge Ayling had administered the office for a long term of years. Having demonstated his ability in this office which comes so close to the people, having shown his fitness to act for the widows and the orphans and having had such a long and valuable experience in the conduct of the probate court, the action of the democratic convention stands as a high commendation of his services, and it means that there will be no contest for the office.

Retention in office of those judges who have displayed such efficiency, regardless of their political affiliations is a policy which has received no little endorsement throughout the state. It will be well when the time comes that all probate districts cease to make a political football of this office, since it should be eliminated from politics quite the same as the choice of superior court judges.

There would probably have been no question but what Judge Ayling would have been reelected without such an endorsement, but it is nevertheless the wise thing to eliminate that office from a contest whenever possible. The action must therefore be commended.

TOWN ELECTIONS.

For the most of the towns in the state this is election day. It is the time for the selection of town officers for the ensuing year, and therefore a time when there should be an exercise on the part of the voters of their right to participate. Part of the towns, Norwich included, elect but once in two years and for them this is the off year.

It is upon the choice of the best possible town officials that the proper conduct of town government rests. The parties having placed in nomination the tickets, it behooves the voters to do their duty by going to the polls and making their choice. When town, or any, elections are left to the few there can be no ground for complaint if town affairs are not conducted in a manner satisfactory to the townspeople. It is through the election and the town meeting that the voters hold a check upon the public servants. That check or indorsement should be forthcoming on those occasions, if sound and businesslike government is to result.

In the respective town elections today there will be before the voters simply their own respective problems. The aim on such occasions must be for good government. It is the time for dealing with home affairs and there is little question but what those in the respective towns are fully conversant with their particular problems. That of course is reason enough for each and everyone who can to get to the polls and vote. There is nothing needed more than a big and wholesome interest in town affairs. The bigger the participation the greater evidence that the voters know what they want and are determined to get it.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

An oiled duster should never be used on gilt or bronze frames.

Coffee stains may be removed by brushing the spots with pure glycerine.

Steaming vegetables is preferable to boiling them.

In boiling milk, it will not burn if a little water is put into the saucepan first and allowed to come to a boil and the milk is then added.

If you put your loaf bread, biscuits or baked sweet potatoes in your fireless cooker just after you have taken out the dinner they will be as soft and warm as if just baked.

To prevent the gravy soaking through the bottom crust of meat pies, brush over the crust with white of egg.

Dry your orange peels and grind them to a coarse powder. This can be used to flavor cakes, sauces, and puddings. Lemon peels may be used the same way.

When washing valuable china or cut glass it is a good plan to place a heavy Turkish towel at the bottom of the china and glass getting chipped.

Instead of always folding tablecloths and sheets lengthwise, it is an excellent plan to sometimes fold them the other way. They are less likely to wear out if the folds are occasionally changed.

To keep mice away scatter small pieces of camphor in your cupboards and drawers. They greatly dislike the smell of camphor and will go far away from it.

To prevent silver tops of salt shakers corroding heat paraffin and spread it inside the top. While the paraffin is cooling use a toothpick to open holes through which the salt may sift.

SCISSORS IN THE KITCHEN

Every well equipped kitchen has its special pair of sharp scissors, never used in any other room. The scissors are useful in preparing fowls for roasting, for shredding lettuce and clipping up parsley; for trimming sandwiches, for slicing a few nuts for garnishing and for preparing grapefruit for the table.

THAT LEAKY KETTLE

To mend a hole in granite ware work a piece of putty until perfectly soft, then take a piece of the putty large enough to cover the hole and put one piece on either side of the metal, pressing together inside and out, smoothing down the edges.

Place the vessel in a slow oven and bake until the putty is a deep brown. For containing water the vessel will be as good as new.

FOR STOVE BLACKING

Take one can of stove polish and mix it with a little warm water and a few drops kerosene oil and rub on stove. When dry polish it with stove brush and you will have a very bright stove.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Ingenious and varied have been the devices for keeping bobbed locks demurely dignified for formal evening dances. The latest idea is a bandeau of fine silver wire, studded with crystals and worn low across the ends of the hair from ear to ear.

In most cases, the trouble with the hair is simply that the scalp does not get enough sunlight and fresh air. One of the reasons why bobbed hair is healthy is because it is well ventilated. Fresh air can reach the scalp which, like all the rest of the body, must breathe. And it is frequently so covered up with artificial hair or with hats that it gets very little chance to do that.

It is very hard to give baby medicine when you are alone with him and tiny fists are flying. Try wrapping him in a blanket with his hands down by his sides and then give him the medicine. In all probability he will be crying by that time, so just hold his nose for a second and pour the medicine into his open mouth. It will all be over in a minute and he will have received the benefit of the entire dose of medicine, not just the part that did not spill.

A good massage cream for a dry skin may be made of the following ingredients: One ounce glycerin, one ounce of sweet almonds, two ounces spermaceti, 20 grams cherry laurel water, 12 drops of oil of rose. Melt the spermaceti in a double boiler. Beat in the almond oil. Remove from the stove and stir in the glycerin and then the cherry laurel water. Lastly add the rose perfume. Pour the mixture into jars to cool. Keep it protected from dust.

OYSTER LORE

Oysters are now in season and a hot oyster dish is easily prepared for the home luncheon or supper. Many of the methods of cooking these shell fish lend themselves to the use of the chafing dish or the small electric grill; and prepared in this way they may be cooked at the table for the late supper party or the impromptu "Sunday night tea," a convenience if the maid is not among those present.

In cooking it must be remembered that oysters contain an albuminous substance which hardens at high temperature, just as the albumen of an egg does. Therefore a low temperature for a short time should be the rule in cooking oysters, 160 to 180 degrees Fahrenheit being the cooking temperature of albumen.

TO CLEAN SILVER

Table silver that is badly tarnished may be cleaned by putting in a pan of water covered with a strong solution of borax, washing soda or potash, and bringing it to a boiling point. Let it boil for about 20 minutes and stay in the solution until cold. Then rinse and wipe with a soft cloth or chamois.

ABOUT WHITE SAUCE

The general rule for the quantity of white sauce in proportion to vegetables is one part of sauce to two or three of diced vegetables. Starchy vegetables should have a thinner sauce than the more fibrous vegetables. For example, potatoes, when diced and heated with cream sauce, give up some of their starch and tend to thicken the resulting food. Cabbage, on the other hand, gives of its flavor, but does not change the consistency of the sauce.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Maline scarfs to match the gowns are featured for evening wear by the smartest dress designers today.

Silk pongee makes inexpensive pajamas and step-ins, piped with a color or embroidered slightly in black or colors.

Cat fur is in great demand this season. It is dyed in exotic colors and thus disguised, trims exotic gowns.

A collar and cuff set of peach tinted linen is a distinctive addition to the coat frock of black satin. The linen set is lightly embroidered in black.

Suits appear to be more in favor to day than ever, though some predictions were that their spring popularity would kill them. The newer suits have long coats.

Wool challie that soft and lovely material, is "in" again. House frocks of challie, striped and figured, are among the prettiest showings of the season at present.

The lace-trimmed handkerchief is here once more, and correct for wear even with the most severely tailored costume. The trimming is narrow and often ruffled.

Tailored frocks for autumn are now being made in corded materials. These may be either silk or wool. Black is smart, but more fashionable when combined with white or blue.

There are hairpins, in spite of the vogue for bobs. If you desire, you may now tuck scarlet or jade green or vivid blue hairpins into your coiffure, each pin blazing with tiny brilliants.

Sleeves cling pretty snugly to the wrist and forearm in many new models. A favorite finish to the sleeve of the tailored frock at present is two buttons and two handmade buttonholes at the wrist, but no cuff.

There is marked tendency today toward simplicity in footwear. Lines are carefully considered, and materials are chosen for their beauty. But the general effect is simple and dignified.

No matter what color or kind the glove is today it has an elaborate gauntlet whatever when it is long. Nothing is smarter than gloves of flesh-tinted kidskin.

SMART AUTUMN SHADES

Together with the shades of bronze which are to be smart this autumn, there is a shade of reddish brown and another of brownish red. Black and royal blue are still the peak of fashion when used together.

IN THE BOUDOIR

For the up-to-date boudoir, with hint of medieval coloring, there is a distinctive jewel box. Made in the old treasure-chest shape, this box is of wood, the shade of old leather, and decorated with dim figures in gilt and soft tones of red.

SETS OFF DARK SHADES

With the rich, dark shades of red, blue and purple heralded for autumn a necklace that will offset the dark tones and yet not clash with them is desirable. A string of gleaming white rock crystal meets this need.

MODIFY TUBE EFFECT

So many women look tubby in the tube dress that designers have relented to the extent of creating a frock of softest crepe which follows tube lines, but is closely plaited. They even permit tiers of plaited ruffles on the skirt.

SEWING HINTS

Raveled yarn from worn-out garments, cut into bits, makes a soft filler for pin cushions and sofa pillows.

If you notice a thin place or a small hole or "runner" in your stocking upon removal, darn it before putting it in the laundry. Then the hole will not increase to a hopeless size in the washing process.

When making babies' petticoats and dresses it is advisable to tuck them so as to provide for shrinkage or lengthening.

To prevent seams from puckering first pin and tack them, laying the material flat on the table. On shirts they should be sewed always from the waist down.

When sewing hooks and eyes on a cotton dress that is to pay frequent visits to the washtubs try sewing the eyes on the outer flap and the hooks on the underneath, wrong side up. This will permit the dress to be ironed more smoothly on the outer side.

BAG EASILY MADE

For theater use a lovely bag may be fashioned of ribbon. Choose one of the smart metallic ribbons that are now shown in many designs and buy one-half yard of ribbon seven inches wide. Green shot with silver or blue touched with gold will be effective. Sew sides together, leaving space at bottom to gather on a tiny round mirror. Turn in tops and sew over a pair of the bracelet-like hoops shown in fancy goods departments.

CLOSET ROOM

So many houses of today are built with closets little wider than a door and as shallow as a bookcase. Every house or almost every house can be so planned that with very little additional expense and without encroaching on any needed room there may be an abundance of good sized closets. If the home builder will give attention to this important detail in advance he will be repaid by the convenience of having plenty of closet room. It is so much easier to build them in than to add to a house after it is built.

TABLE COVER

If you have a heavy bedspread too worn to be presentable, hem it all around the four edges to prevent raveling; patch worn spots and use it as a pad for the dining room table. If it is so worn that it "sheds" cover it on both sides with silkoline or cheesecloth, tacking together here and there as you would a quilt.

FLOWER SEEDS

If you have a garden of your own gather seeds from it for Christmas gifts. Gather only those of perfect and beautiful flowers. When a flower, the seeds of which you have decided to save, begins to fade, tie a little cheesecloth bag over it to catch the seeds. Attach a slip of paper to it on which its color is written. When the seeds are ripe put them in small envelopes, neatly marked with names, colors and a few directions about planting and cultivating. The envelope usually sold to hold calling cards is of a satisfactory size.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A club in London, which is maintained by the Church Army exclusively for barmaids, has more than 600 members.

At a recent wedding of his only daughter a Nebraska farmer presented her with 18 fine cows—one for each year of her life.

Mme. Tallien, the famous French beauty, was the inventor of the strawberry bath as a skin beautifier for the fashionable women of her day.

Charlotte Marsh, a familiar figure in England as the driver of Lloyd George's car during the war, has arrived in America to seek work as a motor mechanic.

A graduate nurse, who is herself a full-blooded Indian, has been assigned by the States Department of Health and Welfare to maternity work among the Indian women of the State reservations in Nebraska.

The appointment of Miss Marguerite White, aged 21 years, as agent for the Chelmsford division of Essex by the Chelmsford Liberal Association, makes her the youngest agent in Great Britain.

Mrs. R. M. Hoots of Tulsa, Okla., owner of Black Gold, winner of the Kehtucky Derby, is the second woman to carry off the rich prize. Far back in 1904 Elwood carried Mrs. C. W. Durnell's colors to victory.

IF TOO SALTY

Brown sugar is excellent for counteracting the too strong taste of salt. Stir a little of it into the gravy, vegetable or soup and you'll find the salt taste killed.

BABY'S BIB

Cut a new dress shield in two pieces, bind the raw edges and tack under baby's bib. It will absorb the moisture and keep the little dress from getting damp.

RECIPES

Mayonnaise Dressing: Put in a small pan a lump of butter the size of an egg and when melted add a tablespoon of cornstarch and mix. Then add a cup of milk and let it come to a boil. Have ready the yolks of 2 eggs beaten, mixed with a tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon of dry mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper. Mix well, then add 1-2 cup vinegar and mix well with the first group of ingredients. Let it come to a boil and then set away to cool.

Grape Juice: Pick grapes from stem. Wash thoroughly. Put in preserving kettle with a very little water and heat, stirring to prevent sticking. When the skins are broken and the juice flows freely put into jelly bag and let drip. Measure juice and allow one-fourth cup of granulated sugar for each cup of juice. Return juice to preserving kettle and bring juice to the boiling point. When boiling sift in the required amount of sugar. Any scum that arises on the juice before the sugar is added should be carefully skimmed off. After the sugar is added there should be no more scum. Do not let the juice boil after adding sugar. Pour into hot cans or bottles and seal quickly. The bottles must be full to overflowing and the juice at the boiling point when sealed. This juice should be diluted when used as a drink.

The method of canning the whole grapes quicker for the time being but if cans and space are to be considered it is not as practicable.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Minnesota View

Mr. Editor: The issue in this campaign is: Are the people of America going to let any man at this time hold a bolshevik shotgun in his hand and shoot a bolshevik shot through the American flag and our great supreme court of America, or are they not going to? The same flag and court that Washington gave us with his sword when he rode up on his white horse on Bunker hill and gave us our independence. I will say that any man who will try to take from this country with his mouth what Lincoln and Washington gave us with their swords, is a traitor to our country. What's the matter with the republicans? They paid off two billion national debt in four years, fed ten million starving children in Europe, and yet there is not one souphouse or breadline in America at this time. When the workingman votes against the republican party he cuts off his nose to spite his face. I will ask every man, woman son and daughter to vote for Coolidge and Dawes Nov. 4. These two patriots we can all trust at the head of our nation.

PROPHET JIM McNULTY.

Firestone, the Extract Salesman

People called Harvey S. Firestone "a changeable youth," "a foolish man" and "a visionary," and when he was on the threshold of his greatest success they laughed at his ideas.

Born on a farm near Columbiana, Ohio, he helped in the fields and attended the nearby school. After being graduated from high school he went to business college in Cleveland.

Obtaining work as clerk in a coal office in Columbus, he soon saw that there was no future for him there. Resigning, he started as traveling salesman for an extract concern, at $50 a month and expenses. Funds ran low and at one time, his check not arriving according to schedule, he had to wire home for money. But he saved, and at the end of the first year had a bank account of $150.

Seeing no opportunity in this position, he resigned and became shipping clerk for his uncle in the Columbus Buggy Company. Rubber tires were being produced for light vehicles, and he was sent to show Detroit its first rubber-tired buggy.

Enthused by the possibilities of rubber tires, he enlisted two partners when he was 28, and the three bought a little rubber plant in Chicago for $1,500. Developing the Victor Rubber Company, they bought another factory after a hard struggle to pay the final $10,000 on it. Four years later they sold out for $1,250,000.

Rich at 32, Firestone went back to the farm for a rest, but visions of bigger successes in making rubber tires for automobiles spurred him to buy the rubber tire department of a carriage factory at Akron, Ohio.

Adding an iron factory with rusting machinery, he started the Firestone Rubber Company, with a working force of 14. His ideas were called "visionary" and people laughed at him, but the orders soon began to pour in.

Later organizing the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, he built one of the largest rubber tire plants in the world, where more than 22,000 workers are employed. Firestone is a multi-millionaire at 55, is active in his business and enjoys his annual outings with Edison and Ford.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Brig. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who soon will become the youngest major general on the United States Army list, was graduated at West Point in 1903 at the head of his class, and has since had a brilliant career in the army. During the Russo-Japanese war he was a representative of the U. S. Army. Returning to Washington, he renewed study at the engineering school and, after graduation, went to several of the western posts to supervise reforms in teaching. During the Mexican expedition of 1914 he acted as military censor in Washington. He accompanied Gen. Pershing's earliest forces to France, where he commanded the 84th Infantry Brigade. Upon his return he became commandant at West Point, the youngest man ever holding that position. Gen. MacArthur is a student of military history and tactics and is one of the ablest writers on the technique of war that the United States army has recently produced. His father was Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, who made such a fine record in the Philippines.

HUMANE SOCIETY AFTER DANBURY FAIR RODEO

At the request of the Connecticut Humane society, made through Fairfield County Agent Barlow, States Attorney Homer S. Cummings will have a special representative at the Danbury fair, opening today (Monday) to determine whether the fair officials shall be allowed to conduct an advertized rodeo. The request to Mr. Cummings stated the rodeo exhibitions in this state in the past have been in violation of statutory provision relative to cruelty to animals.

The Connecticut Humane society has asked for the arrest of the fair officials if the rodeo is presented; but Mr. Cummings has decided to investigate and if the circumstances warrant he will stop the exhibition.

Edward E. Sprague, 76, a well-known lawyer, and senior member of the firm of Sprague, Seymour & Sprague, of 43 Cedar street, New York, died Friday at his home in Flushing, L. I. Mr. Sprague was born in Albany and was a son of the late Rev. William B. Sprague, a noted Presbyterian minister and author. He was at different times general counsel for the Guaranty and Trust Company, the Long Island Railroad and the Board of Trustees of Flushing Village and while a member of the law firm of Strong & Cadwallader was a partner of Henry W. Taft and George W. Wickersham. He leaves his widow, two sons and two daughters, one of the daughters being Hannah Sprague Dodge, wife of Ozias Dodge of Norwich, a former director of Norwich Art school.

There was a private funeral at the family home Sunday, with public services at Flushing Cemetery at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Albert L. Reynolds

(Contributed)

Mrs. Albert L. Reynolds passed away on Saturday afternoon October 4, at about 5 o'clock at her home in the town of Griswold, near Jewett City, after an illness of several months.

She was the daughter of the late Alexander Kilroy and Alice Gorman Kilroy, of Norwich. She was married to Albert Lewis Reynolds, then of Norwich, on April 21, 1913 by the Rev. J. H. Broderick in St. Patrick's church, Norwich.

She leaves her husband, two brothers, Alexander A. Kilroy and Henry J. Kilroy, both of Norwich and several nephews and nieces.

She was a good woman, faithful to every duty, and beloved and respected by all. To her family and friends her loss is very great, above all to her husband. We believe that she is one of those to whom the Great Judge will say "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Daniel O. Dutton

The death of Daniel O. Dutton of 3 Russell road, one of the best known railroad men in this city and section of the state, occurred at 6 o'clock Sunday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry A. Davis, 26 Williams street, New London, after illness for the last four months. He had been forced to give up work the latter part of June, and for sometime had been at his daughter's home.

Mr. Dutton, who was born in Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 26, 1866, had been a railroad man all his active life, beginning as a brakeman but soon becoming a conductor in the passenger service. For 30 years he was in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road on the run between New London and Providence where he was widely known to the traveling public and popular with the patrons of the road for his genial manner and accommodating disposition. Twenty one years ago he lost one leg in a railroad accident, but he was able to return to work after his recovery. For the last seventeen years he had been a pilot on the Jewett City line of the trolley company which traverses the railroad tracks between this city and Central Village.

Mr. and Mrs. Dutton had lived in this city for the last ten years. They were married in Southington thirty three years ago, and had lived in New London for fourteen years, then in Central Village, before locating here Mr. Dutton belonged to the conductors' union, the Odd Fellows lodge in Central Village, Union lodge of Masons and the Eastern Star in New London. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

CAR CLIMBS BANK AFTER CRASH IN ROAD

A Ford touring car owned and driven by Richard Morris of 107 Washington street, lost its left front wheel, had the front spring broken, axle and wishbone bent and mudguard and running board damaged Saturday night about 10:30 in a collision on the Norwich-Westerly road in the Lantern Hill section of North Stonington. The other car was the Buick sedan driven by Charles Larkin of Westerly and owned by his aunt, Mrs. Peabody, who was accompanying him with other ladies.

The cars were traveling in opposite directions when they met and the Ford was swung around by the blow until it came to a stop at right angles with the road. The Buick swerved to the left after the crash, climbing a steep bank, with one front wheel over a boulder that kept it from sliding back into the road. It had a tire blown and the left running board broken.

State Policeman Albright who was summoned from Groton through a telephone message from the Norwich police headquarters summonded both drivers to court in North Stonington Tuesday evening. From the measurements he took of the wheel marks in the highway he charged Morris with the blame for the accident.

COUNTY HOME CHILDREN GUESTS AT LIONS' PLAY

At the matinee performance of The Minstrel Serenade Saturday at the Broadway theatre the Lions club of Norwich had as its guests 65 children from the New London County Home. Transportation was provided by club members and the boys and girls thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon's entertainment.

The performance was repeated in the evening, scoring the same pronounced success that had greeted it on the first night.

PRESENTS HIS RESIGNATION AS PASTOR AT SPIRITUAL ACADEMY

Sunday afternoon at the services at the Spiritual Academy the pastor, Rev. A. P. Blinn, presented his resignation, to take effect on the 1st of April, 1925. Pastor Blinn came to the congregation just nineteen years ago Sunday and has been a zealous and earnest worker who has been held in high esteem by his congregation, so that it was with much regret that his resignation was accepted at a business meeting that was held after the service.

Rev. Mr. Blinn's resignation presented now gives the six months' notice which is called for under the agreement made when he accepted the pastorate, which provided that either church or pastor desiring to terminate the pastorate should give six months' notice.

It is his intention to spend the summer at Lake Pleasant and in northern New England, after which he will travel in the west and southwest, expecting to locate there in the ministry. He believes that the climate of that section will be beneficial to a throat affection with which he has been troubled for some time.

Mrs. Isabel C. Bradley of Boston, the noted psychic and ballot medium, occupied the pulpit at the Academy Sunday at the afternoon and evening services, giving addresses and messages that held the closest attention of the congregations that filled the room at both services.

In the evening a handsome American flag was presented to the First Spiritual union by Sedgwick corps No. 16, W. R. C. The presentation was made in behalf of the corps by Mrs. E. Grace Fowler and the flag was accepted for the union by Rev. Mr. Blinn.

In making the presentation she spoke briefly along patriotic lines as follows:

The United States flag was first authorized by congress June 14, 1777, in Philadelphia. Myth, tradition and legend assigned the making and designing of the first United States flag to Betsey Ross, a Philadelphia Quakeress. The same myth and tradition states that she made the flag at the suggestion of a committee of congress composed of George Washington, Robert Morris and a Colonel Ross. The flag was born of revolution, baptized in blood and tears, but from the hour it was brought into existence by the Continental congress to the present day it has been the symbol of light and liberty, of justice, equality, patriotism and progress. It has floated for nearly a century and a half, the pride and glory of millions of people. The red signifies the Father, blood of heroes slain; blue for the Son and truth; white for the Holy Ghost and purity. Let it stir in our hearts feelings of veneration and always bear in mind that it stands not alone for our country but God. Let our watchword be "God and Our Country."

Preceding the presentation, the congregation sang The Star Spangled Banner, led by the choir, and America closed this part of the service. Organist Charles A. Dowsett rendered patriotic airs as the postlude.

STING IN POLITICAL CIRCULAR IN GROTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

Groton, Oct. 5.—Candidates for public office in this town who are to be voted for Monday received an awful razzing in a circular of four pages printed in pica type, that was distributed from house to house Friday evening and sent through the mail Saturday. The authors of the pamphlet had the bad judgment to sign the circular with the name of "Good Government Club." As there is no such organization in the town, the fact is apparent that the author dare not disclose his identity. And in that he was wise, for attorneys have expressed the opinion that the author has laid himself liable to prosecution for libel and slander. The circular takes the candidates individually and by name lambasts them with vitriolic charges. The writer attacks their honesty and their character by inuendo. He refers to one as a man who should be associated with the Sultan of Turkey with the regime of olden days, and says he is in politics only for what he can get out of the game. All the others are charged with being grafters and self-service by inference. Such a scurrilous document has never been circulated before in this staid little town. One candidate alone is of the sort the "Good Government Club" desires to have elected. The others are condemned most savagely. The circular begins in these words: "We are soon to exercise that God-given privilege won by our forefathers on many a bloody battlefield, to choose officers of this beautiful and historic town, and in our choice we must give serious consideration to the candidates, requiring that they shall be men of undoubted integrity, upright and honest, morally fit and mentally competent. It is our duty to give this subject our full consideration."

The circular goes on to flay the candidates with a flail that has been soaked in vitriol and which will burn the sores its blows shall wake. The document concludes with these words: "Conditions are so serious that unless citizens take drastic action they are in danger of losing their homes."

A hunt is to be made to determine where the circulars were printed and to ascertain the name of the party who ordered them, that he may be proceeded against in law. The effect of the scandalous document is expected to be the election of all the parties against whom the attack is made.

MISSIONARY STORY IS TOLD IN COSTUME

Trinity Methodist Episcopal church opened the season's programme of evening services Sunday with an interesting talk on Missionary Work in India by Mrs. Charles Rowe Vickery, missionary monologuist, who spoke in costume. Rev. H. Harlow Graham pastor of the church, led the service and prayer was offered by Rev. William H. Bath. Mrs. Vickery was introduced by Rev. Mr. Graham. Her talk was an interesting description of the wonderful work done in India by a native woman leader, in educating and converting the women of her country.

Mrs. Vickery described the life of this native woman teacher from the time of her birth. She told of the death of the woman's father and how with her people she went on a seven year's pilgrimage visiting the shrines and temples of India. They had no money with which to buy food and the priests drove them from the temples because they had no gold to give. Her father as death was overtaking him, told her to trust in God, for "there must be a God somewhere" and that God would take care of her.

She and her brother wandered around India for four years and found themselves in Calcutta. After her mother died she married and following the birth of a little daughter her husband was claimed by cholera. She then went to England to study and later came to this country going to Philadelphia, where she studied the kindergarten system.

On her return to India she took up teaching and opened a school for women. Her class grew to 20 women but because she would not forget God and go back to Hindu worship the men took their women away from her school. She was not discouraged, however, and eventually got permission to take 300 starving girls and women from another province and took them in charge. A house of refuge was built for them where they were fed, housed and taught. In all this woman rescued some 6,000 women from starvation and death.

Mrs. Vickery then went on to tell of the difficulties under which the missionaries in India have to work. She described the typical mode of transportation over rough country in a crude ox cart. Speaking of the situation which the Methodist church is facing in India, Mrs. Vickery said that unless money comes 25 per cent. of the missionaries and native teachers will have to give up their work.

The service closed with benediction pronounced by Mr. Graham.

Going With Meriden Concern.

Thomas J. Burke of Norwich, who has been employed by the H. Wales Lines company of Meriden, on construction work at the Norwich State hospital, has resigned his position and has accepted a position with the George Cummings company of Meriden. He will leave this city Saturday for Rye, N. Y., where he will enter upon his new field of work.

POTATO DEMONSTRATION ON PRESTON PLAINS FARMS

Over 100 attended the potato digging demonstration Saturday afternoon at the Shedd & Dawley farm on Preston Plains, where potatoes from 11 different strains were dug by machine and weighed under the direction of County Agent Walter T. Clark. All had been planted May 23 and had been given the same kind of fertilizer treatment, with 1,100 pounds broadcast and 1,500 in the drills, as Clifton Dawley explained in a short talk he gave. They had been sprayed seven times.

After the potatoes had been dug they were sorted by machine and weighed, the weight from a row 150 long showing the estimated yield per acre.

Sprayed and unsprayed potatoes on the Irving Foote farm were also dug and weighed. His field, where he estimated he will dig about 10,000 bushels, showed some marvels in the way of size.

The results in the two fields were as follows, a strain from Windsor county, Vermont, showing the best yield:

B. A. Brown of Storrs Agricultural college gave a short talk upon his trip to Vermont and Maine, where he had seen certified seed grown. His advice was that it was advisable to use certified seed, but you wanted to know who you were buying from, and he said there was a better quality of seed produced in Vermont and southern Maine than in northren Maine.

GOLDEN WEDDING WITH BIG FAMILY GATHERING

A family gathering at the home of their son Henry in Franklin on Sunday clebrated the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Holden of 13 Clairemount avenue. The wedding date was Oct. 7, 1924, but the anniversary celebration was held Sunday, which was Mr. Holden's 72d birthday.

The family party numbered twenty and the day was spent in a delightful informal way with a dinner at noon, when Mr. and Mrs. Holden had their children and grandchildren gathered around them. There were thirteen grandchildren present. The sons and one daughter attending with their families were Walter of this city, Mrs. Charles H. Adams of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Henry of Franklin. A daughter, Edith, who is in the canal zone, Panama, was unable to be present.

Mr. Holden was born on the Corning road in what was then the town of Preston. Fifty years ago in Norwich he married Josephine Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Perkins. His ancestry traces back to the earliest settlers in this section. In his early business life he was engaged in farming then for a time in the trucking business at Packerville, but the largest part of his active business life has been in this city, where for many years he conducted a market and grocery on Franklin square. He retired from business a year ago.

Mr. Holden is prominent in the Masonic fraternity, being a past grand master of the grand lodge of Connecticut. He has always been interested in politics and has served one term in the legislature besides being on the republican town committee. He is a member fo Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and has been active in the church and Sunday school work. Both Mr. and Mrs. Holden are members of the Grange and the Eastern Star.

NEMROD GROTTO PATROL PARADED AT SPRINGFIELD

Nemrod Grotto's patrol of twenty-four four men, under command of Capt. Charles A. Hagberg, was honored with second position in the line in the parade Saturday at noon at Springfield in the New England ceremonial and field day. Bela grotto, the entertaining body, led the line, with Norwich next, followed by New Haven, Boston, Fall River, Worcester, New Britain, Hartford, Providence, Bridgeport and Newport. The 20th Infantry band of Springfield furnished the music for the Norwich Grotto over the line of march which was about three miles long. Nemrod grotto patrol did not enter the competitive drill.

About 40 members of the Norwich Grotto attended the exercises headed by Monarch Herbert R. Kind and Past Monarch George E. Zimmerman. The ceremonial in the municipal auditorium had an attendance of 3,000, and all the entertainment features in the two days were of high class.

On Reckless Driving Charge

Konstantin Rashkevich, 32, was arrested Sunday afternoon in Greenville on a reckless driving charge by Officer John Carroll. He was operating his car in such an uncertain way as to attract the attention of the officer.

WEDDINGS.

McHale—Moore.

In St. Patrick's church, Saturday morning, at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Nellie Fitzgerald Moore was united in marriage with John M. McHale of Wethersfield, this state. The nuptial high mass was celebrated by Rev. Michael H. May, pastor of the church. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick LaFrenniere. The bride was charmingly gowned in brown georgette crepe trimmed with beads and hat to match. Mrs. LaFrenniere, matron of honor, was gowned in dark blue beaded georgette crepe with hat to match.

Following the wedding ceremony there was a breakfast at the Mohican hotel, New London, with about 25 guests present. The bride's gift to the groom was a white gold wrist watch and the groom's gift to his best man was a pair of white gold cuff links.

During the day Mr. and Mrs. McHale left for a wedding tour to New York and Washington. On their return they will reside at No. 59 Forest street for a time and later will take up their residence in Wethersfield.

Mrs. McHale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald and has always made her home in this city. Until recently she was employed as cashier at the Terminal restaurant, and among the many wedding gifts were a large check from the proprietors of the Terminal and a gift from her fellow employes.

Mr. McHale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McHale and is employed as a guard at the state prison in Wethersfield. The bride received numerous gifts from her many friends. Both Mr. and Mrs. McHale are well known in Norwich and have the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy married life.

Granis—Hughes.

At St. John's Episcopal church, in Waterbury, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Mildred Hughes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rawson Hughes, of Waterbury, became the bride of Donald Stuart Granniss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Granniss of Pine street, Waterbury. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. Dr. John N. Lewis and was followed by a large reception in the American dining room of The Elton.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who is president of The Reid & Hughes company which operates department stores in this city and Waterbury. She was attended by Mrs. Paul A. Shepardson of Waterbury as matron of honor. Other attendants included Mrs. William P. Arnold, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Donald Miller of South Orange, N. J., Mrs. William Parrott, Jr., of Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. Norman Granniss, Portchester, N. Y., sister-in-law of the bridegroom. The best man was Norman Granniss, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Stephen W. Kelloff, Alfred N. Rowland, Edwin S. Jones, Lewis Suttle, Chauncey P. Goss, 3rd, William P. Arnold, Robert Munger, all of Waterbury and Donald Miller of South Orange, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bussey and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Smith attended the wedding as representatives of the employes of The Reid & Hughes store of this city.

Osborn—Millard.

Miss Ethel Lillian Millard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew D. Millard of 184 Pequot avenue, New London, was married Saturday morning at the Seventh Day Baptist church of Waterford to Ambrose Lester Osborn, of New London, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. C. Osborn of Albany. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waterford.

The attendants were Miss Helen C. Millard, sister of the bride, and Frank S. Joseph of Groton. After their wedding trip the couple will reside at 51 Mott avenue, Neptune park. Mr. Osborn is traffic manager for the Southern New England Telephone company and is a member of the Lions club. His bride is a former resident of this city.

Calkins—Buckley.

Theodore G. Calkins of 34 Connell street, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Calkins, and Miss Florence M. Buckley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Buckley, of 61 Williams street, were quietly married Saturday evening at 7.30 by Rev. A. H. Abbott at his residence at Norwich Town. They were attended by Miss Mildred Bailey and Joseph Grady.

The groom is employed in Montville and the newly married couple are to reside at 61 Williams street.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Sextus Collins

Mrs. Frankie Collins, 67, wife of Sextus Collins, died late Friday afternoon at her home, 375 Williams street, New London, after an illness of many weeks. Besides her husband, Mrs. Collins is survived by a son, Whitman A. Colt of Attleboro, Mass., a daughter, Mrs. Myra Colt Mincoff, of New London and a sister, Mrs. Everett Anthony of Providence. Mrs. Collins was born in Norwich, but had resided in New London the greater part of her life.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at undertaking parlors, 61 Washington street, New London. The body was forwarded to Providence for burial Monday.

SENATORS WIN TENSE GAME BY NINTH INNING RALLY AFTER GIANTS TIE SCORE

Washington, Oct. 5 (By the A. P.).—Battling with the indomitable courage that carried them to their first American league pennant, Washington's Senators today turned the tables on the New York Giants, won the second game of the 1924 world's series and put themselves back in the thick of one of the most stirring struggles ever staged for baseball's greatest honors.

In a flashing finish that was equally as spectacular as the climax to yesterday's opening tussle, and twice as thrilling to another capacity home crowd of 36,000, Roger Peckinpaugh, veteran Washington shortstop, lifted himself to heroic heights by driving across the winning run in the ninth after the Giants had knocked Zachary, southpaw star, from the mound and tied the score with two tallies in their part of the final inning.

The final score was 4 to 3, the same margin by which the first game was decided, and tonight two of the "fightin'est" clubs that ever met for the championship shifted their battleground to New York, where the third game will be played tomorrow.

Washington, under the leadership of "Bucky" Harris, seemed headed irresistibly toward victory today until that fatal inning. Behind Zachary, who after a shaky start had outpitched his southpaw rival, Jack Bentley, the Senators, on the strength of a home run by Goslin in the first inning, with one on, and another circuit blow by Harris in the fifth, entered the final inning with a 3 to 1 lead.

Zachary Weakens.

But here, with triumph in his grasp, Zachary, whose slow curves had baffled the Giants and held them to one run and only four hits in eight innings, weakened, and the National league champions, quick to take advantage of their opportunity, launched a desperate attack that, as suddenly as it flared up was checked by Fred Marberry, relief twirler, who rose heroically to the occasion by striking out Jackson on three pitched balls, with Wilson resting on second with a run that would have put the McGrawmen into the lead.

Marberry Gets Credit.

Thus Marberry, who gained credit for the victory although he pitched only to one batsman and Peckinpaugh, whose smashing single drove over Judge with the winning run in the ninth, when another extra-inning battle seemed imminent, shared in the glory of Washington world's series triumph with Harris, and Goslin, whose mighty bats put the Senators into a commanding lead.

The American league champions, who yesterday seemed more unnerved by the fuss and ceremony of the opening than did the Giants as a result of the scandal involving them, played with sparkling dash and spirit under Harris, whose dynamic personality and all-around brilliance stood out as one of the highest spots of the entire game.

It was a game that emphasized to even greater extent the evenness with which the rivals are matched, and the keenness with which both are seeking the 1924 diamond title. Yesterday the experience of the Giants, four-time champions, and their superior steadiness under fire carried them through, but today they met their match in smartness, speed and attacking power. Washington lost no opportunities today, there was no cracking in the pinch and, in the end, the club's never say die" spirit, inspired by Harris, pulled it through on top.

The whole game this afternoon was surrounded by an atmosphere diametrically opposite of that in the opening game.

Large Crowds.

A crowd of equal proportions was on hand, but there were no ceremonies, no distracting influences or side issues. If they were present again, dignitaries who yesterday held the spotlight became just fans today. Then, too, the strain of the pre-series bribery scandal that shrouded the Giants and charged the world's series atmosphere with suspicion and rumor was absent. The game was the thing today—the crowd realized it, the players knew it and it seemed tonight that the rest of the series would be fought out with the playing issues dominating all else.

Today the "master mind," the tactics of McGraw, veteran Giant chieftain, failed in his attempt to make it two straight from the Senators. Having baffled Washington's heavy artillery of left-handed hitters in the first game with Art Nehf, veteran southpaw, McGraw relied on his second portside star, Bentley, to keep the big guns silenced. But this strategy went awry and the proof of it came in the first inning when, with two out, Sam Rice singled and "Goose" Goslin, the team's "cleanup" slugger, came through with a crashing home run into the bleachers in right center, giving the Senators a lead that the Giants never could overcome.

Bentley settled down after that and for the next seven innings he and Zachary waged a duel that was brilliant to close. Harris' homer, a shot that landed in the temporary left field bleachers, and a single by Rice in the fifth were the only hits in this seven-inning span off Bentley, while Zachary allowed but two safe blows, and a run in the seventh that resulted from a pass to Kelly, Meusel's single and a double play which seemingly was deliberately employed to empty the bases at the expense of a run which seemed good at the time, with the Senators well in the lead, might have been costly had the Giants done more damage than they did in the ninth. But it also was typical of an exhibition of infield play, revolving around Harris, that scintillated from start to finish. Three rattling double plays figured in the defense that held the Giants at bay.

Three Double Plays.

The first of these came in the opening inning and pulled Zachary out of the world hole he faced until the ninth. Lindstrom and Frisch, the first two batters to face him, drove out solid singles and, with one out, the Giants filled the bases on Kelly's grounder to Harris, which the Washington pilot, in his only mistake of the day, threw wild to second in an effort to force Frisch. Meusel, however, brought the rally to an abrupt end when he hit sharply to Bluege, and a double play followed via Harris and Judge.

Young opened the fourth with a single but Kelly slashed to Peckinpaugh, and another sortie was repulsed with a double killing.

The Giants, too, shone in the field, with Freddie Lindstrom, the 18 year old rookie at third base, as the outstanding star. Lindstrom made a startling stab of a hot shot by Bluege in the fourth inning, rolling to the ground, and yet nailing his man in a play that ranks with the best the series has yet seen. Again in the seventh Lindstrom robbed McNeely of a hit with a fine stop and throw.

Thus in rapidfire fashion the game came to its climax. Zachary paved the way for his own undoing in the ninth when he developed a sudden streak of wildness and walked Frisch, the first man to face him. Young popped out, but Kelly, hero of the Giants' victory yesterday, followed with a long single to center on which Frisch scored by an eyelash in a daring race for the plate. Harris momentarily checked the rally when he made a remarkable one-handed stab of Meusel's sharp hit toward right and threw him out at first. Kelly got to second, however, and came home with the tying run on another close play, when Wilson singled.

This was the end for Zachary, but Marberry, enacting the role of relief pitcher, in which he has starred all season, was equal to the emergency and fanned Jackson for the third out with three swiftly delivered strikes.

Washington, thus narrowly averting disaster, made short work of their last and winning attack. Judge walked, was sacrificed perfectly by Bluege, and raced across the plate amid a wild tumult when Peckinpaugh drove one of Bentley's curves far into left field. Meusel made a vain attempt to catch the runner at the plate but it was too late and Gowdy did not even make an attempt to get his man.

The Game in Detail

The New York Giants started as though they intended to drive Zachary from the box in the first inning but a fine double play stopped the National Leaguers with the bases full. Lindstrom and Frisch led off with shoestring singles, Young popped to Zachary but Harris threw wide to Peckinpaugh on Kelly's tap and the bases were loaded. Meusel, with the count two and two, hit sharply to Bluege who engineered a lightning double killing via Harris and Judge and the stands roared their approval.

Goslin Cleans House

The Senators hammered Bentley for a two-run lead in their first time at bat. With two out, Rice singled to center, stole second and scored ahead of Goslin on the latter's home run drive into the bleachers in right center. Judge followed with an infield single, but was forced by Bluege. Goslin received a terrific ovation from the bleacherites when he took his place in the field.

Both sides were retired quickly in the second inning, Zachary being the only man to reach base when he walked with two out in the Senators' half.

After the Giants had again passed out in order in the third, Harris walked, was sacrificed by Rice and got to third when Gowdy was guilty of a short passed ball on Goslin's third strike. Gowdy recovered in time to throw out Goslin at first. Judge walked but was fooled on Bentley's windup and caught dashing for second, Bentley to Frisch.

Young started the Giants' half of the fourth with a single over Peckinpaugh's head but he was doubled with Kelly on the latter's ground to Harris. It was typical of the Senators' sharp and brilliant infield work. Meisel flew to Rice for the third out.

Lindstrom Pulls Pretty Play

Lindstrom, the Giants' young third sacker pulled one of the most sparkling plays of the series when he stabbed Bluege's hot shot with his gloved hand, rolling to the ground but recovered in time to nail his man at first in the Senator's half of the fourth. Peckinpaugh flew out and Ruel fanned to end the inning, the third straight in which Bentley had held the home club hitless.

Only three Giants faced Zachary in the fifth, his slow curves working excellently, but "Bucky" Harris, young Washington pilot added to his club's lead with a smashing homer into the temporary bleachers in left field. Two were out and Judge brought another roar by singling to center, but Goslin fanned for the second straight time.

Lindstrom walked with one out for the Giants in the sixth but was stranded as Frisch and Young, while the Senators expired in order, Bentley getting his fifth strikeout victim when he fanned Bluege.

The Giants broke through for their first run in the seventh, but another fine double play checked prospects of heavier damage. Kelly started by walking and went to third on Meusel's smash that Peckinpaugh dove for but could only deflect toward center. Wilson drove to Bluege, and Kelly scored but the the bases were cleared on the killing double engineers via Harris and Judge. Jackson was the third victim on a fly to Goslin.

The Senators went out in order in their half, Lindstrom making another fine stop and throwout on McNeely.

The eighth also passed quickly, sparkling infield play by Lindstrom and Peckinpaugh helping to keep any one from reaching base.

Giants Tie Score

Rallying desperately, the Giants tied the score in the ninth and drove Zachary from the box. Frisch walked on four straight balls, but Young popped out, Kelly smashed a hit to deep center, Frisched scored by brilliant baserunning on a close play. Harris made a wonderful stop and threw out Meusel, Kelly going to second, from where he scored on Wilson's single to right. Fred Marberry replaced Zachary at this juncture and fanned Jackson on three pitched balls.

Peck's Single Wins

The Senators brought the game to a sensational conclusion in their half of the ninth. After fouling several balls viciously, Judge walked, was sacrificed by Bluege and scored the winning run on Peckinpaugh's slashing single to left field. Meusel threw unerringly to the plate but Judge had it beaten easily and Gowdy did not even make a pass toward him as the crowd let loose and swarmed on the field in jubilation.

JOHNSON LOSES HEART BREAKING GAME TO GIANTS

Washington, Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—The New York Giants fought their way to victory over the Washington Senators in the opening game of the 1924 world's series after one of the most thrilling, dramatic battles baseball has ever known.

The Giants won by the narrow margin of 4 to 3 in 12 bitterly-contested innings and conquered Washington's heroic moundsman, Walter Johnson, but the Senators though beaten in the 1st bid they have made for the game's greatest crown, covered themselves with glory in a fighting finish that drove a crowd of over 35,000 into hysterical frenzy.

Giants Win On Power of Attack

Coming from behind when it seemed that two smashing home home runs by George Kelly and Bill Terry had clinched the game for the National league champions, Washington tied the score in the ninth with a spectacular rally and then, in the 12th after the Giants had gained another commanding lead, scored their third run off Art Nehf, Giant southpaw and threatened once more to deadlock the game in a final, desperate spurt.

The Giants triumphed by the sheer, relentless power of an attack that Johnson and the Senators, despite their most heroic efforts could not check. But the American league champions, though they emerged defeated in this gripping, three-hour struggle for supremacy, left the field amid one of the most remarkable demonstrations any team, victor or vanquished ever received.

Stunning Blow to Washington

The first citizen of the nation, President Coolidge, chief among a host of notables forming the brilliant gathering, threw restraint aside at the end of that pulse-quickening 12th inning as he waved his hat and joined in the mighty tribute to the Senators, who had fought their fight courageously and come within an ace of turning the tide that throughout the game had seemed irresistibly against them.

It was a stunning blow for Washington's high hopes, a defeat for Johnson that had its tragedy after he reached, but could not cross the threshold of his 18-year-old ambition—a world's series victory—but it left "Bucky" Harris, 27-year-old pilot, and his men undiscouraged, undismayed and confident that they have suffered only a temporary setback in a fight that will lead to ultimate triumph.

Johnson, the idol of all fandom, the mainspring of Washington's hopes, emerged a hero even in defeat, for while the gallant veteran was hit hard and paved the way for his own downfall, he gave a brilliant exhibition. Flashing all the amazing speed that has made him famous, Johnson struck out 12 of the Giants and in nine of the 12 innings baffled them with the craft and "smoke" of his delivery. But two mighty home runs by Kelly and Terry, thrusts that came with suddenness of lightning, and a savage drive in the 12th inning, brought about the veteran's undoing.

For eight innings Johnson matched his wonderful speed, his puzzling change of pace, with the southpaw skill of Nehf. The Giants star, despite streaks of wildness, had the better of a duel that was closely waged but unspectacular. Then came the ninth, and the Senators, breaking through the defense that had held them at bay, tied the score and threw the game into a wild, extra-inning tussle.

Judge had started the ninth inauspiciously by striking out when Bluege, young third baseman, brought the crowd to its feet with a single that Jackson got his glove on but could not handle.

Nehf Has Shade

Peckinpaugh rested on second with a prospect of scoring the winning run, and when he advanced to third on Ruel's out the crowd called for Johnson, as he strode to the plate to win his own game. It was the second opportunity for heroic batting achievement that had been opened to the great pitcher, but, though he tried hard, he could not break through.

This time he raised a short fly that Kelly grabbed in short centerfield. Two innings previously, with men on first and second and two out, Johnson smashed a drive that seemed headed for safety in right center, but Frank Frisch, Giant captain, leaped high and brought down the ball to choke off the rally.

Pass Up Chances

Both teams lost chances to score in the 10th, Frisch getting to second for the Giants on his hit and a steal, while Harris and Rice singled in succession for the Senators, the former reaching third, only to be stranded when Goslin and Judge, the club's heavy artillery were checked by Nehf.

The 11th passed quickly, with neither side threatening. Then came the 12th and Johnson, just when it seemed he was growing stronger under the tenseness of the struggle wilted Hank Gowdy, veteran catcher started the Giants' victorious rally when he walked, Johnson hitting him in the back with the fourth ball. Nehf lifted a short fly to center, which McNeely threw wildly to the infield in his haste and Gowdy raced to third and Nehf to second.

Sensing that the break of the game had come, McGraw called on his reserves and sent Jack Bently to bat for Lindstrom, young third baseman. The strategy succeeded when Bently walked, filling the bases, and Southworth ran for him.

Momentarily the rally was checked when Frisch hit to Harris and Gowdy was forced out at the plate, but Young, who had struck out previously three times, came through with a short single to center, and Nehf crossed the plate. Kelly brought in Southworth with what proved the winning run when he lifted a sacrifice fly to Goslin. Terry filled the bases again with an infield single, but Johnson forced Wilson to fly out and end the rally.

Johnson was withdrawn in favor of a Pinch Hitter, Shirley, as the Senators came to bat for the last time. It was a last ditch stand and the crowd was thrown into another frenzy when Jackson dropped Shirley's high fly and the runner reached second. McNeely flew out but Harris, Washington's battling manager punched a single to center that sent Shirley over the plate.

This misdirected piece of strategy cost the Senators a chance to tie the score for it was the second out and Harris' chance of scoring the tying run were blasted when Goslin was thrown out on a fine stop and throw by Kelly, called into the infield in the closing inning. Had Rice been held to a single, Harris probably would have been able to score on Goslins blow, which came within inches of being a safe hit. Score:

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Conn., Oct. 5.—The C. A. C. freshmen eleven won their opening game against the Norwich Academy here Saturday afternoon, whitewashing the Rose City team 25 to 0. Although the Academy team was defeated, they put up a strong game, fighting every inch of the way, but were driven back by sheer weight, the Freshies outweighing the high school boys at least 30 pounds to a man.

Scott, the Academy end, distinguished himself by recovering seven fumbles during the game. Captain Haslam, Lukoski and Hinricks stopped the 200-pounders many times but were eventually unable to check the steady onslaught of the college men. For the Freshmen Eddy at right halfback and Captain Logan at left tackle were the shining lights. Coach Aitken of the Academy team expressed himself as being well pleased with the showing made by the Norwich boys. The Academy team held their heavier opponents to comparatively small gains through the line and exhibited skill at the aerial game, especially in the third quarter, when they went 60 yards before being stopped. The score of the game does not really tell what a brilliant game was displayed by the Academy, a team that fought against heavy odds, not giving an inch unless forced and displaying an exceptionally good attack against stonewall defense. The lineup:

C. A. C. Freshmen.		Academy.
Even	Left End.	Scott

MOOSUP IS BLANKED, 3 TO 0, BY THREADMAKERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Moosup, Oct. 6.—By hitting opportunely behind errors the Willimantic Threadmakers shut out the Moosup team here this afternoon 3 to 0 before the largest crowd of the season. Although Toney West allowed only six hits, they came at times when errors had put men on base or were followed by errors that let in the scores. Mathewson for Willimantic pitched a brilliant game, allowing the locals only four scattered hits, and he received air-tight support at all stages of the game.

While the result was disappointing to local fans, they are banking on their team to pull through next week when Manager Longhran has arranged another game with the Threadmakers for a purse of $100 a side just to make the contest interesting. Next week will see Frechette back on first, as Varin did not show up well and his two errors at the first sack were responsible for an equal number of runs. The score:

RANGERS LOSE THEIR THIRD STRAIGHT GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 5.—Playing in hard luck throughout, the New London Rangers, entrants in the Connecticut Soccer league, lost to the Clan Campbell eleven of Bridgeport at Calkins field this afternoon for their third straight defeat in as many attempts. The final accounting was 3 goals to 1 in favor of the visitors and the locals were forced to accept another defeat rather unwholesome for digestible purposes.

The Whalers were equally as strong in all departments of play to the victors, and only the breaks of the game favored the Park City aggregation to an extent of two goals better than the local total. In the first half the Rangers, though behind by a 2 goals to 1 score, threatened to tie up the score on at least several occasions. Their try for the goal went wide of its mark and then the goal keeper with the Clan Campbell outfit kept the ball where it did less damage.

In the second half a series of short passes brought the visiting team to within striking distance of the goal. The Ranger goal keeper warded off the first attempt made for the goal by a fine stop to his left. But the Clan Campbell were determined to score another goal to make their victory more secure. Their efforts this time were awarded with a reward in the manner of a goal that made victory safe.

The new forward line and new goal tender for the Rangers worked out well today, and in the future the Rangers will make a strong bid for honors which are deserving of this team, considering the hard and honest efforts extended towards making soccer a success in this city.

WASHINGTON FANS GIVE SENATORS ROUSING SEND OFF

Washington, Oct. 5.—Hundreds of Washington fans, not all of whom were boys or men, crowded around the Senators' clubhouse after today's victory and demanded their heroes to appear.

"Come out, Bucky", they commanded the young manager whose individual playing was such a factor in the battle. Harris was busy with preparations for departure to New York and did not appear.

"Throw Peck out here," the mad mob demanded; but Peckinpaugh, whose hit sent home the winning run, had slipped through a rear exit. He was located in his new limousine, gift of fans from Cleveland, his home city, and police were required to break up the informal reception held on the running board.

Every Washington player was cheered as he appeared.

"I'm only one of nine", Manager Harris said when commended upon his work afield and at bat, "But I think we have a good chance to beat the Giants now."

Harris said that Marberry, who checked the Giants rally today would start tomorrow's game in New York.

The Giants, hurrying to catch their train, had little to say, but their faces carried determined looks which promise another severe battle when the well-match clubs meet at the Polo Grounds tomorrow. McQuillan, big right-hander who pitched so impressively in his last start against Pittsburgh, is the probable New York moundsman with Virgil Barnes as second choice.

ORIOLES WIN FOURTH GAME FROM ST. PAUL

Baltimore, Oct. 5.—(By The A. P.)—Bunching hits with bases on balls, Baltimore took the fourth game of the "little world series" from St. Paul today, six to four. The Saints used three hurlers, while Lefty Groves went the route for the Orioles. The count now stands two games to one in Baltimore's favor.

Groves held the Saints away from the plate until the eighth, when they scored three runs on two hits and an error. They added another in the ninth on Roettger's two bagger and Groves' wild throw of an easy roller by Christenson.

Because of yesterday's tiegame, another contest will be staged here tomorrow. To replace Sheedy, Oriole first sacker, who was injured in yesterday's game, President Hickey, of the American association today gave the Birds permission to use Eddie Onslow, of the Toronto club.

WORLD TOUR FOR GIANTS NOT CANCELLED

Chicago, Oct. 5. — Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants by long distance assured Tip O'Neil, business manager of the proposed world tour of the Giants and Chicago White Sox, that the tour had not been cancelled despite rumors to the contrary.

If the world seires ends in New York, it was said, the clubs will play their first exhibition game at Ottawa, Canada, Oct. 13.

O'Neil also received a cablegram from Disk Kinsella, Giants' representative in London, which said all arrangements had been completed for the teams' itinerary abroad, and that the list of the players to make the trip would be announced in a few days.

LARGE CROWDS WATCH WORLD'S SERIES BOARDS

New York, Oct. 5.—Radio scoreboard and ticker drew record breaking crowds throughout the city today as the Giants and the Senators played their second world series game. Between 20,000 and 30,000 fans assembled on Park Row to watch a newspaper scoreboard, and a force of sixty policemen and detectives was required to hold the crowd in bounds. Thousands of fans also gathered to hear the report of the game in armories and halls in each of the five boroughs, cheering each winning play of the Giants.

MUST ENFORCE FOUL-LINE RULE IN BOWLING LEAGUE

At a meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling Association held at the Aetna Bowling Alleys on Sunday morning with President Dugas presiding it was decided that the foul-line rules of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league must be enforced. In the game rolled so far in the league this ruling has been treated lightly until it has caused no little comment. Hereafter every match that is rolled must be governed by a man on the foul-line and a man on the bob-line their decisions to be final. In regard to the entrance money it was voted that all teams should have the money posted with the secretary and treasurer, Myles E. Standish, Norwich not later than Oct. 15th. The association also voted fees for each alley owner of 50 cents per alley annually.

The games in the bowling league tonight are: Lawrence at Mooseup, Aetna at Peerless, New London; Taftville at Palace. Willimantic does not bowl this week.

BULKELEY AND ANSONIA PLAY SCORELESS TIE

Ansonia, Oct. 5.—For the second time in as many Saturdays and on foreign fields, Bulkeley's potent football machine, minus two of its best stars, battles with an opposing team to a tie—a scoreless tie, which came maybe only too early for the spectators, of which there were in the neighborhood of 2,500, surging and milling onto the field, watching a struggle that only two teams of equal match can give. It was a battle that could be better described by the melodramatist, and while the two fine teams were willing to leave the field after four eventful periods, that included deeds of all kinds, the spectators desired the contest to be continued to see which team was the better of the two.

The game from the start was really a colorful battle that existed through a period of forty minutes, chuck full of spectacular playing by members of both sides that made the afternoon a most pleasant one, indeed, from the spectators' point of view. The play by either team was not perfect, but what mistakes were made neither team profited by them to any great extent. It was one of those games that spoiled a chance for a touchdown by a lucky break that interfered at the most opportune time to put a team deeply out of trouble. The afternoon was sticky and the ball was as slippery as an eel. Early in the first period after Ansonia forward had blocked Daniels' punt and retrieved the ball on Bulkeley's 14-yard line, a fumble by this team prevented a score, for Bulkeley recovered. There was situations such as this that repeated themselves at every turn.

SUB BASE WINS EASILY FROM WESTERLY GRIDERS

New London, Oct. 5.—Making short work of a team which was supposed to give the sailors a tough battle throughout, the Submarine Base made easy work of disposing of the Worcester A. A. at the Base ground and that by an overwhelming score of 31 to 7, in a game which strait football predominated. The visitors from the Bay State were never considered dangerous by the Base staff of coaches, and the number of substitutes used, made one lose track of them.

While it was a sweet victory for the "Playing Gobs," the opposition furnished them by the visitors was anything of the first class nature. Anticipating an easy game, some of the positions were filled by second string players to start the game in the hope of unearthing new material. But neither set of sailors who were sent into the fray showed much more than ordinary skill, and with the Worcester eleven failing to stop the line bucks of the sailors, it was an easy matter for the Base to pound the line to shreds, scoring touchdowns almost at will throughout.

WHITE SOX BAFFLED BY ALEXANDER'S PITCHING

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Alexander, ace of the Cub twirling staff came back to his White Sox rivals today and duplicated his efforts of the first game, the Cubs winning 8 to 2. The series now stands three to two in favor of the White Sox.

The National leaguers kept pegging away at Charlie Robertson, finally drove him off the hill in the seventh inning. Leverette tried to stop the slugging but had to ret

NEW LONDON'S NEW CITY COUNCIL IS TO ORGANIZE THIS EVENING

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 6—The new city council will meet Monday evening for organization. The city charter gives them the authority to select officials for the ensuing year. There are to be two new members among the seven who constitute the council. Edward Streeter displaces Thomas F. Gragan, who has been a member of the council during all the period the commission form of government has been in operation in New London, and who was a member of the council as an alderman some 15 years before that time. Mr. Gragan was defeated for election at the polls last month because he incurred the dislike of certain elements that made a drive to keep him out of office. It was openly asserted that certain members of the police force worked to defeat him because he would not consent to give the policemen two days of absence from duty every month, and members of the fire department because he did not at once give approval to a movement for new apparatus for Thomas Hose company. Members of both these bodies deny that they antagonized Gragan and that they worked to accomplish his defeat. It is known that Mr. Gragan did not have a working force to get his friends to the polls and these friends attribute his defeat to that more than to anything else. He was defeated by an even 100 votes in the city, which means the failure of fifty one of his supporters to go to the polls, or ten in each of the five wards.

One of his last official acts was to move for a new apparatus for the Pequot Hose Company and the council adopted his suggestion last Monday evening. Mr. Gragan is a fireman, foreman of the Allen Hook and Ladder company, and he has declared many times that the city does not do all it should do to make the department efficient.

Councilor Clarence Thompson is displaced by Albert C. Woodruff, a clerk in the employ of Palmer Brothers in the firm's office in this city. Mr. Thompson declined renomination. Mr. Woodruff is a young man of the type needed in the council. He is a thinker and a competent man in all respects. He is serving in his first official capacity now. The council will elect one of its members to be presiding officer of the council, or the mayor of the city. That selection will, it is certain, fall to Waldo E. Clarke, who has served in the council ever since the new form of government has been in existence here. Mr. Clarke has had the training necessary to equip him for the place. The clerk will be Julian Moras, who is the only clerk the city has had under the government it is now working under. A member of the board of registrars of voters is to be selected by the council and it is understood that Andrew Collins, long a member of the board will be retained in that position. He has attended to his duties faithfully, so that to retain him is but simple reward for good work well accomplished.

The present tax collector, Allen C. Richards, is understood to have secured the assurance that he will be retained and the assessor to be chosen is also expected to be the men who has served during the past year, P. Burrows. Charles Rose expects to be the fire chief after the ballots for chief officer have been counted. He was assistant chief under the old government system and is the only chief the city has had under the new form.

Thomas Shipman will be selected fire warden. He has shown ability and has done his work well and conscientiously. There is real work in that position, too, for he as to examine and report on all applications for the installation of gasoline pumps in addition to his other duties. Beth Keeney is expected to be chosen assistant town clerk. She has had long experience in the office and has been most efficient. George Waters will be the engineer in charge of the water and sewer department. His reelection is the rewarding of a faithful official. There is no doubt or the retention of Carey Congdon as director of finance, nor of the reappointment of Herbert Huntley as treasurer. Both have served the city in a way that has given abundant satisfaction. It was anticipated that there would be a contest over the selection of a director of law, but if there was ever any such probability opposition to the candidacy of Frank L. McGuire has passed away. He will be chosen to that important office without any doubt. He has served the city a considerable time and the demand of most of the members of the council is that he shall be retained.

There are rumors of changes to be made in the police force as there are every year, but inquiry failed to disclose that there is foundation for the rumors that have been put in circulation. The department is working very satisfactorily at present, so far as inquiry gets at the facts disclosed, and there is not apt to be any changes. The gossip or charges is said to have originated among members of the force who would like to see a shake-up that did not affect themselves.

William Kearney, 24 West High St., reported to the police that while he was driving a Ford car, No. SX304 on Willetts avenue at 2.30 this morning he was run into from behind by a Dodge car operated by W. E. Reed of 55 Franklin street. The damage was slight, but Mr. Kearney decided that the accident should be reported.

Mrs. Cuneo of 27 Brooks street has asked the police to ascertain the name of the driver of a Massachusetts car carrying registration No. 141272. She declares that when she was leaving a street car on Williams street yesterday the Massachusetts car drove by at a very fast clip and only by the exercise of quick thought did she escape accident.

Patrolman Babcock in making his tour of duty on Bank street last night found the offices on the second floor of the Whaling bank building unlocked and and easy of entrance by anyone who desired to go in there.

Eilsan Potter of 106 Green street, 14 who was run down while riding a bicycle a few days ago by an automobile and sustained injuries to her ankle, is able to be about again. She was on crutches a single day.

The city of New London Saturday acquired title to two tracts of land at the corner of Bank street and Jefferson avenue. One tract was purchased of Louis K. Pettigrew and the other from Francis Farino. Both tracts were purchased to permit the widening of the thoroughfares at that point because of the great amount of automobile traffic. Already the widening of the thoroughfares has been started.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe, Street Sergeant Samuel Hick and Desk Sergeant Frank Howard have been instructed by City Manager William A. Holt to be present as witnesses at the municipal building Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when charges against Patrolman Charles P. Hammond, of reporting for duty while under the influence of liquor, a week ago Saturday night, will be heard.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney is of the opinion that some of his officers are violating the rules and regulations of the department and with that view he issued instructions Saturday to the street sergeants to read to the patrolmen orders the former had received. The orders instruct the sergeants to report to Captain Pinney without delay any violation of the rules and regulations, no matter who the alleged violator may be. Sergeants Nelson Smith and Samuel Hick read the order to the day shifts and Sergeant Patrick Murphy imparted the order to the night squad.

A private ambulance passed through New London Saturday morning with an insane patient en route from New York to Boston. The man is a Boston baker and he refused to make the trip to Boston in any other way than by automobile, and his condition was such that a private amulance had to be brought into service. The ambulance passed through this city about 10 o'clock. With the patient were two nurses.

Miss Lucy Ginabellis, of Allen street, Groton; Mrs. Edward Dondero and infant daughter, Connecticut avenue; Mrs. Osmond Smith and infant daughter, Fourth street; Mrs. Lena Lamfoux, Westerly, and Ellison Saunders, Niantic, patients at Lawrence hospital were dismissed Saturday.

Frank Saunders has returned after a fortnight's motor trip to Vermont and New Hampshire.

MYSTIC

The activities committee met at Mystic Community house and has mapped out a program of activities for the month. The first affair is a whist party on Friday of this week: Tuesday, Oct. 14, a reception is to be tendered Miss Paine, the new director: Saturday, Oct. 25, a chicken pie supper is scheduled to take place, and on Hallowe'en a big party is to be put on. This (Monday) evening the class for recreational gymnastics for girls will meet. Tuesday evening the October meeting of the board of directors will be held.

Miss Marie Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton S. Patterson, was 11 years old Friday and invited several young friends in to help celebrate from 4.30 to 6.30. Games were played and each child had a paper cap favor. Chicken sandwiches, cup cakes, ice cream and cocoa were served. The table was attractively decorated in pink and blue and each child received a tiny basket of candy and nuts. Besides Miss Rosamond Holmes, the little girl's Sunday school teacher, the guests were: Hazel Main, Daisy DeRonch, Rita Worden, Myrtle Worden, Margaret Rippel and Marion Brown.

Misses Joanna and Rachel Burnet moved Saturday from their home on Cliff street to the house on High street recently purchased by them and completely remodelled.

Miss Sarah Stewart is having her vacation from her duties in the office of the Mystic Manufacturing company and in company with Misses Beth and Elizabeth Ray and Sarah Grant, of Westerly, left Saturday for New York, from where they will take a trip to Georgia.

Miss Grace Miner, who fell recently and broke a bone in her leg just above the ankle, is getting along encouragingly.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Duhaime, their son Cyril and daughter, Marguerite left Friday for a visit in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings and three children of Deep River spent the week-end at their cottage at Groton Long Point.

William E. Backus is having his vacation from his duties at the Rossie Velvet company plant.

Today (Monday) town election day, the polls are open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

At the monthly covenant meeting of the Baptist church, Friday evening, plans were discussed relative to the proposed church school of missions to be held in connection with the weekly prayer meetings. The subject to be studied is China and it is probable that the school will be started early in November.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Blackman leave today (Monday) for St. Petersburg, Florida, after spending several weeks in the village, having occupied the Fish house on Reynolds' hill.

Rev. J. Garfield Sallis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, celebrated Sunday, the tenth anniversary of the beginning of his ministry. There was a special service of holy communion Sunday morning at 8 o'clock.

Rev. Thomas F. Mooney, who has been transferred by Bishop Nilan from the Church of the Sacred Heart, Bridgeport; to St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, Mystic, arrived here Thursday and officiated at St. Patrick's Sunday morning. Rev. W. J. Fitzgerald left here Thursday to assume his new duties in Milford. He takes with him the best wishes of his parishioners and many friends in the community at large.

Mrs. C. M. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Morgan of Mystic and Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Miller of Kennebunkport, Maine, motored to Putnam on Wednesday to visit Mrs. Watson's son, Hubert Watson, a student at the Putnam Trade school, who was badly burned by acid Monday.

Odell Tomkins has been confined to the house the past week by illness.

Members of the local W. C. T. U. who went to Uncasville Friday to attend the New London county meeting were: Mrs. Edgar V. Whiting, Mrs. Byron Billings, Mrs. Benjamin Chesebro of Stonington, Mrs. Charles H. Latham, Mrs. Abbie Phillips, Mrs. Ira Decker, Mrs. Charles Gremley, Mrs. Wilfred Rollinson, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. George H. Gigwold Sr., Mrs. Seymour Stoddard, Mrs. W. H. Lamb, Mrs. Charles E. Newbury and Mrs. A. E. Cutler. The trip was made by automobile, Mrs. Charles H. Latham, Mrs. Ira Decker and Mrs. Seymour Stoddard furnishing the transportation.

Mrs. Amie W. Bradley is ill at her home in West Mystic.

Mrs. Jennie J. Davis and Mrs. Annie B. Peabody spent the week-end with Mrs. Emma Kelley in Stonington.

Mrs. Elwood Lathrop played the organ at the Methodist church Sunday as a supply.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Bindloss and daughters, Betty and Sibyl, have returned from a stay of several weeks at the Weston cottage, Groton Long Point.

Mrs. George S. Scott has gone to Princeton, N. J., for a lengthy stay.

Delegates were elected Friday evening to the Baptist state convention to be held Oct. 13, 14 and 15 at Calvary Baptist church, New Haven.

Members of Mystic W. C. T. U. who attended the county meeting at Uncasville Friday were pleased to be able to bring back with them the banner which is presented the union having the largest number of members present at the county meeting. They received the banner last year and were pleased to have it awarded to them again this year.

Mystic people were shocked to hear of the death of Doris Morgan, 9-year-old daughter of Rev. John W. Morgan, pastor of Darien Methodist Episcopal church, which occurred at the Stamford hospital as the result of injuries received when run over by a truck owned by Burns & Co., of Bridgeport and operated by Archibald Leverty of 72 James street, that city. The accident took place Thursday in Darien in front of the child's home as she was about to cross the street on her way home from school. Rev. Mr. Morgan came here Sept. 14th and preached in the Mystic Bridge Congregational church, being a candidate for the pastorate.

LEBANON

Miss Laura McCall, Miss Annie Gillett, Miss Bertha Perry and Mrs. A. K. Manning attended the meeting of the state regent of the D. A. R. at Windsor, Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Sillie, Misses Dorothy Hewitt, Helen Taylor, Ruth Campbell and Christina Reid attended the farewell reception given Miss Gertrude S. Avery in Hanover.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield took for his subject Sunday, Lost Opportunities. The C. E. meeting was led by Miss Margaret Wyman.

Next Sunday evening there will be no C. E. meeting at either church as they have been invited to unite with the Congregational church in a Union service to hear Field Secretary Hick.

George Wilcox of East Providence is visiting at the home of his uncle, E. A. Hoxie.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. King have returned home after spending a month in Groton, with Mrs. King's niece, Mrs. Frank Walker.

Mrs. Frank G. Bruce is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Waterman in Bloomfield.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Taylor entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kimball and children, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willoughby and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clark and son, all of Scotland, and Mr. and Mrs. John Bacon, New Haven.

Colchester Lodge of Masons came to Lebanon Friday evening for their annual Ladies' night banquet which was served in the chapel of the Baptist church by the ladies society of the church.

Mrs. Phebee Irish is visiting Mrs. Ida M. Abel.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Young of Forrestville were callers at George E. Chappel's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Geer and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Goodwin spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Whitaker, in South Killingly. While there they took a walk through the fields and were surprised to find huckleberry bushes loaded with large, firm berries an unusual thing for the time of year.

Mr. and Mrs. Verson Boothly of Woodmont have been spending a week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Boothby.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Abel and children spent Sunday with Mrs. Abel's parents, at Clark's Corner.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield spoke at the Community club in Goshen Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Chappell entertained Monday Mrs. Chappell's aunt, Mrs. Mary A. Brown of Groton and cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Meech of Eastern Point, Mrs. Pearl Hoffman of New Jersey, Mrs. Charles Holden and Mr. Parker, of Groton.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

THE IVY GREEN

O' a dainty plant is the ivy green,
That creepeth o'er ruins old!
Of right choice food are his meals I ween.
In his cell so lone and cold.
The walls must be crumbled, the stone decayed,
To pleasure his dainty whim;
And mould'ring dust that years have made
Is a merry meal for him.
Creeping where no life is seen,
A rare old plant is the ivy green.

Fast he stealeth on, though he wears no wings,
And a stanch old heart has he!
How closely he twineth, how tight he clings,
To his friend, the huge oak tree!
And slily he traileth along the ground,
And his leaves he gently waves,
And he joyously twines and hugs around
The rich mould of dead men's graves.
Creeping where no life is seen,
A rare old plant is the ivy green.

Whole ages have fled, and their works decay'd,
And Nations scatter'd been;
But the stout old ivy shall never fade
From its hale and hearty green.
The brave old plant in its lonely days
Shall fatten upon the past;
For the stateliest building man can raise
Is the ivy's food at last.
Creeping where no life is seen,

—Charles Dickens.

THE MILLER OF THE DEE

There dwelt a miller hale and bold
Beside the River Dee:
He worked and sang from morn till night
No lark more blithe than he.
And this the burden of his song
Forever used to be—
"I envy nobody, no, not I,
And nobody envies me."

"Thou'rt wrong, my friend," said old King Hal,
"Thou'rt wrong as wrong can be;
For could my heart be light as thine,
I'd gladly change with thee.
And tell me now, what makes thee sing
With voice so loud and free,
While I am sad, though I am King,
Beside the River Dee?"

The miller smiled, and doffed his cap,
"I earn my bread," quoth he.
"I love my wife, I love my friend,
I love my children three:
I owe no penny I cannot pay;
I thank the River Dee,
That turns the mill and grinds the corn
To feed my babes and me."

"Good friend," said Hal, and sighed the while,
"Farewell, and happy be;
But say no more, if thou'dst be true,
That no man envies thee;
Thy mealy cap is worth my crown,
Thy mill my kingdom's fee;
Such men as thou are England's boast,
O miller of the Dee."

Isaac Bickerstaff.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

This is the time of year when many of the wild animals and birds are getting into their new suits for the winter. Many people have actually seen a toad get out of his skin, and arrayed in a brand-new one, which was all ready grown underneath, proceed to swallow his old suit. All reptiles shed their skin but not until they have acquired a fresh one underneath. Again not all reptiles follow the example of the toad in swallowing the old skin discarded.

One reason why we do not see the reptile change his skin more often is that he likes to hide himself away during the operation. For one reason they are handicapped and might be at the mercy of any enemy while the old suit was half changed.

At least once a year every bird changes his clothing. This moulting of the old feathers is done without much of a fuss and Mother Nature gives every bird a new suit of feathery in a very short time.

The pony, the dog, the cat and also all wild animals change their clothes and grow new suits. Mother Nature is the most clever tailor in the world. She never makes a mistake in the fit and never gets the wrong suit on the wrong animal. Insects also cast away their old suits and get new and some shellfish do the same thing.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Mary Maynard, Norwich Town—I thank you very much for my book, The Boy Scouts on a Submarine. The story was very interesting and I liked it very much, as I have liked all the books I won in The Wide Awake circle.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Our Teeth

Dear Uncle Jed: The food we eat is broken up into little pieces in the mouth by the teeth—valuable little jewels in the jewel case. We have two sets of teeth. The first set, 20 in number, begin to come when we are about 6 months old.

There is a little hole in the jawbone that the tooth sets into like a stick in the ground.

The teeth are covered with a thin coat of hard substance. Inside the tooth is a little tube filled with blood vessels and nerves. If we should have a decayed tooth and let the air get to it, it will ache. If such is the case we should go to a dentist at once.

Our teeth must be thoroughly cleaned with a soft brush. We should also brush the inner or backside of our teeth as well as the front side. Brush the spaces to get every particle of food out, and that can be done best by passing floss silk between them.

When the enamel is broken or destroyed it never can be renewed, and our teeth will start decaying slowly. We should never pick our teeth with pins or crack nuts, crush hard candy, or bite stout thread. Decayed or dirty teeth will cause a foul stomach. We should exercise the greatest care to save the teeth. To some people having a tooth taken out is like losing an old friend.

Don't drink very, very hot things or very, very cold things. Avoid strong acids.

A TRIP TO THE WOODS

Dear Uncle Jed: One afternoon our teacher took us through the woods down the Norwich and Essex turnpike to see the big steam shovel and to school again. The walk was very nice.

When we left school around three o'clock we went into Narusko's woods. We found muskrooms and wild flowers. We passed by one of Mr. Ingills old sawmills. One of the girls collected the mushrooms to eat. She said that her mother cooks them. We passed by a quails nest that we had found last year. Then we went over a wall into the Essex turnpike, where the new road is being put through. Walking down a little ways we went into Baldyga's woods. After different things, one of the boys found a hornets nest but it was empty. About that time teacher stepped into a yellow jacket's nest, and was stung twice. Two or three of the children were stung also. We went onto the road again and walked down to the big steam shovel. The small steam shovel was not running and we did not go down there. We watched the big shovel quite awhile. It was very interesting and it was cutting through a deep bank. There are three tracks and one wagon. The way it picked up the dirt was almost human. Then we went to the other side of the bank and walked or ran through a pipe. Coming back we went into Narusko's yard and on up to school. Arriving there about half past four I was very tired and my feet hurt me. I had a very good time, and found a few new flowers to add to my collection of wild flowers.

MY VISIT TO A FAIR

Dear Uncle Jed: September the 11th there was a fair at Pachaug, Conn. My brother, my sister and I were there quite early in the morning. When we reached the gate through which we were to drive in we stopped and paid 25 cents for a ticket as that was the price. It was quite slow in the morning, not many people were there. One interesting thing for the little children was a merry-go-round. Then we had music all day. Twelve o'clock a big crowd was seen. There was a picture man who snapped pictures of any one who passed by.

At noon we had our dinner and then continued our walk around the stands and seeing different things.

One of the farmers brought a pair of horses and had them pull a very heavy load of stones.

There was also a rope which they had two sides pulling. Fruits, ice cream and soda were plenty. Some won blankets, others toys. But I was unfortunate. I couldn't win anything. There was a nursery. Every mother brought her child inside and had them weighed. There were many more interesting sights but I can't remember them all. About eight o'clock at night we formed a dancing room.

All the boys and girls gathered there and we had a very good time.

We came home about eleven o'clock at night and told our parents all that we had seen and also showed them some of the pictures that we snapped.

A WALK IN THE WOODS.

Dear Uncle Jed: My friend Sadie and I took a long walk through the woods Saturday afternoon. We wanted to go in the morning but my mother said I should do some work around the house in the morning and I could have all afternoon to myself. So I did what she wanted me to and then Sadie came over about 1 o'clock and we started. We walked three miles in all. We followed the path that goes into the woods from the main road. We saw some birds and a squirrel and something went by us that we thought might have been a rabbit. It went so fast we couldn't see it but we heard it. It was too big for a field mouse, that is, it made too much noise.

We picked some flowers, only a few, because they were getting scarce now, and then we went home. It was getting dark when we got home and we were both hungry. Sadie stayed at my house for supper and we had a good time in the evening till about 9 o'clock when her brother came and said it was time for her to go to bed. We are going walking again next week if it is fine and not too cold.

CAMPING AT BEACH POND.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my first camping at Beach Pond. We had two boats and went fishing nearly every day. We went in bathing every morning at 6 o'clock and every afternoon at 4 o'clock. One time it was raining and one of the tents had a leak and all the rain went in and flooded the tent. So we were 12 in one tent, but we slept just the same and Thursday we had a steam bath. When Saturday came we were not in a hurry to go home.

HAD THREE KITTENS.

Dear Uncle Jed: One of my neighbor's friends gave me three kittens but one of them died and so I only have two. The one that died was named Flossie. The other two are Ted and Mary. Ted is all black but Mary has white streaks. They are only small now. I feed them milk and they like it. They drink it all. I have to give them some pretty soon for they are hungry. They play with a string and chase each other. I go to school and like to study.

A NEW FURNACE.

Uncle Jed and the Wide-Awakes: We are having a new furnace put in our house and I am glad because the old one wouldn't heat all the house. Dad says the new furnace ought to make it so warm in the house this winter that we will need the electric fan to keep cool. He was only joking about the fan. I helped the woodman unload a load of wood he brought for us yesterday. I was tired when I got through helping him. I will close now and will write another letter some time.

JAMES K. SULLIVAN, Age 10.

Is Six Years Old

My dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl, six years old. This is my first letter. I like to write and read too, but I can't read much. I like the story about the chicken that got lost. Have you read about it. I'll write again.

JOSEPHINE DUNCAN, Age 6.

First Time at Beach

Uncle Jed: We used to live in Vermont and we came here about two months ago. My father brought home a Bulletin Monday and I saw where boys and girls write you letters about themselves. I don't know just what to write about, but will tell you about my visit to the beach. We all went out in the trolley car to Watch Hill. It was the first time I have been at a beach, but I have seen them going by on a train. I liked the sand very much and the big waves too. I would like to go fishing in the Ocean but didn't have my fishpole. My brother says you won't print this letter but I told him you would.

ALBERT LACH, Age 9.

When I Was in Washington

Uncle Jed and the Wide-Awakes—Last spring my father went to Washington to see my grandfather who lives there and as my grandfather wanted to see me, my father took me with him. I think my grandfather is my father's daddy but if he isn't then he is my mother's father. He is one of them anyway. We went on the Federal express train from our station here in Westerly and it took us all night to get there. I had a nice bed, the upstairs one, in one of the sleeping cars. It was nice but the train bumped every once in a while and I couldn't sleep much.

I saw a lot of interesting things in Washington, like big buildings, the White House, where the president lives, the treasury buildings and lots of others. We went to the theatre and saw a dandy moving picture show. We were there about a week. It rained most of the time but we had a good time. I hope to go again soon.

The Grand Canyon

Dear Uncle Jed: I am Moquie, an Indian girl living in the Grand Canyon. I have come to take you with me to view my home.

Stand here at the top of this bluff and look down. In that tremendous gap mists are curling up like little clouds, but they vanish when they reach the line where the sunlight falls. Great beds of lava have been found down in the hole. Thousands of years ago this canyon was no more than a volcano. Look away off there and see that peak standing up like the rim of a cup. It is the Navajo peak and is one hundred and twenty miles away. It is now late afternoon and the canyon is bathed in colors from the setting sun. Watch the sun play upon those giant walls, tier above tier. With a final dash of glory the sun has set and we return home, walking by the border of the swirling river that rolls on and on to pass through all the balance of that wonderful gulch we have just left.

Says--Now Stiff Joints Must Go

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes: it's true—the world progresses. All you have to do nowadays to limber up that stiff, rusty knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease: They call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, stainless prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

Lee & Osgood Co. has a big supply of it and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Every rheumatic sufferer ought to send today for free book, "The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism" (just out.) Address H. P. Clearwater, box 800, Hallowell, Maine.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Cowbirds

"Heigh ho, here I go,
Over a daisy white as snow,—
White as milk, 'cept a yellow eye
Which winks at me as I hop by.

sang Little Jack Rabbit, as over the Sunny Meadow he went, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, hipperty, hipperty, hipperty hop.

A little further on he came in sight of Mrs. Cow, contentedly chewing her cud as she rested on the grass. Her yellow sunbonnet was pushed back

What little bird is that?

"What little bird is sitting on her back?" thought the bunny boy, surprised at so strange a sight. But Mrs. Cow seemed not the least annoyed. She just lay there quietly at her ease, placidly chewing her cud, while the little bird perched and dozed contentedly on her back.

"Hello, Mrs. Cow," shouted the bunny boy, all of a sudden just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat. Away flew the little bird, not before, however, the little rabbit had noticed the rich brown color of the feathers on its head, neck and breast, and its shiny black tail.

"Well, you've frightened away Mr. Cowbird," said Mrs. Cow with a smile. "Maybe it was time for him to inquire about Mrs. Cowbird. He's a very poor sort of husband. In fact, cowbirds are the hoboes of the bird world.

"What, are they all tramp birds?" asked the bunny boy, sitting down by the motherly old cow.

"Indeed they are," she answered, with a toss of her head that almost upset her pretty bonnet with the purple flower on it. "Why, Mrs. Cowbird is a disgrace to motherhood."

"Dear, dear, dearest me," exclaimed the little rabbit, quite taken aback by Mrs. Cow's remark, "what do you mean?"

"I mean just what I say," retorted Mrs. Cow. "I mean every bit of it. She is a stony-hearted mother."

Surprised and curious, the little bunny gazed with wide open eyes at Mrs. Cow who seemed not the least embarrassed at having made such a critical remark.

"Where is Mrs. Cowbird?" asked the bunny boy, after a few minutes' silence.

"I'm sure I don't know," replied Mrs. Cow, with a switch of her tail. "Most likely laying an egg in some unsuspecting bird's nest.

"What! does she do that?" gasped the little rabbit. "What a mean, cruel thing to do."

"Well you just wait a minute and I'll tell you more about her," went on the good lady cow. "I'll be through chewing my cud in a minute or three. You play with a daisy. Do you know the game of 'He loves me, he loves me not?'"

"Of course I do," answered the bunny boy and picking one of the little yellow eyed daisies, he pulled off a petal one at a time, all the while singing to himself, 'she loves me, she loves me not.'"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

New York, Oct. 5.—Sensational advances in grain price overshadowed all other developments in the financial and commodity markets this week. Excited buying of grain futures, prompted by the heavy foreign demand for western farm products, sent May wheat to $1.53 5-8 a bushel; May Rye to 1.40 and May corn to 1.17⅝, the high prices representing extreme gains of 4⅛ to 20⅝ cents a bushel ovre last week's closing figures. Profit taking sales brought about some recessions from the high levels.

Stock prices moved within a narrow trading area until Friday when what was generall described as a "political scare" resulted in heavy selling for both accounts, forcing substantial recessions in many issues. While it is obviously impossible to gauge the effect of political developments on price movements, many brokers report a tendency of traders and investors to lighten their holdings pending definite developments of the drift of political sentiment.

Chief interest in the bond market lay in the rather mysterious offerin of $50,000,000 Mexican government bonds by a Texas banker and the reports of satisfactory progress in the negotiations for a $200,000,000 German loan, half of which will be offered in this country.

European foreign exchange rates held relatively steady.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

Notes from the Ivy Octave: The eighth grade in Dublin school recently held its first class meeting. The following officers were elected: Vice president, Minnie Marron; secretary, Rose Tockman; treasurer, Bertha Dombroski; executive committee, Alexander Dellay (chairman), Stephen Vicinski; Milton Myhowitz. The class chose blue and gold for the class colors. Class pins have already been ordered of a Boston company. The same style as last year was adopted, but with different colors. It is hoped that the same style will be taken by the classes to follow, as this will fraternize the graduates of years to come. This plan has been adopted state. The class has been given a new by many of the larger towns of the pencil sharpener, also a new fire extinguisher, which all hope will not have to be used. The class has decided to have a reading contest between two sides, the M's and the K's. Minnie Marron is captain of the M's and Katie Cohen of the K's. The contest is to last until Dec. 2 and Dec. 11 the losing side is to give a social to the side winning in the contest.

WARNING
ANNUAL TOWN MEETING

The legal voters in Town Meeting of the Town of Norwich are hereby warned to meet in Annual Town Meeting in the Town Hall in said Norwich on Monday, Oct. 6th, 1924, at 8 o'clock p. m., for the following purposes:

To hear and act upon the annual report of the Selectmen and their recommendations, the reports of the Town Treasurer, the Sinking Fund Committee, the Town Health Officer, the Town School Committee, and the Trustees of the Otis Library; to fix the salaries of the Town Officials, to lay a tax to meet the lawful expenses of the Town, including the expenses of the public schools, for the ensuing fiscal year, and to fix the compensation of the Tax Collector

Also, to determine whether the Town will authorize the Selectmen to borrow a sum not to exceed the amount of Three Hundred and Twenty-five Thousand (325,000) Dollars at such times and in such amounts during the twelve months next ensuing as they shall deem proper, to defray the debts of the Town accruing before the next Annual Town Meeting, and to deliver the notes and other obligations of the Town therefor as shall in their judgment be for the best interests of the Town.

Also, to authorize the Selectmen of said Town to sell a certain piece of land about twenty (20) feet square located upon Laurel Hill road, in said Town, and formerly occupied by a watering trough, and to deliver a proper deed of the Town to the purchaser thereof.

Also, to see if the Town will amend the resolution appropriating One Hundred Thousand ($100,000) Dollars to erect a new school building on land of the Town of Norwich in East Norwich, so-called, and authorizing the Selectmen to borrow the said sum and to issue interest bearing obligations of the Town therefor adopted at the Town Meeting held the 24th day of June, 1924.

Also, to authorize the issue and sale of bonds of the Town of Norwich to an amount not to exceed OneHundred and Seventeen Thousand ($117,000) Dollars for the purpose of refunding this amount of the issue of Court House Bonds maturing Jan. 1st, 1925.

Also, to see whether the Town will appropriate the sum of Four Thousand Five Hundred ($4,500) Dollars to be used for current expenses of the Otis Library.

Also, to consider and act upon the following petitions presented to the Board of Selectmen with a request that they be acted upon at this Annual Town Meeting:

A petition requesting that the Town appropriate a sum of money not to exceed Sixty-five Thousand ($65,000) Dollars to relieve the parents or legal guardians of children resident in said Town and students at the Norwich Free Academy from the payment of the term fees of said Academy for the school year 1924-25.

A petition that the Town appropriate a sum of money not to exceed Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars for the purpose of providing medical inspection and health work for the school children of the Town of Norwich.

A petition that the Town appropriate a sum of One Thousand ($1,000) Dollars to help defray the expenses of the dedication of the Soldiers' memorial on Chelsea Parade.

A petition that the Town appropriate the sum of Eight Thousand ($8,000) Dollars for the purpose of continuing the preparation of a tax map of the Town, said sum to be spent under the direction of the Board of Selectmen and Board of Assessors.

A petition that five (5) street lights be installed and maintained by the Town on Julian street, so-called.

A petition that the Town install and maintain electric lights on the west end of Maple street and on Pine street, so-called.

A petition that the Town establish and maintain three (3) street lights on the highway leading from the Norwich and Colchester turnpike in the Village of Yantic to Wauwecus Hill.

A petition to accept the private way known as Germania street, in the Village of Taftville, as a public highway and thoroughfare.

A petition that the Town appropriate a sum not to exceed Two Hundred ($200) Dollars for the purpose of installing a hydrant at Peck's Corner, so-called.

A petition requesting that the voters consider whether or not they will direct the Town School Committee to commence the morning session of the schools during the coming school year at 9 o'clock Standard Time.

A petition requesting the appropriation of a sum not to exceed One Hundred and Fifty ($150) Dollars for the installation of a hydrant on West Town street, near Wauwecus street.

Also, to do any other business proper to come before said meeting.

TAFTVILLE

A three pound pickerel, caught in Preston by Curt Seifert of Blissville Road, is on exhibition in the window of Weller's store. The big fish is one of the finest specimens ever captured by a local angler.

Ralph Leupold observed his sixth birthday by entertaining 21 of his young friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Leupold of Lisbon. The young guests amused themselves on the lawn with outdoor games, and refreshments were served by Mrs. Leupold, assisted by Mrs. Wilbur Dodge, Mrs. Linus Dodge, Miss Ruth Pollard and Miss Emily Pollard. In the game of pinning the tail on the donkey, the first prize was awarded to the smallest guest, little Miss Mary Emerson. The guests included Ernest Pollard, Raymond Helmboldt, Charles Helmboldt, Harold Helmboldt, Howard Theve, Harry Kaempf, Mary Emerson, Dorothy Packer, Nelson Packer, Edmund Hindie, Grace Fogarty, Bobby Sylvia, Dorothy Troeger, Marjorie Troeger, Kenneth Troeger, Lucille Troeger, Dorothy Aberg, Lewis Aberg, Howard Troeger and Helen Troeger. Many gifts were received by Master Leupold.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Grant Peck of Honor, Mich., are the guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracy Clark of North Third Avenue.

The meeting of the Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor at the Taftville Congregational Church Sunday evening was led by Robert B. Schmidt.

Misses Dorothy Wood and Helen C. Aberg have left town to resume their studies at the Willimantic State Normal School after spending the week end at their homes in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Burdick and family of Sterling have been recent guests at the home of the Misses Stubbs on North B Street.

A Rally Day service, observing the official opening of the Taftville Congregational Church school, was held Sunday at the church, with many in attendance, including many of the members of the Home Department. The service opened with the processional: Ring Out the Banner; the procession being led by two color bearers carrying the United States and the Church flags. About 150 members of the school took part in the procession, and the Knights of King Arthur followed their banner which was carried by Byron Kloss. Superintendent Victor H Davis had charge of the opening devotions, after which Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis introduced Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy. Mr. Tirrell gave a short talk on the value of faithful attendance at the church school, pointing out that those who knew something of Bible history had an advantage over those who did not. The Bible does not teach that many of its characters were out of the ordinary. They were men and they lived just as we do today, and the very fact that they were men, makes it easier for us to believe in them. Anyone who loves nature at all, must be a lover of religion, for surely the beauties of nature cannot be explained except as the work of the Deity. The service closed with the hymn, America, the Beautiful. The junior choir sang, and Miss Nellie Howie was organist. The color bearers were Hartwell Zuerner and Peter Lukoff. The program was arranged by Miss Gertrude M. Young. After the service, the scholars went to their class rooms where their text books were distributed by the officers of the school.

Tax Expert in Conference

A meeting of the tax analysis committee of the Chamber of Commerce which is to be held Wednesday evening at the assessors' office is to be attended by Thomas Linder, a tax expert employed by New Britain and Middletown. Mr. Linder's visit is for the purpose of conference with the Norwich committee regarding the proposed revaluation of real estate in the town of Norwich.

DEMOCRATIC CHOICE FOR CONGRESS NOMINATION IS FRANK P. FENTON

Four democratic conventions were held in this city Saturday including the probate, 19th senatorial district, 20th senatorial district and Second District congressional convention. The conventions, in which there were no contests, followed one another, the 19th senatorial convention, which is the Norwich district, being called to order at 11.30 o'clock at the town hall by Thomas J. Kelly. Mayor Milo R. Waters was made permanent chairman and after the reading of the call for the convention Mrs. Charles W. Frink was made secretary. State Senator Hermon J. Gibbs was named for renomination by Alex M. Pasnik and the nomination was unanimous. On motion of Mr. Kelly the state central committeeman was empowered to call the next convention and to fill any vacancy.

The probate convention was called to order promptly at 12 o'clock and Henry F. Parker was named for permanent chairman of the convention. Mrs. Mary C. Rusai of Voluntown was named secretary. On motion of William H. Shields, Judge Nelson J. Ayling was renominated for the office of judge of probate for this district. State central committeeman Thomas J. Kelly moved that the state central committee be empowered to call the next probate convention and to fill any vacancy that might occur.

The 20th senatorial convention, the so-called Shoestring district was called to order at 12.35 o'clock by Charles Foley and Joseph Leahy was made permanent chairman with J. W. Wellington, of Baltic, clerk. Cornelius B. Crandall of Stonington was nominated for senator after which the committeemen were empowered to call the next convention and to fill any vacancy.

The second congressional district convention was called to order by Thomas J. Kelly and Mayor Milo R. Waters was chosen chairman. Mayor Waters read the call for the convention and Russell A. Andrews was named secretary on motion of Joseph C. Williams. James Haggerty of Willimantic presented the name of Representative Frank P. Fenton for nomination as congressman from this district. There was no opposition and Mr. Fenton was unanimously chosen. On motion of Mr. Haggerty, Mayor Waters and John P. Murphy were named a committee to notify Mr. Fenton of his nomination.

Mr. Fenton was escorted to the hall by the committee and was greeted with applause. Briefly addressing the convention Mr. Fenton said he was not going to make any speech of acceptance but that he wished to take the opportunity to thank the delegates for the honor conferred on him. If I am elected, and I am going to be elected, he said, for I am in to win, I shall represent this great district in my most capable manner. It is an honor to be a candidate for congress from the second congressional district.

We have no apologies to make for the head of our national ticket. If elected, and he will be elected, Mr. Davis will make one of the best presidents our country has ever seen.

Our candidate for governor is a veteran and a friend of the veterans. I challenge Governor Templeton to say publicly what he said to me a few months ago regarding the past republican administration in Connecticut. If he will say public what he has said to me privately, and not alone to me, it will be the greatest democratic opportunity ever offered.

The state central committee was empowered to call the next convention and to fill any vacancy that might occur after which the convention adjourned. Following adjournment a reception was held for Mr. Fenton.

"FACE YOUR GOD SQUARELY!" SAYS MISSION PREACHER

Three Fathers of the Holy Ghost Order from Philadelphia Rev. Fathers Hartnett, O'Brien and O'Loughlin, opened a two weeks' mission in St. Patrick's church Sunday. The first week is for the women, and the second week will be for the parish men. There is to be a children's mission daily at 4 o'clock, beginning Tuesday afternoon and continuing through Wednesday and Thursday. The children will go to confession during Friday and will receive Holy Communion Saturday morning.

The order of exercises for the two weeks will include masses each morning at 5 7 and 8 o'clock. At 5 and 8 there will be a brief instruction, by one of the mission fathers. Each evening at 7.30 there will be the Rosary, instruction, sermon and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Prof. Frank L. Farrell, organist of the church, has a special chorus choir to lead the congregational singing which will be a feature of the evening services.

The opening sermon of the mission was delivered Sunday at 10.30 high mass by Father O'Loughlin. He spoke of that hope which springs eternal in the human breast; the sentiment of the poet, "Man never is, but always to be blest." Without hope, man would find the ordinary burdens of life well nigh insupportable. Even weightier would be his depression, were he once to despair of better things spiritually, eternally. No depth can equal the sorrow of the man who reaches a point where he exclaims, "There is no hope for me in eternity!" Yet some such doubts and fears must haunt every person who ponders his own sinful state.

We know, however, that God forgives our misdeeds, if we are truly penitent. Yet we should not count on this as all. Beyond the mere confession of our faults there must be the last turning from sin, the resolve not to repeat it, to avoid forever the occasions of sin in the past.

The preacher called a mission a special visit from God. It is the time for each Christian to face God and to face himself—to find out how he stands as to the affairs of eternity. No one can save the soul of another. "Though my mother may be so good and holy, though my father may be wonderful and able, neither can help me to save my soul!" declared Father O'Loughlin, "I and I alone must work out my own salvation."

"As social beings, part of a great world-wide community, we are sometimes prone to forget our individuality. A mission is the acceptable time to think of ourselves as individuals. As individuals we must face God when we die—and as individuals we must work out our salvation while we live.

"God sees us just as we are. We may be thieves and scoundrels—and by a fair exterior deceive the world—even rank high in its estimate, but we cannot deceive God. Now is the time to face God, in all truth and sincerity, to be straight with Him Who is to be our infinite Judge, then letting God's grace do its work in our souls.

"We must hope that God will give us eternal life and will give us the means to attain it; but we must work out our eternal safety, helped by God's grace."

The preacher spoke of this as a special period during which God's hands are extended to bless all His erring children who may never again receive such a direct call to return to Him and repent.

REV. WILLIAM A. KEEFE IN HOLY NAME PARADE

The Bridgeport Unit of the Holy Nome Society marching with that of the Archdiocese of Boston in the recent Holy Name parade at Washington received favorable mention in the Washington Post. Led by a delegation of ten men from St. Peter's Holy Name society, this unit also included delegates from St. Augustine's, St. Patrick's and Sacred Heart parishes. The following Connecticut clergy were with this unit: Rev. William A. Keefe, Norwich; Rev. John Costello of St. Peter's, Bridgeport; Rev. Joseph Ganley of St. Augustine's, Bridgeport, and Rev. James Travis, New Milford.

Married 64 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collard Adams, two of the best known residents of Cromwell and Middlesex county, observed their 64th wedding anniversary Friday. The observance was quiet and was held in the same house in which Mrs. Adams was born. Mrs. Adams is in her 92nd year.

They were married October 3, 1860 and 75 guests attended the wedding breakfast, only two of whom survive, Mrs. Mary Ranney Simpson of Cromwell and Mrs. Kate Ranney Wilcox, of New Britain. Both of these were pupils of Mr. Adams in 1855-56. Mr. Adams is known to State G. A. R. men, being secretary and treasurer of the 24th Regt. Conn. Vols. association.

COMPLAINTS DROP OFF IN AUTOMOBILE CASES

The total number of complaints investigated by the state police department during the past three months, which reaches well over 3,000 is slightly under the number investigated during the whole of 1921, the first year of the reorganization of the department. September was one of the busiest months in the history of the department, the monthly report issued by Secretary Robert L. Seagle shows. Complaints investigated numbered 1,011, the motorcycle section patrolled 94,833 miles of highways and 432 arrests were made by department officers.

Of the arrests, 291 were for violations of the motor vehicle laws, 168 being for reckless driving, twenty-four for operating while drunk, fifteen for driving overweighed trucks and the others listed as miscellaneous offenses. Liquor valued at $6,000 was seized during the month and property amounting to $10,760 was recovered through the department.

Examinations were given to 3,210 applicants for motor vehicle operators' licenses and examinations were made of two aircraft to determine their suitability for passenger carrying. The weights and measures department made 815 inspections and thirty four theatre inspections were made.

HOLY FAMILY ACADEMY TO NOTE GOLDEN JUBILEE

Tuesday will mark the golden anniversary of the Academy of the Holy Family, at Baltic, which thus completes fifty busy and useful years of educational activity.

Members of the alumnae association from many states will assemble at the Academy, where at 10 o'clock Tuesday a mass of thanksgiving is to be celebrated by Rt. Rev. John Gregory Murray of Hartford. The president of the association is Mrs. M. A. Bailey of Hartford and the vice president is Miss F. A. Shaughnessey of New York. The association has been divided into nine territories, each of which will be represented by one delegate or more.

Just now there are 115 students at the Academy, in eight grammar and four high school grades. There are forty-eight Sisters of Charity, including twelve in the novitiate. Rev. Mother Frances, a native of England has been the most efficient mother superior for the past five years. This is the mother house of the order in this country and a number of the holy nuns are of Canadian or European birth. They have won fame for years for the thoroughness of their instruction and the many accomplishments which they have imparted to their pupils, in conjunction with religious teaching. Their noted Academy is one of the prized institutions of Baltic and the entire community will join in the jubilee festivites of Tuesday.

WARREN LEE GOSS, 89, SHELTER ISLAND SWIMMER

Writing to Norwich friends regarding his vacation at Shelter Island, Warren Lee Goss, formerly of Norwich, now of Rutherford, N. J., the celebrated writer of boys' books, jokes about the fact that, while he took his daily sea dips, he did not attempt, as in former seasons to swim as far as Greenport. He quotes a noted New York clergyman and summer guest who used to say "When Mr. Goss dives, it is high tide in Peconic Bay."

On the date of his birthday in August, when he was 89, a mammoth cake was made in his honor at the Chequit Inn. Mr. Goss jocosely declares that it had the proper number of candles—so many that there was a corner in candles on the island and the price went up.

He returned home in the best of health and spirits and has begun work on another book.

THREE CARS COLLIDE IN MOHEGAN HILL FOG

Two Montville machines and a Norwich machine figured in an accident on Mohegan hill Saturday evening about 7.50 o'clock due to the fog which obscured the vision of the drivers. The machines were owned by Henry Titisky of Montville, a Buick; Archa W. Coit, of Norwich, a Chevrolet, and Ingloss Johnson of Montville, a Dodge touring.

Although two of the cars, the Buick and Chevrolet, were badly damaged, no one was seriously hurt. The occupants of the machines were shaken up and somewhat bruised. Efficient service on the part of the state police and an officer directing traffic prevented further accidents while the damaged cars were being removed. No arrests were made as the drivers were well within the speed limit and were driving as carefully as possible under the existing foggy conditions.

Music at Tuberculosis Sanatorium

A pleasing program of music, including concert and dance numbers, and several snappy marches, was rendered by Leith's Musical Aces at the tuberculosis sanatorium on Thursday night last. "June Night," "Ray and His Chevrolet," and "Mayime" were among the songs featured. The young musicians were enthusiastically received and well applauded by a good-sized audience.

In the City Court

In the city court Saturday morning Edward Hall of Springfield had his case nolled. He was charged with driving his automobile without a license or registration and with violation of the local traffic laws but the court was lenient inasmuch as Mr. Hall had made a hurried trip to see his mother who is critically ill in a Norwich hospital.

You can easily convince the man who lost that it is wrong to gamble.

MANCHESTER UNITY WILL HAVE CLASS INITIATION

The regular meeting of Hugh H. Osgood Lodge, I. O. O. F., M. U., was held Friday evening in Steiner Hall with Noble Grand George Lake presiding. Routine business was transacted and several candidates were proposed and acted upon. They will be initiated at the class initiation Oct. 11th when it is expected quite a large class will be put through. The committee in charge reported everything ready for the event which will take place in Olympic hall. The committee on church parade reported that the lodge members will attend the Congregational church service in Taftville, Sunday, October 19th.

GRADUATIONS AT METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

The Sunday school of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church held a rally day service Sunday noon in the Sunday school room. There was a large attendance at the exercises which included hymns, prayer, Gloria Patri, and responsive reading after which the promotions and graduation took place. Plans for the new training school for church school workers were referred to and announcements in connection with the County Sunday school convention were made.

BOY SCOUTS DISTRIBUTING CIRCULARS FOR NON-VOTERS

The Norwich Boy Scouts in connection with the Chamber of Commerce are putting out posters and leaflets, calling attention to the very small vote polled in 1920 at the presidential election.

Only 49 per cent. of the total voting strength went to the polls

The poster reads "Register! Vote: Don't be a Parlor Patriot. Don't be a Rockingchair Paul Revere." The attention of voters is further directed to this fact by stickers which are put on mail reading: "Vote November 4th! Vote as you please, but Vote!"

POETRY

NOT SAVED ALONE, BUT SAFE

"For this cause it is of faith, that it may be according to grace; to the end that the promise may be sure."—Rom. 4: 16.

Not saved alone, but safe.
My grasp on Him might one day be relaxed;
My feeble faith one day be overtaxed;
My wavering purpose find itself outwilled;
My fickle love die down, its ardor chilled;
But, thanks to God, He has my foe to face;
I rest not on my efforts but His Grace,
And am forever safe.
Nought but His Word is "sure."
And hence 'tis what He says, not what I feel;
What He has done, not what I do, shall seal
My destiny. And He long since achieved
All that was needed, and I have received
Eternal life—His gift at such a cost!
His promise aye is sure.
—Henry K. Bentley, in Sunday School Times.

THE WISE FLOWER.

There is a little flower—it blows not everywhere—
That always shuts its petals unless the sky is fair;
It has the power of choosing
What God has made the best,
Blent with the art of losing
The evil in the rest.

It will not waste its fragrance on what only harm;
And guards its simple beauty for those that prize the charm.
Too frail for tempest frightful,
When the storm is done
Again with grace delightful
It smiles and thanks the sun.

No bard should thrust a moral in the bosom of a song;
Yet if one haps to hide there—that surely can't be wrong;
If we have not the power
To change what we despise—
Scorn it, as the flower,
And wait for bluer skies.
—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Chile is twenty times as long as it is broad.

According to recent soundings, the depth of the Mediteranean at its deepest place is 14,436 feet.

About 550,000,00 square feet of wire screen cloth is consumed annually in the United States.

In the bureau of standards, in Washington, a complete set of weights and measures is kept in sealed cases.

The so-called "air plant" sold by many curio shops is the skeleton of a lowly sea animal, dyed green, cerise or magenta "air plants" are just as easily produced as green ones.

The county of Chester, in Pennsylvania, is the owner of a tree, about four feet in heigh, tlocated in the top of a chimney in the rear of the annex of the Courthouse. It is thought a bird carried a seed of a catalpa tree to the chimney.

Besides great generators at Niagara Falls, N. Y., there is an electric riverter said to be the largest in the world. It is being used to build steel intake tunnels for a hydro-electric project. The machine can put in 600 rivets in eight hours with absolute precision. Seven hand riveters would have to work four days to equal this record.

Sedan chairs, once the universal means of transportation, and an interesting sight on the Chinese streets are disappearing before the completion of the automobile, according to information received at the department of commerce. It is estimated that there are now 300 passenger cars and 125 trucks in operation in Canton alone, once the stronghold of the sedan chairs. In that city where more than 3,000 of the sedan chairs were in operation three years ago, the number has fallen to 1,200, according to an official report.

Eleven varieties of chestnuts obtained from the Yunnan province of southwestern China are now under cultivation by the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture. It is hoped to obtain from these at least one type that will resist the blight which has ruined so much of the native chestnut crop. The trees as yet are only in the seedling stage. Among them is one which, in Yunnan, produces nuts nearly twice the size of the common American variety. This tree is described as suitable for orchard culture. It grows wild at an altitude of about 8,000 feet.

Drying of films used to be one of the great problems of moving picture producers. The hundreds of feet of thrillers and love stories could not be hung up to dry like ordinary still-life camera film. Also, if specks of dust adhere to the damp film, they may, quite possibly ruin the hero's facial expression, just at the point where, after numberless difficulties, he had won the hand of the lady of his choice. Now, by using giant fans, film drying is a routine detail. These fans blow washed, warmed air down the centers of framework cylinders around which the films have been wound and the drying is accomplished quickly and easily.—Jobbers Journal.

AMERICAN RED CROSS IS PERFECTION OF CHARITY

President Coolidge Extolled Virtues of the Order in Address at Opening Session of the Annual Meeting—Aids Humanity and Dispenses Charity, Knowing No Creed, No Party, No Politics, No Classes or Groups—Has a Definite, Cooperative and Practical Program For Helping Those Who Need It, "When They Need it and Where They Need It."

Washington, Oct. 6.—With President Coolidge as its presiding officer, the fourth annual Red Cross convention opened today, attended by hundreds of chapter delegates from all parts of the country. As honorary president of the Red Cross, Mr. Coolidge was the first speaker and in his address commended the organization and its work.

Among the other speakers was Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans' bureau, who explained what steps have been or are being taken to promote the welfare of America's veterans. Many of the recommendations passed at previous Red Cross conventions for the benefit of veterans he said, had been put in effect either by congressional legislation or by the veterans' bureau itself. He quoted as instances the hospitalization and the decentralization programs of the bureau. At present, he declared 38,000 rehabilitated soldiers are in better positions and earning better salaries than before the war.

Director Hines said that up to 1921 war veterans had been housed in ordinary existing hospitals, but since then, $40,000,000 had been spent for the reconstruction of suitable hospitals, with the result that at present 18 of these are completed with an accommodation of 10,000 beds. Other hospitals are still under construction capable of housing 1700 more patients.

Colonel D. H. Pond, chairman of the Cleveland chapter of the Red Cross, spoke next, explaining the society's organization for quick action in case of emergency, and then after a short speech by Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the central committee of the Red Cross, Marquis Eaton, chairman of the Chicago chapter, was elected temporary chairman for the convention.

Mr. Coolidge presided over both the Red Cross and Harding Memorial association meetings. Plans were outlined at the latter for the erection in Marion, Ohio, probably next spring, of the memorial to the late president.

Speaking before the Red Cross, the president lauded the organization for its accomplishments in relieving distress and directing "the finest, the most appealing attribute of our human nature—charity." Referring to its work in war times, he pleaded for a truly civilized world, where the costs of armaments of pensions of fortifications, were not required to be borne."

"Where resources could be used," the president said, "to promote, not to destroy happiness—in such a world that mighty works could be accomplished under the leadership of the Red Cross spirit! Poverty, ignorance, prejudice and uncharitableness might be completely relieved and remedied.

Toward such an ideal Mr. Coolidge declared, the race is making progress. It will achieve, he asserted, "not by some magic formula in some inspired moment," but because men and women were more and more demanding it.

In the Red Cross, the president said, the nation has its opportunity to "capitalize and direct the finest, the most appealing attribute of our human nature—charity." It is a strong support, he said of the government and a reliable guarantee of the progress of civilization, showing the way "to a more complete realization of truth and justice through mercy."

Emphasizing "its practical idealism," Mr. Coolidge recalled the accomplishments of the Red Cross in relieving the distress resulting a year ago from the earthquake in Japan.

"The Red Cross," he continued, "had the organization capable of turning this great overflowing of the sympathy of the nation to the best account. It insured a maximum of relief at the minimum of outlay. The gratitude of a great nation, disclosed in manifold form more than repaid the splendid response of our people directed through this organization. A record this as marking a new era in the Philosophers and historians may yet relationship between nations."

Describing the Red Cross as the only organization he knew which accomplished any good by "looking for trouble," the president declared it had a definite, co-operative and practical program for helping those who need help "when they need it and where they need it."

"It knows," he said, "no creed, no party, no politics, no classes or groups. It is proof that materialism is not the dominant motive of the people of the United States. The Red Cross idea will develop as mankind develops. The ideals underlying civilization as the ideals of brotherly love, of tolerance, of kindliness, of charity. The beauty of life lies in the meeting whatever destiny awaits us trusting one another, helping one another."

Mr. Coolidge welcomed the convention as the meeting of an organization "able to translate into results our deep regard for the interests of humanity."

REV. HARRY E. FOSDICK SENDS RESIGNATION TO PRESBYTERY

New York, Oct. 6—The presbytery of New York received today, but declined action upon the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the Baptist preacher of modernist ideas who for five years has had an assistant ministership in the First Presbyterian Church of this city.

The resignation was Dr. Fosdick's answer to the request of the Presbytery that, in accordance with a ruling of the general assembly five months ago, he should renounce his Baptist membership and become a Presbyterian or relinquish his association with the local church.

A special committee of the Presbytery headed by Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work, communicated the decree of the general assembly to the Rev. Dr. Fosdick and today read before the Presbytery the minister's answer, ending in resignation.

At the committee's recommendation the case was placed in the hands of the first church for further investigation and deliberation, with instructions to report to the Presbytery by Nov. 10. It is expected that on that date the First church, which has stood by the Rev. Dr. Fosdick for two years while the battle between fundamentalists and modernists raged around him, will make known whether it purposes to accept or reject the resignation.

Once before the Dr. Fosdick resigned from the assistant ministership. The occasion was in the furore which ensued when he used "Shall the fundamentalists win?" as the subject of a sermon. But the church, despite strong pressure from fundamentalists throughout the country, and a vote of censure passed upon the preacher by the general assembly at Indianapolis in 1923, rejected the resignation.

Although Dr. Fosdick declined to discuss his plans, it was the general belief among the members of the church on Fifth Avenue who flocked to the meeting of the Presbytery today, that he would continue to preach from the first church pulpit until the report of Nov. 10 was submitted.

STRIKERS IN PATERSON BATTLE WITH POLICE

Paterson N. J., Oct. 6.—Refused permission to meet in Turn hall tonight, striking silk workers, waving American flags, marched to the city hall and engaged in a battle with police. A score of men were injured and 13 arrests made.

For half an hour the police and mob of more than 2,000 silk strikers surged back and forth, fists and clubs being used promiscuously in the fighting, before the police were able to subdue the shouting and yelling crowd of men and women. All available police officers have been called to duty.

Supreme Court Justice Rose in Toronto, postponed until October 16 the hearings of two motions in connection with the attempt of the United States government to interrogate H. S. Oliver, former president of the Continental Trading company, in regard to a Canadian aspect of the Tea Pot Dome matter.

CHANGE IN BRITISH GOV'T SEEMS ASSURED

London, Oct. 6—(By the A. P.)—Events seem moving with ever increasing momentum toward a general election, which all the party leaders do not tire in professing the country does not desire, but for which they are assiduously preparing.

It looked tonight as though a crisis might mature as early as Wednesday. Every political speech delivered nowadays is an election manifesto, and Premier MacDonald himself, contrary to custom, is giving to the press interviews in which he accuses the liberal leaders of forcing an election on the country on unjustifiable grounds.

Apparently convinced that the liberals are determined to force the situation, the ministers are disposed to meet the challenge immediately, without waiting for defeat on the Russion treaty at the end of the month. A cabinet council discussed the situation today and, according to the chief labor whip, Ben Spoor, the ministers have decided to offer the strongest resistance both to the conservation motion for a vote of censure and the amendment to the motion, to be moved by Sir John Simon, liberal, that instead of censuring the government a select committee shall be appointed to investigate the circumstances leading to the withdrawal of the prosecution of the editor of the Workers' Weekly on a charge of sedition.

LAFOLLETTE CONFIDENT OF ELECTION AS PRESIDENT

Rochester, New Y. Oct. 6.—Confidence that he will be elected president was expressed here tonight by Senator Robert M. LaFollette as he launched a new offensive in his campaign as independent candidate.

Delivering his first address on a tour that is expected to take him from coast to coast before election day, the Wisconsin senator said it was apparent that the democratic candidate for president was a "poor third in almost every state outside the solid south" and that the "contest for presidential electors now lies squarely between the candidates for the republican party and the independent-progressive candidates."

"During the coming month," continued Mr. LaFollette "the progressives will turn the searchlight of truth upon the record of the Coolidge administration. It is my opinion that when this record is fully and clearly revealed the American people will repudiate those who are responsible as overwhelmingly as they did the Taft administration.

If elected, the senator declared, he will devote the first eighteen months of his term to "housecleaning" and the remainder to "constructive" efforts.

FLOUR PRICES SOARING IN NEW YORK MARKET

New York, Oct. 6.—Flour prices soared to new higher levels, for the season on the New York market today when spring patents advanced to $8.25 and fancy family flour to $9.50. These prices were $2.25 a barrel higher than those of last June when the present bull movement started.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

German Railway Administration

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 6.—Rudolph Oeser, minister of transportation, in a speech before the Overseas club today, declared that the net commercial volume of services and materials, such as repair material, and coal in the hands of the railway administration, is 700,000,000 gold marks. "We have a debt today of 107,000,000," said the minister. "But assets in the form of supplies, coal, etc., total 808,000,000 gold marks."

HEAD OF NARCOTIC RING FORFEITED $10,000 BOND

New Haven, Oct. 6.—Enrico Esposito, of this city, declared government agents to be the head of a narcotic ring operating in this section, forfeited a bond of $10,000 posted by a group of five friends when he failed to put in an appearance in the federal court here today. Six others arrested with Esposito, who have been out on bonds ranging from $5,000 to $8,000, were in court today and entered pleas of not guilty. Their cases were set down for October 27 by Judge Edwin S. Thomas.

The six were Genaro Esposito, Mathem Mercurio, Fred Clogere, Michael Costello, Ralph Companaro and Michael Gustini, all of this city. All seven were charged with possession and sale of narcotics and federal agents who were in court today were ready to submit as evidence a bulky package said to contain heroin valued at $5,000.

The men were arrested on the night of August 29 and in a raid which followed a raid on a pool room in Meadow street, two of the alleged peddlers, Clogere and Costello, were shot and wounded. Joseph W. Gauthier, of Boston, one of the agents, who took part in the raid, also was shot.

Among the contentions which the government will attempt to prove when the case comes to trial are that W. D. Aiken, Jr., chief of the narcotic bureau of New England posing as a trafficker in drugs, entered into a deal with the accused to purchase 50 ounces of the drug. He came to New Haven with the other agents, he claims, and shortly before midnight on the night of August 28, the alleged narcotic peddlers in the pool room and paid $1,500 for the drugs. Immediately after the transfer, it is claimed, the agents fired two shots out of the window, this being the signal to the other agents outside. The fight and arrests follo-

WORLD PEACE CONGRESS IN SESSION IN BERLIN

Berlin, Oct. 6.—(By the A. P.)—Today's session of the World Peace congress was enlivened by the motion of General Von Schoenlach of Germany for the congress to send a telegram to Chancellor Marx asking why the cabinet, which usually sends members to all sorts of congresses and conventions, sent only an unknown substitute to yesterday's big mass meeting and evening reception.

The apparent slight given the pacifists is felt keenly. Various German speakers accused the government of cowardice and fear of offending the nationalists with whom it is now negotiating for cabinet positions.

The Von Schoenaich motion was finally tabled on the grounds that an international body like the peace congress lacked authority to tell the Berlin government what to do. The government's action was said to have contrasted sharply with the congratulatory telegram received from Premier Macdonald and President Painleve of the French chamber.

A delegation consisting of representatives of 12 nations was received late this afternoon by President Ebert. The delegation included Professor F. L. Quidde of Munich, who is under indictment for treason by the Bavarian authorities. It is understood that President Ebert was questioned as to whether he objected to Professor Quidde, but the executive expressed a personal wish to see the professor. This is taken by some to mean that the indictment will be quashed.

DEM. CANDIDATE DAVIS HAS PHYSICAL TRAINER

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 6—Jim Cullen, physical trainer of heavyweight fighters, joined the John W. Davis official party when it left New York City today, to help the democratic candidate "put knockout punches in his battle for the presidency."

It was the first time that Mr. Davis has recognized the need for such physical treatment since the campaign started, and, it is understood, he will keep Cullen with him until after the big fight November 4.

"He shows the needs of physical instruction." Cullen said of Mr. Davis. "His condition is such that with two treatments a day he will freshen up and be as good as when he started this grind of travel and wear and all that goes with a candidate's life, particularly in the last rounds of a national campaign."

Cullen trained Bill Brennan for his fight with Dempsey in 1920 and has been employed by various ring stars since then. He believes the political fighter should take as much or more care of himself physically as does the pugilist.

TEN LIVES LOST IN FLOODS IN WEST INDIES.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Oct. 16.—Ten lives are reported to have been lost at Dominica, Leeward Islands, West Indies, yesterday, when torrential rains caused the Roseau river to overflow. The town was flooded with four feet of water. The damage is estimated at several thousand pounds.

Settlement of Gould Estate is Costly

More Than $41 a Minute, According To Testimony Given Before the Referee.

New York, Oct. 6.— It is costing more than $41 a minute to straighten out the tangled affairs of the late George J. Gould, as chief executor of the $82,000,000 estate of his father, Jay Gould, railroad builder, according to an assertion made today to the referee who is taking testimony in the investigation.

While Attorney Walter B. Walter, representing Frank J. Gould and his sister, Anna, the Duchess De Tallyrand, was reading evidence of George Gould's alleged maladministration, William Wallace, attorney for the George Gould estate, protested that the hearing was costing $2,500 an hour. He asked that all duplicated evidence be barred, that the costly clock ticks might be conserved.

The protest didn't expedite matters, however. When opposing attorneys suggested means of saving time they ran into insurmountable objections. So Frank Gould's attorneys were permitted to pursue their adopted course.

Mr. Walter read into the record today evidence tending to show that George Gould had manipulated stocks belonging to his father's estate, not only through personal accounts, but through accounts held under fictitious names. He also introduced testimony showing that in 1912 George Gould and his son, Kingdon, had taken the former's personal books to his Fifth avenue residence and destroyed them, along with the record they bore of the manner in which the elder Gould had administered his father's estate.

George Gould testified, at a hearing before trial, held a short time prior to his death that he had burned the records because he intended to remove his offices and considered the books worthless. Mr. Walter maintained, however, that the office had not been moved until seven years later. It was then that he read off a half score names which he said represented fictitious persons through which George Gould had disposed of certain properties of the Jay Gould estate.

These names had been used to keep his transactions secret, Mr. Gould had explained in his pre-trial examination.

"If it had become known," he said, "that the Goulds were selling Missouri Pacific, everybody would have sold Missouri Pacific and the market would have gone to pot."

Mr. Walker also read from various papers and accounts large transactions of property of the Jay Gould estate which were consummated years before the sale cash was placed in the estate funds. In some of these sales, he continued, George Gould had not paid the entire proceeds into the fund of the common heirs.

The hearing will continue Thursday.

DIED IN AN ATTEMPT TO RESCUE HIS COMPANION

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 6.—Two city employes were killed here today and two others were overcome when they were caught in gas escaping in a sewer manhole in which they had been at work. Charles Murray, 63-year-old worker, died a hero's death vainly attempting to rescue his companion, Michael Regan, who had been trapped in the manhole. Michael McLaughlin and Louis Lambert were overcome in an unsuccessful effort to save the lives of their two fellow workers.

Regan had been working deep in the manhole when Murray, detecting the odor of escaping gas, and suspecting trouble, had himself lowered to the sewer.

Working despite the sewer gas and escaping illuminating gas, Murray succeeded in fastening the rope about Regan's body and his own. Just as companions were drawing them to the top of the manhole and to safety, the rope broke.

McLaughlin, 65 years old, then descended into the hole and brought up Murray's body. He was overcome as he went down again for Regan.

McLaughlin and Lambert were revived, but doctors were unable to restore life to Murray and Regan.

Waterbury, Oct. 6.—Four boys each under 14 were arrested today on the charge of stealing the automobile of Paul Russo which had been left by the owner in front of his home last night. The machine was found on the Pearl Lake road.

Mrs. Mary Rupp, 24, of Glendale, Queens, New York, and her two infant children were found dead yesterday in their kitchen with the three unlighted burners pouring gas into the kitchen room.

Order Non-Secret, Non-Sectarian

Movement to Foster Patriotic Ideals the Object of Movement Started in Utica.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 6—(By the A. P.)—With a view to fostering patriotic ideals and "a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion," fifty Protestants, nearly all members of the Masonic order, and a like number of Catholics, the majority affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, met tonight for formal organization of the Hamilton-Jefferson Association, announced as a "non-secret, non-sectarian and non partisan" group.

The charter members, all leading business men of Utica, heard the aims and objects of the organization outlined by leaders in each of the two fraternal bodies and summed up in the principal address of the evening by Elihu Root, formerly United States secretary of state.

Mr. Root, who became a member of the association, only after he had been assured of its non-sectarian character, expressed the belief that by having a membership drawn equally from the Protestant and Catholic faiths, the organization had gone a long way toward ultimate success.

The membership list of the parents chapter of the organization is limited to 100 men, it was explained at the dinner, of whom half must represent each religious faith. At the monthly meetings of the association subjects concerning general public welfare will be discussed and acted upon, according to the purposes outlined at the dinner, and the United States constitution will be held up as "an antidote for the evils of the day."

The name of the organization was suggested by Mr. Root as one which signified the "combination of two groups holding divergent views. Incorporation of the association followed selection of its members from foremost Catholics and Protestants of Utica.

W. G. M'ADOO COMFORTABLE FOLLOWING OPERATION

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 6—William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of treasury, was reported by his physicians tonight to be resting very comfortably, following an operation performed today at Johns Hopkins hospital for the removal of gravel from the bladder.

The operation was performed by Dr. Hugh H. Young, who described it as a very simple one. It required but a few minutes he said, and was performed under a local anaesthetic.

Dr. Young tonight described Mr. McAdoo's condition as "very fine." No complications have developed. The physician said, and the patient's temperature is normal.

Mr. McAdoo will remain at Hopkins for about ten days.

Governor In Race

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Hon. Alfred E. Smith, Governor of New York, who has decided to run for re-election.

GREAT SHOWING BY REPUBLICANS IN THE LITTLE TOWN ELECTIONS

New Haven, Oct. 6—Town elections were held throughout the state today and the results were watched with interest as a barometer of what the results may be in the presidential election next month. Nearly 150 of the towns voted today and in practically all of them there were contests for offices.

In Stonington, where the Ku Klux Klan was injected into the campaign, the republican ticket won all town offices with a majority of 250, out of a total vote cast of 3300.

Waterford rolled up its largest republican majority in years, the candidates on that ticket winning by a two to one majority.

Darien cast 973 votes, the average republican majority being 250.

The republican candidates were swept into office in East Haven by large majorities. The vote for registrar of voters, always considered a fair barometer, showed 788 for the republicans and 503 for the democrats.

In Hamden, the republicans captured first and second selectmen posts and the democrats the third selectman place.

In Stamford, all of the republicans won by large majorities, all of the present office holders being elected. The average republican majorty was 2500. On the constitutional amendment which would give the governor power to veto portions of an appropriation measure while approving others the vote was yes 388; no 90.

Durham, Haddam, Littlefield and Killingworth all went republican.

In the Willimantic section, Ashford, a democratic town, split even on a light vote, while Columbia, was carried by the democrats. Mansfield, Chaplin, Hampton, Scotland, Franklin, Lebanon, Hebron and Andover, were all carried by the republicans.

In Windham Dr. F. E. Guild, who for 34 years has led his ticket for member of the school committee, was headed by Joseph F. Gaurear this year but retains his seat on the board.

In East Hampton, the republicans won by a majority of 330. Out of 1286 names on the voting list, 916 votes were cast today.

The Stanton faction in Madison, which has been opposed during the campaign by the Marsden wing, won in every contest with the exception of second selectman where Clarkson H. Meigs, who for many years was first selectman, was elected second selectman. Out of 790 votes cast, Louis D. Stanton for tax collector, polled 748.

HOOVER SUGGESTS NATIONAL SYSTEM OF RADIO PROGRAMS

Would Have a Broadcasters' Association Give Service Similar to That Given by Press Associations to Newspapers—Plan Would Provide For a Self-Sustaining System of Inter-Connection of Radio Broadcasting Stations to Provide the Best the Nation Has in Music and Entertainment—Suggestion Made at Opening of Third National Radio Conference in Washington.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Organization of a national system of radio programs through a brodacasters' association to give service much as press associations do for newspapers was suggested by Secretary Hoover tonight in an address opening the third national radio conference.

The conference is attended by representatives of all branches of the industry and was called by Mr. Hoover to consider the numerous problems of radio development in the United States. Beginning tomorrow morning the general sessions will be open to the public for presentation of any problem involving the industry.

The addresses tonight were broadcast through a system of 18 radio stations.

In presenting his views tonight Secretary Hoover reiterated his opposition to any attempt to monopolize the air, declaring that local broadcasting stations are of first importance and must not be driven from the field.

The secretary's suggested plan for a national program association would provide for a self-sustaining system of interconnection of radio broadcasting stations, and the offering through those stations of the best the nation has in music and entertainment.

"My proposition," Mr. Hoover said, "is that the local station must be able to bring to its listeners every important national event with regularity. The local station must be able to bring to its listeners the greatest music and entertainment of the nation, but far beyond this it must be able to deliver important pronouncements of public men, it must bring instantly to our people a hundred and one matters of national interest. This can only be accomplished by regularly organized interconnection on a national basis with nationally organized and directed programs for some part of the day to supplement to more local materials.

"It may be stated with assurance that the greatest advance in radio since our last conference is the complete demonstration of the feasibility of interconnection.

"It is our duty to consider the possibilities and potentialities of interconnection as a regular daily routine of the nation. Unless it be systematically organized we cannot expect its continuation. I realize that this matter, except insofar as it may be fostered and encouraged, does not lie in the government. It would be unfortunate indeed if such an important function as the distribution of information should ever fall into the hands of the government. It would be still more unfortunate if its control should come under the arbitrary power of any person or group of persons. It is inconceivable that such a situation should be allowed to exist.

"But I am not now dealing with monopoly. Nor is this a question where anyone lays claim to a monopoly. Interconnection is going on to local extent and over the wires of the telegraph companies, the telephone companies, and by radio itself. We have promises of super-radio and we have promises of interconnection of wired wireless. If there are several methods, it means that we might have several programs always available. But whatever the method of interconnection may be, we are lacking in a definite organization of a national system of programs and a basis of support.

"I believe that the quickest way to kill broadcasting would be to use it for direct advertising. The reader of the newspaper has an option whether he will read an ad, or not, but if a speech by the president is to be used as the meat in a sandwich of two patent medicine advertisements, there will be no radio left. To what extent it may be employed for what we now call indirect advertising I do not know and only experience with the reactions of the listeners can tell.

"I do not believe there is any practical method of payment from the receivers. I wish to suggest for consideration the possibility of mutual organization by broadcasters of a service for themselves similar to that which the newspapers have for their use in the press associations, which would furnish programs of national events and arrange for their transmission and distribution on some sort of a financial basis just as the press associations gather and distribute news among their members."

Going into the licensing by the government of super-broadcasting stations, with strength of five times and more of that of the present largest stations, the secretary declared that nothing must be done to interfere with the programs of local stations, on which so many of the radio public depend, nor with the wide selective range they now have.

The secretary then went into the marine radio problem, declaring that the use of only two wave lengths for marine broadcasting is an example of the folly of putting a straitjacket on such a rapidly growing business. He advocated assigning separate wave lengths to separate groups, or classes, of vessels.

LAWYERS FORM COOLIDGE AND DAWES' CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

New York, Oct. 6.—Prominent lawyers of New York today announced the formation of a Coolidge and Dawes campaign committee "for the purpose of bringing to the people at large a clear knowledge of the constitutional issues involved in the present campaign."

"In no political campaign," said a letter from the committee issued today by the republican national committee, "has there rested upon the legal profession a greater duty and responsibility."

Attacking proposals attributed to Senator La Follette, independent candidate for the presidency, the latter asserted: "The taking away from the supreme court of the power to finally declare acts of congress unconstitutional would make possible an invasion of the fundamental rights, privileges and liberties now guaranteed by our Constitution, and would destroy the balance of power between the legislative, executive and judicial branches, which is essential to our form of government."

FAILED TO FIND TRACE OF MISSING RUTLAND GIRL

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 6.—The most extensive search ever made in this state for a missing person had failed today to trace Doris Eltapence, 17 years old, daughter of James H. Eltapence, a Rutland business man, who left her home Saturday afternoon to attend a football game.

A telephone message announced that a girl answering to the description sent out by the police had been given a ride in an automobile from Iberville, Quebec. Friends said that she had spoken frequently of entering a Canadian convent. A school friend told the police that she saw Doris on Saturday night at the railroad station in Burlington.

According to her parents, the girl had only a dollar when she left home. She wore no hat and had apparently made no preparations for a journey.

THOUSANDS PANIC STRICKEN BY HANHOLE EXPLOSIONS

New York, Oct. 6.—Thousands of persons in the hear of Fifth Avenue's retail district became panic-stricken and took refuge in the nearest buildings today when three manhole covers were hurled ten feet into th air by an explosion. A traffic policeman at the corner was knocked unconscious. Windows a block away were broken.

Traffic was halted for 45 minutes while workmen explored the sewer leads. They reported that the explosion resulted from compressed sewer gases which suddenly expanded.

DR. WILLIAM A. SHANKLIN DIED IN N. Y. SUBWAY STATION

New York, Oct. 6.—Dr. William Arnold Shanklin, president emeritus of Wesleyan university, died suddenly of heart disease in a subway station today. He was in his 63rd years.

Dr. Shanklin was stricken on his way to a real estate tract in Queens, the sale of which he had supervised since last January, when he obtained a leave of absence from Wesleyan because his health had broken under the strain of fourteen years' unremitting work. He collapsed on the steps of the Grand Central subway station, and was dead before a Bellevue hospital ambulance arrived with a doctor.

Mr. Shanklin was born at Carrollton Mo., April 18, 1864, the son of Wesley Dunscombe and Locke Arnold Shanklin. He was graduated from Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y., with B. A., in 1883, from Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., with degree S. T. B. in 1891, and studied for the ministry, being ordained in the Methodist Episcopal church. He served in various pastorates for 18 years, serving successively at Peru and Fore Scott, Kansas, Spokane and Seattle, Washn., Dubuque, Iowa, and Reading, Pa. He was elected to the presidency of Upper Iowa university in 1906. He had received M. A. degree from Hamilton, D. D., from Washington university, and LL.D. from Baker university, Baldwin, Kansas. His college fraternities were Sigma Phi and Phi Beta Kappa.

Dr. Shanklin married Emma Elizabeth Brant at Fort Scott on October 14, 1891, who with a son survive.

When Dr. Shanklin retired from Wesleyan, reviews of his administration drew attention to several phases of it. It was said that during the time he was at the head of the institution, Wesleyan greatly raised its educational standards and improved its curriculum, its faculty was doubled in number, the annual income was nearly quadrupled, the undergraduate body was doubled in number, and nearly one-half of all living Wesleyan graduates attended the college during his presidency.

H. S. Prichett, formerly president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said that President Shanklin's administration had been one of the "outstanding college administrations of the generation."

Dr. Shanklin's brother, Arnold Shanklin, now a Mexico City lawyer, formerly was American consul-general to Panama.

In three months Dr. Shanklin had planned to return to Wesleyan after his year of rest in the real estate business.

WOMAN SENT TO JAIL FOR SELLING LIQUOR

Greenwich, Oct. 6.—Mary Romania, wife of Michael Romania, was fined $400 and costs and given a thirty days' jail sentence by Judge J. B. Mead today for a second conviction in three months of selling liquor.

Santo Conpaito and Nunzio Templa, for the same offense, were each given 30 days in jail with a $300 fine.

Allen G. Lafley was sent to jail for thirty days and fined $100 for operating a car while drunk.

WILLIMANTIC

Windham cast a democratic vote by an average of 100 majority in Monday's election and swept all candidates into office. The voting during the day was slow, only 2249 votes, or 60 per cent of the vote being rallied when the polls closed at 5 o'clock.

Voting was close in all districts except the Third where the usual democratic majority was piled up. In the First district 522 votes were cast, 251 republican, 201 democratic and 70 splits. In the Second district 1162 votes were cast, 466 democratic, 517 republican and 169 split. The Third district had 773 votes cast, 469 democratic and 207 republican, with 97 split. In the Fourth ward a total of 792 votes were cost. Voting was unusually good at the polls, only 32 of the 2249 ballots cast being rejected for various reasons.

Democratic majorities ran anywhere from 197 votes, as in the case of collector of taxes to the slender majority of 23 votes as in the case of the school committee, Robert O. Snow, democrat, winning by that margin from Raymond A. Parker.

From early in the day it was seen that the voting would be light as the voters were not in any hurry to cast their ballots at the four voting places. Frank P. Fenton, chairman of the democratic town committee, who as town clerk was the authorized person to get the election started, was on the job early and the moderators were sworn in as follows: Fourth district Ernest P. Chesebro; Third, John O'Rourke; Second, James Haggerty; First, William H. Kingsley.

Balloting began at 6 o'clock and announcement was made that all returns would be filed at the First district with Mr. Kingsley as chief moderator.

Two hours after the polls were opened, only 410 out of 5,760 names on the list had been checked and both parties were working to get more voters to the polls. At 11 o'clock the voting was still dragging, but at noon there was a rush and when this was over 1600 ballots had been cast. At this time the votes stood as follows: First, 280; Second, 570; Third, 410; Fourth, 340. At 3 o'clock it seemed as though the vote for the day would reach about 60 per cent, as the total votes at that time were 2430.

The First district voting was in the corridors of the High street entrance to the town hall on the first floor. Officials aside from Moderator Kingsley were: Checker, Jerome Piche; ballot box tender, William V. Palmer; challengers, Dennis S. Shea and Chas. J. Dondero; ballot clerks, James O. Bacon and John P. McQuillan; booth tenders, William Piche and F. Wilbert Jacobs. The first man to cast a vote in this district was George Thompson and the first woman Mrs. Edward Cheney.

Voting in the Second district, the largest of the four, was on the second floor of the old town building on Church street. The list of officials was as follows: Moderator, James Haggerty; checker, Lewye G. Gerry; ballot box tender, John P. McQuillan; challengers, Eugene J. Randall and Frank M. Lincoln; ballot clerks, Chas. H. Baker and Michael Moriarty; booth tenders, Paul Dubreuil and C. H. Van aZndt. The first man to cast a ballot in this ward was James Moriarty of Turner street and the first woman, Mrs. Ellen Lynch.

The voting in the Third district was carried on in the portable building owned jointly by the town and city, situated at the corner of Milk and Ives streets, just southeast of the Milk street crossing of the New Haven railroad. The officials were: Moderator, John O'Rourke; checker, Kingsley Brown of Windham Center; official box tender, Antonio Lavigne; challenger, Anthony Meenan; ballot clerks, Thomas Tennant and Joseph Gingras; booth tenders, Theodore Delude and John Shannahan. The first man to cast a ballot in this district was Dennis Murphy of Ann street and the first woman, Miss Katherine Fitzgerald.

Voting in the Fourth district was in the portable booth east of the home of Lyman Maine on Pleasant street, situated on the brow of the hill overlooking the Central Vermont railway. The officials aside from Moderator Chesbro were: checker, James P. Twomey; box tender, John B. Edgarton; challengers, J. Schley Donohue Jr., and Arthur E. Taylor; ballot clerks, Dennis McCarthy and E. E. Ellsworth; booth tenders, James S. Donohue and Ralph Snow. The first woman to cast a ballot in this district was Louise Tremblay and the first man, Charles H. Webster.

Sergeant Arthur Stearns of Portsmouth, N. H., and a young woman companion escaped injury, about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, when the automobile in which they were riding down the short street off Pleasant street was badly damaged. Stearns claimed that the steering gear of his machine buckled as he made the turn at the foot of Jillson Hill. The front axle was bent back, left headlight smashed and brace broken. The damaged car was pushed out of the way of traffic and a repair man was sent for.

Kenneth N. Hillhouse, chairman of the Enrollment Week campaign being conducted this week by the Y. M. C. A., has made arrangements for a systematic enrollment of members of the association during the next few days. Monday evening the campaign workers met at the association building on Main street and completed plans for the campaign, perfecting an organization to be known as The Knowers Ark Campaign. The three divisions are in charge of C. J. Alpaugh, the Animals; J. P. Bath, the Birds; J. B. Fullerton, the Fish. Each division comprises ten teams of two members. It is hoped that the membership will be doubled during the campaign. The present enrollment is: men 359; boys, 137; women, 32; girls, 66; total 594.

After a recess of three months, The First Society of Spiritualists held their opening services Sunday at the Woman's club rooms. The program included special music by Miss Maybelle F. Taft, pianist; Raymond Osterhoudt, violin and Mrs. R. G. Remington, soloist. The new organized choir sang for the first time, this proving a feature. During the services a large portrait of Mary S. Vanderbilt was presented the society by Miss Bertha G. Weeks, in memory of Mrs. Charles Fenton. The portrait will be prized as Mrs. Vanderbilt had many friends in Willimantic, made on her visits to this city.

Miss Irene Jolie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jolie, of 11 Temple street and Donat Lussier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Lussier of 49 Ash street were united in marriage Monday morning at St. Mary's church by Rev. J. J. Papillon, the pastor, who also was celebrant of the nuptial high mass. Florimond Jolie, brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Lena Lussier, sister of the groom, was the bridesmaid.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine. She wore a veil and her shower bouquet was of white roses with sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore gowder blue crepe de chine with bleu hat and her bouquet was of pink roses. Following the church ceremony, a breakfast was served at the home of the bride, 35 relatives and friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Lussier left on a wedding trip during the afternoon and will be at home to their friends after October 13, at 27 Temple street. On their return Saturday evening they will be tendered a reception at Central Labor Union hall. Both are well known here, the bride having been in the employ of the Holland Manufacturing company and the groom employed by McComber and Lussier.

About one hundred friends of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Oden, of Lebanon, gathered at their home Sunday to join them in celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary. A dinner was served and Mr. and Mrs. Oden were presented useful gifts in silver, also a sum of money.

Charles Rosebrooks of Storrs was tendered a dinner in honor of his 80th birthday, at his home, Monday. There were 19 guests, among them his two brothers and two sisters, whose ages range from 77 to 85 and a sister-in-law who is 85. The splendid dinner included the customary birthday cake. Out of town guests were Mrs. Louise Smith and Mrs. Augusta Larned from Massachusetts, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rosebrooks and George Rosebrooks of this city.

Presented in police court Monday morning on charge of intoxication, James Friery of Putnam and Henry Brown of West Willington had no defense to offer. The latter, who according to his own testimony had never been arrested previously, was fined $10 and costs. Friery was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail at Brooklyn. The arrests were made at 9.30 o'clock Saturday night, after a complaint had been made to the police.

Mrs. Nettie Bi Goff, mother of Mrs. Floyd Willett entertained in honor of her birthday Sunday. During the day relatives and friends visited her, coming from Peekskill, N. Y., East Lyme, Hartford, Manchester and Coventry.

Mrs. E. Lawrence of 58 Center street celebrated her birthday Saturday. During the evening a party was enjoyed and lunch was served to relatives and friends who had called to tender their congratulations.

It was this property that the town of Norwich has under consideration as a possible site for the proposed new Norwich Town school.

Broadway Theater

Never before was there such a stupendous program ever presented in any local theater as the show offered at the Broadway theater the first half of this week.

We had a feeling last night as we sat watching Monsieur Beaucaire on the screen at the Broadway theater, that we were not looking at a screen production but that in some magic fashion we were back in the 18th century, a silent spectator in the glittering court of that dissolute monach, Louis, XV of France. From which you may gather that the vehicle, which marks Rudolph Valentino's return to the screen, is something more than a spectacular, romantic, costume-drama. It is a living, breathing document, vivid, historically accurate and fascinating.

Beaucaire is in every sense of the word an ideal vehicle for Valentino's return to the screen.

The Keith vaudeville also struck a responsive chord with the capacity audience.

Paul Remos and his Wonder Midgets have a surprise in store for all; Marty White, the singing humoresque scored highly; Happy Bush and Ethel Joy closed the program with Moments of Melody. We heartily recommend this program.

Connecticut College Concert

The series of concerts which Connecticut college is bringing to New London this fall and winter assures the public in this vicinity another group of rare musical treats fully up to the standard of those offered in the first series four years ago and maintained through the past three years. In sponsoring such an undertaking, the college has made a splendid contribution to the life of the community. The course is becoming an institution and the concerts are eagerly looked forward to by music lovers from all the surrounding towns.

The series will open October 20, with the coming again of, it almost seems pertinent to say, our own New York Philharmonic orchestra, 103 musicians with Mr. Van Hoogstraten conducting. So well acquainted with the glorious playing of the organization has the public become, it is unnecessary to extol it here. For this concert, the committee has engaged a soloist to appear with the orchestra, Mme. Elly Ney will play the Brahms' Concerto No. 2, for piano and orchestra. In any circumstances a great pianiste, Mme Ney is at her best with her husband conducting.

An older generation will remember Joseph Hofmann who as a young pianist winning his spurs, was introduced to New London by Mr. George Brown. When he comes again November 18, we shall have the man and his art grown mature. Today he is a giant in the musical world, the master pianist in his class.

Rosa Ponselle, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., will give the third concert January 22. It almost bewilders one to view the rise of this young singer rapidly approaching the zenith of her career. Born in Meriden, Conn., she has in a comparatively short time reached the very top of her profession. After an appearance in Hartford last season, The Times of that city said she was the central figure in the greatest ovation tendered to a singer in Hartford for many a day.

The fourth and last of the series February 9, will introduce Pablo Casals, the greatest of living violoncellists. There will probably not be another opportunity of hearing Casals again in the near future because after this tour of America he expects to go to Spain where he is the conductor of the Barcelona Symphony orchestra.

Tickets for the course are on sale now and may be obtained up to and including October 20th. It is advisable, however, to secure them prior to the public sale which begins October 14th. Order blanks may be had at Starr Brothers, or by application to Gerard E. Jensen at the college.

Breed Theater

That is one of the many unusual situations to be found in The Woman on the Jury, a First National production which closes its engagement at the Breed theater tonight. And the romance of the bride and bridegroom was nearly wrecked by the experience.

Sylvia Breamer, the featured member of the cast, and Frank Mayo play the roles of the Newlyweds. Just as they are about to start off on their wedding trip they are served with subpoenas to appear and serve on the jury which is to try a young girl for murdering her betrayer. The bridegroom does not relish having his honeymoon interrupted in this fashion, but his young wife, considering it a lark and eager to avail her self of her "woman's rights," induces him to yield.

Not until after she had been sworn in did the young bride learn the name of the plain man, and she nearly swooned at the news, for he had been responsible for a dark secret in her own life. Then follows a startling denouement which for powerful intensity has never been equalled on the screen.

Harry O. Hoyt directed the picture, which is based on the successful stage play by Bernard K. Burns, and the cast includes such favorites as Henry B. Wathall, Leo Cody, Bessie Love, Mary Carr, Hobart Bosworth, Myrtle Stedman, Roy Stewart, Ford Sterling and Stanton Heck.

Palace Theater

Beau Brummel, greatest beau of all times, lives again in the impersonation of Beau Brummel by John Barrymore in the play of that name which is now being shown at the Palace theater. In this screen version of the Clyde Fitch play are shown the Beau's rise to popularity his intimacy with the Prince of Wales, the doings of the royal set in London, the supercilious, cynical but glittering court life of that day.

Supporting Barrymore in this Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen are Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers and others. It was directed by Harry Beaumont.

Because of the length of this stupendous film accomplishment, there will be only two showing's daily at 2 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.

DANIELSON

Citizens assembled at the business session of the annual town meeting Monday afternoon decided that they did not care to interfere with the slow but orderly processes being followed in the effort of the town to have a row of shade trees along Reynolds street, at Davis park, removed, and also that a majority of those present, and voting, which many did not do, thought it best not to appropriate more than $1,000 to pay non-resident auditors to audit the books of all the officials of the town of Killingly. By vote, action on both the tree and audit proposals were indefinitely postponed. The meeting unanimously voted to accept the selectmen's layout of a new thoroughfare to run back 632 feet from Broad street in an easterly direction at a point between properties owned by Mrs. Agnes H. Paine and E. B. Wilbur. The motion that was passed incorporated a clause providing that the new street shall be known as L'Homme street, named in honor of Leo J. L'Homme, who gave his life for his country while fighting with the American froces overseas during the World war, and for whom the local post of the American Legion is named. The meeting voted to accept the annual reports of the various town officials, as printed in the annual reports. Briefly, that was what the meeting accomplished before adjourning until the third Wednesday in March, 1925, when the annual budget will be presented for action, in accord with established custom, in addition to making the usual appropriations for Memorial and Armistice days, for a bed for the poor of the town who enter the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam and for school library books and equipment.

Of the appropriations made, $1,400 is to be used for musical instruction in Killingly's schools, $220 for Memorial day, of which sum Dayville will have $60, East Killingly $80 and Danielson $100, $175 for Armistice day, $500 for the free bed at the hospital and $115 for the school library fund.

The clause in the warning providing an appropriation of not more than $1,000 to meet the cost of auditing the accounts of the town by non-resident accountants was the subject of some debate, but action upon it was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 56 to 35. The first vote on this clause was of the yea and nay variety. The chair ruled that in his opinion the meeting had voted not to postpone. This ruling was doubted and on a standing vote the opposite result was shown.

C. D. Mowry of Dayville sponsored the audit proposition, and he received considerable support. James N. Tucker of East Killingly opposed it and pointed out that the meeting already had accepted the reports of its officials. After the vote had been taken Frank T. Preston town clerk and treasurer said he had filled those offices of the town for 28 years and that each year his accounts were carefully audited and a certificate so asserting given him by the auditors.

Thomas Bradford spoke for the proposal that the meeting pass a vote instructing the selectmen to lay curbing on a section of Reynolds street near Davis park within a period of 30 days, and pointed out that the curbing for the work has been on location for about a year.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, town counsel, explained at length to the meeting why the curbing had not been placed, pointing out that laying it would involve certain rights of jurisdiction between the town and state as to where it should be placed, as it is to border a trunk line highway, under exclusive control of the state. The history of the trees and curbing discussion was gone into intimately by Mr. Darbie. He expressed his opinion that Selectman John A. Gilbert, as tree warden, which office he holds, might order the trees cut down, but he could not remove the stumps without doing certain damage to the state trunk line highway and thereby coming into conflict with the state highway commissioner, on whose shoulders, it was to be gathered from all that was said, rests the responsibility for the non-removal of the trees and the delay in putting in the curbing, as the town has unanimously voted should be done. Having heard about the difficulties of the situation insofar as the town is concerned, the meeting voted to postpone indefinitely any action in the premises.

The matter of accepting L'Homme street met with only technical opposition. The proposal received the support before the meeting of E. B. Wilbur and Walter Anderson, the latter pointing out how Danielson must have new streets if it is not to smother its home building progress in desirable sections. Mr. Wilbur told the meeting of the handicaps of building homes on streets where water and gas mains will not be run by public service corporations because the streets have not been accepted by the town. Selectman Gilbert called the attention of the meeting to the legal requirements to be met in accepting a street, and the selectmen's layout was substituted for Mr. Wilbur's proposal, before the meeting in the form of a motion, and the matter was unanimously passed by the meeting.

The meeting, with provision for completing the work of counting the ballots and declaring the result, then adjourned until the third Wdenesday in March.

F. E. Bitgood was moderator of the meeting and Frank T. Preston clerk.

What gas, as furnished by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company in Danielson, is costing, will be the main subject of discussion at this (Tuesday) evening's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Attawaugan hotel. This announcement was made Monday afternoon by an official of the chamber, anxious to get out a fully representative attendance for the discussion of a very important matter to a great many people in Danielson, and to see what can be done about it.

That the matter is coming up for discussion is due, chamber members say, to repeated requests from individuals who feel they are incompetent as such to deal with a matter of public interest that the Chamber of Commerce give it careful consideration. Gas bills since the new high pressure system was connected up have been the subject of general comment. Tol night's meeting will give it a further airing.

Monday morning the funeral of Dennis Shea was held at his home in Daniel's Village, near Ballouville, with funeral services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Greeneville. The bearers were George Bousquet, Frank Wilcox, Cornelius Sullivan, Joseph Twomey, Seraphim Beaudry and John Murray. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements. Mr. Shea died at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, last Friday of injuries received in an automobile accident on the Chepachet road.

Seven more sheep have been killed by dogs at the George A. Williams sheep park near Dayville. The first killing of sheep in the Williams flock occurred during the past month, and in the meantime an appraisal has been made with a view to compensating Mr. Williams for the loss he sustained.

In the latest killing and its aftermath a dog owned in Dayville has been rounded up that is held responsible for at least some of the damage done. More developments in the case may be looked for within the next few days.

John A. Gilbert has a contract from the state for the building of a short stretch of gravel highway leading from Attawaugan crossing, on the easterly side of the tracks of the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad about 100 yards to the highway that runs to Putnam via the upper Attawaugan crossing and the Putnam Country club.

The significance of this is that another dread grade crossing is to be eliminated for all time. This project was forecasted in this column months ago. The two crossings that figure in the subject herein discussed are close together, probably not more than 300 or 400 feet apart. The lower Attawaugan crossing, protected by a modern electrical equipment with glaring red lights showing at night on the approach of a train, will remain in use. The upper crossing will be fenced off. The little stretch of new gravel highway that Mr. Gilbert has the contract to build will parallel the railroad tracks on their easterly side. A new rounding corner will be put in to make the swing easy toward the new stretch of road leading to the highway that will be cut off by fences over the present course of approach. Travelers over the highway will lose, at the most, no more than a few seconds in traversing present available routes in which the crossings figure. The elimination of one unprotected grade crossing will be well worth that.

Stewart Williams, well known here, and a graduate of Plainfield High school the past June, is sufferer from the first major football accident of the season in this territory. Williams, 19,

PUTNAM

The sum of $83,325 was appropriated at the annual town meeting held Monday afternoon, with less than 15 citizens voting in the meeting. The increases this year are $4,500 for the schools, $200 additional for the Day Kimball hospital and an appropriation of $750 for the Red Cross, the first time such an appropriation has been made. The appropriations as voted were:

For the repairs of highways, $5,000; for the repairs of bridges, $1,000; for public schools, $73,500; for the observance of Memorial Day, $300; for the observance of Armistice Day, $175; for the Red Cross, $750; for the Day Kimball hospital, $1200; for woman's board of Day Kimball hospital, $100.

It was stated by Attorney Archibald Macdonald, Jr., who made the motion to increase the appropriation for the Day Kimball hospital, that he did so because trust funds of the hospital are tied up in the First National Bank and the hospital is sorely in need of funds to take care of current expenses.

On motion of Attorney Charles L. Torrey it was voted that it was the sense of the meeting that the board of assessors be instructed not to help citizens in making out their lists of taxable property. Mr. Torrey said that it was a work that the board was not paid to do and it had become a burden on them. He said that the members of the board had to spend most of their time helping citizens make out their lists, time that the town paid them to assess property. If the time was given to making assessment of property Attorney Torrey said that the result would be a more equitable assessment in Putnam.

The matter of laying a tax to defray the expenses of the town was continued until the adjourned meeting the second Monday in March. The selectmen were authorized to borrow money necessary to meet expenses of the town until the next town meeting.

There will be no session of the superior court today (Tuesday). Two cases were assigned for trial by Judge Mathie but in the first, an appeal from the probate court of Eastford, the chief witness for the appellee was found to be in Europe. In the case of Peter LaMountaine, Admr., vs. Frank W. Russell, a settlement was reached. While the amount was not made public it is understood to have been nominal.

The suit against Russell was the outgrowth of a death of a child of the plaintiff, a little girl, nine years old, who was struck by an automobile driven by Russell while passing through the town of Oxford Mass. Russell was arrested following the accident, but it was found that there was no criminal negligence and he was discharged.

Louis Batty has finished the enumeration of children in the town of school age. The total is 1899. Last year's total was 1973. The difference of 74, allowing the usual statistical number of five to a family, denotes that there are 15 less families in the town than a year ago. The decrease in the enumeration is easily accounted for. During the past year several Putnam mills have shut down and there has been little or no employment in the cotton textile industry. Families have removed to other places to obtain work. A decrease was expected, if anything larger than appears from the present enumeration.

Attorney Walter H. Gilpatric of New York was the week-end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gilpatric.

According to a report received by the police, Joseph LaRose, an aged man, whose home is on Main street, was hit by an automobile driven by Graham Bell of the Quadic village district of the town of Thompson, on Sunday afternoon. The accident happened near the man's home where he was taken following the accident and was attended by a doctor. It was found that he had received a bad scalp laceration and was somewhat shaken up. LaRose was waiting for a trolley car and, as reported to the police, stepped off the sidewalk as the car approached, not seeing the approaching automobile. While the cut is a bad one the man's condition is not considered serious.

E. Emily Tourtellotte, wife of Major Jerome Tourtellotte, is dead at her home on Putnam Heights, following a shock. She had been in poor health for some time and the end was not wholly unexpected although coming suddenly, Sunday. Mrs. Tourtellotte was born in North Adams, Mass., March 12, 1848, daughter of Edward and Sarah Booth Husband. The family moved to Cranston where she married Maj. Tourtellotte November 18, 1874. Had Mrs. Tourtellotte lived they would have observed their golden wedding anniversary the 18th of next month.

Following their marriage Major and Mrs. Tourtellotte came to Putnam where they have since resided, Major Tourtellotte for years being treasurer of the Putnam Savings bank. Mrs. Tourtellotte was one of the oldest communicants of St. Philip's Episcopal church and was for years an active worker in the church and parish. She was also active in the Woman's Relief Corps of which she had long been a member.

Besides her husband Mrs. Tourtellotte leaves three sons, Leroy and Harry of Limona, Fla., and Arthur Tourtellotte of Putnam Heights; also two grandchildren, Jerome and A. Raymond Tourtellotte, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tourtellotte, living on the homestead.

If a young north end lad can instill the same amount of fear into the opponents he hopes to meet some day in the squared circle, as he climbs to fame in the land of swat as he did into the dwellers of the rural sections of the town on Putnam Heights recently, his ambition will be realized.

People on Putnam Heights became alarmed at the peculiar actions of a young man and notified the police. The message came over the wire to the basement of the municipal building, the sanctum of Captain William Jarvis and his force of bluecoats, that up on the Heights the neighborhood was becoming little less than terrorized by the antics of a stranger. He was seen on the highway going through antics never seen before and absolutely beyond understanding. Any young man so afflicted needed attention and possible confinement. Doors were locked and all precautions were taken to see that no homes on the Heights were invaded by the peculiarly acting chap and fowling pieces reposed handy by. Would the police come to the rescue? Yes, the police would.

Captain Jarvis and a member of his force in an automobile broke the speed laws in climbing the long hill to the Heights. There they saw just what had alarmed the neighborhood. A young man, hands bandaged, was hopping and skipping along the road, swinging his arms, makin what appeared to be gestures, but without a sound from his parted lips.

The automobile bore down on the queer acting chap and the police were ready for what might be. But as the police car got close to the youngster, who was oblivious to the stir he was creating on the peaceful hillside, Captain Jarvis identified the boy as a youngster with fistic aspiration.

Some day the lad hopes to have a training camp, followers, moving picture cameras pointed at him and a crowd to tag him about at a dollar or more a tag. He will then be heralded and known and his antics will not inspire fear, except in the hearts of his antagonist. But this was not known to the dwellers on the Heights. They had never heard of shadow boxing nor seen a champion nor even an embryo champion in training. They had, for the first time, watched a fistic aspirant at work. But they are evidence of how a proper training looks to the unitiated. The boy was doing some roadwork and at the same time stopping now and then and going through a bit of shadow boxing. That was all. When Captain Jarvis explained matters to the scattered populace there were those who had enough sense of humor to raise a laugh.

Fans have gathered in large numbers at the railroad station to hear the report of the world series day by day. From outward indications the fans hope to see Washington win the world's championship.

Three cases of intoxication were disposed of in the city court Monday morning. All three defendants went to jail, two of them because they could not pay fines of $10 and costs.

Monday was mid-summer weatherwise, as the thermometers in the business section were showing well over seventy degrees.

Captain John J. McGarry states that the Headquarters company of the 43rd division is at full maintenance strength, 65 m— and that the interest in drill continues excellent.

WITH HEAVY VOTE POLLED REPUBLICANS WIN OUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Oct. 6.—One of the biggest votes ever polled in a town election the republicans elected its entire ticket Monday. The only surprise after the votes were counted was to find that the democrats had staged a little contest of their own and elected Edward Girard, selectman, in place of Alfred Bonneville, who has held the office for the past three or four years. Girard received 603 votes to Bonneville's 575. The total vote was 1660—of these 30 was thrown out. There were 790 straight republican votes and 405 straight democratic ballots. The result of the ballot was as follows:

Assessor: Arthur Tourtellotte, r, 975; Alphonse Beausolell, d, 613.

"I know George and Alice born need Cod Liver Oil—and need it badly as all thin, puny, run down kids do. But it gives me the most horrible shivers just to think of them taking the horrible stuff."

"Instead of the nasty tasting, vile smelling oil itself why don't you be up to date and give them McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets? It's the new way to take Cod Liver Oil—they are as easy to take as candy—won't upset their stomachs and surely do help help sick, ailing people to get well again."

"Have pity on the poor kids, mother, and take my advice—you can get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets at Lee & Osgood Co. or any real drug store—and 60 tablets cost only 60 cents. Be sure and get McCoy's, mother—everyone says they do help the sick kiddies to grow strong and robust."

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

In this week when fire prevention is being urged before the nation for the greater protection of life and property, it should be realized that it is not a movement from which only a few are expected to benefit. On the other hand there is a cooperation which every one should give for the common good. There is no more commendable object than saving life. On every hand there are displayed many reasons for preventing waste. When this can be accomplished through the exercise of that degree of care which everyone should be anxious to render the little effort that is required should be forthcoming.

When it is realized that the great majority of fires is due to carelessness, with which in many instances there can be included criminal carelessness, it is time to appreciate the fact that matches and mice should not be allowed to mix, that kerosene should not be used for quickening fires, that firebrands from smoking materials should not be tossed into rubbish, wastebaskets or the leaves by the roadside, that matches should not be employed in finding gas leaks, or exploring closets, that chimneys should be inspected and any defectiveness removed, that explosives should be kept where they can do no harm, and that consideration should be given to these obvious things before something happens rather than afterward.

The losses from fire in this country are tremendous. Carelessness would seem to be one of our chief characteristics if we compare our losses with those of European countries. Where it will go to if it remains unchecked no one can say. Fires of all kinds are independent of preventive measures. The daily spectacle of the great American ashpile is sufficient to bring the people of this country to a realization of their responsibilities in this respect their duty to themselves as well as others. If Fire Prevention week can serve to stimulate a realization of that responsibility it will serve an excellent purpose.

GASOLINE PRICES.

Fewer things than gasoline have their ups and downs, but just at the present time interest is centered in the reduced price of that fuel. No one is refusing to buy it because it is cheaper. Rather is it the fact that there is a general desire to buy at the lowest figure, while the chief query is as to how long it will be before the price moves in the other direction.

It was not so long ago that we were being told that there was a limit to the amount of gasoline, that exhaustion of the supply was near and that all wastes should be limited. The idea of eliminating wastes is unquestionably an excellent one. It is a good idea to do wherever it is found, but while such efforts have been put into operation it is a fact that improved methods of making gasoline has resulted, so that where there were obtained about 120,000 gallons of gasoline from a million gallons of crude oil it is now possible to get about 200,000 gallons. This means a decided improvement from the production standpoint and accounts for the fact that there is today a large surplus of gasoline even though there has been an increase of 20 per cent in automobile registrations during the past half of the year.

Because the state commission on the necessaries of life had been investigating the gasoline prices in Massachusetts and had rendered a report attacking them, the feeling prevailed in that state that it was responsible for the reduction, both coming as they did on the same day, as if any investigation had its influence upon the lowering of the price along the entire Atlantic seaboard and in the south it was unquestionably that which is underway by the department of justice which Attorney General Stone says will be vigorously prosecuted.

The statement concerning the oil situation to the effect that the enormous accumulation of oil in storage ought to be reflected in the market unquestionably hits the nail on the head. This, with the lowered cost of production and the decrease in the consumption as the seasons change, apparently explains the drop in the price.

IN A GOOD CAUSE.

Money isn't health and it isn't always possible for it to acquire health, but if the hopes of those who are promoting the undertaking are realized it can be made to go much toward increasing the average span of human life.

Two million dollars are to be spent in New York city as an experiment in community health work. This money is to be provided by the Millbank Memorial fund which was established a score of years ago by a wealthy woman for the purpose of improving "the physical, mental and moral condition of humanity and generally to advance charitable and benevolent objects."

Those who have charge of this fund have been impressed by the contention of health authorities that within the next half century the average human life will be extended 20 years, and they have decided to employ two millions of the fund for the purpose of determining whether it can be done. There has been a steady, even though slow, progress in that direction. Through the fights that are being waged against disease, the efforts for better health conditions in homes and community, the constant educational efforts which are being put forth regarding disease, its treatment and prevention, the expectation for an increase in the average life of human beings is not unreasonable.

Apparently the administrators of the fund feel that if this extension is possible the quicker it can be determined and the benefit - it gained the better. It is at least ready to spend the money to be convinced, and it is an undertaking that means much to humanity. The educational benefit of the campaign against illness and malnutrition should be of great value. There is no chance that the people who will be reached by the campaign, or those who will get a certain benefit from a study of it, will learn any too much in regard to sanitation, causes of diseases and their treatment. It is entirely possible that the average span of life will not be increased 20 years within the next 50, but if it is extended 15 years, 10 years or even five through such an effort or in combinations with other efforts, it will be money well spent.

USING SILVER DOLLARS.

There are economic reasons for asking the people to resume the use of silver dollars. The government now has a large supply of such coins while it needs some time to build up a sufficient reserve of the one and two dollar bills, which has been seriously drawn upon in the last few years. If there can be an increase in the circulation of the silver dollars so that at least $30,000,000 more can be employed instead of paper money it will result in a saving of more than three-quarters of a million yearly, while through the lengthening of the life of a dollar bill by two months there could be a further saving of a million and two-thirds.

Just how much such savings appeal to the people of the country, of how willing they are to aid in it will be disclosed by the manner in which silver dollars are accepted in place of paper dollars and passed along without a frown.

Secretary Mellon of the treasury department is well aware of the preference for the paper money, even though the absorption of $30,000,000 in silver dollars in circulation would not mean the carrying around of very many cartwheels for each individual. He appreciates the fact that silver dollars cannot be forced upon the people and does not intend any such action. It is his belief, however, that "If a proper appeal is made, however, and the appeal is backed by logic and reason the American public can be counted upon to cooperate with the government in its efforts to supply the currency requirements of the country."

Where logic and reason are used in making an appeal there is ground for expecting a sane response, and it is such an appeal which the secretary makes. If all cooperation asked involved no greater effort than that called for in regard to the use of silver dollars there would be small ground for resistance.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

Some months ago when the labor ministry took hold of the affairs of the British government it was evident that it was a minority ministry. It was the first time it had obtained control and there were various predictions as to the time it would continue to hold the reins. These varied all the way from three months up. A combination of the conservatives and the liberals could have ended the control at most any time, but that would have required such compromise as could result in no permanency.

The outcome is that Premier MacDonald is still in office but threatened with defeat this week and a general British election for next month. There is opposition to the manner in which the Irish boundary bill has been pushed through, and there is an unwillingness to accept the MacDonald ideas concerning Russia, especially his record concerning Russia and the treaty action with the soviets. Concerning the adjustment of the European situation there is also some feeling.

It has always been the fact that the labor government remained in control only through the sanction of the other two parties. They have given it a chance because they could not agree. Whether there is any better prospect that any of the parties could get a majority in the next house of commons rests with the coming election. There is no reason to expect that the three-cornered situation will change greatly. If it doesn't it will mean the continuation of a coalition government and that means quite as much uncertainty for the future as there has been through this year thus far.

THE GOOD EXAMPLE

"Before a man boasts about what he used to do," declared the out-of-town customer, "it behooves him to destroy all the records of his dark and dismal past."

"Help yourself to a cigar and cheer up," directed Wilkinson. "What on earth have they dug up to disgrace you? If my life depended on it I don't think I could rake up a thing against you as I knew you in those far-off days. We didn't even steal apples, if I remember rightly."

"No, nobody grew apples around our neighborhood," agreed the out-of-town customer with a laugh. "You see, what has happened is that my oldest boy has gone away to a prep school and I've had to give him a few suggestions regarding his conduct."

"Naturally," said Wilkinson. "And I suppose somebody in the school has been telling him what a case you were when you were there. That it?"

"I didn't go to that school," said the out-of-town customer, "so you're wrong for once. No, the first thing I called him down for was his not acknowledging money when I sent it to him, and reporting what he needed. It has been very inconvenient not knowing whether a check reached him or not, you know."

"I should take it for granted that he got the money," said Wilkinson. "Realizing mighty well that if he had not he'd be wiring for some in a big rush."

"That's all very well for me," said the out-of-town customer, "but for the boy's own good he ought to be made to tell of its receipt and what he used it for. I don't intend to tie him down to reporting what he spends every cent for, but he ought to give me some idea about it. I've been telling him all that for all these months and he has as patiently explained that he would remember next time—and then he up and forgets."

"I can see that you're a good disciplinarian," laughed Wilkinson. "I'd like to hear you giving one of these talks, it must be rich!"

"Not any more!" cried the out-of-town customer with a wave of his hand. "Not unless I'm might sure of myself first. When he was home for the spring vacation his mother told him he could have some books that were up in the attic and while he was hunting them up he came across a bunch of letters my father wrote me when I was at college. My wife let him read them and he came hustling to meet me that evening with a handful of them, from each of which he read me a sentence—a reproof from my father in every single letter because I never acknowledged the checks he sent and he had no idea what I was spending."

"Good joke on you!" chuckled Wilkinson. "The kid had the laugh on you that time!"

"Yes, and that wasn't all, either," sighed the out-of-town customer. "But that was my wife's fault that time."

"I am certainly surprised," said Wilkinson. "Your wife looks as though she had always been as good an example as you seem not to have been. What on earth has she been up to?"

"She's got some aunts," said the out-of-town customer, "and she likes to run down east to see them once in a while, and I don't wonder. I like 'em myself and the kids have always been crazy about them from the days when they used to hand out cookies to them between meals. They're that sort, you know, and it's no wonder that my boy likes to go to their house for the week-ends, since they live near the town where his school is. It links him up with the past in a sort of nice way—if only they'd use their common pense when it comes to talking about the old times with him."

"There's nothing like in-laws to give you away," laughed Wilkinson. "Especially if you have some who used to know you when you were a kid."

"They knew me as a baby," declared the out-of-town customer. "And the last time my boy was there they showed him pictures of me all the way up to the present day."

"Good idea!" said Wilkinson. "And it must have been interesting to the young man."

"It was interesting all right," said the out-of-town customer, dryly. "He begged some of them from them and brought them home to show me."

"You must have been entertained," said Wilkinson. "There's nothing funnier than your own old photograph."

"Well," said the out-of-town customer, "my pictures made the kid laugh, but it wasn't that they were so funny. It was because his mother and I have been talking to him all his life about wearing his hat tipped crooked, telling him that only bums wore hats set that way—and every single one of those blame pictures of mine had the hat placed at the objectionable angle!" —Exchange.

Cox Just Kept Driving Ahead

As a boy on his father's farm near Jacksonburg, Ohio, James M. Cox was considered no brighter than the other farmer lads. Attending the country school, he helped on the farm and as janitor for the school at 35 cents a week and for the church at $1 a month, he was rated as just an ordinary builder of fires.

At 15 he went to Middletown to live with his sister, while attending school. Two years later he qualified for a teacher's certificate. Although handicapped by his youth he obtained a position and taught near Middletown at night, also helping in his brother's weekly newspaper office on Saturdays.

After three years of the combined duties, he spent all his time as general helper on the newspaper. Covering a railroad wreck for the Cincinnati Enquirer, Cox tied up the only telegraph wire, sent a good story and the Enquirer scored a "beat". Soon afterward he was in Cincinnati reporting railroad news and helping on the telegraph desk for the Enquirer.

When Paul J. Sorg, the tobacco king, was head of the board of education in Middletown, he had observed Cox's ability to hustle, and when elected congressman he took Cox to Washington as his private secretary.

Two years later Cox borrowed money from Sorg interested Dayton citizens, and at 28 bought the dying Dayton News. Then came a strenuous effort. Often he had to borrow to meet the payroll. He fought the "big interests" and was sued for libel, but at the end of 15 years was sole owner and had a newspaper property in Springfield.

When nominated for Congress he was little known and he had the enmity of the "powers," but was elected and re-elected. Chosen governor in 1912 he sponsored many effective measures, but went down to defeat when he tried for re-election in 1914. Two years later he again was governor and served two terms. In 1920 he received the nomination for president of the United States, and made a strenuous campaign but was defeated.

Cox at 54 is a millionaire; he has recently added two newspapers to his chain and he had a prominent part in the last democratic national convention.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Southern Tariff Association which meets at New Orleans today for its fourth annual session has as its president John H. Kirby, a resident of Houston and for a number of years a prominent factor in every organized effort for the commercial and industrial development of the south and southwest. Mr. Kirby is known as one of the great American lumber kings. Since 1886 he has owned and developed huge tracts of timber in Texas, as well as administered investments of northern capitalists in the same kind of property. The corporation which he largely owns and wholly manages turns out about 350,000,000 feet of lumber a year, and owns more than 10,000,000,000 feet of standing timber. Mr. Kirby is a Texan born and educated, and a lawyer by calling, who was soon drawn away from lawbooks and clients to lumbering. During the war his services were enlisted by the Federal government to aid the Emergency Fleet Corporation in the production, storage, and distribution of lumber.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Keeping Records

One of the most successful business men of our day recently said: "Early in life, when a poor boy, I formed the habit of jotting down a record of every penny I spent. This taught me the value of system and frugality. I soon found myself able to save a little money. As I grew I developed habits of general thrift from this simple beginning, and, with a small amount of capital thus available when I reached the age of maturity, I was able to take advantage of opportunities that led to subsequent success."

While it may seem a waste of time to laboriously keep a record of every cent one spends it is a fact that many of our successful men hold themselves to this rigid discipline.

Every business concern keeps a strict account of every penny received and spent, and a business which transacted its affairs in any other manner would be most incapably managed. The same principle should hold true in the case of the individual.

Carelessness in small things lead to carelessness in larger affairs and likewise the careful handling of small amounts of money fits one for the greater and larger responsibilities of life.

The value of budget keeping is especially valuable to the young for the habit thus formed early in life is quite apt to be carried along as a permanent routine.

If you are endeavoring to get ahead in the world and be prepared for the rainy days that come into all lives, adopt first of all the rule of keeping an accurate daily record of your expenses. You will find that by the adoption of a budget system your success in thrift will be made doubly easy and you will soon be surprised at the difference these systematic practices make in the amount of your savings.

A few pennies or a few dollars wasted here and there do not seem to amount to much at the time they are spent, but when you see the record of these extravagances in cold figures they assume their true proportions and significance. Make your thrift practices conform to a concise, definite system.—American Society for Thrift.

By DAVID CORY

About the Hobo Birds

"Lazy is the Cowbird,
Cruel is her heart,
She never builds a cosy nest,
Nor play a mother's part."

sang motherly Mrs. Cow as I finished the last story. But wasn't it lucky I heard her just in time to jot down the pretty verse in a piece of paper.

"Dear, dear, dearest me," sighed Little Jack Rabbit, "Mother takes good care of me. I'm glad I wasn't born a Cowbird boy. Oh, yes. I'm so glad I could say 'Hip, hip, hip hurray!'"

"Now you just listen to me for a minute or three," went on Mrs. Cow,

"and when I've finished you'll know as much as I do about these hobo birds. In the first place, they neither mate nor build nests. Instead this stony-hearted Mrs. Cowbird sneaks into the nest of some smaller bird and lays an egg. Then away she flies, leaving the poor bird mother to bring up a foundling."

Just then across the Sunny Meadow and into the woods flew a bird about eight inches in length dressed in a grayish brown feather gown, the under part of which was of a lighter color.

"There goes Mrs. Cowbird," exclaimed the motherly old cow, with an angry toss of her head. "Most likely she is looking right now for a nest in which to lay an egg. Oh, how I dispise her!"

"I thought all birds built nests," said the bunny boy. "I've watched Bobbie Redvest and Happy Bluebird in the springtime. Why, even Henny Jenny, the pretty little hen at the Big Farm Yard, has a nest in which to lay her eggs. She didn't build it all herself. The kind Farmer gave her a little box filled with hay, pushing it this way and that way with her feet, and then pressing it down with her body, until it was as cosy as cosy could be."

"Well, I can't understand Mrs. Cowbird at all," mused Mrs. Cow, thoughtfully chewing her cud, with a swish of her tail now and then, and sometimes oftener to sweep off a bothersome fly. "Of course there are some birds like the Black-billed Cuckoo, who make poor nests,—twigs carelessly thrown together, but most of the birds take great care to build comfortable, well-hidden homes for themselves. Why just remember that the Tailor Bird sews the edges of a large growing leaf around her nest and Mrs. Meadowlark arches hers over with grass. As for Mrs. Hummingbird, she covers her nest so carefully with little pieces of lichen, fastened with spider web instead of glue, that one can hardly tell it apart from the limb to which it is saddled."

Goodness me, little reader. Mrs. Cow knows a thing or two, does she not? And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. E. Huntington Saunders

News was received in Norwich Monday of the sudden death at Plainfield, N. J., Saturday of Anna Maitland, widow of Rev. Erastus Huntington Saunders. Mrs. Saunders, who was the daughter of a prominent New York banker, married Rev. E. H. Saunders shortly after his ordination at Trinity Episcopal Church, in Norwich. The young clergyman's mother was a member of the Norwich Huntington family, but was a resident of New London.

For his first parish Rev. Mr. Saunders was located for a time at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Windham. Afterwards he was in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and when his health began to fail he served as rector of a church in the Catskills. He is buried in Cedar Grove Cemetery, New London.

Mrs. Saunders boarded for several years in Norwich, later taking an apartment in New London, where she remained until going to Plainfield, N. J., to live near friends. She had traveled abroad, had rare artistic tastes and skill and was of great capability in many lines. She was a member of the Huntington Family Association and her last visit to Norwich was to attend the family reunion.

Private funeral services were held at Plainfield and presumably her burial will be in New London.

August Juneau, Sr.

August Juneau, Sr., 60, died suddenly Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, No. 27 Fifth street. He was born in Canada, April 29, 1864, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Euezbe Juneau. He came to this country a number of years ago and in June, 1884, was united in marriage with Miss Virginia LaChappelle. His wife survives him with three sons, August, Jr., of Bristol, Ovila of Los Angeles, Cal., and Arthur Juneau of this city. There are four daughters, Mrs. Marilda Mercier, Plainfield; Mrs. Alvina Fitzgerald, Hartford; Mrs. Edith Dexter, Honolulu; Mrs. Dora Gromko, this city. He leaves his parents in Canada and several grandchildren.

Mr. Juneau resided in Greeneville during most of his residence in this city. He was employed at the plant of the United States Finishing Co., in Greeneville. He was a member of the Foresters of America, the St. Jean Baptiste society and of St. Mary's parish.

FUNERALS

Mrs. F. Ralph Wilson

The funeral of Mrs. F. Ralph Wilson was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Bates, Long Society, Preston. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there were many beautiful floral offerings.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, conducted the service. The Christian's Good Night and Some Day We'll Understand were sung by Mrs. William Crowe. The bearers were William Miller, John Hollowell, Calvin Richardson and Francis Wilber and burial took place in Maplewood cemetery. Rev. Mr. Ricketts conducted a committal service at the grave.

Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Frank Reynolds

Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Frank G. Reynolds was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. John I. Ross, Leffingwell, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. There were many beautiful flowers.

The service was conducted by Rev. William B. Oakley, pastor of the Leffingwell Baptist church and the bearers were Albert and Harry Reynolds, brothers-in-law, Ira Clifford, nephew, and Isaac G. Geer, a cousin. Burial took place in Yantic cemetery and the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Oakley.

Undertaker C. A. Gager, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

WEST SIDE FORUM EXCITES MUCH INTEREST

A great deal of interest has been shown on the West Side in the first regular meeting of the West Side Community association, Tuesday evening at 7.30, at Elizabeth street school.

One of the interesting features of the gathering will be a political forum on the issue of the presidential campaign. A speaker from the republican and democratic committee, also one from the La Follette followers, will present the claims of Coolidge, Davis and La Follette for support.

At this meeting a questionnaire on needed improvements for the West Side will be placed in the hands of people of the community. Some of the improvements being agitated are better sidewalks, street grading, athletic field, removal of unsightly buildings and fences, etc.

Chief Stanton of the fire department will give a talk on fire prevention.

The regular business meeting will preside the speaking program.

FOOTE'S POTATO YIELD SHOWS 560 BUSHELS

A yield that will be the true index of the potato crop from the field of Irving Foote on Preston Plains was disclosed in the demonstration Saturday when a row in the center of the field was dug after the test had been made of two rows of sprayed and unsprayed plants on the edge of the field.

The yield on this digging showed 560 bushels to the acre, which makes Mr. Foote's crop show a record that is hard to touch. He is expecting a crop of 10,000 bushels altogether from this farm and another farm where he is raising potatoes.

TOWN MEETING VOTES APPROPRIATIONS, DEFEATS STANDARD TIME FOR SCHOOLS

Although he put up a good fight in behalf of a petition directing the town school committee to operate the public schools on standard time during the coming school year with 9 a. m. as the morning opening hour, G. Warren Davis, the well known standard time leader and advocate, lost out once again Monday night at the annual town meeting when action on the petition was indefinitely postponed in an overwhelming aye and nay vote. From what Chairman Henry H. Pettis said as the petition came before the meeting any action taken by the meeting on the petition would have had no binding effect on the school board anyway, this being the opinion of the [illegible]. But the petition went to debate, however, with Mr. Davis strongly urging 9 a. m. standard time as the opening hour of the town schools. He spoke for some 15 or 20 minutes and tackled the subject from all angles. Twice interrupted by coughing and shouts of "Question" he continued his remarks until he had had his say. He scored the town school board for its attitude toward the request of the standard timers that the schools open and close on standard time. Then at the close of his remarks H. H. [illegible] speaking briefly but to the point expressing a wish that he might "take a day off and debate" the matter with Mr. Davis, moved that the petition be indefinitely postponed. The motion, being undebatable, shut off any further arguments, and, by an overwhelming aye and nay vote the petition was indefinitely postponed.

Town Hall Filled.

All appropriations and petitions on the list, with the exception of two for which no resolutions were offered, were granted by the meeting which was attended by about 700 men and women. The seating capacity of the town hall was taxed to its utmost and a hundred or more voters were forced to stand at the rear of the hall. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock promptly by First Selectman William S. Murray.

"If there is no objection, I'll ask Mr. H. H. Pettis to preside over the meeting," said Selectman Murray. G. Warren Davis, "We not objecting to Mr. Pettis' selection for chairman, as he said, expressed the [illegible] that Selectman Murray act as chairman with the assistance of Judge Pettis as a referee. He made a motion to that effect, but the motion was lost and Judge Pettis took the chair. Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook read the long warning for the meeting after which the voters proceeded to get down to business.

The annual report of the board of selectmen, the reports of the town treasurer, the sinking fund committee, the town health officer, the town school committee and the trustees of the Otis library were all accepted. The matter of laying a tax went over to the adjourned meeting to be held next March.

Salaries.

A resolution fixing the salaries of the town officials for the coming year was adopted as follows: First selectman, $3,000; second and third selectmen, $200 each; town clerk, $200; town treasurer, $1,000; board of assessors, $1,200 each with $300 extra for the member who act as clerk of the board; secretary town school committee, $400; collector of taxes, three-quarters of 1 per cent of the amount of taxes collected.

Another resolution authorized the selectmen to borrow a sum not to exceed $325,000 at such times and in such amounts during the year as needed to defray the expenses of the town. The estimated expenses of the town as submitted by the selectmen were then approved, the appropriations being authorized item by item, as follows:

Almshouse	$10,000
Outside poor	6,000
Insane	12,000
Neglected and dependent children	5,000
Widows' pension	4,000
Highways (city of Norwich)	23000
Highways (town of Norwich)	30,000
Macadam repairs	3,000
Oiling roads	4,000
Bridges	5,000
Contingent	12,000
Interest	15,000
National Guard	5,000
Election expenses	8,500
Registry of vital statistics	2,000
Town clerk's office	1,600
Town property tax	9,000
Sinking fund	10,000
Tuberculosis	2,000
Probate court	500
Street lighting	5,500
State tax	36,000
County tax	15,000
Assessors' office	4,800
Chelsea Parade	900
Taftville Fire Engine Co.	1,000
Yantic Fire Engine Co.	500
	$224,700

The sum of $275,785.70 was appropriated for the support of the schools during the coming year, this being the amount asked for by the town school committee.

When the matter of the appropriation for the town's highways, listed above, came up for action, G. Warren Davis wanted to know what the increase in the amount was for. Chairman Pettis answered the question by saying that the money is needed to provide good highways which everyone wants. Another cause for the increase is due to the fact that of late there has been considerable building outside the districts and this means more expense for culverts, etc. The appropriation was unanimously voted.

Chairman Pettis explained that the increase in the amount asked for election expenses is because the selectmen hope to erect a small building on the grounds of the Greeneville school to be used as a voting place which will give that district a permanent voting place. The selectmen were authorized by resolution to sell a certain piece of land about 20 feet square located upon Laurel Hill road and formerly occupied by a watering trough. Chairman Pettis said there is a spring on this small piece of land from which water was piped to a watering trough which has now gone. The piece of land is of no use to the town said the chairman, and the selectmen think they can sell it for a small sum.

The meeting then amended original resolution appropriating $100,000 for the East Main street school, so that it will be in acceptable form with reference to the issuance of interest bearing obligations of one town. The amendment did not in any way change the amount authorized by the original resolution.

Appropriations

Other appropriations and petitions were granted in one, two three order as follows

Bond issue of $115,000 for refunding this amount of court house bonds maturing January 1st, 1925.

$4,500 for the current expenses of the Otis library.

A sum not to exceed $65,000 for term fees at the Norwich Free Academy for the school year 1924-1925.

More for Medical Inspection

$10,000 providing medical inspection and health work for the school children of the town of Norwich. Dr. H. B. Campbell offered the resolution. G. Warren Davis wanted to know what the increase in the amount asked was for. Chairman Pettis said he was under the impression that it was for another nurse. Mr. Davis asked Dr. Campbell would explain "why we need another nurse."

Dr. Campbell's answer was that another nurse was needed because of the increase in the number of school children. He went on to say that if $1,500 would prevent one child from having diphtheria or tuberculosis he believed the money well spent.

Mr. Davis said he was opposed to the increase. He expressed the opinion that it would only relieve the parents from the care of the child. Let the mother be the nurse, he said. Mr. Davis said he believed that the public nursing is doing a great deal of good but that "we have reached the point where we have to stop."

"I rest my case on the evidence given by the nurses doing public nursing in Norwich," said Dr. ampbell.

The "ayes" have it, said Chairman Pettis when the vote on the appropriation was called for. Some one sitting in a front seat didn't seem to be of the same opinion as the chair for he suggested a ballot vote. Do you mean that, queried Chairman Pettis. I'll call for the vote again. And he did This time there was no doubt of the result for the "ayes" were there in force. Do you doubt it now? asked the chairman turning to the "doubtful" man in the front seat as laughter rang out in the hall. There was no reply. The meeting then got down to business again and proceded with the granting of appropriations and petitions as follows

More for Tax Map

$8,000 for continuing the preparation of a tax map for the town. There was another brief hold up on this petition as G. Warren Davis wanted to know "why we have gone from $6,000 to $8,000 this year."

Shepard B. Palmer stated in reply to Mr. Davis that when the first appropriation was granted the actual work was not started for two months. There was left over last year about $1,300 which was re-appropriated making the expense of the map for the year around $7,800. He said it takes about $8,000 a year to keep the tax map organization going. Mr. Palmer said that it is expected that with this appropriation the map experts will be able to map out all the city and the greater part of the thickly populated portions of the town.

Mr. Davis wanted to know how much more money will be required to complete the map.

Mr. Palmer said that no estimate had been made covering the whole town.

The appropriation was then passed.

Other petitions were then granted as follows:

Five street lights on Julian street. Electric bug light on the west end of Maple street and on Pine street, so-called. Three street lights on the highway leading from the Norwich and Colchester turnpike in the village of Yantic to Wauwecus Hill.

$200 for a hydrant at Peck's Corner, so called.

A petition to accept the private way known as Germania street in Taftville as a public highway and thoroughfare was passed over as no resolution was offered when action on the petition was called for.

Lively Talk on Standard Time.

Then came the petition which if passed would direct the town school committee to operate the town schools on standard time, with the opening hour 9 a. m. in my opinion, said Chairman Pettis, no action this meeting took would be binding on the school committee. It is for the school board to say when the schools be opened and closed.

G. Warren Davis then presented a resolution directing the school committee to maintain 9 a. m. standard time as the opening hour for the schools. The town clerk read the resolution. I don't suppose I have to read these rubber stamps, he said as he concluded the reading.

"Do you care to be heard on this resolution, Mr. Davis?" asked the chair.

"If you please," said Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis expressed his "thanks to the chair for debating the matter before the resolution was presented" and he also expressed his "thanks to the clerk" for the special emphasis which he placed on the words "standard time" as he read the petition in the warning at the opening of the meeting.

The school committee evidently can do anything, said Mr. Davis. I would like to have someone tell me why the school committee is not responsible to a vote taken in this meeting.

Mr. Davis in the course of his remarks spoke of the county standard time conference held last March in the city court room, at which members of the school committee were present. The attitude of the school committee was this, he said: They were going to do what they deemed best for the greatest good for the greatest number.

Mr. Davis then said that at the conference he asked this question of the school committee: "Have you canvassed any district to find out what the parents of the children want?" The answer was "No." Then Mr. Davis said he asked this question: "Then how have you reached the conclusion that you are doing the most good for the greatest number?"

Mr. Davis said that as this question was asked a fellow member gave the school committeeman's coat a little tug and he sat down. The question is not answered yet, said Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis said that from 80 to 90 per cent. of the people of Norwich want standard time. Is it worth while for the children to be on standard time? he asked. The children should be considered first. The speaker went on to point out how in the five months' daylight period the 5,000 school children of Norwich east lose two "sleep hours" each day, or a total of 1,500,000 "sleep hours" for all the school children for the entire daylight period.

At about this point in his remarks there was a sudden fit of coughing in the rear of the hall and immediately a hundred or more men were endeavoring to "cough" down Mr. Davis.

If you think you can scare me, try it, was Mr. Davis' challenge to those who were endeavoring to discourage his remarks. "I have a voice, so go ahead," he yelled back at them.

As he rapped for order, the chairman, addressing Mr. Davis, said he would see that he got a chance to talk.

So Mr. Davis went on to bring forth examples of the law of custom and a deep-seated reverence for law, to back up his plea for "Standard Time, Forever."

Another interruption came from a voter who wanted to know if "this was a caucus or a law school." The chair then offered the suggestion that Mr. Davis make his remarks as brief as possible. "I had rather have the scorn of everyone in this meeting than the scorn of one child. How do you like that?" he shouted to his hearers.

Mr. Davis said that as long as he talked on the subject he would expect the chair to protect him. He talked a minute or two more, bringing his 20-minute address to a close.

H. H. Gallup expressed the opinion that those who work in shops and stores and those who like to play baseball and perhaps golf like daylight time. He said he believes the school committee will do what in their judgment is the best thing for the town Mr. Gallup expressed a desire to take a day off and debate the matter with Mr. Davis.

After stating that he has confidence in the school board Mr. Gallup said I move that this matter be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Davis asked if a ballot vote could be taken.

Chairman Pettis said that an aye and nay vote would be taken first and then if the result was doubted a ballot vote could be taken. The motion to indefinitely postpone was adopted by an overwhelming vote. The meeting at once lost its interest for most of those present and they started to leave the hall by scores.

An appropriation of $150 was authorized for the installation of a hydrant on West Town street near Wauwecus street.

A petition requesting the installation of street lights on McClellan avenue, so-called, at Norwich Town, was passed over as no one presented a resolution when this matter was called for action.

The meeting then adjourned until the first Monday in March, adjournment being taken about 9.45 o'clock.

CATCHES BURGLAR AS HE WAS CLIMBING FENCE

Timely watchfulness on the part of Officer John Donovan Sunday night when he collared a man whom he saw climbing over a fence back of a West Main street restaurant landed a would be burglar and rid the city of a man whom the police are convinced would have pulled off more than one job if he had been allowed to linger around here long.

To the officer the man admitted that he was about to break into the restaurant. When locked up he gave the name of Ralph Michalkewicz, 18, of Hartford, but the police recognized him as a former Norwich young man whom they had suspected of burglaries several years ago. He has been in Cheshire for a burglary in Hartford and was out on parole.

In the city court Monday morning attempted burglary was the charge against Michalkiewicz. His case was continued until Wednesday. Officers from the reformatory came here for the prisoner Monday afternoon.

Following the adjournment of the court Chief Linton was notified by telephone from Shalett's Cleaning and Dyeing establishment on Main street that some clothes, a blue serge suit, two pairs of knickers, a vest and some other articles had been taken from their store.

Michalkiewicz admitted to Chief Linton that he committed the burglary at that store. He was wearing the suit of clothes which was identified by the manager of the store. The remainder of the plunder was found under the steps of the Arcanum club, where the accused said he had hidden them.

The man would not admit breaking into the Chinese restaurant where 40c and a green cap were taken Saturday night, but he admitted a burglary about two years ago at the Postal Telegraph office and Trachtenberg's Clothing store.

WEDDINGS.

Fournier-Carpenter

A pretty wedding took place Monday morning at 8 o'clock in St. Mary's Memorial Church when Mary E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Carpenter of Fort Point was united in marriage to Eugene F. Fournier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fournier, of 180 Central avenue by Rev. W. A. Keefe.

The bridal couple were attended by Miss Veronica Socha, as bridesmaid, and August J. Fournier, brother of the groom as best man. The bride was attired in white georgette crepe trimmed with French lace and wore a veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore peach georgette crepe with black picture hat and carried pink roses.

Many gifts were received including cut glass, money, silverware and linens. Both bride and groom are well known and have a wide circle of friends who wish them happiness.

Maloney-Schlink

A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Patrick's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock when the pastor, Rev. M. H. May, united in marriage John J. Maloney, son of Mrs. John J. Maloney of 28 Stony Hill, New London, and Miss Katherine Schlink of 9 Franklin street. Father May also celebrated the nuptial high mass.

The bride was charming in a gown of gray crepe and with hat to match and she carried a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses. She was attended by Julia M. Cluett, sister of the groom, who wore peach colored taffeta with black velvet hat and carried Adrian roses. The groom was attended by his cousin Jere Sullivan of New London. After the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Delia Shea, 9 Franklin street. The Terminal catered.

Mr. and Mrs. Maloney left on a wedding trip on the Colonial express for New York and other cities. They received many beautiful gifts, the groom was attended by his cousin Jere Sullivan of New London,

Mr. Maloney is employed as a railroad telegrapher by the New Haven road and both have a host of friends in this city and New London. On their return they will reside on West St., New London, where a newly furnished home awaits them.

American Woolen Co. Sales

Official announcement was made at the week end by the American Woolen Company that it had withdrawn its women's wear worsteds made by the Wood Worsted and the Washington mills, the largest worsted units in its organization as well as the line shown by the Arden mill. The action corroborates the reports recently made that the company had sold up its production of Spring worsteds for the women's wear trade.

Philathea Class Met

The regular meeting of the Philathea Class of the United Congregational church was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Alfred G. Bliven. The president, Mrs. May Young presided and routine business was transacted. Delicious refreshments of sandwiches and pickles, coffee and bonbons were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held at the Mrs. Don Houghton.

SENATORS LOSE HECTIC GAME TO GIANTS IN WHICH LOOSE PLAYING FIGURES

New York, Oct. 5.—(By the A. P.)—Out of one of the wildest baseball maelstroms that any world's series has ever witnessed, the New York Giants emerged victorious today over Washington in the third game and gained a commanding edge in the 1924 championship struggle.

Fought on a new battlefield before the greatest crowd that ever flocked to the Polo grounds, lair of the four-time National league champions, the Giants won by a margin of 6 to 4, but the outcome was in doubt until the final play in the ninth inning, when the Senators were checked only after staging a typically spectacular finish.

The Climax of the Game

Three runs behind into the ninth, after a luckless battle against heavy odds the Senators scored one run and had the bases full with only one out when "Long John" Watson, the third Giant pitcher of the inning stopped the rally and saved the game for the McGrawmen.

This was the climax to a game that though sparkling at times with the most brilliant sort of play, was also largely of sandlot character, punctuated with loose work, missed opportunities and marked by the most ineffective twirling any series contest had witnessed in years. In a "parade of the wooden pitcher," four moundsmen were called into the hectic fray by each of the rival managers, while the rush of other reserves produced a total of 29 combatants before the smoke of battle had cleared.

Giants Always in Danger.

The Giants, leading from the start but never out of danger, won because they were steadier, displayed the more effective punch when it was needed and at critical moments, put up a formidable defensive barrier in which Frank Frisch, playing one of the most spectacular games of his career, was the outstanding figure.

Peck Goes Out of Game

The Senators fought gamely and they were always threatening but the American league champions played against heavy odds after losing the services of their veteran shortstop, Roger Peckinpaugh, bulwark of the team's great infield and batting hero of yesterday's victory. Peckinpaugh, pulling a "charley horse" running out an infield grounder in the second inning, was forced to retire and Washington's make-shift inner defense after that, was wobbly.

But Peck's mishap, which Manager Harris said tonight was not serious and probably would not keep him out tomorrow, was only one of several factors that produced the Senators' downfall and damaged their prospects of gaining their first world's championship. In the crisis, the team's pitching staff collapsed, its attack fell down in the pinches while two costly misplays, one by the usually reliable Harris and another by Miller, substituting at third base for Bluege, who had moved over to fill Peck's shoes at short, figured in the reversal.

Crowd With the Senators

The Senators fought their losing battle before a record breaking crowd of close to 50,000 that cheered them with enthusiasm scarcely less than that of the home crowd that saw the two opening games in Washington. The Giants, making their first appearance before their Metropolitan followers since the cloud of scandal enshrouded them, were noisily and spontaneously received by the crowd, which seemed to have largely forgotten the dark page in the closing chapter of the National league race, but the real acclaim was given the battling Senators.

In the fourth inning, when the Senators scored twice and pulled up within one run of the Giants, the crowd called wildly for a further rally that was checked, however, with the bases full.

Again in the eighth, when the visitors threatened to break through, and in the ninth, when they were stopped once more with the bases loaded, they were encouraged by excited outbursts. It seemed to puzzle, and, possibly, rattle the Giants—this unusual home town demonstration—but they pulled themselves together in the face of it and won out.

The size of the crowd, however, was full proof of the unusual interest that has been aroused by the fight between the Senators and Giants in spite of circumstances which it seemed at first might jeopardize the playing calibre of the championship. Officially, the paid attendance was 47,608, but several thousand more did not contribute to the gate receipts of $186,572, which also established a new record for the Polo Grounds. The previous record attendance was 46,032, established in the fourth game of last year's series, when the receipts, $181,622, also set a high mark up to that time.

Frisch is the Hero

Frisch and Watson were the heroes of the Giant triumph today, but dramatic as was Watson's rescue feat in the ninth when a hit would have at least tied and possibly won the game for the Senators, the most spectacular play was enacted by the "Fordham Flash."

Two of the three startling defensive plays Frisch pulled, all of them curious though, at the expense of George Goslin, turned the Senators back when they were most dangerous, the first of these, and the most brilliant, came in the fourth inning when Frisch raced into centerfield and grabbed Goslin's looping fly over his shoulder while going at top speed.

At the time, there was no one out and the only man on base was Rice, who had walked, but the full importance of Frisch's play quickly became apparent when Judge followed with a rousing double. Bluege walked, Rice scored on a sacrifice fly by Miller and McQuillan, blowing up completely, passed two more men. "Rosy" Ryan, his successor, forced in a run with another pass before Leibold flew out to end the rally, which but for Frisch's great play, might have turned the whole game into a rout.

Frisch retired Goslin again in the fifth on a catch scarcely less brilliant than that of the preceding inning, but the other notable "pinch play" by the Giant captain came in the seventh. Here with two on base, scooped up Goslin's crackling grounder and got his man by an eyelash.

Pitching Not Brilliant

McQuillan, chief hope of McGraw's right-handers, and "Firpo" Marberry, Washington's relief star who had stopped a Giant rally and saved yesterday's game, were the opposing moundsmen at the start, but though they were credited respectively with the victory and defeat, neither lasted four innings.

Ryan, relieving McQuillan, was erratic but helped his own cause with a slashing home run into the grandstand in the fourth and stuck to his guns until the ninth, when Jonnard, who pitched to only one batsman and walked him, and Watson were thrown into the breach.

Marberry went to pieces in the second inning, when the Giants took the lead with two runs, aided by two bases on balls, a wild pitch and a hit batsman. But Harris was as guilty here as Marberry for the Washington manager, with one out, muffed a throw from Bluege on Jackson's grounder and lost a bright chance for a double play which would have stopped the Giants without a tally.

The Giants steadily added to their lead as Harris shifted his boxmen in quick succession. Ryan's homer was made off Russell, Marberry's successor, who also was in the box in the sixth when Miller let Gowdy's sharp blow through his legs and the backstop tallied on Ryan's sacrifice and Lindstrom's double. Martina, the third hurler, got through the seventh without damage but Speece, the fourth and last, was found for three hits and one run in the eighth.

Description of the Game

There was no scoring in the first inning although both teams placed a man on first. With two out, Rice worked McQuillan for a pass in the Senator's half of the inning, but expired there when Frisch threw out Goslin. "Pep" Young singled with two out in the Giant half, but Kelly ended the inning by grounding to Harris.

A snappy double play killed Washington's chances in the second. Judge, the first man up, shot a single to center. Bluege hit into a double play, McQuillan taking his bounder, tossing to Frisch, forcing Judge, and a relay to Terry got Bluege by inches.

The first bit of scoring in the game came in the Giants half of the second inning, when two batteries dented the scoring rubber. Terry started the activities with a sharp single between short and third, Wilson fanned. Jackson hit to Bluege, who tossed to Harris to force Terry, but Manager Harris dropped the perfect throw and both runners were safe. Gowdy singled to left and Terry scored, Jackson taking third. In attempting to stretch his hit, Gowdy was caught at secon don a sharp throw, Rice to Harris. Marberry then flashed a wild pitch into the picture and Jackson scored. Then Marberry blew completely, passing McQuillan, Lindstrom and Frisch in quick succession, filling the bases. But "Pep" Young figured too much on Marberry's ascension and after three straight balls had been pitched stood with his bat on his shoulder and watched three more cut through the heart of the plate.

Ruel got a pass in the first half of the third, but was forced at second by Marberry while the next two batters were fly victims. When the Senators took the field in the third, Peckinpaugh was among the missing, Manager Harris laying him off due to a sore foot. Bluege was sent in at short and Miller placed on third. The Giants tallied another run in their half of the third when Kelly and Terry singled, the former going to third on the latter's hit. Kelly scored when Wilson hit into a double play, the ball coming off Marberry's glove to Bluege, to Harris to Judge. Jackson ended it by fanning.

Fireworks broke out in the Giants pitching staff in the third, which resulted in the retirement of McQuillan and the ascension of "Rosy" Ryan to the mound. From only one hit, Joe Judge's two - bagger, the Senators tallied twice. Marberry also saw his service for one day discontinued when Tate was used as a pinch hitter for him. Free tickets for first got McQuillan in all his trouble. Rice drew a ticket to start the rally. Frisch ran way out to short center and with his back to the plate snared Goslin's short fly. Judge followed with a nifty double to left and Rice pulled up at third. Bluege drew a pass, filling the bases. Miller, former Reading International league infield who was injected into picture with the departure of Peckinpaugh, drove a line drive to Wilson, after which Rice scored, the other runners holding their bases. Ruel drew a pass and McQuillan went to the club house. "Rosy" Ryan came in to the box for the Giants, and Tate, batting for Marberry, also drew a pass, forcing in Judge from third with the second run of the inning. Liebold's foul fly was gathered in by Wilson and the rally was over with three Senator runners stranded.

The Giants came right back with another score in the fourth, when Ryan, with one out, smacked a terrific hit to the upper stands in right field for a home run. Sammy Rice then produced the fielding feature of the game, from a Washington viewpoint, when he raced into right, close to the foul line, and took Lindstrom's line drive in his gloved hand while backed right up to the stands. Frisch singled, but Young died to Goslin to end the inning.

Neither team scored in the fifth, but two more fielding features were made, which puts this game far in the lead in the series for such exhibitions. In the first half of the inning Frisch robbed Goslin of another hit. It was almost identical with Frisch's catch of Goslin's short fly in the fourth. The Giant captain raced out into center and caught the blow and Goslin was a gone "goose."

In the first half of the sixth, with two down and Miller, who had previously beaten out an infield out, on first, Ruel spanked a short fly to right which Young caught on his shoestrings, rolling over in the grass, but hanging on to the ball desperately.

In the final half of the sixth the Giants scored their fifth run of the game. Gowdy got a life on Miller's error of his grounder, was sacrificed to second by Ryan, and scored on Lindstrom's double to right.

Washington threatened in the seventh when Liebold walked with one away but Harris fanned. Rice beat out an infield hit, but Goslin was tossed out by Frisch. The Giants went out in order in their half of the seventh. Russell, who took up Washington's pitching burden, when Marberry was yanked in the fourth, was replaced by Martina, in the final half of the seventh.

The Senators added another run to their total in the eighth when Bluege singled with one down. Miller was passed. Burrell was tossed out by Jackson, the base runners both moving up. Shirley, batting for Martina, singled through the infield, scoring Bluege. Frisch tossed out Liebold to end the inning.

When the Giants came in for their bats in the eighth Speece was pitching for Washington.

The Giants scored once in this inning when Jackson and Gowdy singled. Jackson stealing second, and taking third on Gowdy's hit. He scored a moment later on Ryan's infield out.

The ninth opened brilliantly for the battling Senators. Harris, the first man up, dropped a Texas leaguer to center. Kelly, Jackson and Wilson congregated around the spot in which the ball fell all expecting someone else to make the catch. Jackson tried frantically to make the play after he was sure the others had stopped but the ball was too far away for him and Harris was credited with a single. Rice popped to Lindstrom and the Washington fans groaned. But Goslin came through with an infield hit and Harris advanced to second. Judge followed immediately with another single to right, sending Harris to third and Goslin to second. Here Ryan was taken out of the box, Jonnard taking his place. Jonnard walked Bluege, the first batter to face him, forcing in Harris for a run. Here Watson was sent in the box for the Giants and forced Miller to fly Lindstrom and Ruel to ground out to the Giants third baseman.

Notes of the Game

Jackson got his first hit today, a single in the ninth on which he eventually scored New York's sixth run of the game. He immediately stole second.

The home run record of world's series competition is endangered this far this series. To date five circuit smacks have been hit, breaking all records for three games up to 1923. The series last year, however, when ten home runs were hit in the six games, eclipses this year's classic.

"Rosy" Ryan got the mightiest poke of the game in the fourth, a terrific hit into the right field upper tier.

It looked exceedingly bad for Marberry in the second, when he put on the Santa Claus act and presented three Giants with tickets to Judgeville. They came down so fast at Judge he thought it was raining Giants. Harris' error of an apparently easy throw unnerved the relief artist and he proceeded to blow up.

Old time fans fail to recall any other single game in the world's series where more sparkling features were injected into the scene than were produced today. Frisch twice robbed "Goose" Goslin of a sure hit by turning his back to the plate and nailing a pop fly in short center. Rice also scintillated with a one-hand stab of Lindstrom's liner in the fourth while Young's shoestring catch in the sixth off Ruel was also dazzling.

McGraw and Harris poured pitchers at each other during the latter stages of the game until the scorer became rattled trying to keep matters straight. It looked as though the manager who ran out of pitchers would lose but both seemed well protected.

The Senators pulled an especially snappy twin-killing in the third when Marberry ticked Wilson's hopper and it rolled to Peckinpaugh who tossed to Harris and thence to Judge, cutting down a pair of ambitious Giants.

Jonnard's exit out of the game was almost as sudden as his entrance. He pitched only five balls, four wide of the plate in the ninth and Bluege walked, forcing in a run. Harris was forced in and Jonnard out.

"Muddy Ruel still has to feel the thrill of a world's series hit. The snappy Washington catcher hasn't hit safely in the present series, though he had been hitting the ball hard.

WORLD'S SERIES WILL BE MEGAPHONED BY BULLETIN

As has been the custom for many years the World's Series games will be megaphoned, play by play, from the Bulletin office window. The Bulletin will have a special A. P. service direct from the playing field at Washington and from the Polo Grounds. The games will start at 2 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) each day. Stephen P. Coffey, who has been announcer for the past 16 years will officiate at the megaphone.

Colonials Win

The Jail Hill Colonials defeated the Falls team in a game at the Academy, Monday giving them a defeat of 16 to 0. Fumbles proved costly for the losers. The Jail Hills would like to hear from any team at the age of thirteen.

A WORLD'S RECORD IS SMASHED AT GRAND CIRCUIT MEET AT LEXINGTON

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6—(By the A. P.)—Mr. McElwyn, bred and owned by W. H. L. McCourtle, Dallas, Texas, and driven by Ben White, won the 32nd renewal of the Kentucky futurity here today. The first heat, trotted in 2:02, lowered the world's record for three year old trotters, and the second equalled the former world's record and lowered that for three years olds in a race.

Second in each heat and putting up a stubborn resistance was Guy Richard, driven by W. T. Crozier. Third went to Erla Guy, driven by Walter Cox.

Oscawana, heavy favorite, disposed of his field in the 2:11 trot without a great effort. John Spencer got the place in the opening heat and Coasta Jay in the second.

The 2:19 trot at 7-8 mile heats proved a stubborn contest. Crawford, from the Murphy stable, was best, but was hard pressed by Coleman in the first heat and still harder pressed by Peter Wooster in the second. Coleman choked upon being taken back out of a pocket i the second heat, and fell, throwing driver Crozier high in the air, he landed on his feet and was uninjured.

MYSTIC WINS FROM NEW LONDON INDEPENDENTS

The Rossie A. A. defeated the New London Independents on Rossie field before a crowd of two hundred and fifty by a score of seven to five in the last game of the season.

Chappell, the home team's pitcher, was rather wild at the start and the visitors scored their five runs in the first four innings.

The home team scored their first in the first and did not add any until the sixth when they made three and followed it up in the next with one and added two in the eighth.

Barraclough made a single and two doubles in four times up while Murphy made two singles and a double in five times up. The score:

CAPITAL FANS NOT DOWNCAST OVER SENATORS DEFEAT

Washington, Oct. 6.—The Nation's capital acted today over the third game of the world series very much in the manner Tanktown is said to have behaved the day of its champion sandlot team encountered a club from another village. Tanktown did not think its team could be licked—that was Washington's attitude today.

The city turned out practically en mass for the scoreboard-radio bleachers. Business was of secondary importance, and the crowd that either couldn't get to the scoreboards tuned in on radios or helped set telephone operators in newspaper offices frantic.

Among the thousands of radio sets picking up the balls and strikes from the Polo grounds was a set at the White House, where Mrs. Coolidge was one of the most attentive listeners.

In the ninth inning when the Senators loaded the sacks the scoreboard crowds felt sure somebody was going to deliver the single that would tie the count. When the hoped for didn't happen, the city instead of retiring into a bank of gloom, started talking about tomorrow's game.

Use of the scoreboard and the radio perhaps reached its maximum in the city today. Dozens of stores in the business section of the city had instruments installed in front of their establishments, and every block had its little cluster of fans.

Radios were in use at the capital. The offices of the few senators and representatives in the city, and also in practically all the governmental departments.

Another means of telling the play by play story was employed at Griffith stadium where United States marines carried out a pantomine of the game.

JOHNSON WILL PROBABLY PITCH WEDNESDAY'S GAME

If the Giants win again, Manager Harris will call upon Walter Johnson to make the last ditch stand of the Senators in the fifth game.

"Sure I can beat 'em," Johnson said, when asked if he thought he could upset McGraw's team in his second attempt. Arthur Nehf, who won over the veteran Senator ace in the opening game, will work for the Giants Wednesday.

"We've had other reverses this season and I guess we can come back after this," Bucky Harris, Washington manager said. "Peckinpaugh had to leave the game because of a charleyhorse, and that handicapped us some, but I think he'll be back tomorrow."

Manager McGraw of the Giants gave credit for the victory to the defensive play of Frisch.

"But the pitching was rotten," he added.

NEW LONDON CITY LEAGUE WINDS UP WITH BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 6.—As per annual custom, the City league will conduct its season winding up exercise at the dining table instead of the diamond. A meeting held consisting of President William Fox, and managers of the Fort Trumbull Stars, league winning Knights of Columbus and the Tabs; found the managers of the above named teams very much in favor of the proposed "feed" which was voted to be held at the Mohican Hotel probably during the week of October 13. The only thing that is holding up the definite announcement of the day of the banquet is the arrival of the trophy which will be awarded to the winning team, which in this instance is the Knight of Columbus.

The report of the league treasurer was read and the season financially as well as in other ways was a success. Following the agreement before the season was declared under way, that all money after expenses had been paid be split up between the clubs according to their standing, was adopted at the meeting. The Knights of Columbus which finished first will be given forty per cent., Fort Trumbull Stars second, the standing, thirty per cent., Corticelli Silk third, twenty per cent and the last place Tabs ten per cent. The banquet is a feature of the City league each season, and has been looked forward to by various members with great expectancy.

BULKELEY PLAYERS OUT OF GAME WITH INJURIES

New London, Oct. 6.—Football practice for the Bulkeley High school eleven was omitted this afternoon to allow the players to recuperate from their strenuous contest with Ansonia High Saturday. While the extent of the injuries, players received are unknown at present, it is believed that probably two of the regulars will be unable to get in the game with Springfield Technical High school on Friday of this week at New London.

The two players, Bill Booth a guard and Joe Barry, have suffered after effects of the game. Booth's injury is a possible nose fracture, and a badly discolored eye. Barry is suffering from an infection to his left leg, whether he will be into practice which begins tomorrow is a question for his physician to state. Other players on the squad are also suffering from minor injuries while not so serious as to the two players named above, nevertheless they are excruciating. Because of this fact, Coach Canty declared a holiday, although the squad cannot afford to miss a single days practice before the inter-sectional contest with the Bay State school.

Saturday, the Bulkeley team will receive its first holiday Saturday of the present season and the team will be guests of the Yale athletic association at the Yale Bowl, where they will witness the game between University of Georgia and Yale University. Eighteen players will make the trip and will leave this city Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

WHITE SOX WINS CITY TITLE FROM THE CUBS

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The White Sox remain Chicago champions, even if they did finish last in the 1924 American league race. Bowling over the Cubs today, 5 to 3, the American league nine, led by Johnny Evers retained their city title won last year from twelve months.

It was the sixth game of the series, the National leaguers after a lapse of The Cubs having captured the first and fifth combats solely on the pitching of grover Alexander. In all the other contests the Sox pitchers and attack were superior.

Of the players share in the receipts of the first four games which amounted to $31,930.68, the White Sox will divide $19,194.41 and the Cubs $12,796.27.

MOOSUP TAKES MATCH FROM LAWRENCE TEAM

Moosup continued its drive for the championship title in the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league Monday evening when the team took two games from the Lawrence Five of New London. It was a tight squeeze as the last string which was finally won by Moosup by six pins after the game had hung in the balance for nine boxes. Moosup won the first game by a large margin but dropped the second string by 4 pins. King who leads the league with individual average continued his pin smashing getting 324 for high total and 114 for high single. The scores:

SHAKE UP IN YALE VARSITY FOOTBALL SQUAD

New Haven, Oct. 6.—That the Yale coaches are not satisfied that they have found the strongest football combination with the material at hand was shown this afternoon when Head Coach Jones in lining up the varsity for signal drill, the first held since the game with North Carolina Saturday, made several changes in the team. These changes will be tried out this week and possibly in the game with Georgia next Saturday.

Chief of the changes shown today was the starting of Eddie Bench at quarterback. In Saturday's game, this post was held by Weinecke and Bunnell. Bench has been a halfback for the past two years and three years ago played this position on the freshmen team.

Dan Allen, captain of the freshmen team two years ago, but who did not play last year, was given a tryout as one of the backs. Jack Fielding, who played a part of the game Saturday, replaced Cottle this afternoon. This left Pond the only backfield man who started in Saturday's game.

PALACE TAKES THREE STRAIGHT FROM TAFTVILLE

The Palace Bowling Five took three straight games from the Taftville team in the Eastern Connecticut bowling league. The scores were not large, Mike Morin being the only one to roll in anything like top form, he taking high single with 116 and high total with 337. The scores:

ORIOLES MAKE THREE TO ONE FROM SAINTS

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 6—(By the A. P.)—By walking away with today's game 10 to 1 the Orioles of the International League, left for St. Paul tonight leading in the little world series, three games to one. The Saints, champions of the American Association, were helpless before the speed, slow ball and curve of Big George Earnshaw, a right hander from Swarthmore College. Earnshaw walked only one. The lone St. Paul run was the result of a homer into the bleachers by Koenig in the sixth.

Yantic Wins 9 to 4

The game between Yantic and Colchester at the Fair grounds Sunday October 5th, resulted in a complete route for the much flouted Colchester team. Although strengthened by the addition of six professional ball tossers, was completely outclassed by Yantic. Colchester ought to be satisfied that Yantic has the superior team. Slovkin, Colchester's ace pitcher, could not hold the hard hitting Yanties, and only wonderful support by his fielders saved him from going to the showers early in the game.

Lamphere on the other hand had Colchester at his mercy at all points of the game and stopped a belated rally in the ninth, when he passed the second man up in the ninth after one man was on by an error.

He came to the rescue like a veteran and retired the side with only two runs. It was a clean fast game and everyone seemed satisfied with the "possible" exception of Colchester, who brought the whole town with them to see them give Yantic a drubbing.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

According to the files of the Norwich Courier of 1849 people in Norwich were being urged to vote for the changing of the line of Bath street, with a view to laying out what is now known as Union Square.

Other items of interest 75 years ago are as follows:

Tuesday, October 2, 1849—Town elections about Norwich in most parts resulted in victories for the whigs and locos and freesoilers who had been running together coming in for decisive beatings. In Norwich the entire whig ticket was elected. A good attendance at the polls being known despite the nor-easter.

In Franklin, a town which has been locofoco almost invariably for the past twenty years a clean whig ticket was elected. It was not until some 14 or 15 rounds of ballots had been discharged that the locos, "knocked under" to a whig majority of two.

In Lebanon the selectmen and town clerk are whigs, the assessor and board of relief are locos. Bozrah and Preston are loco as usual.

A great agricultural fair and cattle show comes off at Bridgeport, Conn., on Wednesday, 10th of October. P. T. Barnum, Esq., is president of the society and delivers the annual address. General Tom Thumb, being a product of that country, will partonize the fair.

Articles of agreement have been entered into for the formation of the Thames Steamboat Company, owners to be Elijah A. Bill, Royal S. White, Alfred Lovell. The capital stock of the company is $26,000. The business of the company is confined to the transportation of passengers and freight by land and by water, between Norwich and New London, in the state of Connecticut or any other ports of the United States. The agreement was reached on October 1st.

Saturday, October 6, 1849—In an editorial in the Courier a plea is made for a change in the south line of Bath street so that it will intersect with Union street at a point in a right line with the houses on Bath street—thus securing for all future time, an open square at the point where five streets meet. The owners of real estate in the immediate neighborhood, will, unquestionably find it for their interests to contribute wisely for an improvement which will increase the value of their property, also that of the city and the common council should find it proper to take steps to acquire the property.

If a city meeting is necessary to be called, in order to carry out this project let it be called at once and the improvement be sanctioned and settled without delay.

Home From Canada

Two Gales Ferry young men, Travis A. Smith and Norman L. Brown, have returned from a trip to Montreal made in Mr. Smith's car. They were gone from Wednesday to Saturday night, covering about 850 miles. At this time the scenery is magnificent. Although they encountered some stretches of poor roads requiring detours, they got off their route only once.

Score 2-1 in favor of team in the field. Team at bat has a runner on third with none out.

Should runner attempt to score if ball is hit hard to infield?

It would be almost impossible for the runner on third to score on a hard hit ball to an infielder. The way to handle this situation is for the runner on third to stay there and depend upon the next batter scoring him and tying the game either with a sacrifice fly or a hit. Play safe here don't take any unnecess

WALDO E. CLARKE CHOSEN MAYOR BY NEW LONDON CITY COUNCIL

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 6—The city councilors elected last month were this evening sworn in. Waldo E. Clarke was chosen mayor of the city by the council and he presided over the deliberations this evening. The vote was Clarke 4; Fox 3; Whitin 1. The other officials, who were in office prior to the election of Mayor Clarke are to hold over till their successors are elected. So there was no scramble for the positions they hold. Night and day drivers of fire apparatus asked for an increase in pay, the day drivers seeking pay at the rate of $1800 instead of $1500 as they are now receiving. The night drivers ask for $900 in instead of $600. They also ask for a day off every month with pay. The request was referred to the budget committee.

The Chamber of Commerce asked for the cooperation of the city in the erection of metal signs at the entrances to the city which shall give greetings to all who come within the city gates. The council voted to grant the request and to pay $60 for erecting the signs.

A small parcel of land at the west corner of Ocean avenue and Bank street was decided to be acquired by the city at a cost of $500 for the land and repair of the sidewalk that the corner there may be rounded and an element of danger removed. There was a flood of requests for the placing of banners across State street, including one from the democratic town committee to put up a banner. All the requests were granted.

The council acted unfavorably upon the requests for changes in the present dumping ground on Broad St., on report from the city manager, who pointed out that the dumping spot would be filled in very soon and then would be covered with dirt. He did not find that there was any nuisance there and reported that the expense suggested was unwarranted. His report was approved by the council.

A hearing on the charges of reporting for duty while under the influence of liquor, against Patrolman Charles P. Hammond, was held at 4 o'clock this afternoon, at the office of City Manager William A. Holt in the municipal building. No decision was reached City Manager Holt who will recommend to the investigating board the punishment for the officer, if Patrolman Hammond is adjudged guilty of the charges, which were preferred by Lieut. Benjamin Beebe, deferring such action until Tuesday or Wednesday. It is believed, however, that the city manager will recommend Hammond's dismissal from the force, for such a recommendation was made by the official several months ago when Hammond was tried on charges of drinking while on duty, but the board disapproved of the drastic action and instead ordered Hammond suspended without pay for 30 days.

The hearing was conducted by City Manager Holt. Besides the other members of the investigation board and witnesses there was present Director of Law Frank L. McGuire. The hearing was conducted in chambers. The witnesses were Lieut. Beebe, and Sergeants Samuel Hick and Frank Howard. Sergeant Hick, it is understood testified to Hammond reporting for duty Saturday night, Sept. 27th and visibly showing symptoms of being intoxicated. He reported Hammond's condition, to Lieut. Beebe. Sergeant Howard, it is understood testified to Hammond's condition which was that of intoxication. Hammond, it is stated, testified to having been at home the entire day and that he had taken a drink or two there as an endeavor to break up a cold and that he had taken bromide to quiet his nerves. All the witnesses gave their testimony under oath and not in the presence of the other witnesses. The board, other than City Manager Holt, comprises, Judge Victor Prince, Deputy Judge Lewis Crandall and Mayor Malcolm M. Scott.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. James Cody, 238 Connecticut avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Katherine Cody to Francis John O'Hara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. O'Hara of Waller street.

Miss Bernardina Swanson, Broad street, and Miss Catherine Manice, of Groton, have returned to their homes having spent a fortnight in the White Mountains.

L. C. Brown, a sailor, at the submarine base, was arrested Sunday afternoon by State Police Officer Henry J. Albright of the Groton barracks, charged with driving an automobile without proper registration or without an operators' license. This morning in Groton town court Brown pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $10.30. Brown's excuse for failing to comply with the law was that he had only purchased the car Saturday. Upon assuring the court that he would take out a license and obtain registration without delay, Judge Cornelius Costello ordered the fine remitted, but Brown will have to pay the costs.

An automobile, owned and driven by Frank D'Avignon, 27 Howard St., and a machine operated by Miss Ruth A. Scovill, Hudson, N. Y., were in collision Sunday afternoon in Waterford. Both cars were damaged, but not seriously. Both D'Avignon and Miss Scovill were ordered by State Police Officer Giles Watson, Groton barracks, to appear before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton this morning on a charge of reckless driving, but when presented there was no evidence to substantiate the charge and as D'Avignon assumed the responsibility of the collision and agreed to pay the costs of repairing Miss Scovill's car.

Franklin P. Douglass, of Amity street; Mrs. William Crapman, Lyme; Angelo Drago, Belden street; Miss Irene Edwards, Waterford; Mrs. Henry Lawrence, Thatcher street; Alexander Paquette, Bank street, and Miss Edith Hubert, Mansfield, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

There were only two drunks before the police court this morning, which is pretty good for a Monday morning in a town where booze can be had if one has the price to pay for it. Joe Givosky and William Scott were the fellows who pleaded guilty when accused. Each was fined $10 and each had the money with which to settle.

Elmer Broadwell neglected to appear in the court after he had given a bond to insure his presence at 9.30 today, so the bond was called and was declared forfeited. The bond was one of $50, so the failure of Broadwell to keep his appointment will be an expensive one unless the court decides to reopen the case and allow Broadwell to plead to the complaint against him. Sam Shapiro accused Broadwell of having two automobile tires that belonged to the former. How he came to possess them was not disclosed, but something happened that made Sam see things in a light that was very different from that which prevailed at the time of the arrest. It is not believed that Shapiro relented unless he was compensated for that change of mind. Because there was some agreement between the parties interested did not seem to the prosecutor a reason for dropping the matter after warrants were issued and court had assembled to act on the case, so the preliminaries toward acquiring fifty dollars for the city proceeded to a finality.

Perma Bachman, a young girl, stranger in New London, was taken into custody by Policewoman Jane Cassidy, Saturday night, when the girl was observed frequently in the company of sailors. She was not detained long for she was turned over to the care of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and sent to her home.

George Sweeney, 14, of 277 Friendship street, Providence, ran away from home Saturday and last night he was in the vicinity of the residence of Donald M. Saxton, Broad street. Mr. Saxton questioned the lad, determined that the latter was a runaway and escorted him to the police station where he was given into the care of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Relatives of the lad in Providence were notified and this forenoon his brother, Robert Sweeney, also of Providence, came to this city and took charge of the boy.

The work of constructing the new concrete sidewalk on Bank street, between Howard and Shaw streets, has now progressed to a point between Division and Shaw street and by the end of the week will have been entirely laid.

The strike at the Bloom silk mill is a thing of the past, or at least it will be tomorrow morning when the weavers return to their looms with the satisfaction that they have won a partial victory. They have been granted a small advance in wages, and that is what the strikers sought. An appeal to their sense of justice led to the settlement and brought a better feeling between employer and employes than existed at the time the weavers walked away from their machines. The persistent determination not to work threatened a loss of employment for 650 persons. New Londoners are pleased with the settlement for the city has no industry it can spare, especially one that employs so many people as the Bloom mill hires.

It is claimed that the business of the electric railway in this city will show up better when the September statement is published than was anticipated, and that the road will prove to have a good volume of business.

It is understood that the new Hollandersky building in Bank street will be three stories and will have offices on the upper floors, with apartments. The buildings that have stood on the site are nearly demolished now and the work is proceeding at a rate that will see the old structures levelled in a day or two. The owners of the structures demolished called on the police Saturday night to send an officer to the building to protect the place against the theft of wood, but no arrests were made.

James W. Morgan is just completing a trip that he had longed to take. When he was 17 he left his home in England and came to the United States. Now at the age of 70 he has visited the scenes of his childhood and has met the relatives of the people who were his companions in youth. He is expected in New York Friday and in this city Saturday. Mrs. Morgan made the journey with her husband.

Connecticut college again this winter is to conduct a series of musical entertainments, such as have been most efficiently managed by the department during three years past.

It is declared that during no world series ball games was so little money wagered on the result in this city as on the series now progressing.

W. J. Kelly of Niantic lost a brown overcoat Friday evening from his car that was parked near Lane A and Brewer street. Mr. Kelly was in town on business when the coat was stolen.

Officers Edward Daniels and D. Murphy were sent from the police station Sunday afternoon on complaint that boys were shooting an air rifle on Summer street. The policemen nabbed two youngsters who were turned over to the probation officer and they were arraigned in the juvenile court Monday afternoon. A girl named Donovan was struck by a bullet from the rifle, but was not seriously injured.

Perma Machman, a young woman, was arrested Sunday evening charged with being a lascivious person and to be soliciting the companionship of men on the street. She was put in the custody of the Learned mission for the night.

Mayor Scott Saturday evening stopped his car near the clubhouse of the Elks' lodge and when he returned to his machine he discovered that a nice robe had been stolen. The mayor asked the police to be on the lookout for any fellow who attempted to dispose of it.

The automobiles of Robert J. Shevlin, 21 High street, Groton, and of V. J. Fadden of 25 Summer street, this city, were in collision at the corner of Washington and Colt street, Sunday and both machines were damaged. The drivers complained to the police and the matter will be investigated.

John McCarthy, 15, and Bernard Devine, 16, took it into their heads to go for an auto ride. They didn't ask permission of the owner of an auto they found on Hempstead street to use the machine but started off in it. They drove as far as Salem where the machine ran out of gasoline and the boys were then in trouble. The state police there discovered them and ascertained that they had stolen the car so the lads were taken into custody and locked up in this city.

Elmer Broadwell was charged with the theft of a couple of auto tires from Sam Shapiro and was placed under arrest. Broadwell furnished a bond for appearance in the police court tomorrow.

Complaint was made Sunday evening that a gang of boys was annoying residents in the vicinity of Broad street and Connecticut avenue and Policeman Ray was sent to disperse them or take them into custody. There is sickness in the neighborhood and the noise of the boys was most annoying.

Of the 117 marriages performed in New London this year, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth has performed 35, Rev. Father T. M. Crowley of St. Mary's parish was second in the number of ceremonies, having joined 30 in wedlock. Rev. Chester Howe of the First Baptist church performed 26. Rev. Myron E. Genter, Rev. P. H. Kerridge, Rev. J. B. Lee, Rev. Father William C. Fitzsimons, each had a good share of ceremonies. There were very few marriages by justices of the peace.

Danielson may get as many as six of the three-ton F. W. D. trucks to be brought back by the drivers sent out from Connecticut. On Monday Captain Armington, commanding officer of the Service battery, was uninformed as to the exact number of the machines to be sent here. The trucks are of what is known as the artillery type and are built on the four-wheel drive principle. At the present time there are six five-ton army trucks in the state armory garage here. The trucks now coming through are part of the regular equipment that it was announced would be assigned to the Service battery when it was recruited, several years ago.

KILLINGLY REPUBLICANS WIN IN MONDAY'S ELECTION

Danielson, Oct. 6.—Killingly republicans made a clean sweep in Monday's town election, electing all of their candidates and making a good showing generally. The citizens' party proved to be a fizzle with a total of 15 straight ballots out of 1763 that were cast and with none of their candidates receiving a larger number than 62 votes. The new member of the board of selectmen is Patrick Riley, democrat, who defeated Alcott D. Sayles by 60 votes. James R. Walsh, who had all three party nominations for tax collector, has the high vote of 1586.

Following was the vote:

REDUCE YOUR FAT WITHOUT DIETING

Years ago the formula for fat reduction was "diet and exercise." Today it is "Take Marmola Prescription Tablets." Friends tell friends—those friends tell others. They eat substantial food, live as they like, and still reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise, starvation diet and absurd greases and salves. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists the world over at one dollar for a box, or if you prefer you can order direct from the Marmola Co., 1613 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

DEMOCRATS IN BROOKLYN CARRY ENTIRE TICKET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Oct. 6.—Over in Brooklyn Monday the democrats elected every candidate on their ticket, including Edwin M. M. Marlor and Hugh Gorman, Jr., as selectmen. Marlor had 276 votes against 247 for Edwin Bennett, republican candidate for first selectman, while Mr. Gorman had 228 votes against Sherwood B. Potter with 207 on the republican ticket. An incident of the election was the election on the democratic ticket of Harry E. Magoon, a member of the republican town committee, as a member of the board of relief, and in winning he defeated the republican candidate, Riley B. Witter.

STONINGTON

The warden and burgesses at their October session received a petition from about 106 people asking for the removal of cobblestones and the cementing of approaches to crosswalks from streets intersecting Water street. The petition was laid on the table. The board passed a resolution to establish the speed limit of fifteen miles per hour for traffic on the borough streets with penalty of $16 for its infraction. A special meeting is to be called Oct. 24 to adopt the ordinance.

The work of cementing the other half of Water street will begin today (Tuesday).

WESTERLY

A caucus of the republican electors of the town of Westerly was called to order at 7.30 o'clock Monday evening in the Westerly town hall by Lewis Stanton, moderator, with Herbert P. Clark, clerk. The call for the caucus by Wells R. Fowler, chairman of the Westerly Republican town committee was read.

For state senators for two years from the town of Westerly, Abraham P. Datson, the present senator, was named by Wells R. Fowler. S. H. Davis seconded nomination and explained that Mr. Datson's vote on the 48-hour law was along party lines and to his political detriment.

Edward S[illegible] named George A. Dolan, State Committeeman. George B. Utter addressed the chair, stating that he reserved the right to object to Mr. Sawyer's participating in the republican caucus. Considerable discussion followed. The action on the matter lies with the Westerly Republican town committee. A caucus will be held next Thursday afternoon and evening to vote on these candidates, providing no adverse action is taken by the towns committee.

In the first Westerly voting district called to order by John Dunn, clerk, in the absence of Moderator Ira B. Crandall, Herbert P. Clark was named chairman. Mrs. Jenanie H. Nichols presented the name of George B. Utter, which was seconded by Charles D. Maxson.

John J. Dunn in a lengthy speech from the platform named Dr. Thomas E. Robinson and the nomination was seconded by Nunciato Vuono, of Bradford.

Antonio Sandaro named Capt. Cappo Duomenot and this name was seconded by Dimitri Turano. These nominees will also be voted on at the caucus next Thursday.

In the second district, called to order by Lewis Stanton, Miss Mabel A. Saunders, clerk, read the call and Wells R. Fowler named Clifford W. Campbell as representative from the second district. It was seconded by Farquahar Smith also by S. H. Davis. There being no contests Campbell's name will appear on the ballot in the November election. There were about 400 republican electors present at the caucus.

Announcement was made at Kingston, Monday that the September term of superior court for Washington county would come to Westerly for the trial calendar on Wednesday of this week. Judge Arthur P. Somner will be the associate judge sitting on the bench.

An electric flat which has been used and not turned off, Saturday night, caused a fire Sunday afternoon before 6 o'clock in the Elite Cleaning works, Joseph Siciliano, manager, at 89 Main street. Smoke was seen coming from the rear of the building by Warren B. Randall, who resides at 11 Union street, and he turned in a fire alarm from Box 52, Main and Union street. When the three pieces of fire appartus arrived the workroom in the rear of the building as well as the store in front was filled with smoke.

A window on the side of the rear the blazing ironing board, which had been almost entirely consumed, was pulled loose and thrown into a pail of water. Proprietor Siciliano grasped a fire extinguisher which hung on the wall near the window and poured its contents on the flames, crawling toward the ceiling. The line of hose was laid from the chemical tank and 30 gallons thrown on the fire before it was extinguished. The burned garments in the cleansing establishment were only those of the proprietor, a vest, sweater, part of a suit of clothes and some shirts, near the ironing board. Other clothing in the place was filled with loss of clothing was estimated by the proprietor at $25 and all was covered with insurance.

Archie McShane, 11, who resides off the Westerly-Stonington road visited his coop on Saturday to get some chickens. Great was his surprise to encounter a well conditioned red fox which in turn had not anticipated his visit. The boy stepped outside and slammed the henhouse door. Procuring a heavy stick he again entered the coop and with a well directed blow struck Sir Reynard over the back of his neck, dispatching him instantly.

"Hunters, don't forget your licenses," are the words of caution given by Deputy Game Warden Albert D. Hill of Pawcatuck at the beginning of the open season for birds and game which starts Wednesday next, Oct. 8. The open season on pheasants, wood cock, ruffed grouse and partridge begins at the time. Gunning for quail is closed for the season. After Oct. 8 squirrel and raccoon (not to be trapped until after Nov. 1) can be killed, while rabbits are not tobe taken until after Nov. 1.

Bag limits for a day are two pheasants, (hen pheasants can not be taken) five woodcock and three ruffed grouse or partridge and five squirrels.

Antonio (Tony) Biddle of Philadelphia, well known in boxing circles 20 years ago, when associated with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, was a Westerly arrival Saturday. "The Millionaire boxer" with an elaborate camping outfit, left soon for Matunuck beach, near Point Judith where he plans to pitch camp. The former pugilist appears in excellent health and although now beyond the prime of life gave the appearance of one who even today could give a good account of himself in the squared circle. The trip to the beach was by automobile and auto truck.

EKONK

The six-church conference of which Ekonk church is a member, has voted to make the October meeting here a memorial service. The service is to commemorate the organization of the conference in Ekonk, five years ago and the work the conference has done.

Dinner will be served to all and an attractive program is being arranged.

One number on the program will be the appearance of Rev. E. E. White in Indian Costume to give an address on India and sing music of India. Mr. White is a missionary now in that country on his vacation. He served this church for a time before he went to India. Mr. White under the direction of the American Board is addressing churches, associations and conferences and has an appointment at the meeting of the board in Providence later this month.

The Community meeting which regularly would occur next Thursday is postponed till Wednesday, Oct. 15.

STOMACH TROUBLE WAS WRECKING HIS HEALTH

Then Rochester Man Turned To Taniac With Good Results.

"Right now I am feeling better than I ever felt in my life and all I can say is that Taniac and the Taniac Vegetable Pills will always have a good recommendation from me," is the striking statement of John Davis, proprietor Rochester Spaghetti House, 46 Main St., East Rochester, N. Y.

"For two years past stomach trouble and other complications were fast wrecking my health. What little I did manage to force down made me miserable for hours and I was in constant pain. I could not rest at night and loss of sleep was simply wearing me out.

"But now I haven't a trouble in the world and feel that Taniac has given me a new lease on good health. I eat three meals a day, sleep like a child at night and am feeling as fine as silk."

Taniac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

THIS BRIGHT BABY GIRL

Brought Joy to Home. Mrs. Price's Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scootac, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me."—Mrs. ROBERT PRICE, Scootac, via Lockhaven, Pa.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCK PRICES REACTIONARY

New York, Oct. 6—Stock prices turned reactionary in today's market when heavy professional selling pressure was exerted against the St. Paul issues, arousing apprehensions over the road's ability to refund the large maturities next year. Net losses in the entire issues ranged from small fractions to 2 1-3 points, trading, however, being relatively light in character.

Political uncertainties and the marking up of the call money rate from 3 1-2 to 3 per cent. also were factors in the day's selling, the bulk of which was believed to be of professional origin.

St. Paul preferred was hammered down 2 1-4 points to a record breaking low at 18 1-4 and then rallied a point. The common touched a new low at 10 7-8 and then recovered to 11 1-2, off 3-4. The preferred has sold this year as high as 30 1-4 and the common at 18 1-8. In 1906 the preferred sold at 218 a share and the common at 199 5-8. Preliminary estimates of September operations indicate net railway operating income of more than $5,000,000, representing the largest single month earnings since 1913, and gross revenue exceeding $50,300,000, the highest for that month since 1920.

U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, American Can and Studebaker frequently referred to as the pivotal shares, closed fractionally lower. Chandler and General Motors touched new minimum prices for the year at 31 7-8 and 38 1-4 respectively.

Several of the western carriers lost ground in sympathy with the weakness on the St. Paul issues, losses of a point or so being recorded by Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Rock Island, and Texas & Pacific. Heaviness was noted in Lehigh Valley and Delaware & Hudson.

Oil stocks were heavy despite favorable trade news, which included publication of statics showing record consumption of gasoline in the United States during August and a reduction of stocks on hand, smaller Mexican oil exports and an increase in crude-over Crude prices by the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana.

Hartman Corporation rallied 2 5-8 in relation to a seven per cent. increase in September earnings. Other strong spots included Air Reduction, American Locomotive, American Water Works 6 per cent preferred, Bayuk Brothers, Jordan Motors, Sterling Products, Simmons Company and Yellow Cab up one to 3 1-2 points, and Nash Motors up 5.

American Ice, Goodyear Tire Preferred, Sloss Sheffield, Steel and Foundation company fell back 2 to 3 1-2 points.

The advance in the call money rate, while somewhat of a surprise, probably was due to the withdrawal of funds to finance crop movements. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Foreign exchange eased slightly, demand sterling being quoted at $4.45 5-16 and French Francs around 5 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 6—Heavy liquidation of the St. Paul issues, several, of which fell to new low prices for the year on the revival of doubts concerning the road's ability to arrange its financing program without reorganization of the scaling down of its capital structure, overshadowed all other developments in today's bond market. Prices in the general list were reactionary.

St. Paul 4's of 1925 broke more than eight points to 63 and then rallied to 64 1-4. Net losses of one to 3 points were registered by the convertible 4 1-4s, refunding 4 1-2s, convertible 5s, 4 1-4s of 1932, 4s of 1934 and the Puget Sound Division 4s.

Obligations of the New Haven railroad, which also will be called upon to meet heavy maturities next year, reacted in sympathy, but the net losses were held to fractions. Denver and Rio Grande refunding 5s were other heavy spots. Northern Pacific issues were firm.

Industrial mortgages held relatively firm, U. S. government issues eased slightly in reflection of a temporary stiffening of call money rates. Foreign government liens held steady in reports that the flotation of the German loan would come next week, with a seven per cent. coupon and an offering price to yield 7 1-2 per cent. Belgium 6 1-2s touched a new high record at 96 1-2.

Public offering will be made shortly of a $11,700,000 issue of secured 6 1-2 per cent. gold bonds of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation by a banking syndicate headed by Otis and Company. The price is 99 and interest to yield 6.55 per cent. The new financing is in connection with the recent large merger of western public utility companies serving Kansas City, Mo., Columbus, Ohio., Lincoln, Neb., and about 190 other communities.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 6—Although huge export buying, said to total 5,000,000 bushels, hoisted wheat and rye today to fresh high record prices for the season, profit taking largely blotted out the advance. On some of the transactions wheat for delivery next May reached as high as 157 a bushel, a jump of more then four cents since Saturday's finish. Closing quotations on wheat ranged from 1-4c net decline to 1 3-8c gain, December 149 3-8 to 149 5-8 and May 153 7-8 to 154, with corn 1 3-8 to 2 3-4c down, oats at 1-4 to 2 cents off, and provisions ranging from 17c setback to a rise of 20c.

In addition to the upward impetus which the wheat market received from the extraordinary volume of export dealings, a big jump in values at Liverpool and Winnipeg acted as a deciding stimulus to the trade here. However, the rush of buying with which the day opened led to such immediate tempting profits that sellers became almost in a majority. Special significance appeared to attach to the fact that the net decline of 1-4c which resulted today in the July delivery of wheat applies only to the 1925 crop and not to wheat at present anywhere on hand.

Corn and oats were swayed largely by the action of wheat. Fine weather, though, and enlarged receipts tended to pull down the price both of corn and oats, despite pessimistic reports as to the outlook for the Illinois corn crop.

In provisions as well as in grain profit taking sales wiped out much of an early advance based on record breaking high prices for cereals and hogs.

CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 6—Irregular fluctuations marked today's quiet and featureless curb market. Recessions in the oil shares on profit-taking contrasting with upward tendencies displayed by some of the radio and baking shares which moved within narrow limits.

Prairie Oil and Gas lost two points and the recent advance in Vacuum Oil was checked by profit-taking, the stock recovering however, from an earlier decline of about two points, closing one point lower on the day. Fractional losses were scored by several other issues.

The radio group showed early strength but yielded to selling pressure in the late trading. Dubilier stood out, touching a new high at 58 1-2 but closing at 56 7-8. Ware and Jones Radios also made their best prices on the present upward move.

The reactionary trend of the public utilities was reflected in a decline of more than two points by middle west utilities, dullness marking transactions in the group. The industrial shares were less active than usual, Gillette Safety Razor responding to the declaration of the regular quarterly $1 dividend with a gain of two points.

A large number of shooters have not availed themselves of the opportunity to qualify yet. The club expects to run another shoot before long when it is expected that the members will turn out in large numbers.

Michigan Woman Wins—A True Story

"This sincere letter," says Peterson, "gave me another happy day and as nearly every mail brings praise for Peterson's Ointment, is it any wonder that I keep cheerful all the time?"

"Dear Sirs: I had a bad leg for 20 years, tried everything, but no benefit. I tried Peterson's Ointment and five boxes healed my leg. I can never praise it enough. My leg was so painful at first that I had to put fresh ointment on every two hours, night and day. It stopped the pain at once. Mrs. Mark Richards, Lake Linden, Mich."

Besides running and old sores and ulcers, Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles, eczema, itching skin, sore feet, prickly heat, sunburn, chafing, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and scores of other ailments, as any druggist anywhere will tell you.

New London

Plans are being prepared for a colonial cottage for Chester W. Bliss on Ocean avenue. The dwelling will be 30x44 feet, of frame and stucco construction. It will contain ten rooms and will have tile baths, steam or hot water heat, oak floors and trim and other conveniences. The residence fronting on Pequot avenue, which has recently been remodeled for Mr. Bliss, is situated on the same property.

The contract has been awarded for alterations and an addition to the cottage owned by Ambrose Cassara on the Boardwalk, Ocean Beach. The addition is one story high of frame construction. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring.

Work has been started on a dwelling on Sharaf street for Sharaf Furniture Co., 125 Bank street. The house will be 24x26 feet, of frame construction. It will be of cottage style, arranged for one family. The cost will be about $4,000.

Alterations to the building at 156-162 State street, for H. B. Hubbard, are nearing completion. The work consists of the application of a spatterdash exterior finish and an asphalt roof.

Mystic

The Standard Oil Co., has purchased a piece of property in the old shipyard plant at Willow Point, and will build a dock and erect two oil storage tanks.

Groton

Architects are completing the excavating for the factory addition at the plant in Groton of the New London Ship & Engine Co. The building will be one story high, 60x200 feet, of brick and steel construction. A crane to be erected in the yard outside, will be 105x350 feet. The contract for the structural steel has been awarded. The new building will be fitted for use as a fabricating shop and will permit of the enlargement of the company's facilities so as to include hull construction.

Essex

Architects have completed plans for an office building in Essex for Dr. C. C. Davis, of Essex. The building will be 26x31, of frame construction, one story high. It will be arranged for an operating room, a waiting room, office, toilets, etc. Hot water heat and other conveniences will be provided.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

The real estate sales in Norwich during the past week numbered 19, one less than for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $4,600 and $37,510.

In New London during the past week there were 19 sales of real estate as compared to 9 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $70,050 and $13,270.

Building Situation

A decidedly satisfactory showing in building construction was made in this state in September. In the leading cities and towns reported in the Commercial Record 1,336 building permits were issued for construction estimated to cost $4,369,767. These figures represent a substantial increase over September, 1923, the gain in the number of permits issued being 81 and in the total cost, $525,980. The largest gains were made in New Haven, New Britain and Waterbury. In New Haven the number of permits increased from 132 in September last year to 191 issued last month. The cost of construction work started during the month increased $381,939 over last year. The second largest increase was in Waterbury where 58 permits issued for construction to cost $344,110 more than for last year. The gain in cost of construction work in New Britain last month was $271,982. A summary showing the building records for the leading towns is published elsewhere in this issue.

BOZRAH

The services at the Center church Sunday were of especial interest. In the morning a quartet sang Teach Me, O Lord. The singers were Oscar Heinrich, first tenor: Harold Rose, second tenor; N. E. Webb, first bass; Frank Rose, second bass. For the offertory, Oscar Heinrich sang One Sweetly Solemn Thought. In the evening Ernest

POETRY

A VETERAN.

'Longside its wharf an ancient schooner broods,
While on its planks the hours their dull count tell.
Or tugs at anchor, in a windy swell—
Like some old hound that has rebellious moods—
Often it hungers for the pungent taste
Of deepsea brine and billows' heaving plaint;
For waves and skies that have no earthly taint—
Then, with desire, its dingy timbers waste!
Or it will shudder till its worn hull creaks,
Recalling threats of wreck on shoal or crag,
Or shake with fun about some famous jag
When its own crew made ram blue lightning streaks!
Yet most it thrills when, on a starless night,
With wharves and junk-shops dumb and dark in sleep,
It hears its lost, best captain, o'er the deep,
Cry, "Lads, by daybreak, land ye surely sight!"
Then, then its every other mem'ry pales—
It feels the dance and laughter of a feast,
The pomp of launching in full swing released,
The first breeze flapping its white kissed sails!
—William Struthers, in Boston Transcript.

THE SEA.

I know the sea, when to the golden sky
Each shoreward-rolling wave
Curves a green trembling window, and anon
Like a sick child shivers the gift it gave
In gems of splintering foam; and I have heard
Her softest whisper, trod her firmest sand.
Plunged her cool depths until my eyes were blurred
With bliss of being an a faery land;
Yet, though she smile never so tingly,
Still the salt taste of death is on her.
And in the mirror of her waves I see
A darkling presage of the dread end
When she shall give her dead, the company
Which loved her and went down to it in ships.
—Henry King

HUMOR OF THE DAY

The boss is pretty savage today. What do you want to see him about? Life insurance.

I hope you are well provided for. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Teacher—Now, Bennie, can you tell me what an island is?

Small Bennie—Yes, ma'am. An island is a place you can't leave without a boat.—Chicago News.

King Gentleman—What are you crying for?

Small Boy—I forget.

Then why do you cry?

'Cause I can't remember. — Life.

Dora—Harold isn't the kind of a man a girl wants to take her motoring.

Florida—Indeed. Why, what does he do?

Dora—Drives, and nothing else but.—Punch.

Hobbs—How did you come out on that profit-sharing scheme you went into?

Dobbs—It should have been spelled "shearing," as far as I was concerned. —Boston Transcript.

Hardware Clerk—If the boss liked to get off on Saturday afternoons as well as I do, I'll bet he wouldn't work.

Fellow Employee—Yes, and if you liked to get off as well as you do he wouldn't be boss.—Good Hardware.

She was deceived in him, poor girl.

What! Deceived in Jack?

Dreadfully. She thought it was love that was making him so pale and thin, and it was only going without food so as to buy her presents.—London Mail.

"Now, there's your husband coming, Mrs. Candour," said Mr. Funniman. "Let's make a little surprise for him. Mrs. Funniman and I will hide behind the curtains here and you can tell him that the expected guests haven't come. Then we'll step out and surprise him."

(Enter Mr. Candour, Mrs. Candour obeying orders)—"Well John, the guests have disappointed us. Mr. and Mrs. Funniman haven't come."

KALEIDOSCOPE

A zinc shingle which gives lightning protection has been perfected.

The highest dwelling in the United States is on Mt. Rainier, 10,000 feet high.

The liner Leviathan has the most powerful searchlights in use in the merchant marine.

A paper is now manufactured containing a percentage of rubber, giving it toughness.

A church recently built near 70 degrees latitude is said to be the farthest north of any.

Mrs. Harris-Bell of Wales, England, makes a business of training ducks for theatrical use.

The desert of Gobi in Mongolia consists mostly of good grazing land, resembling Kansas or Oklahoma.

Having stood 175 years without a wedding observance in the structure the record was broken for the old Friends' meeting house at Doolittle, Pa., when Walter Leeden and Olive Balderston were married within its walls.

There are some women in New York who earn their living simply by shopping. These women are the "comparison testers" employed by big stores. Their work consists in visiting stores buying goods similar to those sold by their employers and buying or examining articles so that relative prices and quality may be compared.

An honor system of fare collection put in use by a street railway company at New Brighton, Pa., has shown that the patrons are 99 1-2 per cent honest. The honor system is simple: that the patron boarding the car tells the motorman his destination and drops into the fare box 5 cents for each zone through which he passes.

Police headquarters in New York is cramped for suitable wall space to place the bronze tablets on which are engraved the names of policemen killed in performance of duty. A single panel served to record all such deaths in the history of the city up to 1917. Since then an additional panel has been filled and another one begun.

A tea set, more than 200 years old, is carefully cherished by Mrs. Hampton B. Merrill, of Alfred Me. The set is complete, having twelve of the usual group articles, with the larger pieces intact. It is blue-white china, with willow blue stripe and blue polka dots all over the surface, and was originally the property of Mrs. Merrill's great-great-grandmother and has been handed down to the oldest girl of each generation on her wedding day.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. William H. Bath of Williams street, district superintendent of the New England Southern Conference preached at the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning. His text was the first part of the eighth verse of the third chapter of Genesis. And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day. Rev. Mr. Bath's theme was, How God spoke to People in Those Days as in the Present. Miss Irving H. Cruthers was leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, when the topic was, How Jesus Cheered the Fearful and Discouraged, with Scripture references in Matthew and John.

This was followed by a sermon by Rev. Mr. Aldrich, the regular Sunday evening meetings having commenced at this service, being omitted through the summer.

Mrs. James B. Aldrich of West Town street, is to leave today (Tuesday) to spend the next few days in New London where she will attend the branch meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, to which she is a delegate. The sessions are to be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the Methodist church. Because of this, the Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First M. E. church, scheduled for Thursday afternoon, has been postponed to October 16th.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached from Isaiah 50:7. For the Lord God will help me; therefore shall I not be confounded; therefore have I set my face like a flint, and I know that I shall not be ashamed. In Partnership With God, was the theme of the very fine sermon.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service was in charge of Miss Louise Avery. How Jesus

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Heselton and son Kendall have returned to their home on North B Street after spending a few days in Ballouville with relatives.

Raymond A. Pingree has returned to Pawtucket, R. I., after spending a short time this week with his family on North Third Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead and William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue have returned from a short stay in Gurleyville.

It has been announced that the members of Hugh H. Osgood Lodge, I. O. O. F., M. U., are to attend the morning service at the Taftville Congregational church on October 19th.

Miss Mazie Rose Goyette has returned to her home on Norwich avenue from the Backus hospital where she was a patient following an operation for appendicitis.

Henry J. Kendall has returned to his home in Lisbon after a short stay in Springfield, Mass.

Miss Matilda Lusco who has been visiting the past two weeks with friends in Canada, has returned to her home on North B street.

Mrs. Wilbur Dodge of Block Island, R. I., is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Leupold of Lisbon. Mrs. Linus Dodge and young son Evan, also of Block Island, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leupold.

Monday was election day in the town of Lisbon, and as a majority of the Lisbon residents work in Taftville, machines were busy throughout the day carrying the voters from this village to the town hall at Newent to vote.

Dr. N. G. Gray of Norwich Town was a business caller in the village Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree, Mrs. Everett M. Pingree and Leonard Pingree of North Third avenue motored to Providence and Pawtucket, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Caplett and family of South Second avenue.

Miss Aldea Ethier of North B street has resigned her position with the spinning and spooling department of the Ponemah company.

The St. Louis society met Friday evening in their rooms at St. Louis hall.

Monday evening, the regular monthly meeting of the Artisans was held in the society's rooms at St. Louis hall. Several important business items came up for consideration and were disposed of.

President Walter Wucjik presiding at the regular monthly meeting of Branch 68, Polish Workers Sick Mutual Aid Association, which was held Sunday afternoon in the association's rooms on Norwich avenue. There were several out-of-town visitors at the meeting.

Scoutmaster Victor H. Davis was in charge of the meeting of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, which was held Monday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church.

The death of Mary Agnes Phalen, 31 beloved wife of Clifford Cormier, occurred Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Phalen of South A street, after an illness of several months. Mrs. Cormier was born in Taftville, and attended the local schools and a school at Southbridge, Mass. She was married to Clifford Cormier a few years ago at Sacred Heart church. Mrs. Cormier was well known in the village and in Norwich where she resided after her marriage, and she was a favorite with all who knew her. She is survived by her husband, one child, eight months old, her parents, four sisters, Mrs. Wilfred Godere, Miss Grace Phalen and Miss Alice Phalen of Taftville, and Mrs. William Norman of Washington, D. C., two brothers, Joseph and Edward Phalen, both of Taftville. She will be greatly missed by her many friends in this village and its vicinity.

Miss Mary Martin of South Fourth avenue has returned to work after being confined to her home for several weeks by illness.

Franklin H. Warner of New York will give a Stereopticon lecture on Japan this (Tuesday) evening in the Congregational church. Mr. Warner is the treasurer of the National Council of Congregational church. During a trip abroad last year he secured these views—so they represent the modern work in Japan.

NEW TRAFFIC ORDINANCES WILL BE GIVEN HEARING IN TWO WEEKS

New traffic ordinances that will be given a public hearing on the evening of Monday, Oct. 20, at a special meeting of the common council, were presented at the October meeting of the council Monday night which was held after the annual town meeting had adjourned. The meeting was called to order by Mayor Milo R. Waters at 9.50 and had concluded its business at 10.40. All members were present.

The new ordinances establish some one-way streets, designate on which side of certain streets parking shall be prohibited, change the parking time limits in some places, and make five hours the limit for continuous parking generally where other parking regulations do not apply.

Petitions.

For removal of trees—G. O. Hathaway, 26 Ward street; Miss Delia Pease, 229 West Main street; Horace H. Woodmansee, 105 Williams street; Henry F. Ulmer, 269 Broadway; James J. Brady, 103-105 Prospect street; Felix Bartnicki, 520 North Main street; Sarah G. Congdon, 82 McKinley avenue, all referred to public works committee and tree warden.

From Charles F. Jennings, for establishing highway bound on Hamilton avenue and discontinuance of culvert on Corning road; referred to public works committee.

Rules Against Paying Bill.

On the recommendation of the finance committee, the council voted not to pay a bill of the New York Trust company, ruling that the bill is against the gas and electric department.

The quarterly report of Fire Marshal H. L. Stanton, showing 26 permits issued at owners' valuation of $205,318, the quarterly report of Chief Linton of the police department, the street commissioner's monthly report, the city treasurer's monthly report, and the quarterly cash statement of the water department were all presented and accepted without reading.

The police commissioners reported having granted petitions for bug lights on Whittington avenue and Summit street.

A deed from Emma E. Rodier conveying a sewer right on Joseph Perkins road to the city was presented by Alderman Edward Crooks for the fire commissioners and accepted.

The sum of $500 was voted for expenses in the dedication of the World war memorial on Armistice day.

A communication from the Eastern Connecticut Power company, which has already been published in the newspapers, was presented, accepted, and placed on file. This referred to the recent action of the common council in turning down the offer of the Power company to sell electricity to the city or buy the municipal gas and electric plant.

Invitation to Dedication.

The council accepted an invitation from the parade committee of the World war memorial dedication to take part in the parade and exercises on Armistice day.

It also accepted an invitation from the Rotary club to take lunch with the club this (Wednesday) noon and hear a talk on fire prevention.

Alderman Crooks of the fire commissioners invited the council to visit the new Joseph Perkins road fire station after the special meeting on the evening of the 20th. This was accepted.

Claims Presented.

The following claims were presented and referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel: Cornelius Collins, $300 for injury received on Union square; St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, for care of Patrick Fitzgerald, July 15 to Oct. 1, at $25 per week, $275, operating room $20, medicine $6.25, massage $68; Mrs. Vera C. Neale, 30 Warren street, $150 damage to automobile by tree falling on it.

On Recreation Commission.

Mayor Waters announced the reappointment of Richard Lewis as a member of the recreation commission for seven years, succeeding himself.

DINNER AND GIFT TO FRANCIS P. BENT

A dinner for Hon. Francis P. Bent, formerly of this city, was given Saturday evening at the country club of the Crescent Athletic club, Shore Road, Brooklyn, N. Y., by the Masonic committee, of which Mr. Bent was chairman, which was appointed to entertain the Masonic delegates at the national democratic convention last June in New York.

After meeting at Mr. Bent's office in the municipal building, the committee motored to the Crescent club with a motorcycle escort of two New York policemen, making a non-stop run of the ten miles to the club house.

The club furnished an excellent dinner, the table being prettily decorated with flowers and cigars. Toastmaster Charles W. Philipbar in a well chosen speech presented Mr. Bent a handsome present in behalf of the committee. Mr. Bent responded in his usual good natured way, telling them that he had three former Norwich men on this Masonic committee which insured success. These men were Charles A. Beach, William B. Klein and Howard C. Russ. Toastmaster Philipbar then called on the different members of the committee who responded, causing a lot of merriment. The committee that attended the dinner was as follows: Hon. Francis P. Bent, chairman; Charles W. Philipbar, vice chairman; Hugh W. Taylor, vice chairman; Harold V. Brockway, secretary; Hon. Herman A. Metz, William R. Edrington, William B. Klein, C. C. Mollenhauer, Adolph E. Gutgsell, Edward F. Knecht, Moses Symington, Edward J. Smith, Howard C. Russ, Charles Tilgner, Theodore R. Maxwell, Col. Paul Loeser, Charles F. Lawlor, John A. Derthick, Charles A. Beach, Paul K. Meehan, A. I. Nova, William N. George, Thomas J. Towers, Charles H. Schroeder, William H. Miller, Brooks Gulager.

OPENING GYM SEASON AT NORWICH Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium classes will begin their organized activities this week and indications are that the present season will surpass last season in both interest and attendance.

The feature activity to be organized this week will be an athletic contest to be known as the "Y" Olympic games. Teams will be organized in the various classes and competition in standard athletic events and games will be conducted to determine the association's champion athletes.

Business men, Monday, Thursdays, 5.15-6; business men, Monday, Thursdays, 8.15-9.15; seniors, Tuesdays, Fridays, 8.15-9.0; older boys, Monday, Wednesday and Fridays, 3-4; junior boys, Tuesdays, Thursdays, 4-5, Saturday 10 a. m.; employed boys, Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays, 7-8; leaders' clubs, Tuesdays, Thursdays', Fridays.

All the boy members of the association will have liberal use of the big swimming pool, there being special hours and special swimming activities, at which there will be adult supervision of the pool. In addition to the gym classes there will be a program of all-round physical education work by the association physical department which is under the direction of E. J. Fritz.

MAKES $1,000 BEQUEST TO CHRIST CHURCH

The will of Mrs. Priscilla M. Adams, who died at her home on Broadway Sept. 25 in her 93d year, has been filed in the probate court. In addition to personal bequests to relatives there is one of $1,000 to Christ Episcopal church parish of this city.

The largest personal bequest is for $1,000 to a Norwich woman. There are several of $500 each to relatives in Essex. The bequests, both public and personal, in the aggregate amount to $7,000 or $8,000.

MISS CANTY TO TEACH AT WATERBURY SCHOOL

Miss Fennessey Canty, of Church street, Norwich, a former teacher at Norwich Free Academy, has resigned at Dedham, Mass. Commercial High school, and November 1st is to begin her new duties at the million dollar Wilby High school in Waterbury.

This model school was built in 1920, has fifty teachers and 850 pupils.

Miss Canty, who the past summer won her degree of Bachelor of Business Administration at Boston University, is to have charge of the typewriting department of instruction at Wilby. The Waterbury school ranks high for the fine salaries paid its faculty members.

Y. M. C. A. Opening Reception.

Invitations have been sent out to the opening reception of the Young Men's Christian Association, which will be held Wednesday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock at the association building on Main street. The social committee, N. Eugene Smith, Arthur F. Wyman and Charles L. Stewart, has arranged a programme that includes music by Swahn's orchestra, vocal solos by Frederick J. Maples, flute solos by Joshua Heap, swimming exhibition and refreshments.

HEAD OF MISSION BAND IS A NOTED PREACHER

Opening the week day mission exercises for the women of St. Patrick's parish, the head of the missionaries from Philadelphia, Rev. Father Hartnett, of the Holy Ghost Order, gave the instruction to an interested congregation at the 8 o'clock mass Monday.

Father Hartnett, who was born in Ireland, was educated in France and is a noted linguist. His brief sermon Monday was on the first commandment—"I am the Lord, thy God; thou shalt not have strange gods before Me." His topic was the duty of Christians to worship God; through prayer and sacrifice. We know God through faith, that grace infused in the soul at baptism. Having faith, it is man's duty to obey God's commandments. It is easy for Catholics to have the faith, since theirs is the true church, founded by Christ and teaching today all he taught. Faith is the most priceless of the Christian's possessions—and for it the forefathers of many in the parish were ready to give up life itself.

Believing theirs the true faith, the preacher pointed out that Catholics are forbidden to attend services in any other church; that they do wrong when, as he expressed it, they "attempt marriage before a clergyman outside the church."; it is sinful for them to manifest any belief in superstitious practices, etc. He touched up humorously a number of the common signs and omens in which so many believe—or appear to believe—calling everything of the kind displeasing to the Almighty.

Father Hartnett was the speaker at the Sunday evening service also, when there was a large congregation of women present. His thoughtful and scholarly sermon was on "The Meaning of Life." Why are we on the earth? he questioned. Giving the answer, "To save our souls." Salvation is the only thing that counts, he declared.

In order to make certain of eternity we must serve God faithfully here on earth—and we must serve Him every day of our lives.

True, it may be said that God does not actually compel us to serve Him here. But reason teaches us that in the next life there are two kingdoms—the Kingdom of God's love and the Kingdom of God's anger. It is in this world that we make our choice between them—for the choice is irrevocable in eternity.

Associated with Father Hartnett in giving the local mission are Fathers O'Brien and O'Loughlin.

Today (Tuesday) at 4 p. m. they begin a mission of three days for the parish children. Each evening crowds are attending the exercises, the great assemblage of women joining heartily in congregational singing of familiar hymns, before and after the missionary instruction and sermon.

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL TO HAVE INSTALLATION

White Cross Council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, has made extensive plans for a large and enthusiastic meeting tonight (Tuesday) to mark the installation of a new board of officers. The installation ceremonies, in all its impressiveness will be under the direction of District Deputy John F. Hennon of Jewett City and his assistants.

The meeting will be called to order by the retiring grand knight, Francis T. Diggins, who will turn the meeting over to the installing officer. The board of officers who will be installed is as follows:

Grand knight, M. Frank Leonard; deputy grand knight, Thomas F. Shea; chancellor, Henry Gorman; financial secretary, Joseph E. Burns; recording secretary, Michael J. Kirby; warden, Howard Ryan; inner guard, Louis A. Combies; outer guard, Patrick M. Coleman; advocate, M. J. Corcoran; trustee, Walter G. Casey.

After having been regularly inducted into office, Grand Knight Leonard will announce the membership of the various committees and give an outline of the proposed activities of the council for the ensuing year.

At the conclusion of the business session an entertainment in the form of a smoker will be provided. Refreshments will be served and a number of specialties will be introduced, and it is expected that there will be an enjoyable time for all who attend.

The retiring grand knight, Francis T. Diggins has had a most successful administration. During his term of office, the council has made a great deal of progress both in the way of an increase in membership and in an improvement of the financial condition of the organization. He relinquishes his office, assured of the good will of the entire membership, which has supported him enthusiastically in all his understakings, and made possible, whatever progress has been made during his term as grand knight.

SAILORS PAY COSTS FOR DISTURBING DANCE

Charges of intoxication and causing a disturbance at a dance in Taftville against three sailors from the submarine base were nolled in the city court Monday morning on payment of $7 each, actual costs. Two other men were fined for intoxication, one paying his bill and the other going to jail.

Charles Hertle of Baltic, charged with intoxication, who was out on bond of $30, failed to appear and the bond was called.

John Brewer, arrested Saturday night on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace got a sentence of 20 days in jail. This was his third appearance in the city court within two months. When presented July 19 he was given a six months continuance with the understanding that if he were in court again he would have to go to jail. He was given ten days on the charge preferred against Saturday night and ten days on the previous charge. He was arrested after he had knocked over one of the city's "no parking signs" in front of the Thayer building.

Konstantine Rashkevick of this city was given a fine of $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. He paid his fine which with the costs amounted to $35.10. His driver's license had an endorsement on it showing he had been fined on Sept. 15 in the Franklin town court for driving while intoxicated.

YOM KIPPUR HOLIDAY TO BEGIN AT SUNDOWN

Yom Kippur or Day of Atonement, considered the most solemn of the Jewish high holy days will be observed commencing at sun-down today (Tuesday) to continue until nightfall Wednesday. During that 25 hour period, Jews the world over abstain from eating or drinking in atonement for the sins they or their brethren have committed during the year. Both orthodox and reform synagogues are always filled on Tuesday night, when the Kol Nidre prayer opens the services and Wednesday up to the blowing of the shofar or ram's horn, which brings the atonement day to a close.

The next Jewish holiday is Succoth, or feast of Tabernacles, which commences next Sunday night and lasts eight days. Orthodox Jews observe the first two and last two days of the holiday, but in reform temples only the first and eighth days are celebrated.

FORMER WARRIORS BELIEVE IN COMPLETE DISARMAMENT

General Varraux of France and Van Schoenaich of Germany at World Peace Congress in Berlin Declared That Only Complete General Disarmament Would Save the World —General Verraux Urged a General Strike Against War —General Von Schoenaich Asserted That Officers Who Still Cling to Militaristic Ideals Are "Either Fools or Cowards"

Berlin, Oct. 7 (By the A. P.)—Today's session of the world peace congress was thrilled by the presence on the speakers' platform of two generals who opposed each other at the front in the World war but who now entertain the same ideals regarding peace. Both generals told the congress that their personal experiences of war horrors made them convinced pacifists.

The two "peaceful warriors" were General Verraux of France, commander of the Sixth army division during the recent hostilities and now professor in a French military academy, and General Von Schoenaich of Germany, who was active on the Rumanian front during the war and who is now head of the Republican guards.

Both generals told the congress that partial gradual disarmament was impractical and declared that only complete general disarmament would save the world.

Wars today are a matter of technique and machinery," asserted General Verraux, "not of armies or military drill. Therefore a little army is quite as dangerous as a big one, because it can handle technical war equipment quite as efficiently. The League of Nations scheme for partial gradual disarmament is not going far enough. The scheme for neutral zones is impracticable technically. Future wars, with gas and germs, will wipe out European civilization if permitted to break out."

In closing, General Verraux urged a general strike against war, even including a strike of generals.

General Schoenaich accused the officers of the old regime who still cling to the old militaristic ideals of being "either fools or cowards" and criticized the German government for not opposing the nationalists enough.

He conceded that the League of Nations may need a small police force temporarily until world disarmament, both materially and mentally, is completed, but he insisted that in the interim all private manufacture of arms and munitions must be forbidden.

Senator Henri La Fontaine, president of the congress, believes that Geneva will soon become the federal district of the world. He is the initator of a movement to persuade Switzerland to donate a strip of three or four miles square, surrounding Geneva, to the League of Nations, this district to be extra-territorial.

"Preliminary negotiations convinced me," said Senator La Fontaine, "that the plan is practicable and that the Swiss government will not be averse. I expect that the federal district of the world would be a reality in 1930, when the tenth anniversary of the birth of the League of Nations is celebrated."

In addition the peace congress president believes that The Hague court will be moved to Geneva, as will be the Universal Postal union and all other international government agencies.

LUNCHEON BY DEM. WOMEN'S CLUB HOTEL GARDE, HARTFORD

Hartford Oct. 7.—Governor William J. Brown, of West Virginia and W. Brankson, of Alabama Mrs. Izetta Charles G. Morris, of New Haven, democratic candidate for governor, were enthusiastically greeted by about two hundred men and women at a luncheon held in the Hotel Garde here today. The luncheon was held under the auspices of the Hartford-ese Democratic Women's club and Mrs. Mary Curry, president of the presided. Mr. Morris said in

A protective tariff fiend has no decent symptoms from an opium fiend when it seems likely that his pet dope will be withdrawn. The parallel symptoms are appearing and will become more noticeable every day as this national campaign progresses.

What indication have, we that the government of Connecticut and of the nation is being developed away from the ideals of popular freedom which produced these new world colonies some three hundred years ago? The ideals were liberty of conscience, liberty of political thought, freedom of speech absence or race prejudice.

We have the klan which has not been repudiated by any republican candidate, especially and conspicuously the candidate for president. Shame on his cowardly silence, for nothing but cowardice causes men to hide their faces or their motives in political affairs and the klan is openly a cowardly political body and the republican presidential candidate has now presented himself openly as a cowardly political candidate. I once honored him highly for having the courage of his convictions whether I always agreed with him or not. Can anybody honor him any longer on that score? The republicans of the state seem to have followed his synonimous lead.

How much has political favoritism cost the consumers of Connecticut? Nobody can count or rehearse all the items. Here are samples: Favored banks get the deposit of state money at cost, more than half the price they will bid for deposits from private customers. Such banks paid only about half rate interest. Who got the other half?

"A business house which discounts its bills within ten days can get 2 per cent discount on them. I challenge republican spokesmen to show from the state's public records how much discount the state of Connecticut got on its purchases, which should under efficient business management be easily recoverable."

BAN ON RUSH AT WORCESTER POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 7.—President Ira N. Hollis of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, who returned to his duties yesterday after an illness in a hospital here, announced to the students today that unless the president of the sophomore class resigns, the flag rush between the sophomores and the freshmen will not be permitted this year. This announcement resulted from a recent public hazing of the freshmen by the sophomores in front of city hall and in the streets surrounding it, where such large crowds assembled to see the sport that traffic was obstructed. Dr. Hollis informed the sophomore class leaders that he had received many complaints from officials and others about the hazing and he considered it a disgrace to the institution. A meeting of the sophomore class has been called for tomorrow and it is expected among the students today that if the punishment of the sophomore president is insisted on by President Hollis, there will be a students' strike.

LAFOLLETTE TALKS OF AN ENORMOUS SLUSH FUND

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 7.—Senator Robert M LaFollette announced in an address here tonight that he had demanded an immediate and searching investigation by the senate campaign expenditures committee to determine whether the republican national committee is raising "an enormous slush fund" to be expended "in buying the election in doubtful states."

MRS. TELL FACES TRIAL ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Middletown, Oct. 7.—Mrs. Johanna Tell, self-confessed slayer of her employer, Charles F. Blair, of Killingworth, on April 7 last faced a jury in Middlesex superior court today when her trial began on a charge of manslaughter. Twice a grand jury had failed to bring in a true bill of murder against her. Mrs. Tell, who appeared to be at ease during the first day's session, was accompanied by her daughter. Judge Arthur F. Ells presided and after the defendant had pleaded not guilty and the jury had been sworn in, State's Attorney Ernest A. Inglis began the presentation of evidence.

Louis Quirk of this city, an architect, was the first witness and he submitted maps of the Blair farm and vicinity. Dwight Spencer, of this city, a photographer, presented photographs giving similar information to the jury.

Thomas Sullivan, a New York detective sergeant, who was present in the office of Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohen of the Bronx, New York, on April 10, when Mrs. Tell was taken there by her uncle, and who heard the woman's confession at that time, told the jury what Mrs. Tell had said at that time. Abraham Evans, a stenographer in Mr. Cohen's office, who took down in short-hand Mrs. Tell's confession, was the next witness.

Charles F. Armstrong of New York, also a detective sergeant, who also was present when the confession was given, testified that Mrs. Tell had been questioned at the time regarding the crime and what had been done with Blair's body. She drew a diagram on a piece of yellow paper, the witness said, showing where she had hidden the body. He said he came to Killingworth the next day and found the body.

Questioned by State's Attorney Inglis regarding the confession, Sergeant Armstrong said that Mrs. Tell had told him that Blair had stood on one side of a table in the kitchen and she on the other when she fired the shot that killed him. She did not say anything about Blair threatening her, the witness said. According to her confession she got the gun from a pantry while Blair was in the back yard fixing a screen door, the witness said, and after she had fired the shot she hid the gun in a sweater.

Medicinal Whiskey Liberally Sampled

White Star Office Is Unable to Explain How "Samples" Had Been Taken From Shipment.

London, Oct. 7.—A shipment of 2,400 cases of whiskey brought from New York by the liner Adriatic, which arrived at Liverpool Saturday, is found to have been liberally sampled, acording to the correspondent of the Westminster Gazette who gives a White Star line official as his authority.

The consignment was part of one of 5,000 cases sent to America for medical purposes two years ago. It lay on the quay in New York for some time and was then placed in bond but was never cleared, because if the duty had been paid the price would have been higher than that received for bootig whiskey. The paper's informant said the liquor would be sold by the Liverpool firm to which it was returned.

HAD BEEN KEPT IN BONDED WAREHOUSE TWO YEARS

New York, Oct. 7.—White Star line officials were at a loss today to explain how "samples" had been taken from a shipment of whiskey which left New York on the Adriatic September 27, as reported in London dispatches.

The 5,000 cases received two years ago had been kept in a bonded warehouse rather than on a quay, the line's offices announced. A few days before the Adriatic sailed, it was said, cases were taken to the pier by truck under guard, each case wired and sealed by the customs authorities. They were placed in the lower hold and covered with several layers of baled cotton. Then the hatches were sealed.

The company asserted that the cases were received as sealed packages and shipped as such.

WESTWARD FLIGHT OF DIRIGIBLE SHENANDOAH

Aboard Shenandoah, Oct. 7—9 p. m.—Ideal air sailing weather prevailed through the first 12 hours of the nine thousand mile voyage of the big navy dirigible from coast to coast. Winds which are not felt on the surface were met in the upper level of the sky between one thousand and three thousand feet. At 1 p. m. the ship was driving straight into a 12-mile-an-hour current, all five motors were going, the immense gas filled tube, with its cabin and power gondolas, was riding as smoothly as if in a bed of feathers, gonig at 40 miles an hour. The ship at that time had crossed the James river at Lynchburg. Aboard the big ship, limited as to quarters, and with everything stripped down to the minimum of weight, the routine went on like any naval ship at sea. Green lights hung on port and her starboard lights glowed through the opal windows of the control cabin forward and from the five motors cabin along the side the hum of the motors reached to the shadowed surface fo fields, hills and forests beneath.

The Delaware river was reached at 11.25 a. m., Wilmington 20 minutes later, Baltimore at 1.25 p. m. and Washington at 2.10 p. m., the ship going over the national capital close to the ground at a speed of 55 miles an hour.

For the next six hours the Shenandoah was crossing Virginia. Orange, Va., was crossed at 3.58 p. m., Charlottesville at 4.35 p. m., Esmort at 5 p. m., Norwood at 5.30 p. m., and the valley of the James river followed until Lynchburg was below, just as daylight was fading. Danville, the last town covered on the Virginia side, twinkled back into the distance as the ship hummed on through the darkness at 8.15 p. m.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 8.—The Shenandoah passed over Dallas, N. C., more than 25 miles southwest of Charlotte, at 12.36, according to reports to the Southern Railway offices here, having passed some 20 miles to the northwestward of Charlotte.

TORRINGTON TRUCK DRIVER KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

New Britain, Oct. 7.—Flaviano Gervansini of Torrington, driver of an automobile truck owned by Wescott & Holley of Torrington, was instantly killed here this afternoon when the truck, carrying a load of crushed stone, was struck on the Worcester street crossing by a Danbury to Hartford train due in New Britain at 3.35.

The engineer of the train, Isaac C. Steiner, of 38 Stanley street, East Hartford, said he did not see the man or truck until the crash. Fireman Maurice Sullivan of 29 Adams street, Hartford, and Conductor James Hughes were the other members of the train crew. As far as could be learned, there were no witnesses to the accident.

Parts of the truck and the four or five tons fo stone were scattered along the track for a distance of 1,000 feet.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE FOR BROKER WILMATH

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 7—Clifford H. Wilmath, 45, former wealthy Syracuse stock broker, today pleaded guilty of an indictment charging grand larceny, first degree, and was sentenced to three years in Auburn state prison.

Wilmath was apprehended late in July at Winthrop, Mass., after a year's search. Previous he had been convicted in several cities on charges of defrauding hotels. The charge to which he pleaded guilty today was based on fraudulent passing of a check in 1922. He is a graduate of a western university.

MYSTERIOUS MURDERS IN TWO BAY STATE CITIES

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 7—The district attorneys of Essex and Middlesex counties conferred today in an effort to solve as one, two crime mysteries in their respective jurisdictions.

Similarity in method of disposing of the body of Frederick A. Clements, garage proprietor of Burlington, In Middlesex which was found in the Shawsheen river at Bedford last on Thursday weighted down with automobile parts, and the body of an unidentified man who was recovered two days later from a mill pond in North Beverly, Essex county, also with automobile parts attached to it, led the authorities to believe that the same persons were responsible for the two murders.

Another Attack on Shanghai Impends

Reinforcements Are Being Rushed Southward to Check the Latest Aggressors.

Shanghai, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—The Chekiang province armies today were threatened with loss of the city of Shanghai for the second time within a month and were rushing reinforcements southward to check the latest aggressions of their Kiangsu enemies.

Although Red Cross units who had been following up the fighting near Sungkiang, 28 miles to the southwest on the Shanghai-Hangchow railway line, were brought back to Shanghai today, defense headquarters at Lungwha, south of the city, denied there had been any Chekiang retreat in the Sungkiang sector.

It was admitted however, that the situation around Sungkiang, where the combined Kiangsu - Anwhei - Fukien forces have almost surrounded the city, was serious. It also was admitted that reserves were being rushed toward Sungkiang to check the encircling movement of the enemy.

An official statement from Lungwha declared that the Kiangsu troops around Sungkiang were handicapped by lack of ammunition, because Wu Pei-Fu, military commander in chief of the central government at Peking, to which the three provinces of the Kiangsu, Anhwei and Fukien owe allegiance, had ordered the munitions diverted to the north where he is fighting General Chang Tso-Lin of Manchuria.

CITY POWER FAILING CRIPPLES BULLETIN MECHANICAL PLANT

The Bulletin's linotype machines and newspaper plant were crippled completely this morning about 1:45 o'clock by the loss of electric power from the city's gas and electric plant.

Superintendent Pierce was brought from his home at 3 o'clock in the morning in an effort to restore the service from the city electric power, but the Bulletin machines were not able to resume again until 3:25 when steam had been raised in its own auxiliary plant.

That accounts for late papers, missed mail and omitted news this morning.

WGAES OF ALL PUTNAM NAT'L BANK EMPLOYES REDUCED

Putnam, Oct. 7.—Acting on an order from the comptroller of the currency at Washington, George W. Coffin, receiver of the wrecked First National bnak, closed after its cashier, former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric had attempted suicide on Aug. 7, has reduced the wages of all of the employes connected with the bank from the assistant cashier down to the janitor, in the latter case the cut is one of 50 per cent. The bank employes, twelve in number, have been retained since the bank closed its doors and have been at work tabulating the 4,700 claims against the institution.

Miss Fannie Barber of Ellington, Conn., sole heir at law of the estate of the late Mary Gardner, of which Gilpatric was executor, has been appointed administrator of the estate by the Putnam probate court, Gilpatric having been removed upon application of Miss Barber. In the last report of the executor a shortage of $35,000 was disclosed. The estimated net value of the estate is $80,000.

Gilpatric is making preparations to come to New Haven next week, when he will be put to plea in court. He will make the trip by automobile and is being taken on automobile rides every evening so that he will be in good condition for the journey. The party will leave Putnam Wednesday and stop over night in Meriden, continuing on to New Haven Thursday morning.

BODY NOT THAT OF THE MISSING GUY A. RICE

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 7—The first clue to the identity of a man whose body was found last Saturday in Norwood Pond, North Beverly, weighted with heavy chain and automobile cylinder heads, failed today when A. H. Rice of Springfield, after examining the clothing and photographs, declared the body was not that of his son, Guy A. Rice, who disappeared a month ago.

Young Rice was assistant cashier of the American Thread Company of Holyoke. The day after he left his home he wrote a letter to his wife from Boston intimating that he intended to commit suicide.

SIR JAMES CRAIG'S VIEWS ON IRISH BOUNDARY QUESTION

Belfast, Oct. 7.—Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, at the opening of parliament today, said that if the British parliament passed the Irish bill, and the boundary was finally fixed so that it would be acceptable to Ulster, "well and good." On the other hand, he declared, no matter who was named as the third member of the boundary commission if the decision was not acceptable to Ulster, he would not hesitate a moment, if there were no other honorable way out, to resign and place himself at the disposal of the people, no longer as premier but as the chosen leader to defend any territory which they might consider had been unfairly transferred from Ulster. Great Britain and the flag of the empire.

TRUE SENTIMENT OF NATION COOLIDGE'S ELECTION DESIRE

Believes the Efforts of the Republican Party Should Be Directed Toward Getting Out the Vote—Is Satisfied With Trend of the Campaign—Encouraging Reports on the Business Outlook Were Reported to the President at the Cabinet Meeting Yesterday—Coolidge is Attending Strictly to His Executive Duties.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Republican party efforts should be directed, in the opinion of President Coolidge, toward getting out the vote at this election. He has told party leaders that organization should be directed to this end, that the true sentiment of the nation may be registered in November.

Reports reaching the White House today indicated a shortage of funds, it was said, but the president expressed satisfaction over the trend of the campaign.

Turning his attention to government business almost exclusively today, Mr. Coolidge directed the tariff commission to prepare additional data in regard to its report, favoring a cut in the sugar duty and submit figures comparing the costs of sugar production in Cuba and this country.

The president made it clear that in reaching a decision on the sugar duty he would insist on protection of the sugar beet industry of this country from any combinations which might arise in Cuba or elsewhere with the purpose of controlling sugar prices.

Encouraging reports on the business outlook were presented to the president at the cabinet meeting this afternoon. Secretary Davis said employment was becoming more plentiful in most sections of the country. Postmaster General New reported postal receipts, in the industrial cities particularly, had increased about 11 per cent the past month.

Inquiries on the report of the federal trade commission to the senate charging unfair practices and price-fixing by some manufacturers of household furnishings, with some of which the Aluminum company of America is affiliated, brought a declaration at the White House that the report had not been received there. Such reports usually do not go to the White House, it was added. Attorney General Stone said he had not received the report, which was made public last Sunday, but declared he was ready to act if the commission statement warranted.

235 ALIENS PLACED UNDER ARREST IN PATERSON

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 7.—Mayor McLean tonight directed City Counsel Edward F. Merrey to take up immediately with the department of justice the matter that proceedings to have deported 235 aliens who all have been placed under arrest since the silk strike began over eight weeks ago. Included in this number are eight men arrested last night in the rioting at the City Hall plaza when the police refused to permit a mass meeting called by Roger Baldwin of the American Civil Liberties league.

Police tonight were out in force to prevent any attempt to hold meetings of strikers. The Associated Silk Workers, today, disclaiming responsibility for last night's meeting and rioting, asserted that the meeting was called by Baldwin without authority of the Silk Workers. Baldwin and John C. Buterworth, arrested for inciting to riot and unlawful assemblage, were held in $500 bail for action of the Passaic county grand jury. Cases against Alice and Louise Kimbal, the women who led the procession to the City hall last night, and eight other prisoners arrested at the same time, were adjourned by Recorder Force until Thursday morning.

OF INTEREST TO AUTO AND GARAGE OWNERS

New Haven, Oct. 7—A decision of interest to automobile and garage owners in this state was handed down by Judge John R. Booth in criminal common pleas court today in the case of Valentino Pascale, wherein the court ruled that no person can be successfully prosecuted for the possession of a car, the numbers of which have been tempered with, unless the prosecution can show that the owner had knowledge of the condition. Pascale was arrested and his car seized, the charge being that the engine number had been changed.

Counsel for Pascale countered with the claim that when an owner had no knowledge of the tampering and was not a party to it, no criminal action could allow. The city court imposed a penalty and an appeal was taken to the common pleas court.

GOLD BOND ISSUES FOR 28 MUNICIPALITIES OF FINLAND

New York, Oct. 7.—Public offering will be made by a local banking syndicate tomorrow of a combined $7,000,000 offering of thirty year sinking fund 6 1-2 per cent. external gold bonds of 28 municipalities of Finland. The price is 91 and interest to yield over 7.23 per cent.

The issue consists of two series, one of $3,900,000 covering 27 associated municipalities and the other of $3,100,-000 covering the city of Helsingfors. More than half of the proceeds will be used for the funding of outstanding short term indebtedness, and the remainder largely for capital expenditures such as harbor improvements and extension and the construction of water works and electric light plants.

NORWICH MAN PRESENTED BEFORE MOOSUP COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Moosup, Oct. 7.—Leon Sackner of Norwich, who was arrested there on a complaint alleging the issue of a check for $960 for which there are "no funds" in the bank, was presented at a justice hearing here Saturday.

The complaint was made by the Specialty supply Co., of this place.

The case was continued to Oct. 16 and Sackner gave bonds of $500 for his appearance.

CANDIDATE DAVIS MAKES AN ADDRESS IN UTICA

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 7—Theories of the government represented by the three leading political parties of the country were analyzed today by John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president in a brief noon address here. The democratic party stood foremost for equality, the republican party for special interests and the LaFollette-Wheeler believers for the discard of the constitution and the giving to congress the supreme power of government, Mr. Davis said.

JACKIE COOGAN DECORATED BY THE GREEK GOVERNMENT

Athens, Oct. 7—Jackie Coogan, American child moving picture actor, was today decorated by the Greek government with a medal of an officer of the Order of George, given in recognition of humanitarian work. It was the first time this medal has ever been given to a child.

PROCEEDINGS IN MURDER TRIAL OF ROLAND POTHIER

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 7.—Roland Pothier, on trial in federal court here for the murder of Major Alexander Cronkhite, was curious as to the difference between "killing" and "murdering" a man, David N. Jordan of Providence, R. I., testified today.

Jordan, who formerly was a deputy United States marshall at Providence said that he never heard Pothier admit murdering Major Cronkhite. Other witnesses have testified that Pothier made such an admission.

Jordan, said, however, that he had heard Pothier ask:

"Can't you kill a man without murdering him?"

Ralph Navarro of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Frederick S. Hoeckley, of New York, special agents of the department of justice at the time Pothier was first arrested in March, 1921, preceded Jordan on the stand. Both of them said that Pothier in their presence and with Jordan present, declared in a New York city restaurant on March 25, 1921 that he had killed Major Cronkhite at the instigation of Robert Rosenbluth.

Jordan said he had no remembrance of "any of the stuff" Navarro and Hoeckley narrated.

Navarro testified that Pothier while in the restaurant said that Major Cronkhite was a "pretty good fellow but that Rosenbluth had a strange power over him."

Much of the morning session had to do with the removal of Pothier from Providence to New York city, in March, 1921.

New Head Of American Legion

James A. Drain, lawyer, of Washington, D. C., who was elected National Commander of the American Legion at the annual convention, in St. Paul. Colonel Drain was formerly Commander of the District of Columbia, Dept. of the Legion and was a member of the National Executive Committee and of the Board of Directors of the American Legion Weekly. Born in Warren City, Ill., September 30, 1870, Col. Drain practiced law in Nebraska, Washington State, New York, and now in the Capital. His military career began in the National Guard in Washington (State) where he rose from private to brigadier general. He was a captain during the Spanish-American war and served during the World War as Ordnance Officer of the Tank Corps and as a member of the Anglo-American Tank Commission. He is now Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Guard Association and President of the National Rifle Association.

WILLIMANTIC

The first monthly supper of Willimantic Chamber of Commerce was held in the chamber rooms Tuesday evening about 75 members being in attendance. The fine supper was followed by a general sing, led by Charles H. Caswell, with Mrs. A. J. Dubreuil at the piano. A short business session was then held, at which President James P. Bath presided. President Bath in a short speech brought before the members some of the things in the line of work and pleasure which the chamber should accomplish this season, the work being revision of the city charter, pavement of some of the principal streets, the proposition of a new hotel and inducing new industries to locate here. In the line of pleasure, he spoke of the splendid rooms and the advantages of them and suggested that pool and card tournaments could be arranged the coming season. The application for membership of Henry Fryer and Stanley J. Sumner were read and both were elected to membership. The meeting was then turned over to the chairman of the entertainment committee, Augustus Greene, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Clinton Hale, from the general managers' office of the Western Union Telegraph Co. Mr. Hale's subject was Time and How to Save More of It. He laid stress upon the time saved by the using the telegram instead of the ordinary letter by mail. He also gave some interesting figures on the cost of letters as compared with telegram. He said that the average time consumed in transporting a letter from the writer to addressee is 24 hours, which does not compare at all with the short time of the telegram. As to the cost, the average telegram, he said, costs 30 cents, the average letter 90 cents. He went into some detail pointing out the expense of letter writing, mentioning the dictator's time, stenographer, office boy, stationary and postage. He said that the cost of the telegram was very small compared to the value of time saved. At the close of his address Mr. Hale was given a rising vote of thanks by the members.

A record for opening attendance was established by the evening school on Tuesday night in the Windham High school building. The total registration was 220. A start was made in all departments with the exception of commercial correspondence, which will begin during the week.

There appears to be a demand for instructions in cooking and sewing, which courses are to be taught by the same teacher as last year, Miss Minnie McCracken. The sessions are in charge of Lawrence King of the high school faculty, who is acting principal of the night school. There will be classes in arithmetic, typewriting, stenography, bookkeeping and grammar. Miss Veronica McQuillan is teaching bookkeeping and Miss Muriel Gelinas stenography and typewriting. Miss Elizabeth has charge of the grammar department, Miss Dorothy Devrin has the beginners' foreign class and Miss Frances Hyde the advanced foreign class.

The weekly meeting and luncheon of Willimantic Rotary club was held at noon Tuesday at the Hotel Hooker. President Harry W. Standish was in charge. Out of town guests of the club were Henry Starr of the Utica, N. Y., Rotary club, Herbert Sedgewick, of the New Haven Rotary club and Frank D. Dorrance of Montreal, Canada. It was announced that an attendance campaign would start on Tuesday, Oct. 14, to continue to the middle of December. There will be two contesting teams, one captained by James P. Bath and the other by Aime J. Martineau. Dr. M. D. Riordan was in charge of the program at Tuesday's session and introduced Rev. Father Ledwith of Hartford, a LaSallette priest, who conducted a mission at St. Joseph's parish some time ago. Father Ledwith spoke on Columbus. His talk was both interesting and informing.

It is rumored in Willimantic music circles that there is a series of piano recitals by a noted artist planned for Sunday afternoons later in the season.

The steeplejacks employed in shingling the spire of St. Joseph's Catholic church expect to finish their work on Thursday. All the copper shingles have been laid from the top of the bell deck to the summit of the spire. This afternoon the steeplejacks expect to place the cross in position to top the spire.

The case of Lemuel Wilkes of Jersey street, Hartford, charged with reckless driving Sunday afternoon on Main street, booked for Tuesday morning's session of the police court, was continued to Saturday morning. An attorney for Wilkes telephoned from Hartford, asking for continuance which was granted.

Many from this city plan to motor to Warrenville to attend the bazaar given for the benefit of Rev. William J. Dunn's parish. The bazaar will be held in the new town hall which is considered a valuable asset to the town and which is large enough to accommodate more than two thousand persons. This will really be the first time the hall has been used since its dedication, a short time ago.

There will be a large number of names to be added to the voting list of the town of Windham for the coming national and state election, according to the registrars of voters —A. Linn Weatherhead and Thomas A. Shea. At 2 o'clock 325 applications had been filed. Saturday of this week the board of selectmen and the town clerk will be in session to administer the oath to qualified applicants to become electors. Another session for this purpose will be held Oct. 18.

Governor Templeton refused to comment Tuesday on the challenge of Representative Frank P. Fenton, of this city, democratic nominee for congressman from the Second district, that the governor repeat publicly what he told Mr. Fenton and another democrat privately some time ago about the republican party in Connecticut. As Mr. Fenton was minority leader of the house at the time it is believed that the executive sought the aid of the democrats in the legislature in carrying out certain of his policies.

The funeral of Mrs. Annette Dumas was held Tuesday morning from the family home, 166 Mansfield avenue, at 8.30 o'clock. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock was sung by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Papillon. The singing by the choir was directed by Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau who was at the organ. Solos were given by Mrs. D. Aubin, Mrs. M. Goodwin, Miss Florence Coutu, Miss Aubin and Joseph F. Gaudreau. The services were largely attended and the floral tributes were beautiful. The bearers were Arthur and Alfred Vertefeuille, Azaire Bertrand, Solomon Belanger, Amidee Arbour and Levi Goss. At the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery the committal service was read by Rev. Edward O. Mathieu. Arrangements were in charge of the Martineau-Bacon Co., Inc.

The funeral of Albert Pianta was held from the home of Stanley Jagelski, 32 Carey Hill, Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock. Requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. Paul Bartlewski. As the body was borne into the church Miss L. Monica McKeon sang Abide With Me, at the offertory, Pie Jesu and for a waiting hymn, Some Sweet Day. Mrs. Esther Portelance was at the organ. The bearers were Frank and John Syzdek, Andrew Keleta, Isadore Rafael, Michael Stygar and Simon Staraczik. At the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery the committal prayers were read by Rev. Father Bartlewski. Relatives and friends were present from Norwich, Jewett City, New London, Bridgeport, Hartford and Springfield.

WINDHAM

A brief C. E. meeting was held in the chapel Sunday evening by Mrs. Annie T. Light, followed by a very interesting talk in the church in missionary work in India, China and Japan, given by Frank Warner of New York, a member of the Mission Board. Mr. Warner has recently returned from a trip around the world and his talk was illustrated by moving pictures, made from photos which he took. Mr. Warner was accompanied by Miss Abby Willard of Colchester, president of the Eastern Connecticut branch, R. B. F. M., who gave a brief address. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Warner who accompanied her husband on his world-wide trip will speak in the South Windham church and transportation will be provided for those who wish to go from Windham.

COLUMBIA

Miss Ruth Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Pollard of Willimantic, was the guest of Miss Lelia Seeley at Chestnut Hill Sunday.

Several wells which were low and some entirely dry before the big storm of last week are still in the same condition. One farmer goes some distance to a brook to get water for his stock, while others must wait for the water to accumulate before any quantity can be used and the pumps raise it very slowly, especially in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carpenter, who have been at their home for about ten days, left town Thursday for Indiana, where Mr. Carpenter has business interests.

Mrs. Belle Brown of Providence was a visitor recently at the home of Mrs. Julia Little on Woodward hill, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown spent the week end, with Mrs. Little, who has now gone to Hartford for the winter.

Mrs. Roland Smith has been spending the past week in Springfield visiting friends.

Miss Evelyn Lyman was leader at a recent Christian Endeavor meeting and not Howard Squier as stated.

Raymond E. Clarke was a Hartford visitor Wednesday and was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Hitchcock.

Employes of the state highway department were in town Saturday, smoothing the road from the center to the Hartford-Willimantic highway, with a heavily weighted plane, which had three rows of spikes to grind off the irregularities of the road, and a heavy iron bar to smooth it afterwards.

Miss Dorothy Burton of New Haven, who had been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Willard Clarke during the past week, returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Julia Little spent the week end at her home on Woodward hill, having as her guest her sister-in-law, Mrs. Horace Brown, of Providence.

Rev. C. C. Haun preached Sunday morning on Victory, the third sermon in a sequence, the subjects of the previous sermons being Vision and Vigilence.

The Christian Endeavor society held a consecration meeting Sunday evening, the leader being Miss Margaret Blakeley.

There is a movement to supply the towns of Andover, Columbia and Lebanon with the electric current, which the Rockville Willimantic Lighting Co., will furnish, provided a sufficient number of subscribers can be obtained.

The annual town meeting was held on Monday afternoon at Yeomans Hall attended by about 200 persons. Just as the meeting was being called to order by the Town Clerk, Gotlieb King who is very deaf persisted in delivering a harangue in German, which none understood, but evidently favored to taxation. He created considerable disorder and it was some time before he could be quieted, and when he was induced to go outside of the building he could still be distinctly heard. W. C. Robinson acted as chairman of the meeting and Hubert P. Colins, clerk. The reports of the selectmen, treasurer and school board were read and accepted, and recommendations adopted. It was moved and carried that $1,000 be added to the budget to be paid on account of the towns indebtedness, and that 2 1-2 mills be appropriated for schools. The repairs to the highways and the proposed sale of horse shed near the town hall were left to the selectmen. A motion to pass over any action in regard to the construction or completion of any portion of the Trumbull highway at present was carried. Suggestions were made that Columbia confer with the towns of Andover and Lebanon on the subject and report at a later meeting.

NEIGHBORLY KINDNESS AT LEONARD BRIDGE FARM

The Bulletin's Leonard Bridge correspondent writes:

At 9 o'clock Saturday morning people began to arrive at the home of George Chappell to help him and his son, Everett Chappell, harvest their potato crops. Charles Geer with his horse plowed out the potatoes and the men put in a busy day in the field, so that by night 170 bushels had been placed in the cellar at the Chappell home. At noon women friends and neighbors who had assembled served a fine dinner of baked beans, American chop suey, escalloped potatoes, escalloped sweet corn, pickles, pies, cake, coffee and other good things. During the afternoon Mr. Chappell served watermelon and sweet apples.

Mr. Chappell and son, Everett Chappell, are both in poor health. Mr. Chappell is only able to be around a little and his son, Everett Chappell, who gave up his position in Plainville last spring and came home to do the work on his father's farm, suffered a nervous breakdown several weeks ago and is still confined to his room the greater part of the time. Mr. Chappell has a field of one-half acre of potatoes and his son has two-thirds of his crop yet to harvest, so it is hoped that other farmers will join in giving a day's work to help them in their time of trouble to harvest the remainder of their crop. The affair was planned by Mrs. Leon Choquette and she spared no effort to make the day the complete succes that it was for most worthy cause. It was with deep appreciation that the Chappell family expressed their thanks to all as they departed homeward at the close of day. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. James Choquette, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Choquette and son, Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Schroedter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Geer and son, Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Cummings and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Geer, Mrs. C. L. Hinckley and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Madley and son and daughter, Charles Williams and son, Clarence Geer, David Walsh, Clayton Williams and the two Shaida boys.

Sprague Election Results

In the Sprague election returns on Tuesday morning Raymond J. Jodoin should have been given 369 votes instead of 269, and Terrence Coughlin, instead of Charles Coughlin was elected as one of the selectmen. In the vote for members of the school board the name of "Case" was written on 21 ballots that were polled.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Of interest in this territory is that the Woolen company plant of Tarkiln, R. I., was damaged by fire during the past week. A fire that originated in the carding room did the damage that resulted to the plant, aside from the water damage caused when the heat released the floods from the automotic sprinkler system. The Bragg Woolen company is named for Charles Bragg, of Central Worsted company, at Central Village. The plant was splendidly successful during the past winter and an industry of prime importance to the village in which it is located, a few miles east of Woonsocket. It is understood that the plant was not seriously damaged by the fire and water and that repairs will be made forthwith.

The happy laughter of romping children enjoying their recess period at the playgrounds of the Danielson graded school Monday afternoon, blended with the billowing cheers that came over the radio from hectic thousands watching the third baseball game of the World's series being played on the Polo grounds in New York. Sitting within earshot, one could not evade marveling over the scientific miracles of this day and age. The happening held a suggestion that the day may come for many now living when one may sit aside and know what one's neighbor thinks about him but on second thought, the chances are, that wouldn't be worth while.

"That ain't a one-man car," said a rural resident, in for the town election Monday, as a work car of the Connecticut Company, burdened with spare poles and a few tons of ropes, chains and other equipment moved slowly through the mess of traffic opposite the town hall. The visitor to town was right. No work car carrying 25-foot poles as one carries a golf bag is a one-man car. It simply can't be done.

Announcement was made Monday afternoon that Benjamin F. Leonard, of Ballouville, is to be the republican candidate for representative from the second district of Killingly. His name will be presented before the caucus to be held next week. Mr. Leonard is retired and lives in a home he built Ballouville a few years ago.

NORTH LYME

Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Miner, who have spent the past three months in East Lyme, have returned to their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey of New London were callers at W. M. Sisson's Thursday.

John Evans picked a pint of huckleberries Oct. 3 in prime condition.

Miss Gladys Stratton, home demonstration agent, Miss Edith Mason, clothing specialist, Miss Elsie Trabue, organizer of boys' and girls' clubs under the extension work of Storrs college were at the North Plain school Friday and organized a girls' club of seven members, with Mrs. W. M. Sisson, Jr. leader; Miss Dorothy Sisson, president; Miss Evelyn Maynard, secretary.

Mr. H. Strong, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Raymond attended Durham fair last week.

Mrs. G. H. Strong visited Miss Emily Mason Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sisson and Miss Jessie Sisson of Moodus, Mr. and Mrs. William Chappell of East Lyme were guests Sunday at W. M. Sisson's.

PUTNAM

Guy L. Baker, assistant cashier of the First National bank, has tendered his resignation. The resignation is now in the hands of the receiver, George H. Coffin. While no reason for the resignation has been made public, it has become generally known that there have been some substantial salary cuts among the employes of the bank. Mr. Baker's resignation takes effect the 15th of this month. He has been with the bank ever since he was graduated from high school, about ten years ago. He entered the bank as a clerk, became teller and was made assistant to Cashier G. Harold Gilpatric four or five years ago.

Mr. Baker states that he has no definite plans, except that he is going to take a rest of two or three weeks.

There will be no session of the superior court in Putnam today (Wednesday). The only case assigned was Maurice Foster vs. Irving W. Foot The case has been set ahead to Thursday on request of counsel for Foster, as Wednesday is a Hebrew holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett D. Packard are on a vacation, touring the White mountains by automobile.

A Main street dealer in radios put a loud speaker outside his store Tuesday, and a crowd of fans gathered to listen to the report of the world's series game, play by play.

One-twelfth of a dozen drunks necessitated the convening of the court across the river Tuesday morning. A jail sentence of 30 days was imposed, which appeared to satisfy the defendant, known as Buffalo Russell.

An automobile driven by a man from Burnside knocked down a couple of small boys on School street Tuesday. The lads picked themselves up and one of them ran away before his name was taken. The other received a slight bump. Parents should repeatedly caution children to stay on the sidewalks and not to use the street for a playground. Many accidents are caused by children suddenly dashing across the road without looking to see if there is a vehicle approaching.

The front part of the property of the Congregational church is being changed by men who began work Tuesday. The flight of wooden steps, one of the approaches to the front of the church, are being torn up and will not be replaced. All the sod is being removed from the embankment to Main street and the grade changed to a uniform slope. The place made vacant by the removal of the steps will be filled in and become a part of the front lawn. This will leave as the only entrance the walk from the street level, which has been more generally used than the flight of wooden stairs.

The pilgrimage of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., postponed some time ago, will take place Thursday. The plan is to drive to Southbridge to visit some of the colonial places of interest and then return to Woodstock. Here, through the courtesy of Mrs. Louis B. Southworth, the ladies will visit her home and be shown her collection of antiques. The party will leave from the home of Mrs. E. M. Warner, South Main street, at 10 a. m., and each will carry luncheon.

The Missionary society of the Congregational church held a meeting in the chapel Tuesday afternoon. The hostesses were Mrs. Oscar Ross and Miss Harriett Brown.

Now that the atmosphere has cleared following the town election, it is found that the voters ran true to form and rolled up the usual safe republican majority all along the line. There was a contest for the office of tax collector, if such it may be called, but it did not make a dent in the republican ranks. While it is true there was cutting of Miron in favor of McGarry for tax collector, there was also cutting of McGarry in favor of Miron, so that the balance was practically equal. A republican nominee in this twon is practically assured of success. Only a few times in the history of the town has a republican nominee failed to come through, and then it was for some unusual cause.

In the election of Edward Girard to succeed Alfred Bonneville as democratic representative on the board of selectmen there was furnished the only surprise of the election: Bonneville has been city tax collector, has held the office of selectman from three to five years and is popular with his party. Those who claim to be the knowing ones supply the answer to Bonneville's defeat by saying that he did not take his coat off and go to work for the job It would only have taken a matter of 15 votes changed to insure his re-election.

Attention is now being paid to the caucuses to nominate candidates for representative in the general assembly. Already there are four avowed republican candidates and some think that others are being groomed for the race behind the front lines. The announced candidates are Mayor Victor Chapdelaine, Samuel Rich, William Pechie and Miss Clara Larned. Pechie's name is the last to be added to the list. He is a former ward alderman and a lifelong resident of Putnam.

If the democrats have selected tentative candidates for their ticket, the names have not yet been made public.

GILPATRIC MAY PLEAD GUILTY AND BE SENTENCED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Oct. 7.—It has not as yet been decided whether G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank, will leave for New Haven this (Wednesday) evening or Thursday morning. It is understood that P. Raymond Gilpatric of New Britain will come to Putnam and take his brother to New Haven in his automobile. It is planned to have Mrs. Gilpatric accompany him on the trip, and she will be accompanied by her sister, Miss Ellen Wheelock.

From the request that Attorney William A. King made to have the arraignment of Gilpatric adjourned from Monday to Thursday, for the stated reason that he could be put to plea and save further trips to and from Putnam, it is generally believed that Gilpatric will plead guilty to one or more of the counts in the indictment and will immediately receive his sentence and be taken to some penal institution.

It is now understood that Gilpatric knows that he is blind. While still weak, he has gained strength since being removed from the hospital to the home of his parents. Beyond the fact that he is to be taken to New Haven to appear before Judge Thomas in the U. S. federal court, to be put to plea, nothing definite is known here of his future. His attorney has made no surmise as to the probable outcome of the proceedings and possibly does not know at this time what the future has in store for the man who for years was the leading citizen of Putnam and treasurer of the state of Connecticut. Locally, the expressed feeling toward the man who caused such a loss to the community continues to be one of regret and pity, by a majority of citizens, rather than vindictiveness.

NERVOUS AND HALF-SICK WOMEN

These Letters Recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Interest You

For Your Own Good Please Read Them

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you." —Mrs. ELMER HEASLEY, 141 S. Jackson St., Youngstown, Ohio.

"I was very nervous and rundown," writes Mrs. L. E. Wiese of 706 Louisa St., New Orleans, La. "I would often sit down and cry, and was always blue and had no ambition. I was this way for over a year and had allowed myself to get into quite a serious condition. One day I saw your advertisement in the daily paper and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. I have improved ever since taking the third bottle and I find it is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Benefited by First Bottle

"I was completely run down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy to get up when once I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in our paper 'The Indiana Daily Times,' and learned all about it. I received results from the very first bottle and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends it is due to you." — Mrs. ELIZABETH REINBOLD, 403 N. Pine St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

You should pay heed to the experiences of these women. They know how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound, and afterwards, too. Their words are true.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

There Are Some Things You Cannot Picture Nor Describe

The Silent Swiftness: the Soft Smoothness: the Fleetness: the Flexibility—the Luscious Luxuriousness—of this "Vertical-8-Superfine" are indescribable. You must see and feel, to understand

SINCE IT WAS DISCOVERED, the great writers of the world have tried to describe, and famous artists essayed in vain to portray, the magnificence of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

YET YOU WHO HAVE SEEN IT—and who had read extensively about it—were speechless with emotion when your eyes first gazed upon this American Wonderland.

AND TRY AS YOU WILL, you cannot now describe it to your friends. When they ask you, you exhaust your vocabulary and finally in despair exclaim—"You must see, to understand and appreciate."

YOU CAN APPRECIATE, then, his feeling of impotence, when this writer is set the task of describing the various phases of performance of this latest product of the Rickenbacker laboratory and shops.

WHEN FOR THE FIRST time, with your own hand on the responsive steering wheel, your own foot on the sensitive accelerator, you tool her down a straightaway and round a turn, you will admit that never before, have you handled a real automobile.

HOW SHE "ROADS!"—hands off at a mile a minute or more, and still she holds straight as an arrow the crown of the road. Yet the slightest urge on the wheel—and she responds like the thoroughbred she is.

NOW FEEL the accelerator—you must press it gently at first for the response is instantaneous.

CLOSE YOUR EYES and try to estimate how rapidly she accelerates.

NOW GLANCE at the road—but not at the speedometer—and tell if you can, by the feel, how fast you are going.

NOW LOOK!—and you are going twice as fast as you thought.

WHAT IS THAT AHEAD?—looks, from here, like a steep hill.

BUT IT IS NO HILL—unless your senses deceive. For you are almost unconscious of your extra pressure on the accelerator, and she takes it as easily as if it were level stretch.

YOU WONDER how much steeper it would have to be to offer any perceptible resistance to this powerful car.

THAT GIVES you some idea for comparison with the best cars you have previously driven.

FORTY MILES feels like twenty, sixty like thirty—seventy like thirty, too!

NOW TRY THE BRAKES—those wonderful Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes—which set the standard for present safety codes and revolutionized an industry.

TRY THOSE BRAKES! First at 20 miles per hour—if you are not used to first class 4-wheel brakes.

TRY THEM AT 40—50—60—or as fast as you dare to drive. You will be amazed to find that at any speed they are just as smooth, just as certain and just as silent.

NOTE THAT THEY DO NOT affect your steering in the slightest.

BUT—WHILE we are talking you are "feeling" something you cannot describe.

NOW YOU UNDERSTAND why it is futile to attempt to describe that which we have felt—and know you will feel—when first you drive this car.

SO WE INVITE YOU to come in and see; study in detail the many points of excellence.

DON'T DELAY. Come right now—or phone..... and a demonstrator will be at your door.

PROTECTING AVIATORS.

Frequently it is the case that needed reforms and necessary protection are not obtained until someone's sacrifice has forced action. It seems to be necessary for the loss of life to bring about the proper realization of the situation.

This is brought to mind in connection with the death of Captain Skeel of the army air service who was killed at Dayton as he was about to participate in the Pulitzer speed classic.

There are explanations offered for that fatality. According to one it is maintained that the dive which Captain Skeel was making in order to get speed for the start is exceedingly dangerous and places a serious strain upon a new wing. How unfavorably it is regarded is indicated by the demands which have been made since his death that it be excluded by established rules from such contests. That would indicate that the willingness of Captain Skeel to take the chance involved in that use of his machine played an important part in the endorsement of his machine and his subsequent death.

On the other hand there is the contention that he was operating an old machine now that was built for no longer than a three months' service and that it should have been discarded some time previous. That it was not is due to the fact that congress failed to provide the appropriation that would permit the acquisition of new machines.

It would seem to be a case where the machine was fit for the race provided it had not been put to a test which the flier should have known might not be have been made. The very fact that there is a demand for the prohibition of such a racing start indicates the severity of the strain and it likewise shows that it is desirable to apply the restriction to new as well as second-hand machines.

Whether the fault lies in an unwarranted use of the machine or the use of a worn-out machine, the fatality has demonstrated the need of surrounding our aviators with proper protection. If regulations forbidding certain practices will do it let us have an early amendment of the rules.

THE FOSDICK CASE.

Dr. Harry E. Fosdick has been preaching in a prominent New York Presbyterian church for several years though a member of another denomination. He hasn't been preaching in accord with Presbyterian doctrine. He has put forth from the pulpit of that church, however, ideas which are contrary to the Presbyterian viewpoint. He has gained the rating of a modernist, and in that he seriously conflicts with the fundamentalists. Efforts to set him out of the church have failed, but when the Presbtery decided that if he was to remain as a preacher in the Presbyterian church he must become a Presbyterian it forced him to a decision. That decision has been made and he has resigned from the assistant ministership of the church. Thus his removal seems accomplished on the ground that he is preaching something which is contrary to the views of that particular denomination.

It is action which Dr. Fosdick must have anticipated. Just why he should have considered that he ought to retain a pastorate where he was preaching contrary to the denominational views is hard to understand. That he has experienced a change in his own views is indicated by the fact that it is only within recent years that he has been preaching them. But inasmuch as he has experienced such a change and no longer feels that he can subscribe to and preach within the stated beliefs of that denomination he should not have waited for the demands that have been made upon him but have gotten out of his own accord.

He may take the view that he was endeavoring to change the church views. That unquestionably was the point of his preaching, but there are provisions made for altering church doctrine which he didn't follow. He insisted upon preaching his own views even though they went far beyond those of the Presbyterian church. It is because he failed to go out and preach his own views under his own banner, but insisted upon using a Presbyterian pulpit for it that the situation has attracted so much attention. The outcome is no more than should have been expected. The Presbytery doesn't say Dr. Fosdick cannot voice such views as he may hold, but it says he cannot do it in a Presbyterian pulpit. It is not unreasonable to expect that those filling Presbyterian pulpits should preach Presbyterian doctrine.

BROOKHART.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa insists that he must have the benefit of membership in the republican party, but he undertakes to put up the absurd claim that he is the greater part and the only good part of that party and proceeds to denounce those leaders and nominees who dare to think contrary to his views. Brookhart, as a matter of fact, has long been biting the hand that fed him. He has been getting political recognition through the republican party under the claim of being a republican and yet by his acts he has been stabbing that party in the back and giving comfort and aid to the opposition. It was characteristic of his service in the senate in the last congress and it is being continued in the present campaign. He stands in that unenviable position of taking assistance from one party and giving his support to another.

Brookhart considered it important enough to withhold his course of action during the campaign until he had received his nomination. He gave it to be understood that his republicanism could not be questioned and therefore he would stand by the party and its nominees. Even after he received the nomination for reelection from the republicans of his state he failed to change the impression that had been created by him as to his attitude. After he was assured of the place which he coveted on the republican ticket and considered he had assured his own reelection, for there is little chance for anything but a republican in Iowa, he comes out for the third party ticket. Except for the act of double crossing there would have been little surprise. Brookhart has not only played with and aided LaFollette in the senate but he is undoubtedly even more radical than LaFollette, if such is possible. His conduct in the present campaign must make a sad impression upon the people of his own state. He is one of those who is playing for bloc legislation and there should be an awakening to his game before it is too late.

GETTING PREVENTION EVERY WEEK.

When the statement is made that every week ought to be prevention week, there is no gainsaying the fact. It applies to all kinds of waste as well as to fires. It is simply an acknowledgment of the fact that prevention is a desirable thing and instead of giving recognition to it seven days out of the 364 it ought to be extended every day in the year.

The unfortunate fact is that there is not that recognition every day in the year. If there were there would be no need of the special efforts in behalf of fire prevention. If there were there would be less fires, less conditions that are conducive to fires and less losses in life and property from needless fires.

The very fact that there is such a huge wastage furnishes good and sufficient reason for fighting it from every conceivable angle. It is not to be supposed that the number of needless fires will ever be brought down to the point where it would be if there was the exercise of reasonable care, but when one views the enormous amount of property that is wiped out every year, and stops to realize the effect thereof upon conditions, there's ground for endeavoring to bring about a reduction in the yearly losses.

What the losses might be but for the endeavors to curtail them no one knows. When there is a realization of how much they can be cut, however, it is patent that the application of fire prevention efforts throughout an entire year would accomplish much. If it is impossible to get sufficient thought directed toward this matter in any other way than through a Fire Prevention week then by all means let us have it. It is the only way in which every week will ever become prevention week.

RHODE ISLAND'S CHANCE.

Conditions which have prevailed in the conduct of the state government of Rhode Island and particularly the methods which have been employed in its legislative session are known beyond the boundaries of the state. For that reason there is interest outside the Rhode Island plantations as to what is going to be done to better the situation.

The matter of course rests almost entirely in the hands of the voters of that state. Those who have been responsible for the disgraceful conditions have been placed in nomination for a continuation of their activity in higher offices. That they will be continued if they are given a chance has been well established. For the good of the state they should be denied that chance, and through the putting into office of those in whom the state can place confidence a correction of the deplorable situation obtained.

One would suppose that Rhode Island had had enough of the kind of government produced by the democrats. What must be regarded as a strong inducement to the much needed housecleaning is the type of men which have been placed upon the republican ticket from United States senator down. Rhode Island must feel gratified that it is given a chance to stand back of such men and to give the state through their efforts the chance to redeem itself. It rests entirely with the voters of that commonwealth.

PRESENCE OF MIND

"Well, my goodness!" gasped the girl with the crimson drop earrings, appearing upon the scene just as her friend with the appealing eyes and sense to use them finished bidding farewell to a young Adonis, "who is he, where did you get him and how completely have you got him?"

"Why, Barcelona!" reproved the girl with the appealing eyes, who insisted on keeping up her line even among her feminine friends who knew better, "whatever do you mean! Why, he is just a mere friend and his name is Hulburt Beete and I met him last week when I was up at Verbena's house party at the lake! There!"

"Not at all!" firmly insisted the girl with the brilliant earrings. "All this may be true, but I am sure there is much more. Spill it!"

"As though I would do anything!" the girl with the appealing eyes demurred. "Verbena mentioned him the first night we were there. She said he was crazy about fishing and hunting and didn't say much of any attention to girls and that the Beete place was gorgeous."

"One of the men said, oh, yes—he thought he had met Hulburt down at the dock that very afternoon among the fishermen. Hulburt had just caught a mammoth bullhead and the line broke off close to the hook before he could land him and Hulburt had nearly lost his mind. It appeared that the bullhead, according to Hulburt's brief glimpse of it, had pink whiskers or polkadots or some extraordinary adornment and his scientific curiosity had been roused only to be dashed.

"I was so curious about this queer animal that I thought I'd go fishing myself. Anyhow, the house party sort of bored me—all the men were engaged to somebody else. So I went, that afternoon. There was a crowd on the dock and maybe Mr. Beete was there, but I didn't notice—"

"I'll bet you wore that sports suit your aunt brought you from abroad!" accused the girl with the crimson earrings.

"Why, 'yes,' agreed the girl with the appealing eyes in great surprise. "Why that's what a sports suit is for, Barcelona! I arose very early the next morning and started out again with my rod. If you are doing a thing, do it thoroughly, I say. Shortly after I had settled myself an extremely good looking young man in a stunning outfit tramped out onto the pier and unreeled a line. Naturally we did not notice one another. I was entirely taken up with the early morning sky anyhow—"

"Yes, you were!"

"I kept catching little bass and perch and foolish things like that until all of a sudden my rod went under. It was all I could do to pull the thing up, and when it came out of the water I took one look and shrieked. Anybody would have screamed to see what I saw—a broad, flat head, with a tremendous mouth and black, thick stickums like overgrown whiskers sprouting in all directions!

"Hang on!' the handsome man yelled right in my ear as he tumbled toward me and grabbed the pole. 'My word! You've got the grandpa of all the bullheads in the lake! Wowie—gently, now, old boy!'

"The handsome man landed the fish, which did everything to show its indignation except bark at us, and I never saw such blissful satisfaction on any one's face as he wore. 'It's a ringer for one I caught a few days ago,' he said, as he turned back to his kit to get a knife as the bullhead had swallowed the hook. Of course then I realized who he was and the knowledge was very helpful.

"When he returned and turned the fish over, he paused petrified, and there was awe in his eyes. 'Look, look!' he cried, 'there's an extra hook sticking in his jaw—why, this must be the identical bullhead I lost the other day! How odd that I didn't see it right away!' Of course, after such an introduction, we became the best of friends and I fished all the rest of the time—"

"Huh!" the girl with the crimson earrings said, suspiciously, "I'll bet you jabbed that extra hook into that fish's countenance while Hulburt Beete's back was turned! Trust you!"

Ryan's Success Started at 40

As a boy John D. Ryan was called "that lively Ryan youngster," yet up to the time he was 30 he had not earned more than $150 a month and he did not enter the cooper industry until he was 40.

Born in Hancock, Mich., son of the discoverer of the now famous Copper Range Mines, the boy was not a prodigy in school, and at 17 entered his uncle's general store.

After eight years of clerking from early to late, he followed his brother and sister, who had gone to Denver for their health. After a six month's search for work he started selling lubricating oil on the road for the Standard Oil Company.

A smiling hustler, he soon was made Western Manager with headquarters in Denver. He tried to sell oils to Marcus Daly, who then was developing the Anaconda Mining Company properties. Daly would not buy from Ryan's company, but when Ryan became salesman for the Crew-Levick Oil Company, Daly bought big orders from him and the two soon were close friends.

Ryan was gradually promoted until he became Eastern Manager. Locating in New York, he married. A year later Daly died. Seeing his opportunity Ryan invested all he had saved and could borrow in an interest in the Daly trust and banking system in Butte, Mont., becoming president of the Daly chain of banks.

Placed in charge of the Daly estate at 40, he managed the Anaconda properties when they were the target of F. Augustus Heinz and others. Chosen by H. H. Rogers to manage the Amalgamated Mining Company properties, he became president of the merged Amalgamated and Anaconda properties when Rogers died four years later. Developing the enlarged Anaconda Mining Company, he made it one of the biggest producers of copper in the United States.

Securing control of valuable water-power sites, he offered them to the directors of the mining company, but his offer was refused. He consolidated the power companies of Montana, electrified the mines and within a dozen years made a profit of $15,000,000.

Ryan is 60 years old, still is actively building his companies and his fortune, which is rated in the millions, and is called "the copper king."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

When the House of Bishops of the Protestant Church meets today in the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York City, the central figure in the impressive gathering will be the Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, who recently became the presiding bishop of the denomination. Bishop Talbot is the head of the diocese of Bethlehem, Pa. He is one of the oldest members of the episcopate both in years and service. Tomorrow he will reach his seventy-sixth birthday anniversary. He was born at Fayette, Mo., and after receiving his A. B. from Dartmouth College in 1879 entered the General Theological Seminary, where he was graduated in 1873 and in the same year was ordained deacon and priest. For several years he filled pulpits in various places in the middle west. Then, in 1887, he was chosen missionary bishop of Wyoming and Idaho. He spent more than ten years in the far west, before being transferred to the see of Central Pennsylvania.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Chincoteague

Squeals of wild horses, the acrid odor of burnt hair, thumping hoofs and dust, all the thrills of a round-up, not on sage brush plains, but way down east, are behind the scenes of recent announcements in Atlantic seaboard papers.

"Virginia has just staged her annual wild horse round-up which was first established when the Cowboy's west was still a terra incognita, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington, D. C.

"Virginia does not even compromise by holding her round-ups in the western part of the state; she confines her 'wild west stuff' to the easternmost east of the old dominion—Chincoteague island.

"Chincoteague, or Fortunate Isle, as some people call it, is located in the peninsula. In a nation noted for disregard of natural boundaries such as rivers and mountain ranges as dividing lines, the peninsula separating Chesapeake Bay from the stormy Atlantic, contains probably the most artificial state lines to be found in the United States. At the upper end is the swinging L of tiny Delaware, almost entirely surrounded by Maryland. But the tail of the peninsula is chopped off with a straight, decisive Virginia line and at the Atlantic end of the line lies Chincoteague.

"It is eight miles long and about three wide and nowhere rises much higher above the sea than a Pacific coral reef. A slender line of pines forms Chincoteague's backbone; all else is waving grass and on these uncultivated plains thrive wild ponies. There is no competition for existence between the ponies and Chincoteague's 3,000 or more inhabitants because the natives take their living entirely from the sea. Agriculture is for landhubbers, so the ponies run the island, grazing on salt marsh grass and getting their water supply from stagnant or brackish pools.

"Chincoteague stages its annual wild west show in August and hundreds of sightseers come over from Franklin City on the mainland to see the fun. Although the tough ponies boldly race into the salty surf and have been known to swim small straights, the islanders are able to herd them to one spot. The colts are branded and a certain number auctioned off. Chincoteague ponies are tamable and by virtue of their rugged, outdoor life are far sturdier than ordinary ponies.

"When captured in the round-up the wild Chincoteague ponies are hairy, unkempt, shaggy beasts but clippers and care transform them into lithe miniature horses. The origin of the breed is lost to history, but legend has it that they are descendants of horses which swam ashore from a shipwreck in the 18th century.

"Wild ponies are found in many places, notably the high hills of Wales and southern Spain, where similar round-ups are held. The only place where there are wild ponies which are not run-out breeds of domesticated horses is in mid-Asia.

"Riches lie at Chincoteague's front door and that is the island's principal claim to the title Fortunate Isle. Unemployment is unknown, for the sea spreads her treasure and the only individuals who are downright poor are those who will not work. Oysters are the chief crop. Most of the beds are now controlled by a few citizens because the many original oyster farmers who obtained tide flat space when Virginia changed her policy from public to private oyster bed control, sold out their rights preferring to 'tong' for someone who would take the responsibility of proprietorship.

"If Chincoteague were an out-rider of the peninsula, bearing the brunt of Atlantic storms, it would no, have the nickname, Fortunate Isle. Instead it is sheltered affectionately in the bent arm of Assateague, a long sand split, bulwark of the coast. Chincoteaguers tonging oysters and digging clams know little of the old ocean's disregard for human life. In the shelter of the pleasant, profitable isolation the fisher-folk communities are apparently naturally peaceful. One ancient old thrill seeker tells visitors in great detail of the island's four murders, the first of which occurred during the American Revolution. A further sign of the island's prosperity is the large families. Indeed, it is banteringly asserted that in Chincoteague a man is not said to have a family of ten but to be the father of 'ten head of children.'

"Clamming on Chincoteague is a dooryard occupation. Each householder owns riparian rights to the beach in front of his home as far as the tide goes. Beyond are the oyster beds rented by the state government. A clam digger is not a mere laborer, but in a sense an artist, for ability to recognize the tiny 'keyholes' in the sand is a talent. Such a man in Chincoteague is said to be right quick to sign and wade them out."

What Every WOMAN Knows

But the non-electric Vacuette will lighten your work wonderfully—make it easier and lots quicker. For the Vacuette has no motor—no trailing cords—no plugs or connections.

As it glides over your floors it develops full vacuum suction. And there's also a fast revolving brush. Every bit of dirt is taken up.

Our representative will gladly show you the Vacuette in your own home. See how it makes your rugs and carpets sparkle. See how light it is—how easy to carry—how simple to handle. Remarkably inexpensive, too. Time payments if desired. Phone today or USE THE COUPON.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

Mrs. Cow Tells More About Birds

Indeed it is a dreadful thing
When flying home on happy wing
To find some lazy Moll or Peg
Within your nest has laid an egg.

Well, that was just what poor little Mrs. White-eyed Vireo found in her nest on arriving home.

"Well as I was saying," continued Mrs. Cow to the little rabbit, whom we left in the last story sitting by her side in the Sunny Meadow, "and now that I've finished chewing my cud, I'll go on. These Cowbirds are a disgrace to the bird family. They lay their eggs in other birds' nests and leave the bringing up of their children to their neighbors. I can't understand it."

"Hop over to Uncle Lucky's"

"What did poor little Mrs. White-eyed Vireo do when she found Mrs. Cowbird's egg in her nest?" asked the bunny boy.

"What could she do but hatch it along with her own eggs?" queried Mrs. Cow. "What could she do? Nothing, but hatch it," and the good lady cow, ex-as-per-a-ted at the thought explained how, when the egg was hatched, the young Cowbird, being much larger than the other nestlings, nearly filled the nest and grew so rapidly that it kept the poor little mother bird busy all the time, almost to the point of neglecting her own nestlings.

"Another thing about these Cowbirds," went on Mrs. Cow, rising to her feet so as not to make the little bell on her leather collar ring too loudly, "they have no manners at all. Many a bird of plain coloring has a beautiful song, but these Cowbirds! Dear, dear me! They can't sing a note. They make nothing but a disagreeable rasping sound. They follow us cows about in the meadow, picking up the insects which we disturb while grazing. They don't even hunt for their food like an industrious bird should."

Just then the little rabbit heard some one calling his name, and looking towards the dear old Bramble Patch, he saw Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, waving to him from the gate in the white picket fence.

"I must be going, Mother is calling," he exclaimed. "Goodbye, Mrs. Cow You have taught me a lot about the habits of birds. Thank you. I'll bring you a lollypop tomorrow," and away he went, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, across the Sunny Meadow.

"Hop over to Uncle Lucky's," said the pretty lady rabbit, as her bunny boy stopped breathless at her side. "Ask him to send the Old Red Rooster over tomorrow morning to weed the garden, I'm afraid the vegetables will be choked by the weeds if it isn't attended to at once.

So away hopped the obedient little rabbit into the next story to see his dear kind uncle, Mr. Lucky Lefthind-foot who lives on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville.

Stories That Recall Others

At Least One Step Further.

The small son of a prominent lawyer came home from school decidedly dirty and dishevelled. He had had a fight with one of the older boys who had been trying to bully him.

"Did you lick him?" asked the father.

"Lick him? I'll say not—I bit him."

Wanted—A Grandmother.

Maizie played with some children next door and they were always talking about their grandmothers doing this or that for them. Maizie had no grandmother, and it worried her because she could not refer to one. She asked her mother but, of course, mother could not provide a grandmother for her. Finally she applied to Aunt Kate, at whose house she was visiting one day, saying: "Aunt Kate, I want a grandmother. You got gray hair and look just like a grandma. I believe I'll call you my grandma. I want one. All the other girls have one."

MYSTERIOUS SUICIDE OF JOHN PARTRIDGE, WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 7.— John Partridge, aged 50, president and treasurer of the Partridge Paint company, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in his home here today. No motive was advanced by th efamily, who declared him in excellent health and spirits.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

POETRY

STOLEN SHEAVES.

I often go a-harvesting—
Some think I go in vain,
And mock me of my garnering;
They think I get no grain
Because I bear no sickle—I;
Their skeptic eyes deceives—
Were they not blind and could but spy
How winsome are my sheaves!

I often go a-harvesting
In fields I never sowed;
And strange!—though thick the sheaves I bring,
No one can miss the load;
Ay, though I reap my neighbor's hill
Of all I wish that's fair,
And ever harvest with a will—
None know that I've been there.

I often go a-harvesting—
Such plenty fortune sends,
Throughout the year from Spring to Spring,
My harvest never ends;
Why, even the tares turn into wheat
Quite contrary to law;
And ah, the flour I grind is sweet,
Such bread you never saw.

I often go a-harvesting;
My barn is in my brain,
And there I thresh, and fan, and sing
Through sunshine and through rain.
As fancy piles her airy flail,
Between the dreamful blows
The loveliness of hill and vale
Again my spirit knows.

I often go a-harvesting—
It is a happy art;
I gather in my wandering
The food that feeds my heart.
Perhaps it is not truly right,
Yet who will term it wrong
Since all are welcome to my light
And little loaves of song?
—Samual Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

POVERTY.

I turn life's wine to water; bread to stone;
I walk unseeing through a world of grace,
And feasters flee in fear from my embrace;
On chords of joy I make a smothered moan;
Before I touch the cheek, the smile has flown,
And there instead, the pallid tear trace;
My subjects seek some dark, secluded place
Where all unseen, unheard they dwell alone.

A wolf companions me, with burning eyes
Of lurid green; a gaunt and spectral thing,
Whose steps beside my own relentless run,
By hovels, rude and cold, our pathway lies,
And children closer to their mothers cling;
For I am Poverty, whom all men shun!
—Alonzo Rice, in Indianapolis News.

To a Lady

Who refuses to use clay

Edna Wallace Hopper

A lady writes me that my beauty helps have brought her wonderful results, but she adds, "It is too much trouble to use clay."

Too much trouble! In my stage work and in these efforts to help women I work 15 hours a day. Yet I would rather miss three meals than miss my clay.

Photo 1923

Too much trouble! Yet see what clay has done for me. Mine is a grandmother's age, yet I enjoy a debutante's complexion.

Let me send you a test of my White Youth Clay. It is not like the crude and muddy clays so many have employed. It is white, refined and dainty the last word in facial clays. And it combines in one product many superlative helps.

My Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It removes the cause of blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a new after glow which amazes and delights. It firms the skin, combats lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores, eliminates surplus oil.

Many women seem to drop ten years with one application of this clay. To countless women it is bringing priceless benefits—new beauty and new youth. Are such results not worth to you a few minutes twice a week?

There is a beauty essential. Famous beauties have for ages used it. No woman can hope to look her best without it or to keep her youth as I have. You can recognize clay users in every circle by their beautiful complexions.

Mine is a super-clay—a new-type clay—based on 20 years of scientific study. I have placed it with all drug stores, all toilet counters, so you can get it. The cost is 50 cents and $1. And will thank me for it—always—when you learn what it means to you.

I will gladly mail sample if you mail this coupon.

Testing Propellers

As everybody knows, the various parts of airplanes must undergo certain mechanical tests before they prove their fitness for service. Among the most interesting of devices for this purpose is that designed for the preliminary testing of airplane propellers. It consists principally of a turntable built to revolve about a heavy steel post located a short distance from the shore in a small body of water. The turntable is built of structural steel throughout and equipped with a high-power gasoline engine near the center of the apparatus, and a shaft extending to one end through which the power is transmitted to the propeller to be tested.

The tests are made by starting the gasoline engine and allowing the propeller by its pressure against the air to revolve the turntable about its center support. The quality of the propeller may be judged by the speed with which it is able to drive the turntable around during the test.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Albert Lewis Reynolds

Tuesday morning the funeral of Mary Alice Kilroy, wife of Albert Lewis Reynolds of Griswold, was held from the home of her brother, Alexander J. Kilroy, 51 Union street. At 9 o'clock in St. Patrick's church, the Holy Sacrifice was offered for the repose of her soul in a high mass of requiem sung by the senior assistant pastor, Rev. Myles P. Galvin. The regular music of the Gregorian mass was given by the choir, directed by Organist Frank L. Farrell, who in the interludes employed the organ chimes very effectively, also in the recessional, which was "Nearer, My God to Thee."

At the offertory, Mrs. Farrell sang De Profundis with sweetness and tenderness. Father Galvin gave the final absolution, having read the epistle of the Mass for the Dead, I Thessalonians, IV. 12-17 and the gospel, John XI. 21-27, embodying Christ's comforting promise to the sorrowing Martha, "I am the resurrection and the life."

As a waiting hymn, Henry J. La Fontaine sang in a sympathetic manner, There's a Beautiful Land on High.

Burial was in the Reynolds family plot in Yantic cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Father Galvin. Here the beloved wife was laid to rest amid loving tributes of her favorite flowers. The bearers were Alexander A. and Henry J. Kilroy, of Norwich, brothers of Mrs. Reynolds, William C. Reynolds, of Boston, John Marbury Reynolds, of Philadelphia and Reginald Reynolds of Greenwich, brothers of Mr. Reynolds and George J. Kilroy of Meriden, Mrs. Reynolds' nephew. Relatives and friends were present from a number of cities, there were in attendance groups of neighbors from Griswold and Preston, who sorrowed for the passing of an esteemed and helpful friend and generous associate in every line of benevolent and community work.

At the church John P. Corcoran had charge of the ushering. The funeral arrangements were by Hourigan Brothers.

Dr. Arthur F. Howard

Final tribute was paid to Dr. Arthur F. Howard, when many relatives and friends attended the funeral services held at his late home, 47 Lincoln avenue at 2.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The service was conducted by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Burial was in the family lot in Yantic cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Dunbar. The bearers were the following relatives and friends: Harold Howard, Jr.,; Arthur Howard, both of New Haven, William Cowan, Hartford, Alfred G. Lillibridge, Edward C. Jewett and L. M. Young, of Norwich.

Arrangements were by C. A. Gager.

Boundary of Palestine

The Holy Land has never had a well defined boundary, except the Mediterranean Sea on the west, but it is supposed to be about 10,000 miles in extent, or as far south as the southern end of the Dead Sea.

An important physical feature is a low plain bordering the coast and extending inland from 5 to 20 miles. From this point it merges into a highland region, upon which the chief mountains are located.

The most striking physical feature however, is the Valley of the Jordan, whose bed for its entire length is below sea level. Beyond this valley the country is a plateau with an altitude of 1,500 feet.

An agricultural experiment station has now been established at Hafia, and the result proves beyond doubt that the soil is as fertile as it ever was and there is a fair prospect that this land will again sustain a large population.

NEW TRAFFIC ORDINANCES WILL PROVIDE GROUNDS FOR DISCUSSION

The new traffic ordinances which were presented in the common council meeting Monday night will furnish plenty of ground for discussion at the public hearing to be held Oct. 20 and will doubtless be thrashed out in many a discussion before then.

One section of the proposed ordinances defines the word "vehicle" as used in the ordinance to include equestrians, led horses, and everything on wheel or runners except street cars and baby carriages and the word "operator" means the person having control or direction of any vehicle. The word "park" means the permitting of any vehicle to remain standing or stationary on the streets of the city except for the purpose of loading or unloading or for the purpose of taking on or setting down passengers.

United States mail vehicles, police vehicles fire department vehicles, ambulances and vehicles of physicians, while engaged in the actual performance of their professional duties, are given the right of way in any street and through any procession. Street railway cars are not to take on or unload freight on Main street between Thames square and Franklin square. Street cars are given the right of way between cross streets and drivers of vehicles are to turn out immediately on the signal from the motorman or conductor of the car.

The penalty for violations of the ordinance is set at a fine of not more than $60 for each offense.

Other provisions of the ordinance include the following:

Parking

A general parking limit of five hours between 8 p. m. and 8 a. m. is established on streets where there are no special parking regulations. This will eliminate the use of any street as a garage.

Parking limitation of 40 minutes is established in a number of streets, an increase of 10 minutes over present regulations, but the 40 minute limit does not apply between 8 p. m. and 8 a. m.

Parking is prohibited in front of the entrance to a hotel, theatre, undertaking establishment, fire station, police station, or on any bridge, or on the portion of a street opposite to any fire station or the lot on which it stands.

No stand or stop with a vehicle shall be made within street intersections, in front of any driveway, within fifteen feet of a street corner or ten feet of a hydrant, or on a marked out crosswalk or safety zone.

DEMOCRATS FAIL TO HAVE SPEAKER PRESENT

Somehow or other the democratic town committee slipped up about having a representative Tuesday night at the open forum of the West Side Community Association, the first of a series of such meetings that the association is to hold at the Elizabeth street school auditorium. But Judge John H. Barnes, the republican representative, and Albert Boardman, the socialist representative, were on hand for the announced talks on President Coolidge and Senator La Follette, respectively. Judge Barnes raised a laugh from his audience of 75, when he remarked in the course of his talk that he knew there would be no democratic speaker tonight for they know they haven't got a ghost of a show of winning.

Before the talks on the presidential candidates were given, a business meeting of the association was held at which President Paul A. Brown presided and Frank I. Royce was elected secretary-treasurer to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Frank D. Davis because of pressure of other duties.

Chief Howard L. Stanton of the fire department spoke in an instructive way on the subject of fire prevention and was followed by Mr. Boardman, who was assigned half an hour to speak. Mr. Boardman used up all but about a minute of the time in an address upon Scientific Socialism and had but a moment left to mention Mr. La Follette, who he said was asking whether we are to have a government run in the interests of the few or in th interests of the peopl.

Judge Barnes interspersed witty touches as he spoke of the benefit of the protective tariff, the reduction of billions in the government expenses under the republicans, the many bills in favor of labor which Coolidge had supported in Massachusetts and the help that had been given the farmers.

As to Mr. Davis, he said that the democratic candidate needs to study up a little more before he makes any political speeches, and as to Mr. LaFollette he said that at one time he thought LaFollette might be a political Moses, but when the Wisconsin man promises freight reduction on one hand and higher wages to railroad men on the other, he proves he is nothing but a scheming politician.

MISS CLARA SHEAR GIVES NOTEWORTHY SONG RECITAL

The tenth season of the Norwich Music Association opened Tuesday evening in the Slater Hall Annex with Miss Clara Shear, soprano of Boston, in a song recital. The large audience present was agreeably pleased with the singer's artistic work. Miss Shear possesses a lyric voice of much natural charm, and gave evidence of unusually good training. From almost every standpoint the voice was intelligently and competently handled. Diction, phrasing, and rhythm united in making her one of the most satisfactory singers the association has yet introduced. In the operatic arias from Rossini and Donizetti Miss Shear was at her best.

Norwich is indeed fortunate to have the first appearance of this young artist, lately returned from three years study in Italy under a noted Italian teacher. After a heavily booked season in America Miss Shear plans to return to Italy to take up the operatic work she is so admirably fitted for.

Cyrus Ullian, pianist, accompanied Miss Shear with fine musical feeling and in his group of solo numbers captivated the audience by his good tone and clarity of technique.

SKIDDED INTO MACHINE PARKED IN BROADWAY

Skidding in his Nash coupe on the wet street at the foot of Broadway hill, Tuesday night, Patrick J. McMahon of 304 Central avenue, had his car crash into the Studebaker special six touring car of Richard A. Krauss, of Taftville, which was parked at the curb while Mr. Krauss was attending the Broadway theater.

Curious Nature Fact.

A miner at work in a red sandstone quarry near Killbuck, Ohio, found a toad inclosed in a cavity of a large rock. The rock measured 10 inches in diameter, and was located about 20 feet below the surface of the earth.

When the rock was opened and the toad was exposed to the air, it hopped several times and then fell dead. The mysterious manner in which the toad came to be shut up in the rock has not been discovered.

There are many curious stories about the long life of the toad. It is possible for a toad to exist when incased in sandstone or limestone, as these rocks are porous and consequently admit air.

GOSLIN CLUBS GIANTS INTO DEFEAT AND SENATORS TIE UP THE SERIES

The "Goose" accounts For Five of Washington's Seven Tallies by His Home-Run and Three Singles—Giants —Use Three pitchers in Attempt to Stop the Fighting Senators—Mogridge Pitches Brilliant Game Until the Eighth Inning When Marberry Goes in—Johnson Will Oppose Nehf in Today's Battle.

New York, Oct. 7.—(By The A. P.)—The "Goose" hangs high in Washington tonight, for Leon Goslin, slugging pride of the Senators and favorite of their fans, clubbed the New York Giants into defeat today almost single-handed and put the American league champions back into the thick of one of baseball's greatest championship battles.

Another record-breaking crowd, exceeding 50,000 all told, stormed the Polo grounds and cheered the Senators as they pulled themselves together in spite of a make-shift infield caused by the loss of Peckinpaugh, battered three Giant pitchers and captured the fourth game of the 1924 world's series by a score of 7 to 4, the most decisive verdict of any game so far.

The series now stands at two-all and the fifth game, which is likely to witness a repetition of the opening struggle between Walter Johnson, the Senators' wonderful right-hand veteran, and Art Nehf, brilliant giants southpaw, will be played tomorrow at the Polo grounds. The battleground will shift back to Washington on Thursday, for a sixth game is now assured with a likelihood the series will go the limit of seven games.

Goslin's Hits Beat Giants

Five of the Senator's runs today, alone enough to clinch the game, were accounted for by "Goose" Goslin, who hammered out four hits in as many times at bat, including his second homer of the series which scored two runs ahead of him in the third inning and gave Washington a lead which it never relinquished.

While the slow southpaw curves of George Mogridge and the relief pitching of Fred (Firpo) Marberry, again successful in his favorite role, kept the Giants in check, the Senators bunched their attack in three innings and Goslin was the dominating figure each time.

The offerings of Virgil Barnes, who retired after being bombared for five innings, and Wayland Dean, who finished the game after Howard Baldwin had gotten through two innings unscratched, proved particularly relishing "sauce" for Goslin. In addition to his homer, a terrific drive that sailed on a line far into the right-field stand, the "Goose" brought Harris across in the fifth after a wild pitch had let in McNeely, and started another two-run rally in the eighth but his fourth hit, scoring ahead of Joe Judge on Oscar Bluege's third safe blow of the game.

The "Goose's" spectacular slugging made him out only the hero of the day, but the idol of the crowd which, after his own followers after his first homer, scarcely less vociferous than that of his own followers after his firt homer, a potent factor in Washington's triumph Sunday.

Crowd With The Senators

The crowd, as yesterday, was "with" the fighting Senators and their youthful pilot, Stanley Harris, who also was a scintillating figure at the bat and afield today. The Giants came in for their share of cheering, particularly when in a fashion which has become typical to the series they rallied in the closing innings, but the crowd's noisiest sympathies were with Washington and Goslin. There was another din of cheering for the "Goose" when he came out to the field after his home run and displayed his versatility by making a circus catch of a long drive of Wilson's bat.

Giants Baffled by Mogridge

Meanwhile the Giants were baffled by the southpaw shoots of Mogridge, former New York Yankee moundsman, who silenced the heaviest New York artillery with a puzzling change of pace and a tantalizing slow ball. For seven innings, the McGraw men gathered but three hits off Mogridge and two runs, one of which was due to an error and the other to a two-base blow by George Kelly in the eighth, the southpaw developed a sudden streak of wildness and despite a five-run lead, was hastily withdrawn by Harris after the first two men to face him had walked.

Marberry to The Rescue

Into this critical situation strode "Firpo" Marberry, hero in a relief role in the second game but a "bust" yesterday when he started for the Senators and was hammered from the mill.

Marberry, who apparently is only at his best when performing a rescue act, met and turned back a determined Giant in both the eighth and ninth innings.

"Hack" Wilson, the first to face Marberry in the eighth, clout a two-bagger that scored Young, while in the ninth, Gowdy's single, a freak wild throw by Rice which caromed off first base for a two-base error, and Lindstrom's third hit produced another run. Lindstorm, advanced on a pass to Frisch, got to third when Young forced the Giant captain, but Marberry tightened and struck out George Kelly on three pitched balls.

This finish was dramatically similar to that of the second game when Marberry, relieved Zachary, came to the mound in the ninth with the bases full, two out, the score tied, and struck out Tarvis Jackson on three pitched balls. The big twirler now has saved the Senators in two crucial moments but he gets credit in the official reckoning for neither. The credit he was first given for winning the second game was taken away from him yesterday by the official scoring board and given to Zachery while today Mogridge departed with a lead which the Senators held intact to the finish.

Senators Collect 13 Hits

Washington's devasting attack, in which thirteen solid blows were combined from the offerings of McGraw's moundsmen, made up for flaws in the defense of the Senators, due chiefly to the loss of Peckinpaugh, still on the sidelines as a result of a "Charley Horse" or pulled tendon, and the consequent breaking up of their brilliant infield combination. Two of the team's three errors paved the way for Giant runs.

Harris Fields Brilliantly

Harris ranged over a wide stretch of territory afield, handling ten chances faultlessly and making two remarkable stops in the seventh that rivalled some of the performances yesterday of Frisch, who had no opportunities to repeat his miraculous work this afternoon. On the first of these plays, Harris nipped Gowdy after bagging his hot shot over second base, while a few moments later first.

ground-clincher and nail his man at he raced back behind to get Frisch's

The Giants, on the other hand, failed at any time to wheel their attack into formidable position collecting only hits altogether off Mogridge and Marberry, they registered no more than one in any before the ninth when "Firpo" checked their best scoring opportunity.

Today's record crowd represented a paid attendance of 49,243 and receipts of $191,677. This eclipsed the previous high figures of 47,608 and $186,572 for the Polo grounds, set in Yesterday's game.

World's Series Notes.

They'll soon be carving a notch in baseball's Hall of Fame for Stanley Harris, youthful manager of the Washington Americans. Some of the old-time keystone sackers who occupy positions in that majestic group will be asked to shove over and give Harris a place. His work in the present series ranks him as the most polished second baseman in modern baseball.

When "Goose" Goslin was caught in an attempted larceny of second base in the fifth inning, he pulled the "old army" comeback on Bill Klem at second base when the arbitrator waved him out. "The only difference between you and Jesse James is that James had a horse," shouted the "Goose," or words to that effect, but Bill gave him no heed.

Lindstrom, kid third-sacker, showed his mettle under hot fire in the second inning. Bluege, Ruel and Miller peppered twisting shots at him in succession, but though Bluege beat out his tap, Lindstrom retired the next two snappy and checked Washington with a brace of runners in the paths.

The Giants don't like left-handers. That has been shown in the two games the Senators have won. Zachary stopped the Giants in Washington on Sunday until the ninth and Mogridge, except for the generosity that led to his removal, hufled brilliantly today. His slow ball had the Giants breaking their backs swinging or popping 'em up.

Goslin made up for the three hits of which he was robbed yesterday by Frisch's miraculous plays by getting safe blows on all four trips to the plate today. When he drove the ball to the upper stands in the third, for a home run, he went by Frisch at second with a "try and rob me out of that one" attitude.

Virgil Barnes withstood a heavy bombardment before he faded from the picture. After getting safely by the first inning he was clouted for nine hits and five runs in the next four frames.

Mogridge had a perfect day at bat, striking out four successive times. He was "under wraps" on his last trip to the plate and didn't move the bat off his shoulder until the count was three and two and then he missed Dean's "groover."

PENN STATE COMMISSION PUTS BAN ON WOLGAST

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—The Pennsylvania state athletic commission announced today that Bobby Wolgast, of Atlantic City will not be permitted to box in Pennsylvania unless he deposits a forfeit with the commission prior to each bout to insure his appearance and "protect the public against disappointment." Wolgast, the statement said, "who was too ill to honor his contract and box at the Philadelphia ball park on Wednesday night, Oct. 1, recovered from tonsilitis so quickly that he was able to box in Boston last night."

This was the third time Wolgast has disappointed promoters in this city and other states, the statement concluded.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Infielder New York Giants

Score 2 to 1 in favor of team in field. Team at bat has a runner on third with none out. Slow ball is hit to infield.

Should man on third attempt to reach home?

In this situation, when the ball is hit slowly to the infield, the runner on third—the tying run—should take a chance and dig for home. If he finds he is going to be caught then he should pull up and give the batter sounding first a chance to reach second while they are running him down between third and home. Then, if he is put out, he leaves his team with a runner on second and still in a position to tie the score if either of the next two batters come through with a single.

DECLARES LANDIS IS TOO CLOSE TO N. Y. GIANTS

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7.—Ban Johnson, president of the American league, declared here today that "the dollar mark has grown so in baseball that all sense of proportion has been lost."

Discussing the latest baseball scandall, in which members of the New York Giants are alleged to have offered bribes to an opposing player, Mr. Johnson asserted with emphasis that "baseball must clean up or close up."

"There's a whole lot of crookedness in the game," he continued, "and Judge Landis will not or cannot force it out. The public wants clean baseball but it will have to be clean in every sense of the word if the game survives.

"There has been trouble ni Kansas City the last year. You have a fine, wholesome clean management. But there is something wrong and I know it. The American league had a detective working on the matter three weeks this summer. He found the trouble did not lie in Kansas City, but in Omaha and Des Moines."

Mr. Johnson said that the American league stands ready to go to the bottom of things." "I am afraid we cannot hope for much help from the National league," he added. "As for Judge Landis, he is too close to the National league and the New York Giants."

Mr. Johnson also charged that baseball in California is "shot with crookedness."

HIGH CLASS TROTTING AT LEXINGTON TRACK

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 7.—(By the A. P.)—High class racing was continued at the Grand Circuit meeting here today when four races featured by the Lafayette for 2.09 pacers were given by the LaFayette was won by F. P. Fox's La Paloma, driven by Clair Wolverton. The two miles in 3.02 3-4 and 2.01 3-4, were each better than the previous record for the stake.

The 2.07 trot was hard fought before going to Trampabit, Trampabit, Dr. White and Emma Harvester got into a jam at the head of the stretch in which Drivers Cox and Dickerson were thrown. None of the horses or drivers were injured.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 7.—Chapman Tech's hopes to remain on top of the ladder in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic standing is not so promising as was previously expected. The loss through injuries of two back field men, will give the Tech coaches plenty of trouble to meet the emergency for the second game of the league schedule at Morgan Park Saturday afternoon. Courbois at quarterback sustained a sprained ankle and it is known definitely that he will not remain in the lineup. To cap the climax of misfortune, Kannenberg at fullback will also be lost to the team for this Saturday's game with Norwich Free Academy.

Both these players received their injuries in the game with Stonington High last Saturday, which although was returned a victory for the red and black lost them the services of two valuable men whose positions will be hard to fill. Morris Brown was given the assignment to bark signals in practice today, nd Hewitt, a tall and rangy lad, given the fullback position. McGuire worked at the vacant tackle position, which was made possible by the shifting of Hewitt to fullback. Caron was at right half with John Brown at left half. Present indications point towards the use of the same team which opposed Stonington on Saturday, with hte exceptions of the possible changes mentioned above.

Chapman Tech regards the contest with Norwich Free Academy the most important on the entire schedule and had laid a foundation for a strenuous grid program in practice to key the team up the sort of play that will be met when the red and white takes the field against the locals. Even though the two injuries to both Courbois and Hewitt, will mean that the offensive strength and the defensive strength will be lessened by a good deal, it is imperative for the Tech mentors to find suitable substitutes to fill these vacancies.

Although the league had just begun its play for the fall season, Chapman Tech by winning over the Stonington High on Saturday has assumed the leadership of the league. A victory for either Chapman Tech or Norwich Free Academy will give that team access to first place without dispute. Early season defeats ultimately do damage that is beyond repair or even hopes of repair, and the Tech mentors are expecting to get off to a flying start. The present outlook in Eastern Connecticut league competition seems to point towards a three-cornered struggle with Stonington out of it. And it is even possible that the contenders for the top position may be lessened to two teams and those Norwich Free Academy and Westerly. But then Westerly presents a team of unknown quality, while some chance for comparison between Tech and the Academy may be had. But while Stonington is figured to be firmly entrenched in last place, this team may surprise either N. F. A. or Westerly, for there are good qualities in the league is beginning to be of the nature in years previous when the ultimate winner was not declared until the final game of the league season was played. Taking this aspect, the league in general is in for a most prosperous year and some exceptionally good games should be played before the season comes to an end.

SENATORS BUBBLE OVER LIKE SCHOOL BOYS

New York, Oct. 7.—(By the A. P.)—In the Washington clubhouse after today's victory over the Giants, the Senators bubbled over like college football players after a great victory. "Goose" Goslin and "Firpo" Marberry were the particular heroes.

The spirit of depression which hovered over the group after the Giants had riddled their pitchers in the second defeat Monday, was completely driven out by the boiling optimism With Walter Johnson, ready and anxious to pitch tomorrow, the American league champions feel that their fortunes have taken a decided upward swing.

"We still have that even chance" was all Manager Harris would say. "Seven games are easily possible before this thing is decided."

The Giants were generous in praise of the hitting of Goslin and the fielding of Manager Harris, but are undoubtedly confident that they will win the series in the next two games. Nehf and Bently are ready to work tomorrow.

Walter is apparently not a bugaboo to the Giants, who evidently prefer a fast ball right-hander to the slow twisters which Zachary and Mogridge served so succesfully Sunday and today.

WASHINGTON FANS ARE JUBILANT OVER VICTORY

Washington, Oct. 7.—Capital city baseball fans today climbed back to their perches on top of the baseball world as a result of the Senators tying the count with the New York Giants in the world series standing. Fans tonight are "downright sure" nothing can keep "Bucky" Harris' gang from winning out—at least so long as "Goose" Goslin remains in the batting order.

The city turned out in the afternoon for its usual scoreboard radio picnic with the number listening in on the game the largest ever. Mrs. Coolidge again was among the number sitting in front of the radio at the White House.

Out at Griffith stadium where two games already have been fought and where another one will be staged Thursday, baseball teams from the United States Navy Yard and the marine corps gave a play-by-play pantomime of the contest in New York. The news received over the wire from New York was transmitted quickly to the two teams who carried out the "game" almost as it looked to a spectator at the Polo Grounds.

Marines representing the Giants came in for a good share of razzing by the large crowd that watched the pantomine while the gobs frequently received a lusty applause as if the actual players were on the field.

AETNA DROPS TWO GAMES TO PEERLESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 7.—Hitting a steady gait in the first and third strings, the second place Peerless five of this city found the Aetna quintet of Norwich for two games out of three, last night. All games were won by margins in the two numbers, and only the first was anything but close. The locals captured that string with a margin of 18 pins, but lost the second by the large margin of 40 pins. In this second string, the local bowlers fell down tremendously, not one bowler reaching the century mark. To retaliate, the Peerless gained the final and deciding string by an even fifty pins, and hitting the largest total of the evening with 562.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 7.—Shuffle Along won the $5,000 capital handicap for three-year-olds and up at six furlongs, the feature race at the opening of the annual October meeting at Laurel today. New Hampshire was second and Will Land third. Time 1.12.

A $2 mutual ticket on the winner paid $8.50.

hit 200 or over but Cooper, who was able to hang up but 273 for a three-string total. Captain Bill Belcher of the locals hit high single for the evening, topping the pins for a 119 total. He made a good bid for the league high single and had a good score in the first four boxes, but he fell down later. Foster and Henry Sistare divided honors for high three strings with each getting 314.

MATHEWSON PICKS HIS ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

New York, Oct. 6.—Christy Mathewson, former pitching idol of the New York Giants, has selected an All-American baseball team. His all-star aggregation, together with a second team, is described in this week's issue of Collier's Weekly. He declares that the lineup he selects is "the strongest possible combination of players" under conditions prevailing in the 1924 season.

Mathewson selects Dazzy Vance, sensational Brooklyn pitcher, who led all major league moundsmen in number of victories and strike-outs this season, as first string boxman, with Walter Johnson, veteran Washington ace, on the firing line for the second team.

Johnson and Frank Frisch, of the Giants, who is out at third base on the first team, are the only playing representatives of the pennat wingers in either lineup, although John J. McGraw is named to lead the mythical five outfit. Ty Cobb is chosen to play centerfield on and manage the second team.

"Big Six" puts only three American league players on his team, Bagler of Detroit, Falk of Chicago, and Ruth, but he reverses this distribution of talent on the second team, which includes only three National Leaguers.

Mathewson's selections follow:

FOOTBALL PLAYERS HELD ON BAIL ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 7.—Fletcher Mills, member of the football team at the Yazoo County Agricultural High school at Denton, is at liberty on $1,000 bail pending a preliminary hearing on a charge of assault.

Albert Hicks, a member of the Belzoni High school football team, sustained a broken neck when he was tackled by Mills in a game at Belzoni Friday.

The authorities charge that shortly before the game Mills told a friend that he would "get" Hicks at the first opportunity, the injured boy is said to have only a bare chance of recovery.

Sports Editro: Just a few lines to let every baseball fan in eastern Connecticut know through the columns of your paper that as manager of the Moosup baseball club that although the Willimantic Threadmakers defeated my powerful Moosup team last Sunday at the Carpet Grounds before one of the largest crowds since 1915, I still maintain that I have the better ball club of the two. And to prove it I am willing to play Willimantic again on Sunday, Oct. 12th on the Carpet Grounds for a purse of $100 a side besides the regular guarantee.

Now what can Mr. McQuillan say to that? Is he game? He has been more or less puffed up over the victory last Sunday and has spilled a steady stream of boastful utterings ever since until he has become afflicted with the worst case of swollen headiness in many years. However, let me tell him that there is a purse up on the old shelf that says he cannot repeat. Let this one game decide the title of the eastern part of the state. I wonder how that will strike Mr. McQuillan and if he will back out or come through clean. I think it's up to him to either put up or shut up. If he is a sport he will take up my proposition and he will have some fight on his hands. Hold that one, Mr. McQuillan.

1,300,000 APPLICATIONS OF POSSIBLE 4,500,000 RECEIVED FOR SOLDIERS' BONUS

Washington, Oct. 7.—Only 1,300,000 applications out of a possible 4,500,000 have been received for the soldiers bonus, and veterans who intend to apply for the adjusted compensation were urged to do so without delay by Major General Robert C. Davis, adjutant general of the army, in a statement today.

Of the applications received, 850,000 have been examined and about 4,000 have been passed and certificates for the amounts due forwarded to the Veterans' bureau, which will make payments or otherwise compensate the veterans as the adjustes compensation law provides.

"It is imperative from the standpoint of economy in administration," said General Davis, who is in charge of the machinery for handling the applications, "that those veterans who intend to avail themselves eventually of the benefits conferred by the act should make their applications now. To extend the work over a period running up to January 1, 1928, the time limit in which applications can be made, can result only in a material increase in the cost of administration which the war department is endeavoring to hold to a minimum."

The war department is now ready, he added, to receive, verify and certify an average of 30,000 or more applications daily, whereas applications are now coming in at the rate of about 10,000 a day.

Applications require only the signature of the veteran or the relative or other person applying under his name, and his finger prints in case of living veterans.

USING GOD'S NAME LIGHTLY CONDEMNED BY MISSIONARY

Preaching from the Second Commandment, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain," Father O'Brien, one of the Holy Ghost Fathers giving a mission at St. Patrick's church this week spoke to a large congregation of women at the 8 o'clock mass, Tuesday morning. The missionary dwelt upon the significance of a name—what it stands for, if, for instance it is the name of a king or president. Some names inspire respect, such great reverence, such gractitude, as should the holy name of God. Especially is the full significance of this name realized if one ponders what it means, what it can do, that even the devils themselves tremble at it.

This, the preacher said, is an age of strong language. People in conversation are not content to call a spade a spade—but must qaulify it by uttering some adjective—often strong, sometimes, unhappily, vulgar. It is a godless age, when speech is careless with holy things. Some one has said that nowadays "people do not know enough to understand when they are committing the sin of blasphemy." Strong language is used in conversation and people do not appear to sense its full meaning. That holy name at the sound of which every knee should bow is often uttered in a manner truly regrettable.

Expressing the hope that no woman among his listeners would ever utter the name of her Creator, her future Judge, with carelessness or irreverence, the missionary condemned the habit of calling God to witness trivial, even untrue things, incidentally calling a lie the opposite of the God of truth, a grievous offence against Heaven. Another sin is perjury, which is a great crime not alone against God but against the state, since so much in the conduct of human and civic affairs depends upon truth. So, too, the conditions governing an oath were stated; these are truth, justice and judgment. An oath is a very solemn thing and rash oaths were condemned.

Father O'Brien was emphatic, also, against the manner in which some will make vows, often as regards indifferent matters, censuring this as another example of the strong and regrettable language of the time.

The congregational singing continues nightly during the week of the women's mission and adds much to the success of the exercises. The chorus choir is doing good work also, and on Monday evening the music included a very pleasing solo, "O Salutaris," given with sweetness and evidence of careful method by a young singer, Miss Margaret Casey, a member of the junior choir.

The children's mission is continuing today (Wednesday) and Thursday.

CONNECTICUT HAS BUILT 2,355 MILES OF ROADS

An aggregate of 2,355 miles of roads has been constructed in Connecticut in the last twenty-nine years, it was made known Monday by the state highway department in an official statement which is being prepared as part of the biennial report to the General Assembly.

This figure includes all trunk line, state aid and federal aid roads built and reconstructed, since Connecticut began the construction of highways in July, 1895 up to the end of the fiscal year just closed. Included in the compilation also are the acceptances by the state of roads improved by towns and made a part of the state highway system. From the totals have been deducted those sections which have reverted to the various towns.

Concrete, macadam and bituminous macadam have largely been the character of re-surfacing chosen for both trunk line and state aid roads. The mileage of graded and gravel roads is being reduced year by year in favor of the more durable types.

Of the 1,821.66 miles of trunk line and state aid roads which now compose the state's highway system, 684.31 miles are macadam, 241.85 of concrete, 125.17 bituminous surface, 345.66 gravel and 153.3 graded surface. During the year just closed, 131.71 miles were constructed and reconstructed.

Attorney David Godstein and Anthony S. Renzi, were unanimously nominated as democratic nominees for state representatives from Bridgeport.

NORWICH Y. M. C. A. BEGINS SUNDAY AFTERNOON MEETINGS

At four p. m. Sunday the opening meeting of the season was held in the parlors. The opening exercises consisted of the singing of popular hymns, scripture reading, prayer and vocal solos which were rendered by Hugh Kinder. Thirty minutes of moving pictures were enjoyed by the audience; these consisted of a picture of Indian life, particularly illustrating the triumph of real medical skill over the methods of the ordinary Indian doctor. The son of the chief having been away taking a medical course had returned in time to successfully cope with a terrible fever that had stricken several of the tribe, and which the Indian doctor had failed to cure; the new medicine man soon had the fever under control. The other picture was entitled The Moonlight Trail and was very interesting.

Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk, saying in part: "In no profession has there been greater strides than in the medical profession. Many epidemics have come to be impossible through the wonderful discoveries through experiments, many of which have been made through much sacrifice on the part of men who have desired to be of real use to their fellowmen; many sicknesses which, up to twenty five years, were considered fatal, have been fully conquered, and deaths from these have been reduced to the minimum. In the realm of surgery miracles have been wrought by those who have given themselves to the setting of broken bones and the knitting together of torn muscles; for these good men we are profoundly grateful, and we would lay at their feet our profound thanks. Some nineteen hundred years there came into this world, "A new medicine man," so to speak, in the personality of Jesus Christ; he performed many miracles of healing of the body, but these were incidental to the real purpose of his coming. He said that he came that the people might life, and that they might have it more abundantly. His was a mission of soul healing, and how wonderfully he wrought in this realm; he prescribed the medicine that healed the broken heart, and that thrilled with new desire and outlook, the stricken soul, and he is doing this very thing today. His cure was prescribed on calvary and he has in a most marvelous way applied this antidote to millions of hearts. Every man of us hear today doubtless that we needs more of this wonderful cure: we are so apt to be selfish; he helps us to be unselfish; we are so apt to be impure; he helps us to be pure. Let us constantly apply the sure cure remedy of the gospel of the great son of God, that our lives may be noble and true.

STATES AGREE TO BAR PROHIBITED DRIVERS

Persons who have been denied a motor vehicle operator's license in one state will be unable in the future to go to another state in this vicinity and be granted the right to drive, under plans of the Eastern Conference of Motor Administrators, which were divulged by Commissioner Robbins B. Stoekel of the Connecticut department in an address, Friday, before the Thirteenth Annual Safety Congress at Louisville, Ky.

Fifteen motor vehicle jurisdictions will be parties to the agreement, being Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, the District of Columbia and the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec, all of which are members of the Eastern Conference. "In this group of states," said the commissioner, "there is now in existence uniform code for examinations which each state will put into effect, and the specifications of the examination will shortly be published one of the proceedings of the conference. During the course of an examination along the lines indicated, all that class of persons who are by nature, disease or habits unfitted to operate motor vehicles will be finally eliminated. It is only a matter of a short time before all the states named will have in operation a comparison whereby any person who has been finally refused a license in one state will be refused in others. When put into effect, this will ultimately prevent any person suffering from a sufficient disability from getting upon the roads as an operator."

The establishment throughout its membership of the operators' license law has long been one of the major policies of the Eastern Conference, Mr. Stoeckel said, on the ground that its proper administration as a disciplinary and educational factor tended toward safer and better operation of motor vehicles. He also outlined the progress toward uniformity in motor vehicle regulations, particularly with regard to headlights, which has been made by the Conference.

CONNECTICUT HAD MOTOR EXHIBIT AT LOUISVILLE

A list of the headlight devices approved in all the member states of the Eastern Conference, together with sample lenses, was a part of a comprehensive exhibit showing the work of the motor vehicle administrator's conference, which was shown at the Louisville congress. The license plate to be used by each member state for 1925, showing workmanship and design was also included. Each of the member states had separate exhibits, showing highway direction signs, filing plans for accident statistical work presenting actual statistics, copies of the motor vehicle law each, publications giving abstracts of the law, educational pamphlets on interpretation of the laws and bearing on lighting and hand signals, and explanation of specific safety work in which each is engaged. Commissioner Stoeckel was in charge of the general exhibit.

The Connecticut exhibit, in addition to giving registration and licensing statistics, showed the various activities of the department in accident-prevention, statistical and publicity work. The skeleton form upon which Connecticut operators are required to ake reports of accidents, the state and city maps upon which the department is able to show, in an instant, the exact accident situation in every locality, the charts and diagrams of the department records, the monthly safety bulletins issued by Commissioner Stoeckel, the special documents covering particular phases of motor vehicle arministration and regulation, newspaper publicity releases and photographs attracted considerable attention. The printed reports of the Yale traffic conference held last April in co-operation with the department were also in the exhibit.

Mrs. Gladys McQuire of Waterbury, is held here on serious charges as a result of a statement made to Coroner Eli Mix of New Haven county by a dying woman in a New Haven hospital.

GALES FERRY

Mrs. Charles Rowe Vickery of Hartford, missionary in India, and Mayiasia, wearing a pure white sari, the high cast widow's garb, impersonated Shantabi—child wife and widow in a monologue, at the morning service, Sunday, in the Methodist Episcopal church in a very realistic manner. The property has recently been thoroughly renewed, and the new owner will occupy the same.

Palace Theater

Motion pictures are born not made. This was the slogan of Raymond Cannon in writing the scenario for Douglas MacLean's great laughing success, Never Say Die, which comes to the Palace theater for three days starting Thursday.

In adapting this latest MacLean vehicle from the famous Broadway triumph in which Willie Collier played the leading role, Mr. Cannon made no attempt to write a complete scenario prior to the start on actual production. The working scenario was roughly drawn and the situations developed as each scene was being shot. "This meant that the incidents in the story happened naturally," states Mr. Cannon. "Comedy situations suggested themselves as we went along and things happened just as they do in real life—spontaneously. The picture was born—it sprang into being with comedy which was natural and therefore really funny.

There are no forced laughs in Never Say Die, because no situation is mechanical. In my opinion, a laugh which is spontaneous is worth five hakneyed gags. Mr. MacLean and his supporting cast threw themselves into the characterizations and tried to "feel their parts." Sometimes they did things which were not prescribed in the original scenario and these actions were usually more ludicrous than if they had been planned in advance.

Also, Leo Maloney in a two reel western thriller Warned in Advance. Pathe News showing actual scenes of the World Series, and Sport Light.

Broadway Theater

The final showings of the Sidney Olcott Paramount production, Monsieur Beaucaire, starring Rudolph Valentino, which opened at the Broadway theater last Sunday, will take place there this afternoon and evening. It's a picturization of the novel by Booth Tarkington and features Bebe Daniels, Lois Wilson, Doris Kenyon and Lowell Sherman in support of the star.

Monsieur Beaucaire is Valentino's first picture in two years and the greatest picture in ten years. Better see it!

Broadway Theater Thurs., Fri., Sat.

To say that Empty Hands, the new Victor-Paramount picture, which is coming to the Broadway theatre Thursday for a three day run, is different, is putting it mildly. Here is one of the most daring and unusual photoplays that has ever been flashed on the silver screen.

The pictorial possibilities have not been overlooked since the production was filmed in the scenically beautiful Canadian Rockies. From the standpoint of story, cast and direction Empty Hands will be well worth a visit to the Broadway theater when it comes to town.

A big vaudeville show consisting of five Kieth acts will make this program another outstanding hit.

Breed Theater

Jackie Coogan's latest Metro-Goldwyn picture, Little Robinson Crusoe is the attraction at the Breed theater for the remainder of the week. According to advance reports, this production provides wonderful entertainment for all children—young or old.

The story was written by Willard Mack, famous American playwright, especially for the juvenile star, and tells about the adventures of a small boy cast up on a South Sea island.

The supporting casat includes Tom Santschi, Gloria Grey, Will Walling, Bert Sprotte, Noble Johnson, Tote Ducrow and C. H. Wilson. It was produced under the supervision of Jack Coogan, Sr.

Larry Semon will also be seen in a comedy feature titled, The Gown Shop and the Fox news will complete the bill.

MYSTIC

At the annual meeting of the Mystic and Noank Library held Monday afternoon at the library, the annual reports were read and accepted, and the following officers were elected: President, Dr. C. F. Congdon; secretary and treasurer, William I. Spicer, Noank; trustees, Dr. C. F. Congdon, William I. Spicer, Noank, Henry B. Noyes, Alpheus H. Schoonover, Old Mystic, Dr. W. M. Hill, Noank. The Lribrarian is Miss Genevra Ricker, with Miss Ethel Fish assistant.

The report of the librarian showed that about 5000 books have been taken out the past year. A new feature of the work is a sort of extension service for Noank School, a basket of books being taken down each week and brought back the following week. The library is used considerably by pupils of Mystic Academy and the trustees would be glad if more pupils on both sides of the river availed themselves to a greater extent of its privileges. Another new feature which is about to be added is the making of a scrap book which is to contain items of local historical interest, such as old newspapers containing articles on events of bygone days, old dairies, and anything of interest along this line. This book when completed would be of great value and would be available to those who might care to consult it. Those who have anything along this line that they care to contribute are to be asked to hand it to the trustees. The library is open Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons and Saturday evenings.

Election day Monday there was a large turn out of voters on both sides of the river. Those in charge of the election on the Stonington side were, Moderator, James Cooper; checkers, James W. CHARLES P. HAMMOND DISMISSED FROM NEW LONDON POLICE FORCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 7—Charles P. Hammond, for seventeen years policeman in this city, was today dismissed from the force, when charges against him, heard by a board of investigators as provided for by the city charter and composed of Mayor Malcolm M. Scott, Judge Prince of the police court and Assistant Judge Lewis Crandall, were sustained. The charge was that Mr. Hammond appeared for duty on the night of the 27th of September while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. City Manager Holt had decided upon the dismissal of Hammond and his recommendation was sustained by the investigators. Hammond was appointed to the force under the captaincy of George Hayes. He proved his efficiency as an officer from the start and made a record that brought him to the grade of a detective. Later he was advanced to the sergeancy and then was entrusted with the most important tasks the department had to ferret out. Hammond could have retired at half pay in three years had he served the city as he should have done. He is understood to have a trade and he may go back to that work now. His trade is that of a carpenter. He is married and has two children. Hammond has been six times charged with over-indulgence in liquor, and once was disciplined by suspension from duty. Another time he was demoted, taken from the sergeancy and made a patrolman.

The finding was made public today by the city manager when he notified Capt. Kinney of the action of the board of investigators. The dismissal takes effect at once.

Julia E. Capron, Lottie E. Farmer, Nancy J. Nolan and Mary J. Chappell have sold a house and lot on Lewis street to Bruno Urbani.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan discovered a deep hole in the highway near the tracks of the Connecticut company on Montauk ave., near Thames St., this morning. The danger spot was reported to the highway department.

In the police court this morning Raymond Bailey was fined $10 for intoxication. He was celebrating yesterday and became involved in a mix-up that attracted the police. Bailey is father of a baby a few weeks old and made use of that fact to secure a light sentence. He failed to get any consideration along that line.

A complaint that has been hanging over James Staley several weeks was disposed of today by a nolle. He had trouble with his wife, but of late that condition seems to have passed away.

A case came to the court today in which the theft of two automobile tires was alleged. In the interval between the time an arrest was asked by which the complain[illegible] or and the presentation of the case in court, an arrangement was reach[illegible] by which the complainant wanted all prosecution proceedings dropped. He told the man he complained about that there would be nothing done in the case, so the accused failed to appear when the case was called in court the defendant acting conscientiously in failing to appear. He had deposited a bond of $50 and this was called on paid. Today an explanation on the part of the defendant led to the reopening of the bond and a nolle in the prosecution.

Mary Mariano, aged 12 years, was reported to the New London police today to have run away from her home in West Mystic, accompanied by a girl of her own age. It was said the girls bought two tickets for New York, but it was impossible that they would stop here. Search in this city failed to locate the girls, so a dispatch was sent to New York, that the children might be apprehended when the train arrived at the Pennsylvania station. No reply was received to the dispatch.

City Engineer Waters believes the work of repaving the highway from Montauk avenue to the Waterford line will reach the cement laying stage in a day or two. The road has been practically out of use some weeks so that completion of the work will be welcomed by all who use the highway.

It is expected that the addition to the banking house of the Union Bank and Trust company will be ready for use in ten days. President Barry said today that the work had been hindered by inability to get material, but that progress had now been made so that he anticipated its completion next week.

HAIR STAYS COMBED, GLOSSY

Even obstinate, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to your hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair. Beware of greasy, harmful imitations.

As the Hebrew new year—Yom Kippur—began at sundown this evening and will continue till Wednesday at sundown, the stores of all Jews were closed and the Hebrews abstained from all manner of work. A few stores where Gentiles were employed by the Hebrews so that they could manage the business were kept open.

The policemen of the city are interested in who shall succeed Patrolman Charles P. Hammond, dismissed from the service today for cause. The appointee is expected to be taken from the list of supernumeraries, but who he will be has not developed. There are several eligible for the appointment.

A few New London women will attend the annual state meeting of the King's Daughters at Waterbury Wednesday.

A few mackerel are being caught from the wharves in this harbor now. The fishermen say that a frost is necessary to make the mackerel hungry enough to bite well.

A man who stated that he was L. T. Baker, of Calverton, R. I., appeared at the police station Monday and declared that he had just alighted from an automobile in which he had ridden from Norwich to New London and that the driver of the car had declared himself to be a bank robber and that he was being sought by the police. Baker accompanied officers to State street where he picked out Hugh A. Scanlen, 134 York street, New Haven, as the driver of the automobile. Scanlon was taken to the police station where his identity was established and where he declared that he had made the assertion regarding himself in order to get rid of Baker, whose appearance was such as to cause Scanlon some suspicion. Scanlon was not held and a short time after leaving the police station he started for New Haven where he is engaged in business on Water street.

An automobile owned and operated by A. Pollard, Sr., 30 Eastern avenue and a machine owned and driven by Peter Sienkowski, 315 Huntington street, were in collision Monday afternoon on Eastern avenue. Both automobiles were damaged.

Bernard Chados, 62 Montauk avenue complained to the police Monday afternoon that while he parked his bicycle on the municipal pier earlier in the day an automobile operated by Mrs. A. B. Holman ran over the cycle and damaged it. Mrs. Holman, Chados declared, refused to pay for the damage she had caused.

John Thompson, 45 Tilley street, complained to the police Monday that sometime during the day his room was entered and that his watch and a woolen sweater were stolen. Thompson stated that the timepiece and sweater were in his room when he went to work Monday and when he returned to the house about 4:50 o'clock he discovered that his property had been stolen. The lodging house is operated by Mrs. Florence Casey.

The police speed automobile was slightly damaged Monday while it was parked in front of the police station by an automobile truck owned by the Thomas Transfer company backing against it.

Miss E. Lillian White, personal service director of the Savings Bank of New London, has resumed her duties having attended the annual convention of the Association of Bank Women of America and the American Bankers' Association at Chicago last week.

L. W. Montgomery, Central Vermont railroad conductor, who was killed at White River Junction, Vt., Monday by being crushed beneath a train, formerly resided in his city at which time he was in the employ of the railroad. He is brother of Special Agent Montgomery of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, in this city.

Mrs. Charles Silva and infant daughter, of 30 Eastern avenue, and Mrs. Bogdin Altner and infant daughter, 15 Tenth street, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

The republican probate convention convened this afternoon in the office of Attorney Daniel M. Cronin and resulted in Judge Arthur B. Calkins being nominated. Judge Calkins, a democrat, was recently nominated by his own party.

Caroline Marie, two days' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brockett, Giants Neck, died late yesterday at Lawrence hospital. The funeral was held this afternoon with interment in Rockville.

The New London police are seeking to locate a girl of about 19 who ransacked the lodging house of Mrs. Florence Casey, 45 Tilley street yesterday afternoon. The girl is believed to be a resident of New London, but has not been in the city for some time until she appeared at the lodging house yesterday. The girl declared that she had become estranged from her husband in New York and for that reason had returned to this city. Early in the afternoon the girl appeared at the lodging house and was given accommodations. When Mrs. Casey left the house about 3 o'clock the girl started to remove any effects of the boarding mistress or lodgers that she could find. She was fairly successful, for she stole a watch and woolen vest from John Thompson and from Mrs. Casey and other lodgers was obtained a gray canton crepe skirt, black satin dress, blue flannel dress, blue and gray coat, green and white sweater, Nile green evening dress and a lady's white gold watch. When the girl disappeared she left the suit she had worn when she secured lodgings, a gray outfit. This was turned over to the police.

Miss Edna Smith, Waterford, has entered the training school of Home Memorial hospital, as a student nurse.

Miss Mary E. Scroggie, Fremont street, left today for Lakehurst, N. J., where she will spend several weeks as guest of her niece, Mrs. Herbert V. Wiley, wife of Lieut. Wiley, U. S. N.

Miss Mary Eleanor Regan of Wakefield, Mass., niece of Mrs. Thomas F. Dorsey, Ocean Beach, will become the bride of Joseph Francis Cassidy, also of Wakefield, at St. Joseph's church, that city, Wednesday morning, the 22nd inst. Miss Regan has been a frequent visitor to New London.

An automobile owned and driven by George F. Dart, 135 Winthrop street, in passing on Willetts avenue extension late this afternoon was crowded off the highway by an automobile bearing Connecticut registration 44471. Dart lodged a complaint with the police.

The condition of Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, who sustained painful injuries a week ago when caught between the police automobile and a truck on Green street, receiving a bad cut on the right leg which required seven stitches to close, is much improved at his residence Bank street. It will, however, be two or three weeks before he is able to return to his post at the corner of State and Main streets.

A Ford roadster, owned by Salvatore Cupello, 91 Truman street, was stolen from that street last night or this morning and tonight the state police at Centerbrook found the machine abandoned at that place. The New London authorities were notified and Cupello was informed of the recovery of the car, later going to Centerbrook and recovering his property. Cupello parked his car in front of his home about 10 o'clock last night and this morning it had been stolen.

The traffic signal corner of State and Bank streets, which was recently tried out with a view to the city purchasing one or more of them and which became out of order during a heavy rain storm, is still not operating although it is nearly a month since it became defective and nothing is being done to get it in working order again.

Mary Mariana and Rose Russo, both about 15, and residing in Mystic, ran away from home this morning and the New London police this afternoon were requested to aid in a search for the girls. It was learned that the girls boarded the train that left New London at 11.40 o'clock and a message to the New York police resulted in the girls being taken into custody at the Pennsylvania station when the train reached there, shortly before 3 o'clock. The girls were taken in charge by the Travelers' Aid society and are being held pending the arrival of their parents to accompany them back home.

Joint-Ease
For Swollen Joints

Most remedies fail but Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's for joint troubles only, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, shoulder, finger or spine—whether rheumatic or not.

It limbers up stiff, inflamed, painful, creaky joints so quickly you'll be astonished.

Two seconds' rubbing and away it goes through skin and flesh right down to the bone and ligaments—that's why it succeeds. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any reliable druggist.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

JEWETT CITY

At noon Tuesday at Wild Acres, Lisbon, the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Kanahan, their daughter, Mabel Evelyn, became the bride of Byron Pierce Kinnie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterry H. Kinnie of Griswold.

The bridal couple were unattended and entered the music room as the wedding march from Lohegrin was played by Mrs. J. P. Richardson and were united in marriage by Rev. J. P. Richardson of Pachaug. They stood under an arch of laurel and autumn leves facing a screen of laurel before the double windows. The house was decorated with baskets of fall foliage and asters.

Following the wedding a reception was held and luncheon was served, guests to the number of 100 being present from New Haven, Waterbury, New York City, Westfield, Mass., Preston, Lisbon and Griswold.

The bride received many beautiful presents including money, silver, cut glass, linen, etc.

Both bride and groom are officers in Pachaug Grange and many friends in Pachaug, Jewett City and Lisbon wish them all possible happiness. After a short wedding trip they will make their home with the bride's parents, in Lisbon.

Court Griswold, No. 101, F. of A. will meet at 8 tonight to take action on death of brother John Murray.—adv.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy Jeffers was held at the Baptist church Tuesday afternoon, a large number of relatives and friends attending the services. Members of Whatsoever Circle of The King's Daughters, of which she was a member were among those present. Rev. E. E. Scates conducted the service, stating that the text and hymns were those selected by Mrs. Jeffers. The text was I Have Fought a Good Fight. I have Finished My Course, I Have Kept the Faith. The hymns were One Sweetly Solemn Thought and We'll Never Say Goodbye in Heaven. They were sung by Mrs. G. H. Prior, Mrs. George Sparks and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, accompanied by Mrs. E. E. Gilbert. Mr. Scates closed the service by reading a poem. Beautiful flowers filled the platform. Burial was in the Baptist cemetery in the family lot, the bearers being Deacon J. E. Phillips, Deacon D. L. Phillips, F. C. Whiting and E. M. Gray. Before the service flowers were placed upon the graves of four of the old friends of Mrs. Jeffers, who went down the declining years in the same church together—Mrs. Phebe Willcox, Mrs. Sarah Hiscox, Mrs. Abby Weaver and Mrs. Willard Potter, and who were present from Phoenix, R. I., Montville, Schenectady, N. Y., North Attleboro, Mass., Plainfield and Lisbon.

PEANUTS AND BASEBALL

Soon tens of thousands of fervid baseball fans will throng to World Series games, root for their league teams—and eat peanuts.

Economically, baseball sells the peanut as surely as the circus sells pink lemonade. Devotees at one major league park consume some 4,000,000 peanuts a season.

According to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society the peanut probably originated in Brazil. Aztecs knew it and the Spanish carried it to Europe and Africa, slaves brought from the West Indies to the southern states, are believed to have introduced it into the United States.

"Four quarts of American peanuts, taken to China 35 years ago by Archdeacon Thompson, are the ancestors of the Chinese peanut crop, which now exceeds the American production.

"Archdeacon Thompson generously divided his four quarts of peanuts with Dr. Charles R. Mills, of the American Presbyterian Mission, who was going to Shantung Peninsula. Dr. Mills gave a quart to two farmers, exacting the promise that each should gradually increase the peanuts for three years and at that time use them for general distribution. One of the farmers at the end of the first year ate all his crops. The second fulfilled his contract. Shantung Peninsula in one year recently grew 18,000,000 bushels of the large American peanuts.

"Peanuts are one of the New World's foremost credits for cancellation of its debt to the Old World for plants, shrubs and trees. They help pay the east for the delicious peach and soy bean, both of which originated in China. Wheat, barley, rye, timothy, apples, and pears followed the Star of Empire westward bound. But ranged beside the peanut as New World friends of all mankind are maize, grown now to the ends of the earth, the Irish potato, tobacco, Brazilian rubber tree, sisal, and chincona, the tree that produces quinine.

"The plant that produces the peanut is no ordinary member of the flower world. It takes no back place among the acrobats such as the Venus flytrap which baits an insect and squeezes it to death as terribly as an Edgar Allen Poe engine of terror; the butter and eggs which makes the bumble bees weigh in on its scales before it gives admittance to its honey pot, or the beggars ticks which steal rides. The peanut, since it belongs to the pea family, bears a strong resemblance to an ordinary bean plant and has sunbonnet shaped flowers. But after pollination the flower stalk turns a somersault and grows rapidly toward the ground, burying its seed pods among the roots. As the summer advances these seed capsules grow and when the plant is mature, full grown peanuts are found beneath the ground. Potatoes do this, but potatoes are bulbs. The peanut is one of the few plants that matures fertilized seed pods in the soil.

"Norfolk, Virginia, is regarded as the peanut capital of the United States although Texas with 265,000 acres in peanuts has more land devoted to this product than any other state. In one year the total yield in the United States was 823,587,200 pounds valued at nearly $30,090,890 On the plantations bordering the James River, in Virginia, where the Randolphs and other famous planters made bonanza crops of tobacco in the early days of colonization, peanuts are now favorite crops. Soft, sandy loam which the legumes favor is found here. In this locality also, peanuts figure in the production of the finest flavored pork. Hams from hogs permitted to root out 'goobers' left in the ground after harvest are said to have a flavor unequalled elsewhere in the United States.

Propagating Mistletoe.

Mistletoe may be established on trees by pressing the seeds when they are ripe in April gently into the bark of the tree. The seeds so placed should be covered with muslin for a time to prevent their being devoured by birds.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DULL.

New York, Oct. 7.—Desultory trading characterized today's stock market with price changes generally small and unimportant. Total sales fell below 500,000 shares for the first time since the middle of September.

Bear traders made an attempt to unsettle the general list during the morning, centering their attacks on the sugars and a few vulnerable specialties, but they failed to bring out much long stock and their efforts were soon abandoned. Operators on the long side, however, were unable to bid up prices without running into substantial volumes of stock with the result that trading was rather listless in the latter half of the session.

U. S. Steel common, American Can and Baldwin all closed fractionally higher.

A heavy tone developed in several of the high grade rails, Atchison, Delaware & Hudson, Lackawanna, "Nickel Plate," Illinois Central preferred, Rock Island 7 per cent preferred and Gulf, Mobile & Northern preferred showing recessions of a point or more.

Heavy selling of the sugars was attributed to the political disturbances in Cuba and to speculative disappointment over this year's earnings. American Sugar Refining, Cuba Cane preferred and Punta Alegre closed 1 to 1 1-2 points lower while South Porto Rican broke four points to 67.

Further accumulation took place in Bayuk Brothers, which closed 2 3-8 higher at 46 7-8. American Ice rallied a point to 76 on official assurance that earnings were satisfactory and the present dividend rate would be maintained. Good buying also was noted in Union Tank Car, Wells Fargo Express, National Dairy and General Asphalt, up 1 to 2 points.

St. Paul issues made further slight recovery from yesterday's early weakness. Southern Railway was heavy in the early trading in response to the filing of a suit by preferred stock holders in an effort to recover back dividends alleged to be due, but rallied later on publication of an official statement disputing that claim.

American Water Works broke 7 points to 108 1-2 and then rallied feebly. The decline in Chandler Motor, which touched a new low at 31 1-8, was interpreted as an adjustment to its recently reduced dividend rate. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore broke four points on one sale and Nash Motors dropped 4 1-2.

Call money held steady at 2 1-2 per cent. The time money market was firmer, maturities of four to six months being quoted at 3 1-4 to 3 1-2 per cent, instead of 3 to 3 1-4 although business was quiet. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Strength of the South American rates features the foreign exchange market. Argentine Paper pesos and Brazilian milreis were quoted at 38 3-8 and 11 3-4 cents, respectively, as compared with 36 7-8 and 11 1-4 yesterday. European exchanges eased slightly, demand sterling being quoted just above $4.45 1-2 and French francs ruling around 5.23 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Oct. 7.—Partial recovery of the St. Paul issues, a reactionary tendency in the general list, prompt over-subscription of the $15,000,000 6 1-2 per cent external sinking fund gold bonds of the Nord Railway of France and the announcement of an offering of $7,000,000 Finnish municipal bonds were the outstanding developments in today's bond market.

St. Paul 4s of 1925, which bore the brunt of yesterday's selling pressure, rallied 3 1-2 points, recovering about half their loss. The convertible 4 1-2s showed a gain of 1 1-2 points with corresponding advances in the other St. Paul issues. High grade railroad liens were heavy. Union Pacific refunding 5s and Norfolk & Western convertible 6s each losing a point and several others yielding large fractions. Adams Express 4s advanced a point to a new high at 85.

Foreign liens showed mixed changes with the standard issues holding steady on reports that the terms of the German loan would be made known Thursday. A firmer tendency in the time money market had little appreciable effect on United States government securities which moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Sugar company liens lost ground in sympathy with the decline in stock prices.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Oct. 7.—Transactions in curb securities centered principally on the public utilities in today's moderately active market, the reactionary movement in these issues being featured by a break of 5 1-2 points in Appalachian Power to 65 1-2. The shares later found support and rallied to 68. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, new stock, displayed heaviness in sympathy with the decline in the old stock on the "big board" and American Gas and Electric common sold off 2 1-2 to 90. In contrast to these recessions American Light and Traction gained 2 1-4 points to 139.

Active oils generally were reactionary, losses in popular issues being held to fractions. Woodley Petroleum, however, touched a new high on the movement at 11 3-4 in reflection of an increase of 15 cents a barrel in light Smackover crude, now 95 cents a barrel.

Price changes in the radio group were small and unimportant. Lehigh Valley coal certificates eased slightly on an increased turnover. United Bakeries dropped two points on a few sales. Gillette Safety Razor dropped two points to 324, then rallied slightly.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Oct. 7.—Copper easy. Electrolytic spot and nearby 12 7-8@13; futures 13. Tin firm. Spot and futures 49.75. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead steady. Spot 8.00. Zinc steady. East St. Louis spot and futures 6.20. Antimony, spot 11.00.

MONEY.

New York, Oct. 7.—Call money easier; high 2 1-2; low 2 1-2; ruling rate 2 1-2; closing bid 2 1-2; offered at 2 3-4; last loan 2 1-2; call loans against acceptances; time loans firmer; mixed collateral 60-90 days 2 1-2@3; 4-6 months 3 1-4@3 1-2; prime commercial paper 3 1-4.

COTTON.

New York, Oct. 7.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 26.35.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—With corn prices shooting upward and rye down, the grain markets went through more varied changes today than have been witnessed here in a long while. Wet weather and sudden dearth of offerings scared recent sellers of corn, and that cereal jumped wildly, closing nervous, 2 1-2 to 2 7-8c net higher, December 1.13 1-8 to 1.13 1-4. Rye at one time was six cents off as a result of lessened European demand. In wheat the finish was unsettled, at 1-2c lower to an equal advance, December 1.45 5-8 to 1.49 7-8 and May 1.54 1-4 to 1.54 3-8, with oats varying from 1-2c decline to 3-4c gain, and provisions all the way fro m15c lower to a rise of 17c.

It was during the last hour of trading that speculative attention shifted to the corn market and brought about a sharp upturn in values there. Flurried attempts to buy disclosed that but little was for sale, and in some quarters significance was attached to the fact that of late the price of Argentine corn has been gaining rapidly as compared with corn in the United States. The inference was drawn that Argentine competition in this country has become a negligible quantity, and that meanwhile the prevailing wet weather had put the domestic corn crop in danger of serious new damage should freezing temperatures be met with soon.

The wheat trend was virtually a drawn battle, in which alternating upturns and declines over a four cent range resulted largely from Argentine brought advices succeeded by word of beneficial rains over part of Argentina. Estimates that export purchases of wheat would total 2,000,000 bushels helped to rally the market at the last.

Oats were influenced more or less by gossip that good export business might be done shortly.

Irregularity in the provision market appeared to be related a good deal to the uncertain trend of grain.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASE DECREASING IN STATE

There was a decrease in the number of new cases of all communicable diseases in the state during the week ending Monday, except scarlet fever, according to the weekly morbidity report of the state department of health. Only one case of measles was reported. Cases of scarlet fever increased from twenty-four the previous week to thirty-six the past week. Diphtheria cases decreased from forty-one to twenty-seven, with seventeen bacilli carriers reported. Twelve of these were discovered in Stratford.

Seven new cases of typhoid fever were reported, three less than during the previous week. There was only one case of the disease in Hartford county. This was in New Britain. A slight epidemic of mumps is reported from Plainfield. Twelve cases of mumps were reported in the state. Other cases of communicable diseases were reported as follows: Chickenpox, ten; German measles, four; pneumonia, fourteen; poliomyelitis, six; tetanus, one; tuberculosis, all forms, thirty-five.

Well child conferences will be held this week as follows: Berlin, Foresters' Hall; Colchester, Grange Hall, Thursday; Colebrook River, school building, Thursday; Thompsonville, town building, Friday. All conferences will be open from 2 p. m. until 4 p. m. New reading pamphlets, prepared by the bureau of child hygiene of the state department of health, will be distributed at all the conferences.

MYSTERIOUS INFECTION BY TUBERCULOSIS GERMS

The mysterious ways in which tuberculosis sometimes gains access to the human system, was illustrated by a case which was reported by Doctor Cole R. Gibson, superintendent of Undercliff at the meeting of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria at Meriden, Monday.

A few years ago a young girl developed on her heel a blister that resisted treatment. The inflammation soon spread and caused abscesses in various parts of the girl's body. These were slow in healing and she was taken to the hospital in town and studied and treated. The only germs which were found were the ordinary ones that abound in everybody's skin.

Then she began to have abscesses in the bones of her legs. The X-rays and the microscope seemed to show that the disease was caused by the same germs as the skin abscess. It was found necessary to amputate one of her legs.

Next one of the bones of the lower part of her spine showed signs of disease and rapidly softened. The resulting pus was found to contain only tubercle bacilli, thus proving her present trouble to be tuberculosis.

The doctors at the meeting were divided in opinion as to whether the girl's ailment was tuberculosis in the beginning, or whether the present tuberculosis is a secondary infection.

Doctor Carroll, the first assistant at Undercliff, exhibited several cases showing the difficulties which are encountered in diagnosing lung conditions in children.

Doctor Banjal, the second assistant at Undercliff, reported original studies that he has recently made concerning the tuberculin reaction in men and animals.

A preliminary report of the international tuberculosis conference in Switzerland was made by Dr. Stephen J. Maher, of New Haven, chairman of the commission; Dr. Edward J. Lynch, superintendent of the Shelton sanatorium; and Hubert M. Sedgwick of New Haven, field secretary of the commission who attended the sessions.

VIRGINIA LOOKING FOR TRADE WITH NEW ENGLAND

Seven Connecticut organizations will be asked to have representatives on the committee from New England states, which has been invited to visit Virginia the week of October 20 or 27 as the guest of the Virginia state chamber of commerce. Delegates from the Connecticut State chamber of commerce, the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, both of Hartford; the Connecticut Rivers, Bridges and Harbors commission; the Bridgeport, New Haven, the New Lnodon and the Norwich chambers of commerce, are to make up the Connecticut contingent of the body.

The purpose of the proposed visit is to create a feeling of friendliness and cooperation between New England business interests and those of Virginia, which eventually will lead to economic reciprocity. Business interests of Connecticut, in letters received by the Virginia state chamber of commerce here, state plainly that they believe future domestic trade expansion must be with the south.

Among these letters are expressions from Stanley H. Bullard, president of the Connecticut chamber of commerce, at Bridgeport, who stated that he believes both states can look for big things through mutual relationship.

Dr. Joseph H. Smith, president, and Major LeRoy Hodges, managing director of the Virginia state chamber of commerce, visited New England last spring, and inspected Connecticut ports and port development. Since that time Major Hodges has toured the North American continent and visited every port of consequence in Canada, on the west coast and the gulf. Nowhere, he said, has he found the development which he has seen in New England.

JOHN W. DAVIS CLUB FORMED AT COLUMBIA

Columbia, Oct. 6.—Democratic delegates from the lower section of Tolland county met Saturday evening at Yeomans hall and formed a John W. Davis club. The following officers were elected: Chairman, Ernest Woodworth, of Coventry; vice chairman, A. W. Buchanan, of Mansfield; secretary, J. W. Clarke, of Columbia; treasurer, Lewis Phelps, Andover.

Executive board of seven towns: Andover, Herbert Thompson; Bolton, Fred Finley; Columbia, R. E. Clark; Coventry, Emil Koehler; Hebron, Chas. Sloan; Mansfield, Ozro Hanks; Willington, Merrit Usher.

It is the intention to hold meeting in the different towns.

WILL GIVE DEMONSTRATION WITH FIRE DEPARTMENT

In connection with the observance of fire prevention week Chief Howard L. Stanton has arranged for a demonstration of the fire apparatus on Union square this (Wednesday) afternoon between 1.30 and 2 o'clock. At this time the firemen will do their part for the week's programme.

Chief George Linton of the police department has been asked to keep the streets in that section clear of traffic between 1.30 and 2 o'clock. During the half hour all traffic will be cleared from the corner of Willow street to the end of lower Broadway. Owners and drivers of vehicles are requested to cooperate with the police and to keep out of the restricted district.

Notices of a wage cut of 12½ per cent, effective Oct. 13, have been posted at the mills of the Renfrew Manufacturing company, Adams, Mass., with the explanation that present market conditions make it impossible to continue operation unless labor costs are reduced.

Daddy!
how about that treat?

The kiddies will meet you at the door!

Oh, joy — it's WRIGLEY'S! Yes, joy and benefit, for this long-lasting, inexpensive sweet helps teeth, appetite and digestion.

Children love it and all the time they're getting the good it does them.

Doctors and dentists say that chewing gum cleans the teeth and aids tooth nutrition. Also, that it helps digestion.

Nothing else at 5 cents means so much in benefit and pleasure.

So we say

after every meal!

A Chat With You!

THE WORLD moves so fast nowadays that those who are always saying "It can be done," are continually being interrupted by someone doing it.

EVERY MUSIC TEACHER who has examined our [illegible] has nothing but wholesome praise for it.

A FEW have admitted their ignorance in condemning our Method sight unseen, and have unwittingly sent us pupils. To these few the Directors is greatly indebted and thanks them most heartily.

EVERY KNOCK is a boost. The more incompetent the critic, the harder he knocks, naturally.

ONE STUDENT recently said: "There is just one complaint against your Course, and that is, you are too modest in your claims. Your Course is 1742½ times better than you advertise. Why so conservative? Your literature understates. Why not shout from the housetops? Other methods are laughable, compared to it."

OUR ADVERTISEMENT in this paper next Saturday will contain a message worthy of the widest attention. Watch for it! I thank you.

1,933 APPLICATIONS "TO BE MADE", 805 MORE THAN TWO YEARS AGO

Registrars of Voters Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes at the close of the session Tuesday for receiving applications from those who desire to be made voters this month found a total of 1933, of which 1008 were from women and 925 from men, a gain of 805 over the last state election year 1922.

The board of registration composed of the selectmen, town clerk and registrars of voters will hold sessions of making those who appear to qualify on Saturday, Oct. 11 and Wednesday, Oct. 15 and Saturday, Oct. 18. The registrars will distribute lists of voters and those to be made in all of the voting districts and they are making the request that voters of the town examine these lists and see if their names appear where they live. This will avoid much confusion on election day. The lists have been revised and will be open for correction until Thursday October 23 and the registrars will gladly receive advice as to corrections.

The "to be made" receive in 1922 and 1924 are as follows:

CAPT. DENISON RATES AS DISTINGUISHED MARKSMAN

The Connecticut National Guard rifle team under command of Lieutenant Col. Robert F. Gadd has completed a four weeks' tour of duty on the rifle ranges at Camp Perry, Ohio, and has returned home.

The Connecticut team won 41st place in the competition among 96 teams which is the best record the team ever made.

The scores of the Connecticut National Guard team follows:

	—SLOW—		—RAPID—
Denison	40	46	90	46	45—	267
Peck	40	49	85	36	37—	247
Wodilla	41	49	85	44	39—	258
Hilton	42	47	89	43	43—	244
Kummick	36	46	81	46	31—	240
Lockhart	41	46	86	44	40—	257
Gordon	42	47	88	47	38—	262
Young	40	46	79	40	45—	250
May	38	48	81	41	48—	256
Slayton	45	48	84	45	41—	263
Total	405	472	828	432	407	2544

Capt. W. R. Denison of this city, having been a member of five state teams, now has a rating as distinguished marksman and receives a gold medal from the government, but is not eligible again for two years as a member of a state team. Capt. Denison won places in the following: President match; Leech, Roumanian; Herrick; Navy; Wimbledon, and also a special certificate of proficiency at small arms firing school. He was recommended as an instructor in the use of the rifle. He also won a life membership in the N. R. A.

In the national team match which was fired Wednesday and Thursday the men made a good showing at the 200 yard slow fire but for some unexplainable reason several of the men were unable to make good total scores and this fact kept the team from getting into one of the winning classes despite the fact that they were the leading National Guard team on the 600 yard range, making a total ten man score of 473 out of a possible 500. They not only made a better score than the other National Guard teams but also beat several of the service teams at this stage but were unable to regain the number of points lost of the 300 yard stage needed to place them in a winning class. At the 1,000 yard stage the team had to shoot in very unfavorable weather conditions, there being a fishtail wind blowing and this combined with a trick mirage made accurate shooting almost impossible.

G. G. G. CLASS ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The monthly meeting of the G. G. G. Class of the Central Baptist church was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Frederick A. Freeman with an attendance of fifteen. The president Miss Harriet Williams, presided and after the routine business was transacted the following officers were elected:

President, Miss Crystal Whitney; vice president, Helen Christ; secretary, Alma Carpenter; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Forschler; publicity committee, Helen Williams, Emily Gallup; refreshment committee, Mrs. Helen Boynton, Beulah Whitley; visiting committee, Mabel Hagberg and Mrs. Forschler.

During the evening, Miss Hilda Holmberg was pleasantly surprised when she was presented with a basket filled with many beautiful and useful gifts in honor of her approaching marriage.

Refreshments of sandwiches, chocolate, wafers and candy were served at a prettily decorated table in Hallowe'en effect.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Aiken, of Worcester have been guests of Gen. William A Aiken.

Miss Elizabeth F. Smith of Warren street has begun her sophomore year at Smith college.

Miss Fannie Brewer, of West Mystic is visiting for a few days at the home her aunt, Miss Louisa J. Brewer, of Washington street.

Mrs. Louis L. Blackstone, who has spent the season at her cottage at Nantucket, is expected to return to her home on Broad street at the end of the week.

Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins entertained a supper party of twelve, at her home on Washington street, Saturday, noting Mr. Perkins' birthday. Afterwards cards were played.

Charles J. Dyer and Henry J. LaFontaine, are spending a few days with Dr. and Mrs. Homer Gage, in Worcester, for the music festival, which begins today (Wednesday.)

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Reynolds, of New York, who have been guests of Judge and Mrs. Gardiner Greene, returned late Tuesday afternoon to their summer home at Greenwich. They were accompanied by Mr. Reynolds' brother, Albert L. Reynolds, who will remain for a week.

Earliest Known Bread.

Kasava bread is still to-day a breadstuff of millions throughout tropical and sub-tropical America. It is the most ancient form of the "staff of life" of the whole Western Hemisphere. The next oldest has its best known type in the Mexican mais-tortilla, which can be obtained at groceries and restaurants in Manhattan and other big cities.

COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONFERENCE ON FRIDAY

All who are interested in the work of religious education will appreciate the splendid program offered by the New London County Sunday School association at its annual convention, Friday, Oct. 10, which will be held at the Central Baptist church. There will be three sessions beginning at 10.30 and closing at 9.30 p. m.

A series of three Bible periods, under the leadership of Prof. Wallace L. Gallup, of Connecticut College, will be of special interest to Bible students from this vicinity.

Prof. O. W. Warmingham of the School of Religious Education and Social Service, Boston University, who will give three addresses on Religious Education is a particularly gifted speaker. He was born in India, one of his parents being a native of that country. He has therefore inherited much of the Oriental imagery in his speech.

Three conference discussion groups will be led by specialists in the different departments of Sunday school work.

Several matters of importance are to be brought before the convention in the business period.

Lunch and supper will be served at the church. James L. Case will act as toastmaster.

The program follows:

Rev. Roderick MacLeod, presiding.

Morning Session.

10.30, service of worship, Wallace I. Woodin, Hartford; 11, Bible Period No. 1, The Master Teacher, Prof. Wallace L. Gallup, Connecticut Colleges; 11.30, announcements; 11.45, address, The Place of Religious Education in Democracy, Prof. O. W. Warmingham, Boston; 12.30, noon recess.

Afternoon Session.

2, service of worship, Wallace I. Woodin; 2.30, Bible Period No. 2, The Master Preacher, Prof. Wallace L. Gallup; 3, announcements, business, reports; 3.45, address, Community Religious Education in New London County, Rev. Chester H. Howe, New London; 4, address, The Vocational Spirit in Religious Education, Prof. O. W. Warningham; 4.30, adjourn to group conferences; 4.45, group conferences: 1, children's division, demonstration under the direction of Mrs. C. Edward Smith, of Norwich; 2, young people's division, Rev. O. P. Campbell, director of education, Connecticut Baptist convention; 3, adult division, Prof. O. W. Warmingham; 6, supper, James L. Case, toastmaster.

Evening Session.

7.30, service of worship, Wallace I. Woodin; 8, Bible Period No. 3, The Master Friend, Prof. Wallace L. Gallup; 8.30, announcements; 8.45, address, The Glory of the Teacher's Task, Prof. O. W. Warmingham; 9.30, adjournment.

ASKS $5,000 DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Damages of $5,000 are sought in a breach of promise suit that has been brought in the superior court by Mrs. Helen M. Clark against Warren North both of this city. The complaint alleges that a divorce suit against Mrs. Clark had been brought in Ohio by her former husband and that in February, 1924, she agreed to marry North as soon as the divorce had been secured, he making a similar promise.

The plaintiff alleges that while she is still willing to marry the defendant he now is unwilling to marry her.

In the wholesale market he is considered a very capable buyer with a thorough knowledge of values in the lines which his departments carried and it was in recognition of his ability as buyer and manager that he was selected to fill a position in this larger and more important field.

The Select Furniture Co., with whom he is to be associated as manager of the drapery department, is one of the biggest organizations in this line and the Pittsburgh store is only one of a number of stores which they conduct in several of the larger cities of the country.

Mr. Congdon carries with him to his new position, the good wishes of the executives of the company in whose employ he has been for 21 years and under whose guidance he received his mercantile training; also the esteem and good will of his store associates, which was made evident, on the eve of his departure, by the presentation to him, by the store employes, of a handsome "Likly" traveling bag. He is leaving Norwich today and will enter upon the duties of his new position on Thursday.

COOLIDGE CLUB IS ORGANIZED IN NORWICH

A Norwich Coolidge club was organized Monday evening at a meeting of local politicians at the newly opened republican headquarters at No. 34 Broadway. The meeting was called to order by Judge Arthur F. Libby, chairman of the republican town committee. After the purpose of the meeting had been explained the Coolidge Club was organized. Edwin V. Ross, was elected president, Webster D. Copp, secretary and Stephen H. Reeves, treasurer. It was voted that the membership fee be one dollar, the proceeds to be used for the local campaign expenses. The president, secretary and treasurer and Judge Libby were appointed to name an executive committee at a later meeting of the club.

The republican headquarters were opened Monday evening and Charles G. Cobb has been placed in charge of the headquarters. Republican national campaign literature and campaign buttons may be secured at the headquarters by any residents of Norwich and vicinity without charge.

Tiniest of Republics

Nestled within the confines of a square mile in the Pyrenees, the Lilliputian republic of Goust, smaller even than the republics of Andorra or San Marino, has had its independence recognized by France and Spain for more than three centuries. It has a population of about 150. The inhabitants are ruled by a council of elders, and they pay no taxes or duties of any sort.

This civic unit is so tiny that it has to go abroad for its cure of soul and body. For these it had to go to Laurent, the nearest French town. Even the dead must leave Goust to find consecrated ground in which to lie; the coffins are slid downhill, out of the smallest republic in the world.

Laboratory and Gold Mine

An eminent scientist made a happy comparison in a lecture on the modern laboratory. Once it was easy for the student and investigator in chemistry to hit upon new things, just as once the treasure-seeker in the Rocky Mountains who needed no apparatus but a pan has given place to the costly installation of mining machinery, which extracts the precious metal from the bowels of the mountains; so the lucky discoverer who could enrich science by simply keeping his eyes open while scratching the surface has been succeeded by patient delvers, who must go deep, and who can make no progress without the elaborate and expensive equipment of a first-class laboratory.

"I suppose that's awfully old," responded the unimaginative one, "but what difference does it make to a turtle?"

INSPECTING FIRE HAZARDS ABOUT THIS CITY

For several days Chief Howard L. Stanton has detailed members of the fire department on a tour of inspection of fire hazards about the city. This is part of the annual fire prevention week observance.

The business center of the city is practically spotless with the exception of several places where accumulated rubbish has been found and ordered cleaned up. Norwich leads the cities in this part of the state in the matter of fire hazard inspections. If all residents of the city would cooperate with the fire department in cleaning up their premises Norwich would have the distinction of being a city practically clean of fire hazards. Chief Stanton has often expressed the opinion that every day in the year should be Fire Prevention Day and not one day alone.

A Desert Railway

The Australian government has undertaken the construction of a transcontinental railway that will cross the largest desert of that great country. The land is so level that no tunnels, deep cuts or steep grades and few culverts and bridges are required. Sand dunes are the greatest obstruction, one belt of dune being 20 miles wide.

The remarkable thing about the railway is that it lies in a region uninhabited even by aborigines, where the real task of the engineer is to provide water; grading and tracklaying are incidental.

The returns which the government expects to get from the traffic on the transcontinental line are an insignificant fraction of the cost of building and upkeep, but the political and strategic values of the railway are immense. It shortens the distance from London to Melbourne or Sydney by nearly a week, and likewise decreases the time between West Australia and New Zealand or America. It brings the western half of the continent in touch with the eastern by converting a strenuous two-month overland journey from Adelaide to Perth into a comfortable ride of two days.

Capital's Shade Trees.

There are about 105,000 shade trees in the national capital. Practically every kind of tree that will grow in this climate is found. The main varieties planted along the streets and in the parks are sugar maple, sycamore maple, red maple, elm, linden, tulip poplar, sycamore, ash, pin oak, honey locust and horse chestnut. The American capital ranks as the best-shaded city in the world, Paris, France, being second.

A republican rally in this city for the night of Tuesday, Oct. 21, has been arranged for by the town committee at which Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham, who is the party's candidate for governor at the coming election, is to be a speaker.

Another speaker who will be heard with much interest will be Bert M. Fernald, an ex-governor of Maine who has just been elected United States senator by 50,000 majority.

very opening of the debate,
some jeering remarks at the
of Sir Robert S. Horne when he was moving the vote of censure, the speaker had to intervene and warn the members that he would insist that everybody had a proper hearing. But, despite this solemn warning, there were throughout the debate at times unruly interruptions and mocking laughter from members of the different parties, and the speaker had frequently to renew his admonitions to the disturbers.

Sir Robert Horne's speech in moving the vote was an attack on Attorney General Hastings' conduct of the Campbell case. He accused him of lack of candor and asked whether he knew that Campbell was elected a member of the red internationale this year and was affiliated with the Moscow internationale.

The attorney general's speech in his own defense was strongly militant. He declared that he was not an apologist and would take exactly the same course again. He then placed before the house a lengthy statement of everything concerning the case from beginning to end and sought to show that precedents for his action had been set by his predecessors in office.

Sir John Simon, himself a former attorney general, then moved his amendment calling for a select committee of investigation. He protested that the liberals only wanted a fair and impartial inquiry, which might take any form the house desired, and he contended that such a demand was no case for a general election. If the government resisted an inquiry, he declared, it would be acting like a man required to produce a document from a desk who preferred to burn down his house rather than produce it.

The prime minister followed. Recalling the government's record, he said the government was prepared to continue, but the house must in all fairness grant it a measure of confidence. Sir Robert Horne's motion was a straightforward motion of censure, and if it represented the mind of the house, let the house say so.

The prime minister characterized Sir John Simon's amendment, on the contrary, as possessing much meanness, and he proceeded to argue against any parliamentary inquiry.

"The ministers have done their best," he exclaimed. "If the house cares to censure us tonight, it has the power. But it is the end. It will be the end of what members of both sides of the house will agree has been a high adventure of a government which I think has contributed much to the honor of our country and to our social stability, and when the country has the opportunity of passing a verdict upon it, it will come again."

Herbert A. Asquith, the liberal leader, took a more conciliatory attitude than Sir John Simon had done. He twitted the prime minister with making a funeral oration before even the doctor had pronounced life extinct. The liberals, he said, were not wedded to any particular form of investigation, and he offered, if a select committee was appointed, that his party would not ask for representation on it, so there should be no suggestion that it was a packed jury. He pointed out that a judicial commission such as has been suggested would need an act of parliament and entail endless delay. But if any practical alternative were offered the liberals would make no objection.

During and after Mr. Asquith's speech the members in the lobbies were still professing themselves bewildered as to what was actually going to happen tonight and discussing all sorts of rumors of possible manoeuvers to avoid the defeat of the government.

At 10 o'clock T. P. O'Connor, who described the affair as "a miserable little tempest in the tiniest teacup" tried to have the debate adjourned, in order that "they might cool their tempers and reconsider the situation."

Stanley Baldwin declared that the conservatives would give their undivided support to Sir John Simon's amendment. He admitted that his opinion had been somewhat modified by what he had heard tonight, but he still insisted that an inquiry was needed.

John J. O'Neill, liberal, said he would vote against his own party on the Sion amendment because it was unfair to put the prime minister on such a trial, and the attorney general had given a perfect answer to every charge made against him.

Two French Army Aviators Killed

Paris, Oct. 8—Two army aviators were killed and 11 airplanes wrecked in a series of accidents caused by a terrific windstorm this morning that caused the cancellation of all air manoeuvers intended to be held over Versailles and Rambouillet.

To Study Health Conditions

Berlin, Oct. 8—Dr. Alice Hamilton of the Harvard Medical School left this afternoon for Poland and Russia to study health conditions in industry there in behalf of the league of nations of whose health commission she is a member. She was accompanied by Miss Mabel Kittredge of New York, a sociologist. Both attended the recent sessions in Geneva.

SENATOR KENYON ASSURES SUPPORT OF REP. TICKET

Dawes Special en route through Iowa, Storm Lake, Iowa, Oct. 8—(By the A. P.)—Assurance that William S. Kenyon, former senator from Iowa and now a federal circuit judge, was standing behind the republican national ticket, was conveyed to Charles G. Dawes, vice presidential candidate today by a group of Judge Kenyon's personal friends and political advisers.

Greeting Mr. Dawes at Fort Dodge, his first stop of the day, on his swing across the state, this group, which included Charles Rawson, republican national committeeman, announced that they wished to deny on behalf of Mr. Kenyon that the former senator was given "any aid or comfort" to the LaFollette movement in Iowa.

"We are here to tell you," they said, "that Judge Kenyon is not for the LaFollette candidacy, despite recent reports to that effect. Judge Kenyon is not participating in politics this year as he feels that his position on the bench would make it improper.

"But we can say for him that he is not even flirting with Senator LaFollette, but is remaining as he ever has been, a loyal republican.

Mr. Kenyon was quoted several weeks ago as saying he would like to resign his place on the bench and get into the fight for Senator LaFollette. These reports substantially were denied.

Mr. Dawes continued his attack on the LaFollette candidacy in his speech here.

IN QUEST OF A BOSTON LODGING HOUSE KEEPER

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 8—District Attorney Arthur K. Reading, of Middlesex county, today sent out a call for Frank H. Morse, a Boston lodging house keeper, for questioning in connection with the murder of Frederick A. Clements, garage proprietor of Burlington, whose body was found in the Shawsheen river at Bedford last Thursday weighted down with automobile parts. The district attorney said the family of Morse did not know his whereabouts.

In a statement issued late today Mr. Reading said:

"For several days I have been trying to communicate with Frank H. Morse, who conducts a lodging house on Tremont Street, Boston state police have reported to me that Morse recently left the city without informing his family or friends of his reasons for leaving and without stating his destination. He drives an automobile with the Massachusetts registration number 439,389."

SHENANDOAH MAKES SMOOTH LANDING AT FORT WORTH, TEX.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 8—The giant navy dirigible, Shenandoah, arrived at Fort Worth at 7.25 o'clock this evening.

A crowd of several thousand people welcomed the big craft and a mighty ovation of whistles and bells announced its arrival. National guardsmen, augmented by Boy Scouts and police, held back the crowds which surged forward as the Shenandoah's nose was drawn into the big cone on the east.

It was dark when the great ship skirted the city limits and following the guiding light of the mooring mast beacon, passed over the eastern portion of the city, and settled at the mast. Little difficulty was encountered in making the ship fast.

Norway's Capital

Although the origin of the name Oslo, by which after January 1, 1925, Christiania is to be designated, is not definitely known, it is certain that it dates back, as the name of a city near the present Norwegian capital, many hundred years. Tradition, in fact, puts the year of its founding as 1048, and though this probably antedates the actual event, many facts are known concerning the city during the Middle Ages. It was, however, burned in 1624, after its citizens were removed to the other side of the Bjorliken, and "Christiania" was built there by King Christian IV. But this change of residence did not deprive them of their ancient privileges, and when, more than 200 years later, the boundaries of Christiania were enlarged, the old Oslo was incorporated in the city. In 1890 the Oslo Court of Assize was instituted, and in 1920 the Bishopric of Oslo.

Rapid Growth of The Radio Industry

Washington, Oct. 8.—First official information as to the output of the rapidly growing infant radio industry was made public by the census bureau today showing the value of radio apparatus and tuebes to have aggregated $48,032,927 last year.

The biennial census of manufacturers for 1923 disclosed radio apparatus valued at $43,460,676 was manufactured. That included 414,588 tube receiving sets valued at $12,065,992; 116,497 crystal receiving sets valued at $550,201; 1,073 transmitting sets, valued at $900,230; 1,889,614 head sets valued at $5,352,441, and 508,001 loud speakers valued at $5,620,981. Also included were 1,700,024 transformers, valued at $3,773,213; 1,089,721 rheostats valued at $716,774, and 355,161 lightning arresters valued at $196,534.

Radio tubes manufactured for sale as such, a part of which were sold to manufacturers to complete receiving sets and the value of which therefore is included also in the value of receiving sets, numbered 2,601,575 and were valued at $4,572,251.

NATIONAL RADIO WEEK FROM NOVEMBER 24 TO 30

Washington, Oct. 8.—Plans for a national radio week, from November 24 to 30, during which time the American broadcasting stations will seek to transmit messages to Europe, and European stations will attempt to establish regular communication with America were announced today by Arthur Lynch, of New York, attending the national radio conference here.

President Coolidge will be invited to broadcast a message of greetings to the people of Europe and other foreign lands, and King George of England, will be invited to speak to America, Mr. Lynch said.

The plans call for the American stations to broadcast to foreign countries between 10 to 11 p. m., eastern standard time, each night during the week, while the European stations will broadcast to America from 11 to 12 o'clock each night.

POLITICAL REPORTS GIVEN TO PRESIDENT COOLIDE

Washington, Oct. 8.—Consideration to the political situations in several states was given by President Coolidge today in brief conferences with various party leaders all of whom brought enthusiastic reports.

Mr. Coolidge also addressed delegates to the national radio conference who called at the White House emphasizing that the government must keep control of the air to protect the rights of citizens for unlimited radio communication.

While the president made no comment on the demand of Senator LaFollette for an investigation of campaign funds, C. Bascom Slemp, his secretary, denied as "pure fabrication" the charge by the independent presidential candidate that he would take charge of a campaign "slush fund."

Representative McClafferty, of California, assured the president of success for the republican ticket in California and William B. Calder former senator from New York, brought a similar report to him about his state.

Both men said Senator LaFollette had a considerable following in their states, and would outrun, in their opinion, the democratic candidate, John W. Davis, there.

William A. Rodenberg, former representative from Illinois, who has been speaking in midwestern states, gave a similar message to Mr. Coolidge, on political situation in his state.

T. Coleman Dupont, republican candidate for senator from Delaware, was a guest of the president at breakfast and Mr. and Mrs. McClafferty were guests of the president and Mrs. Coolidge at dinner at the White House tonight.

FIRE DOES $2,000 DAMAGE IN PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

Plainfield, Oct. 8.—The one-story building located on Babcock avenue, and owned by William Caswell of Plainfield, was practically destroyed last night by fire and water. The estimated damage is said to be about $2,000, but whether the building was covered by insurance could not be ascertained as the owner could not be located.

The fire was discovered by Dr. A. A. Case of Plainfield about 12 o'clock and the Plainfield fire department which responded was notified by Richard Provost. When the fire had been extinguished by the department it was found that the fire had started in a box of rags on the floor of the building, eating its way into the partitions.

A shoe store conducted by David Bassin and an antique shop run by James Muldoon were located in the building.

SECOND READING OR IRISH BOUNDARY BILL PASSED

London, Oct. 8.—The house of lords tonight passed the second reading of the Irish boundary bill without amendment, but by a vote of 71 to 38 carried Lord Salisbury's declaratory motion that the house "take note" of the opinions expressed in parliament and elsewhere that Article XII of the treat contemplated nothing more than a readjustment of the boundaries.

This amendment is not to the bill itself and has no effect. In fact, some of the conservative peers, including even Lord Carson, opposed it on the ground of the inadvisability of forcing an appeal to the country on the Irish bill, which might happen if the lords insisted upon any amendments.

AVIATOR KILLED, SEVERAL SPECTATORS INJURED

Richmond, Va., Oct. 8.—Russell Simon, an aviator of Newport News was killed and several spectators were injured when his airplane collided with another plane during an exhibition flight over the state fair grounds late today.

The planes were 400 feet above the Midway at the time but while one was able to right itself and continue in flight that of Simon plunged nose down to the ground, striking the roof of the exposition building as it fell. Simon was killed instantly while spectators were hit by fragments of the wrecked plane.

Siege of Shanghai Becoming Vicious

Besieging Troops Threaten to Cut the Line of Forces Defending Sungkiang.

Shanghai, Oct. 9—(By the A. P.)—Kiangsu forces besieging Shanghai are attacking viciously at a point about 30 miles from Shanghai along the Hangchow railway, only 14 miles from the Chekiang arsenal at Lungwha. They are threatening to cut the line, isolating the Chekiang troops defending Sungkiang, one of the gateways to Shanghai.

The railway was swept by artillery fire, and there was only one train from Sunkiang all day yesterday. In the night Chekiang officials were offering bonuses to engine crews to take munitions to the Sungkiang garrison, five miles beyond the threatened point.

PROGRESS MADE BY THE MANCHURIAN FORCES

Peking, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Following the news received here that Manchurian forces had entered the great wall at Chiumen, 18 miles west of Shanhaikwan, an official communique was issued stating that this attack by the Chang Tso-Lin troops was merely a feint to draw off the central government forces from Shanhaikwan.

$10,000 CONTRIBUTION FOR C. A. C. COMMUNITY HOUSE

Hartford, Oct. 8—The campaign to raise $250,000 for a new church and community house to serve the students, members of the faculty and their families but which would not be connected with the Connecticut Agricultural college, got off to an auspicious start this afternoon when it was announced that former State Senator Edward W. Hazen, of Haddam gave $10,000 to the fund as the initial contribution.

The announcement was made by Rev. Dr. H. H. Dorchester, of Hartford, president of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, which is assisting the campaign, at a luncheon given by Mr. Hazen to a number of ministers and prominent citizens of the state at the Highland country club, Meriden.

Dr. Dorchester spoke of the need of an enlarged church plant at Storrs and for a more extended program of church work and announced that Rev. Morris E. Alling, secretary of the federation of churches had been chosen by the Storrs church as acting pastor and director of the building campaign.

YOUTHS SENTENCED FOR ATTACKING 19-YEAR OLD GIRL

New York, Oct. 8.—Two Manhasset, Long Island youths, William Steffins and Joseph Matopolski, both 19 years old, convicted of attacking 17-yearsiold Helen Sheffield of Bayside, today were sentenced to terms of thirty to sixty years in prison. They had also engaged in holding up automobile.

"I hope I am not vindictive," said Queens County Judge Humphrey, "but these two young men should be taken out of society just as lunatics are. If they had only robbed people there might be some extenuation, but I cannot condone their attack upon this young girl and I am going to be just as severe as I can be."

HONDURAN REBEL LEADER WAS WOUNDED IN BATTLE

WOULD KEEP RED CROSS FREE FROM COMMUNITY CHESTS

J. Arthur Jeffers, Manager of the Washington Division, Fears Coalition Would Weaken the Efficiency of the Red Cross —Strong Pleas Made For Wider Red Cross Publicity— Membership as Well as Money Necessary.

Washington, Oct. 8.—A warning against lowering the efficiency of the Red Cross by coalitions with local financial community chest federations, was given today in an address by J. Arthur Jeffers, manager of the Washington division to the society's convention here. He emphasized that the Red Cross was a membership movement and that financial federations might weaken the potential membership of the society unless the Red Cross officers pointed out to chest officials that membership as well as money was necessary.

A resolution calling for a definite national policy toward financial federations, was referred to the central committee for a report to be submitted to the next annual convention.

Strong pleas for wider Red Cross pubilicity were entered by Miss Irene M. Givenwilson, curator of the Red Cross museum and by Earl F. Gates, asistant director of the roll call.

Mr. Gates insisted that every chapter should be an information center for its community on Red Cross matters.

At the invitation of Mrs. Mabel T. Boardman, national secretary, Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the president, this morning visited the Red Cross building to inspect the exhibits gathered for the convention. Mrs. Coolidge declared herself enthusiastic of the work accomplished, praising especially the volunteer service exhibits.

Addresses were delivered on the general topic of Red Cross work in the schools, during the evening session.

DEMENTED FAIRFIELD MAN HAS BARRICADED HIMSELF

Fairfield, Oct. 8—Barricading himself in his barn and threatening to kill any would-be captors, Wash Rzepko forty eight years old, well known dairyman of Hillside avenue, Greenfield Hill, pronounced mentally unbalanced, tonight raves in his self-chosen place of refuge from his supposed enemy, the law, armed with a revolver.

Father of seven children and owner of large dairy interests, he has closeted himself on the second floor of his barn since yesterday and when seen by Constable A. J. Bennett and Deputy Sheriff W. H. Gould today he warned the policemen to keep away from him or he would either kill himself or them.

Late tonight Rzepko shouted from his barn that he would give himself up to Prosecutor Bacon Wakeman providing he was not arrested. Prosecutor Wakeman will go to the place tomorrow morning, in the meantime Deputy Sheriff Goult has placed a guard of four men around the barn.

Rzepko lost several thousand dollars worth of cattle two years ago when the animals were condemned by state authorities, and this fact coupled with dissipation through drink, is believed to have warped his mind.

RHEUMATISM HALTS CAMPAIGN OF GOVERNOR A. E. SMITH

Boston, Oct. 8—The New England campaign of governor Alfred E. Simth of New York, which has taken him to New Hampshire and Massachusetts in support of the national and state candidates of the democratic party, was ended here today when an attack of rheumtism forced the New York executive to take to his bed and to cancel his engagements to speak in Rhode Island and Connecticut. The governor was still in bed at a hotel here tonight, under the care of a physician who said that rest and quiet would restore him to health in time to permit him to keep speaking appointments in New Jersey Friday.

The attack, which was induced by a cold contracted during a ride in the rain between a dinner and a meeting here last night, is a recurrence of one suffered by Governor Smith two years ago. At that time he was laid up two weeks, but Dr. James H. Stevens, who is attending him, said his patient had no temperature, and with the rest of today and tonight, would be able to leave for New York tomorrow.

What Are Books Good For?

Not that we read the books or really care about the education. Not we. What we do is to own books and go to colleges and I have known more than one young man without money to work his way patiently through college without paying much attention to what colleges are presumed to teach. We own books, put them on our shelves and go to the movies. It was so also in my youth. Wherever I went someone was always bringing me books or urging me to come to some house and help myself, and having got into most houses I could have helped myself, if books were not offered, simply by rearranging the shelves so there was no gaping hole left. I did it sometimes, but not often—I read greadily everything that came into my hands. Laura Jean Libby, Walter Scott, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry Fielding, Shakespeare, Jules Verne, Balzac, the Bible, Stephen Crane, dime novels, Cooper, Stevenson, our own Mark Twain, and Howells, and later, Whitman. The books any books have always fed my dreams and I am one who has always lived by his dreams and even today I can often get as much satisfaction out of a dull book as out of a so-called brilliant or witty one—the books, like life itself, are only useful to me inasmuch as they feed my own dreams or give me a background upon which I can construct new dreams.

NINE WITNESSES HEARD IN TELL MANSLAUGHTER CASE

Middletown, Oct. 8—Nine witnesses were called by the state during today's session of the trial of Mrs. Johanna Tell, charged with manslaughter in the killing of her employer Charles Blair, and of the nine the evidence of Mrs. Katherine Brick of 1916 McGraw avenue, the Bronx, sister of Blair, was of especial interest.

Mrs. Brick testified that Blair and Mrs. Tell were openly affectionate until shortly before Blair's death. She said that she had noticed a difference in their relations shortly before her brother was killed stating that he and Mrs. Tell had quarreled over a revolver she had loaned to her brother in 1919 and had differed over Mrs. Tell's dancing partners in New York.

She first saw Mrs. Tell in 1921, she said, when Blair was ill in a Brooklyn hospital. She often visited the couple in Killingworth, she said, and in August, 1922, visited at the farm for more than two weeks. She told of the affection shown by the couple at that time. The witness also told of visits of Blair and Mrs. Tell to her home in New York.

Early in the spring of this year the witness continued, she noticed a difference in their relations. She said she had written to Mrs. Tell each this year asking her to return the revolver she had loaned to her brother but said Mrs. Tell had refused.

GILPATRIC TO APPEAR IN COURT IN NEW HAVEN TODAY

Miss Lutton received many fine gifts, including a small wedding cake made by Ella N. Perkins, the cake being decorated with white roses and a little doll bride.

Isaac Perry, 56, of this city died Tuesday at Fitch's Soldiers' home, Noroton, after a general breakdown in health. He was a native of Massachusetts but had lived in Willimantic 25 years. In 1898 during the Spanish American war he enlisted in Company E, Third Regiment, C. N. G., known as the Connecticut Volunteers after being mustered into service. After the war he enlisted again in the army and saw service in the Philippines. He returned to Willimantic and worked for a time at the Quidnick-Windham Co. later being employed by the city street department. His health began to fail about a year ago and he left here for the Soldiers' home.

Following a shock a short time ago, Joseph Michael Lussier, 58, died Wednesday morning at his home at 1027 Main street. He was born in St. Paul, P. The following were perfect in attendance for September: William Misveth, Alex Misveth, Samuel Misvieth, Robert Fitts, Dorothy Pike, Sophie Adrynoskie, Ruth Stone, Francis Stone, Elnor Hall.

The pupils whose average for Sept. was between 90 per cent. and 100 per cent. are William Misveth, Alex Misveth.

Those whose average was between 80 per cent. and 90 per cent. are Dorothy Pike, Elnor Hall, Robert Kent, Robert Fitts.

This school has made a remarkable record for the first month's attempt at school savings. It has reported 100 per cent. enrollment with savings which amounted to between seven and eight dollars.

After serving as chairman of the town school committee for over 20 years, and serving for 27 years as a member of that body, Dr. F. E. Guild relinquished the duties of that office at the October meeting of the committee, held Wednesday evening at the home of William J. Sweeney. Mr. Sweeney was elected chairman of the committee and it was agreed that in selecting him a man had been chosen who would serve the town well, as he had been a member of the committee for many years and was well informed regarding school matters.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Guild and the reports of the September meeting were read by Secretary E. A. Case. Election of officers followed, Mr. Sweeney being elected chairman, and Superintendent of Schools E. A. Case was re-elected secretary. The report of the truant officer was read and accepted. It was voted to allow all grade teachers desirous of attending the meetnig in Norwich Oct. 13th under the auspices of the state board of education leave of absence.

The properties committee reported on repairs made during the preceding month, especially at Windham High school, where new floors have been laid and parapet constructed. The special committee in charge of furnishing the new Windham Center school was requested to carry out the work, and grading is also to be done later.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served and a social half hour was spent.

Teams engaged in the Knowers Ark campaign being conducted by the Y. M. C. A. met at the association building Wednesday evening and made their first reports, after a fine supper prepared by Mrs. James H. Bentley and served by the Woman's auxiliary in charge of Mrs. Donald Crane. Indications were that by Friday evening the membership of the Y would be substantially increased, but no figures of Wednesday's results were announced. Rivalry is keen between the various teams and probably some names are being held back to be used as bombs on the final stretch. The meetings of the committees will continue during the week and the reports are to be tabulated on a billboard erected in the lobby of the association building.

JEWETT CITY

A serious accident happened after the Kinnie-Kanahan wedding in Lisbon Tuesday afternoon as one automobile in which were Mr. and Mrs. Sterry Pierce of Preston was leaving for home. They were turning from the private roadway on to the state road when they were hit by an automobile coming from the south. Mr. Pierce was taken to the office of Dr. G. H. Jennings in Jewett City. He was obliged to take stitches in cuts over the eyes and treat a wound the length of the nose. One hand was cut. Mrs. Kinnie was overcome with the shock and fright but not injured. A child in the other automobile was thrown out but was said not to be hurt. The cars were badly smashed where they collided.

When the trunk line road from Jewett City to Taftville was put through, some eleven years ago, Mr. Kanahan gave the state highway permission to do anything to his land t hat was necessary to make the road as good as possible. At that time he had a good entrance from his private road to the main highway. This entrance was lowered about three feet, leaving it impossible for anyone coming north from Norwich to see this road, on account of a ledge. He has taken the matter up with the state department once, with no promise of betterment, and again, when Mr. Campbell promised these rocks should be blown away. He has also had another official come and drive out the road himself and see the very dangerous state of affairs. But not even a warning sign has been erected. Until there is a fatality is not the time for prevention. Mr. Kanahan has again notified the state department of the accident resulting from their neglect of warning the public of an unsafe corner on their highway, after having been asked to remedy it several times.

Manager John J. McGraw, "boss" of the New York Giants, who has won his fourth consecutive National League pennant.

"Chameleon Lakes"

It is well known that the water of many lakes exhibits characteristic colors. Lake Geneva, at the western end of Switzerland, is blue, while Lake Constance, at the eastern end of that country, is green. Blueness implies purity, since the natural color of water is blue. A green lake has its water slightly clouded with impurities.

It is said that green lakes sometimes become absolutely colorless for a time, and it has been found that this sudden change of hue is due to the washing into the lakes of mud colored red by oxide of iron. Red is complementary to green, and the result of the mixture is that the green color of the water becomes for the time being neutralized.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

For the first time in Danielson's history insofar as could be recalled Wednesday, cloth bleaching operations are underway here. The newly equipped bleachery of the Paco Manufacturing company at its Main street plant is now in operation and it was stated Wednesday that its first batch of 100,000 yards of cloth is being put through the processes, requiring about a week. Heretofore the company has sent away for bleaching by other concerns the cloth manufactured on its looms in Danielson.

In its two mills in Danielson the Paco company now has about 400 looms in operation. Its operations here are being gradually expanded. The concern has continued all through the period of depression in the textile industry to operate on a full time schedule and is so continuing to operate. This company has been a big asset to Danielson this year because of this fact and the hundreds who benefit are very appreciative.

Within a few months the company's certain manufacturing organization will be doing business in Danielson, making the corporation even more valuable to this community.

About this time every fall bicycle riders in numbers of instances subject themselves to complaint by reason of riding about after dark without lights on their machines. Chief John McFarland requested Wednesday morning that publicity be given to his intent to prosecute all violators of the light rule. The chief warned several riders who were going about in the rain of Tuesday night without lights on their bicycles.

Attorney F. L. Darbie has practically agreed that he will accept again the nomination of the republicans of Killingly for representative if it is endorsed him at the caucus next week. That he will receive it is more than likely. Attorney Darbie has stood stanch against persistent urging, for weeks, that other republicans might announce themselves as candidates, but no one seeking the honor has appeared. Attorney Darbie has been a member of the house from Killingly the part two sessions and has won such prominence that he is scheduled for preferred honors if he is sent back to Hartford.

Announcement is made that the civ- federation is to make a community canvass in the interest of its membership enrollment. This year the effort to obtain memberships is to be of more constructive and intensive nature than has been the rule in the past. The Civic federation's new year activity is now open, though, in all fairness it must be recorded that the federation's activities in the interest of the community never lagged at any time during the twelve months' period. All would assist in the humanitarian work in which the federation is concerned, and the satisfaction of [illegible] by becoming [illegible]

The service battery of the 192nd [illegible] is required to its maximum authorized strength of five officers and 200 enlisted men. This announcement was made Wednesday. In accordance with instructions received from Captain F. O. Armington no more enlistments will be received. The National guard is now recruited far above its authorized strength and in view of that fact even re-enlistments will not be considered at this time. It so happens that the service battery has half a dozen men on the waiting list. The service battery is a fine military organization, one of the best that has represented Danielson. It happens to include the regimental band of 29 members, all of these stationed at New London. Of the personnel of the company 72 are on the roll here.

Following the annual town election Monday, members of the board of selectmen—John A. Gilbert, Napoleon J. Gingras, Patrick Riley—met Wednesday afternoon at the selectmen's office in the town hall building and organized for the ensuing year. Mr. Gilbert was reelected clerk of the board, a position he has held for many years and was also named as tree warden of the town to succeed himself. Attorney E. L. Darbie was reappointed town counsel, Gaston A. Maindon as sealer of weights and measures and Walter A. Rollinson of Goodyear as public weigher.

Supervision of the highways of the town is again divided between the selectmen on the same basis that prevailed last year as to district, Selectmen Gilbert and Gingras retaining their sections and Selectman Riley taking over the section supervised the past year by George A. Alvord.

The selectmen transacted the usual amount of routine business.

At the Chamber of Commerce meet- ing at which the cost of gas, as furnished by the local lighting company, was a principal subject of discussion, Manager William Sangster of the D and P. Gas and Electric company addressed the gathering and explained much that was of real interest to those who heard him.

A statement of Manager Sangster's that made a deep impression was that the local company has been selling gas at less than the cost of production, even thought the charge in this territory is at the rate of $2.50 per thousand cubic feet. The last checkup showed the cost to the company as $2.67 per thousand cubic feet, but during the first five months of the year the cost to the company was in excess of $3.00 per thousand cubic feet.

Manager Sangster pointed out that the company might have spent a few thousand dollars in an effort to improve the old plant on Hutchins street, where, as has been made for about 35 years, but elected to spend $66,000 in installing a high pressure gas main between Danielson and Putnam, where the corporation has a large new container, open up new territory from which to draw consumers and so increase the volume of its gas output as to bring about a reduction in manufacturing costs and subsequently a reduction in its charges for gas to consumers. That ambition the company still hopes to realize, Mr. Sangsaid.

As to gas charges over which there has been so much discussion here of late, Mr. Sangster pointed out that with the new system there is a steady pressure, never falling below a certain point, yet this point is only .3 higher than the best high under the old system in Danielson, which faltered when the heavy loads of the day were being carried, giving unsatisfactory gas service at hours when it was most needed. Steady pressure naturally results in the use of an increased amount of gas, but it does the work being sought done. Faulty hookups of hot water boilers is also responsible for some of the high gas bills, instances being known where from 2 to 3 hours is required to heat a 30-gallon tank of water, whereas a properly connected heater should do the work in 20 minutes.

Increased gas business is in sight, the Paco Manufacturing company being about ready to become a consumer of quantities. This is a step toward the volume of business that the company hopes for that it may bring about a reduction in the fixed rate. The chamber members took no action on the gas matter, but felt well repaid for the discussion of it and for the information given by Mr. Sangster.

At the state armory the basketball team headed by Lieut. Gordon Gale defeated the team headed by Lieut. W. W. Bitgood by a score of 24 to 10. The game was one of an interesting series intended to develop out of four teams the material that eventually will make up the battery team that will play through the late fall and winter.

At a session of the town court on Wednesday morning, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding, an aged man was sent to jail for 30 days for having been intoxicated. This is the first commitment from the Killingly court in some time for such a cause.

Practical assurance is given that the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company is about to carry out its forecasted program of paying overdue dividends on a certain issue of its preferred stock, under plan outlined sometime since in this column.

While the world's series is on some fans have ruminated over the fact that Danielson has no baseball scandal. In this community the game seems to have just gradually lost its hold and died a natural death.

Early in November Louis E. Young will motor to Florida, remaining there for a week or two before returning to Danielson.

The days of the falling leaves are at hand. Bushels of them came fluttering down after Wednesday's rain storm to litter Danielson's streets and walks.

At St. James' church Monday morn- ing, Miss Winefred A. Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Moran, of the Day place in Brooklyn, and John Keenan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keenan of New York, were united in marriage by Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S. Mrs. James Cunningham of New York was matron of honor and James Moran of Danielson, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride, a member of the Children of Mary, was attended also by Misses Margaret Head and Margaret Duggan, officers of the society, at her marriage and the usual ceremonies incident to a member becoming a bride were carried out. Following the marriage there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Keenan, who has been resident in New York for some time, received many beautiful gifts. After their wedding trip the bridal couple will make their home in New York. Mrs. Keenan before leaving here to make her home in New York was employed in the office of the electric lighting company.

Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., was at Boston Tuesday and Wednesday attending a convention of druggists who handle lines of nationally exploited goods.

Charged with reputation and keep- ing with intent to sell, Arthur Chabot of Goodyear was fined $10 on the first count, with costs of $29.50, and given a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail, when presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Tuesday morning.

Killingly High school is to have a girls' basketball team.

For the first time in weeks the luxurious motor bus that is to maintain an overland express service between Providence and Hartford via Danielson and Willimantic went west in Danielson Tuesday morning. Service has been suspended pending a decision on the allowability of such service, the matter having been before the superior court in Hartford county. Following a favorable decision the bus has been put back on the run. A case against the operators, involving certain alleged violations of the Connecticut motor vehicle laws, is pending in the town court of Killingly, the charges being largely technical.

A little less than 40 per cent. of the registered voting strength of this town took part in Monday's town election.

PUTNAM

Because of funds being tied up in the First National Bank, the city of Putnam has been obliged to borrow money to pay its running expenses. The common council has voted to authorize the treasurer to borrow such sums as may be necessary to carry on business until the next tax is collected and has ratified a loan of $5,000 already negotiated by the city treasurer.

Miss Sylvia Holt of Woodstock is to be the speaker and Miss Ruth Sheppard, also of Woodstock, will be the soloist at the meeting of Elizabeth Porter, Putnam chapter, D. A. R., in the chapter rooms on Pomfret street, Monday afternoon next.

Former Congressman James P. Glynn of Winsted, who is a candidate to regain his seat in congress, and Mrs. Albert Chamberlain of Meriden will be the principal speakers at the last Republican rally of the campaign as far as the Putnam club is concerned. The club will hold its final rally in Odd Fellows hall this (Thursday) evening. The high school orchestra will provide special music under the direction of Samuel Rich, who, in the absence of a musical instructor in the schools, has been instructing and directing the school orchestra this year. Campaign songs, including several written especially for the club by Miss Anna Levitt, will be sung.

The citizens' committee is awaiting advices from Washington according to the chairman of the committee, Judge M. H. Geissler, when asked concerning the progress made toward organizing the new national bank. The chairman had little to add to the statement made a week ago that the committee was doing all in its power and is busy all the time and will later give out a detailed statement of the steps the committee has taken in its work.

Funeral services for Mrs. E. Emily Tourtellotte, wife of Major Jerome Tourtellotte, were held from the family home on Putnam Heights, on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Richard D. Hatch of St. Philip's church officiating. Burial was in the Putnam Heights cemetery.

One lone democrat, Alderman Ber- thiaume, held down the minority side of the council chamber at the regular meeting of the common council, on Tuesday evening. The mayor, through the clerk, sent out an S. O. S. for one more alderman to make a quorum. Just about time hope was being abandoned of holding a meeting Alderman Rogers walked in the door and the meeting got under way. Others present besides the mayor, were Alderman-at-large Richards and Aldermen Ames and Labby.

The council received a letter from Attorney Howard C. Bradford who wanted to know why the council had paid no attention to his former bill for salary as assistant prosecuting attorney and asking that they inform him at once what action they intended to take. The attorney's letter could be taken to indicate that he proposed to sue the city if the bill was not paid. In the letter Attorney Bradford stated that he considered himself the incumbent of the office up to the recent change when Attorney Johnson was elected prosecutor and Attorney Carpenter, assistant prosecutor and said "I do not recognize the appointment of Ryan."

Thomas P. Ryan, city clerk, was elected assistant prosecutor last January to succeed Attorney Bradford. The question was raised at that time as to the eligibility of a layman to hold the office of assistant prosecutor. When the dispute arose Ryan seemed the least concerned and when asked if he considered he was prosecutor said he didn't think he was in view of a court decision. Asked if he would act if called upon he said he would not. However, he was never called upon and the prosecuting attorney, J. F. Carpenter, handled all cases until his resignation two weeks ago. It was because the official elected to succeed him was a layman that Attorney Bradford considered him the legal incumbent of the office and now demands the salary which is but $100 a year, and threatens to bring action unless that salary or the proportion of it he is entitled to, is paid him. Attorney Bradford's letter was tabled indefinitely.

The council received a letter from Searls, Russell & Bradford as counsel for Alfred Bonneville and others, emphatically suggesting that the city do something about the flow of surface water onto Bonneville's land on Woodstock avenue. Bonneville complained that conditions are such that he cannot get into his garage.

Alderman Richard, of the highway committee, stated that the corporation counsel gave the opinion that the city was not bound to do anything in the atter but suggested that the city "act neighborly" and try to give Bonneville relief. It was the sense of the council meeting that the city should make it possible for Bonneville to get into his garage and it was voted to inform the complainant that progress had been made by the committee and they were authorized to go ahead and solve the problem so that the desired end might be accomplished.

Chief Thurston, of the fire department, stated that he and the mayor had visited all of the schools in the city and observed the fire drill in each school which was highly satisfactory and had shown decided improvement in the past year. "The schools are good and safe on fire drills," said the chief. It took 1 minute and 37 seconds to empty the Israel Putnam school, 56 seconds to empty the high school, 26 seconds the Trade school, 46 seconds Smith street school, 45 seconds the old St. Mary's school and 1 minute and 30 seconds the new St. Mary's school building. Chief Thursday said that the signals were not uniform in the several schools. The fire signal in some schools was three and in others five strokes of the ball. It was being attempted to make the signal the same in all schools.

The report of the captain of police for the month showed that there had been 29 arrests during the month and 11 prisoners taken to jail. Fines and costs collected totalled over $400.

A petition to have street lines established on Walnut street from Farrows street to the city line was referred.

It was voted to reimburse the Sisters of the Holy Ghost, next spring, for curbing they are to lay on Ravine street.

A petition for five lights on Church street from the Battey place to the Thompson town line was referred to the electric light committee.

The petition of Fred Bechard to be allowed to erect a gasolene pump on his land on Church street was referred to the highway committee.

The resignation of G. Harold Gilpatric as a member of the board of water commissioners was received and accepted.

The electric light committee reported the recommendation of two electric lights on Mill street.

Students enrolled in evening classes at Putnam State Trade school to date are as follows: home economics 79, electrical department 19, carpentry department 8, machine department 15, textile department 20, drafting department 9, making an enrolment of 152 in evening classes. The school can accommodate a few more in carpentry, cooking, drafting and textile departments.

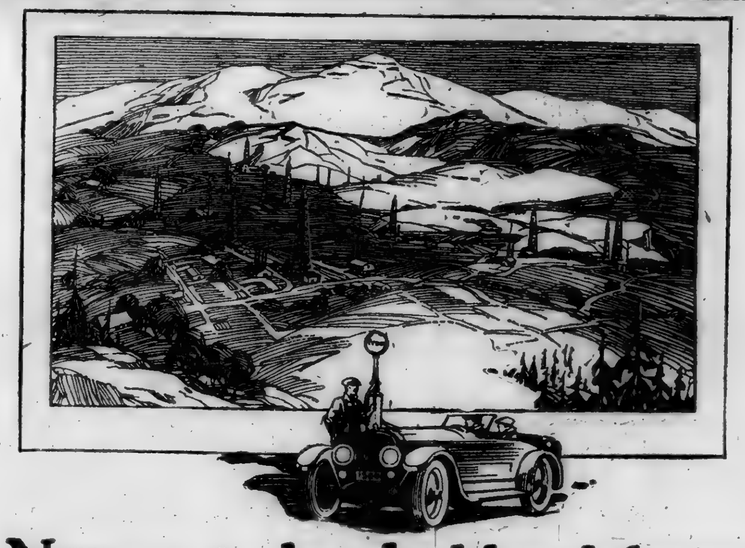
Quick Relief for RHEUMATICS

Local Druggists Sell Rheuma On Money-Back Plan

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, swollen, twisted joints, and suffer intensely because your system is full of uric acid, that dangerous poison that makes thousands helpless and kills thousands years before their time, then you need Rheuma, and need it now.

Start taking it today. Rheuma acts at once on kidneys, liver, stomach and blood, and you can sincerely exclaim: "Good riddance to bad rubbish."

Many people, the most skeptical of skeptics right in this city and in the country hereabouts, bless the day when Lee & Osgood Co. and other good druggists offered Rheuma to the afflicted at a small price and guaranteed money refunded if not satisfied. If you have rheumatism get a bottle Minn., 48 years ago today.



How Nature, in her hidden laboratories, created a natural "anti-knock" gasoline

Motorists are now being told that they must pay extra for gasoline in order to stop motor knocks. Tydol users save that extra money. If you use Tydol consistently, it is unnecessary to doctor your gasoline or pay more than the regular price per gallon. Tydol is a natural anti-knock gasoline.

* * * *

You know from experience that automobile motor knocks are destructive. You know that they steal power, pound your bearings, rack your car and lead to big repair bills.

But perhaps you don't know that motor knocks can be eliminated in a simple, natural way—a way that does not add a premium to the cost of your gasoline.

As nature produces different kinds of crude petroleum oils, it follows that different types of crudes yield different kinds of gasolines. Of all these crudes there is one which yields gasoline famous for its natural anti-knock qualities. It is from this particular crude, by special processing, that Tydol is refined at the Tide Water Refinery at Bayonne, N. J. That is why Tydol is a natural anti-knock gasoline.

Next time you need gas, fill up at a Tydol pump. Prove to yourself that Tydol eliminates knocks. And pay no more than the regular price per gallon.

Knocking in an engine is caused by the gasoline mixture exploding too quickly or too violently. There is no knock if the mixture burns progressively and evenly.

The Midgley Indicator, a remarkable scientific instrument, enables us to photograph the progress of the explosion of a gasoline mixture in the combustion chamber.

Explosion of Tydol mixture—This graph shows how a Tydol mixture explodes. The smooth, even curve denotes progressive combustion. There is no tendency to knock.

NOTE: Tydol, of course, will not eliminate knocking in motors which are defective mechanically.

GET OUT AND "BE MADE."

By the report of the registrars of voters there are 1933 within the limits of the town of Norwich who are eligible and apparently desire to become voters. That indicates a healthy interest in meeting the duties and responsibilities of a good citizen. It likewise reflects an interest which is always aroused in anticipation of a national election.

Having made application to be made voters an important first step has been taken. It should not, however, be allowed to rest there, for while none can be given the franchise without making application it is quite as necessary to appear before the board that makes voters and qualify. This is a mere matter of meeting the requirements that are demanded of all voters.

It is unfortunately the case that all those who make application to be made voters never make their appearance before the board to actually be made. It can be appreciated that sickness, absence or accident may be reasonable excuses but those are not the only reasons why only part of the applicants ever get the franchise to which they are entitled. There are those who neglect or forget, who fail to place upon the matter the attention which it deserves and who later on bluster and kick because they are not voters, when as a matter of fact there is no one to blame but themselves.

For the convenience of the to-be-made the board of registration has arranged three days, October 11, 15 and 18, when it will be in session to make voters. This means that the 1933 must appear on those dates. The list will provide enough business to keep the board fairly busy each day if all appear. Time enough has been allowed to meet all requirements, however, provided there is a good distribution through the three days and the majority doesn't wait until the last hour of the last day.

Getting your name on the to-be-made list doesn't make you a voter. That requires qualifying before the registration board. Look out for your own interests and see that you are "made."

REGULATING RADIO.

New inventions create new conditions. Obviously these new conditions are not surrounded at the beginning with the restrictions that can be expected as developments take place. The first auto driver encountered no such regulations as the driver of today has to meet. Increase in the number and the problems of handling them necessitated them.

This is the situation which confronts those who are handling the radio situation. When there were but a few stations and few who listened in there was no great problem of regulation. They have increased. There are today many broadcasters and many listeners. The number is increasing and the demand grows for bigger broadcasting stations, for the protection of the little fellow and for the use of the air in the way that all will be served and none injured.

Just now there is underway the third national radio conference, and in the address which Secretary Hoover made to it he offered some common sense advice. After his study of the situation from the various angles he does not favor federal control of broadcasting. It is his belief that such problems as exist can be solved by cooperation, but a meeting of the situation by all concerned in a spirit of fair play and with a view to living and letting live.

There are such problems as the limiting of the number of broadcasting stations, superstations, centralization of radio entertainment bureaus and meeting the public requirements. Secretary Hoover was frank in declaring his belief that trying to make the listener pay would not be successful and he warned against trying to load down the programmes with advertising lest radio would be killed.

Through such conferences as that being held concerning radio much benefit should be obtained. A clarification of the air in regard to what is wanted and how it can best be provided should certainly result and through a common understanding there ought to be no great difficulty in settling the broadcasting problems. If it cannot be done in that way regulation by other means will be forced.

CURBING HAZING.

Not so many years ago hazing was expected to go with college life. It was a practice that underwent changes and those changes were for the worse instead of better. The result has been that not a few institutions have barred them, and the number that is leaning in that direction is steadily increasing. Danger to life and limb because of excesses has brought this about. It has caused more attention to be centered upon the practices that had not been previously any too well understood.

Recently the demand was made by a Yale undergraduate paper for the ending of the class rushes and now President Hollis of the Worcester Tech has disclosed his resentment of a recent public hazing which he considered a disgrace to the institute. That means that in an endeavor to outdo what had previously been done the students brought about public condemnation, and which when carried to the attention of the president of the college could no longer be ignored.

There are phases of college life which might be included under hazing about which few but the students know and which when properly guarded are not dangerous or disgraceful. The tendency, however, is to exceed the limit and in the endeavor to there is lacking that restraint which may have formerly surrounded similar practices. When the point is reached where the students insist upon hazing to the point where it causes public indignation and where they insist that they will strike if the head of the institution undertakes any punishment, it is certainly time to put a stop to the practice.

President Hollis has acted in keeping with what has been done in other colleges. He realizes that a curb must be placed upon such activities and there is no reason to suppose that a threat of a strike will in any way deter him from keeping his word. When he insists that there can be no toleration of such disgraceful conduct he takes a stand against what may become worse than rowdyism under the guise of special privilege to college students.

DEMOCRATIC SNOBBERY.

What must be regarded as an artistic appeal for votes for the democratic candidate for president is that which was made by Miss Elizabeth Marbury, New York member of the democratic national committee, who took occasion to express her disdain before a democratic gathering for those who milk cows, those who make their own shirtwaists and those who can go into the kitchen and make biscuit.

The reception which a country filled with women voters will give to such a statement can readily be imagined. Her criticisms were directed against the present first lady of the land, a delightful womanly woman with accomplishments which can never be attained by those exuding the snobbery which is indicated and urged by Miss Marbury's words.

We have no reason to suppose but what Mrs. Coolidge can make a shirtwaist and knows how to make biscuit. It is greatly to her credit if she can, and if she can milk a cow so much the better. Such is characteristic of the democratic type that is to be found in the Coolidge household, that type that makes such a strong appeal to the people because they understand it and because it is free from that arrogance and superiority which is so far away from the common people.

There's no chance that Miss Marbury has made a big political hit by her remarks. Long before this she has probably been told of her serious error of judgment in bringing the attention of the women of the country to those things they admire. Miss Marbury's appeal is well patterned after those which become boomerangs.

DR. WILLIAM A. SHANKLIN.

In the sudden taking away of President Emeritus W. A. Shanklin of Wesleyan university there ends a life of devoted service. He was a born leader and in the years of his health he was unsparing of his efforts. At Upper Iowa university before coming to Wesleyan he evidenced the same earnestness of purpose, the same active endeavor to wrestle with the many problems of such an institution and in the successful administration in each instance there are plenty who can testify to his zeal and accomplishments.

As a clergyman and as a college head he was eminently successful. To him Wesleyan owes a great deal. It was indeed fortunate to have had the influence of such a leader, whose exemplary methods were an inspiration and whose endeavors invariably reached the goal.

His sudden death all too well emphasizes the need which he felt for a relief from the responsibilities of directing a college, while the act of making him president emeritus was the manifestation of the regard in which he was held at the institution and only a slight recognition of the service he had rendered while there. The period during which he was president tells all too well what the effect of his ministration was.

Dr. Shanklin was more than a college president and more than an educator. He was a man of delightful personal traits who understood humanity to an unusual degree and put that understanding to a most praiseworthy use.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Another month and the presidential election will be all over.

Thus far the world series isn't lacking anything in the way of patronage.

These are the days when the tea rooms are about as deserted as the bathing pavilions.

Make up your mind that fire prevention is all that it is claimed to be and do your part.

The man on the corner says: So live that it will not be necessary to keep the story out of print.

Even though the last baseball scandal was five years ago doesn't make the present one any more excusable.

Talk has it that the waltz may be revived. There are few dance floors where it has ever completely disappeared.

A million Chinese are reported to be under arms, and the longer they continue fighting the greater will be the number under the sod.

Is the world series going according to your wishes? From the expressions of the crowd it doesn't appear that New York has many friends.

One always hates to have the summer go, but there's some satisfaction in the fact that less attention is required by the pan under the ice box.

WEEPING AND WAITING

"I had company home from Madison, sis," remarked Miss Belinda's brother Ben, as he enjoyed his after-dinner coffee and cigarette on Hilltop porch. "I ran across Mrs. Rockwell in that handsome new gift shop where I went to price the ornamental bird bath that you spoke of getting."

"Oh," Miss Belinda looked surprisingly young and eager. "How thoughtful of you! Was there one there similar to the picture I showed you in the English magazine?"

"Yes, it was almost exactly the same, I think, but, my dear, I found that it was rather an expensive luxury. I wasn't sure that you'd wish to spend $38 for it."

"That is a lot of money," Miss Belinda's expression became rather wistful. "Of course it would be silly—"

"Belinda, if you want it so much you certainly shall have it.

"Indeed I nearly bought it for you, but I didn't have much money with me after I let Mrs. Rockwell have some." Ben explained. "You see, Mrs. Rockwell said that for years and years she had been longing for a sun dial for her garden."

"Her garden!" Miss Belinda smiled the kind of smile that Ben rarely saw on her gentle face. "Her weed beds, she should have said. She has allowed all those darling English snapdragons and Canterbury bells that I gave her to be choked to death, by chickweed and parsley. I don't wish to say anything unkind, Ben, but I am sure she doesn't really love her garden."

"That's funny. Fro mthe way she raved to me, I thought she was an earnest, conscientious follower of yours, old girl! Why, when she spoke of having wanted a sun dial for so very long for what she called her 'little patch of prittiness' I thought she had the same microbes as you, sis. Her eyes filled with tears when she said how hard it was to be denied all the desires of her heart. When I thought how little she sees of Rockwell, and how little interest he takes in their place, I felt so sorry for her that I—well, I offered to let her have the money for the sun dial. It was a very handsome one, Belinda. I'm afraid it puts yours to shame."

"She must have been extremely grateful, Ben," remarked Miss Belinda.

"She certainly was. It was almost embarrassing. She brushed away her tears and seized my hand and—"

"Yes, I know," Miss Belinda laughed slightly. "She did the same with me when I lent her $10 this spring to buy a porch hammock that she craved."

"Borrowed $10! Why she spoke of that appreciatively, but she said you owed her the money, and that you had been so dear about paying it just when she needed it the most."

"Owed it! Ben, you might have known I didn't owe her anything."

"Well, she said you did, Belinda."

"I recall just what I said when she broached the subject of getting the price of the hammock for me." Miss Belinda explained. "She was tearful and sad and she declared she would never forget my kindness, and that she would try to pay me back soon. I said that she mustn't worry about it, that she had always been very kind and neighborly, and that I was most happy to do her a small favor. I assured her, as she wept more, that in many ways I felt indebted to her, which I do, for staying out of my garden as much as she does. I'm always thankful when I can have a whole morning to work without an hour or two of her distracting interruptions. Of course, though, I do feel sorry for her, and—"

"Belinda, you'd feel sorry for Beelzebub himself, but I'll tell you one thing, young woman; you're going to have that bird bath, even if you haven't shed any tears for it. We'll charge it to profit and loss along with the hammock and sun dial."—Exchange.

Dewey Achieved, But Had to Wait

Given a start in life and then told that he must make his own way, George Dewey won praise by his conduct under fire, but had to wait many years before another opportunity permitted him to win official recognition.

Born in quiet Montpelier, Vt., he was five years old when his mother died and his father, a doctor, undertook to rear him. The boy got into so many pranks that at 14 he was sent to the Military Academy at Norwich. Because of further mischievousness, he was taken three years later to Annapolis, his father saying, "I have done all I can for you, the rest you must do for yourself."

Graduated from Annapolis at 21, he was a midshipman on the Wabash, cruising for 14 months in the Mediterranean. A newly commissioned lieutenant of 23 when the Civil war broke out he was assigned to the Mississippi. His action in forcing men to go back and save their comrades when the Mississippi caught fire under the guns of Port Hudson was praised in Captain Smith's report. He also served valiantly under Farragut when the passage of Fort St. Philip and Fort Jackson was forced and when New Orleans was captured.

Dewey was considered too young, however, and he had to wait until seven years after the war before he was made a commander, and 12 years more before he was promoted to the rank of captain, at 47 years of age. He served on various ships, was lighthouse inspector, Naval Secretary of the Lighthouse Board and president of the Board of Inspectors when the United States began construction of steel-hulled, armored battleships.

Made commander of the Asiatic Squadron through the influence of Theodore Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the Navy, he was 7,000 miles from any home base in strange waters during the Spanish-American war. His curbing of an overzealous pro-Spanish German admiral and the destruction of the Spanish fleet of eight warships in Manila Bay in a few hours made history and gave this country a place in the Far East.

When Dewey, at 61, returned home he was welcomed as a hero. Congress officially thanked him, made him an Admiral for life and elected him a member of the United States Philippine Commission.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Robert Ernest Vinson, whose formal inauguration as president of Western Reserve University takes place today, has been serving as the head of that institution since the early part of last year, when he was chosen to succeed Dr. Charles F. Thwing, who resigned the presidency after thirty-one years of service. Dr. Vinson is a Presbyterian clergyman and educator who rose to eminence in the south. A native of South Corolina, he went in his youth to Texas and studied at Austin College, graduating in 1896. Deciding upon the ministry as a calling, he went north to Virginia and entered Union Theological Seminary. Later he went to the University of Chicago for special work, but this follow'd his first pastorate at Charlestown, W. Va. Then he moved to Austin and joined the faculty of the Presbyterian Divinity school there, becoming its president in 1903. In 1909 he was given supervision of the denomination's educational institutions throughout the state, and in this position made his mark as an administrator. From 1916 until last year he filled the presidency of the University of Texas.

CHILD TRAINING

HER THOUGHT—AND HIS
Aldis Dunbar

He was a midshipmite, a sturdy one at that, arrayed in long white ducks that must have measured all of eighteen inches from the hem upward. His cap, set in rakish independence on a mop of reddish curls, bore the name of a mighty ocean liner, and on the tip of his inquiring small nose were three enticing freckles. He stood with his feet well apart, surveying the Avenue with interest while the young woman beside him, evidently new to the profession of "gentleman's lady," fussed at the endless lines of automobiles passing, and at the lack of a traffic officer at that particular crossing, at that especial moment. The one who stood watching them, waiting for a bus, felt silent sympathy going out to wee Jack Tar.

All at once, from the curved pathway of the Park, and across the sidewalk to where the two were standing, came a huge and dignified St. Bernard, with soft brown eyes full of patient kindliness and questioning. He tucked his nose into the small brown hands, and looked up in most friendly fashion to meet a pair of dancing delighted blue eyes.

"Oo! He likes me, Ma'y! Look! We're fwends!"

"Don't touch him! Don't He'll bite! He'll bite you!" fussed and fumed "Ma'y," hugging frantically at her resisting charge, to the disgust of the one who stood watching.

Small Boy looked up at her, knitting his brows in most open bewilderment. "Bite?" he repeated. "Bite?" He couldn't seem to associate the ordinary meaning of the word with this big, gentle creature. Suddenly his face lighted up. "Hullo, Bite!" he cried, in joyous greeting.

The Mexican population of Los Angeles is said to be the largest of any city in the world except the City of Mexico.

If people only knew the facts about their skin

THE real cause of skin trouble—rashes, blackheads, excessive oiliness, etc.—is way down in the lower layers of the skin. It cannot be expected therefore that mere surface remedies can reach the disorder.

Thousands of physicians are daily prescribing Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. They know this gentle, yet effective treatment does sink deep, and will often soothe away in a few days the most stubborn rash as well as a trifling blemish. No home should be without these products—the soap for general toilet use—the ointment to check the first bit of skin eruption. At all druggists.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Police Dog's Whistle.

"Where is my bunny nephew?"
Sighed the nice old rabbit man.
"It seems a month of Sundays Since up the path he ran," and dear Uncle Lucky took off his spectacles to wipe them with his blue silk polkadot handkerchief.
"Oh, dear me, how I grumble and fidget
the next minute exclaimed the old gentleman bunny, hopping up from the hammock in which he had been taking his afternoon nap.

The next minute he heard a whistle long and shrill, the Policeman Dog's.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" exclaimed nervous Uncle Lucky. "What has happened, I wonder? Can it be that Danny Fox has stolen Little Miss Mousie's vanity bag?" and the old gentleman rabbit hopped down to the front gate.

There, it came again, that whistle, loud and shrill. It sent along his spinal cord a creepy, tickley chill.

"Dearest me and dearest you," cried poor Uncle Lucky, thinking again of Little Miss Mousie. "If he uses her little powder puff I'll shoot that old robber fox with my bunny nephew's popgun," and out on the road hopped the old gentleman bunny. But there was no one in sight only a small turtle creeping across the dusty highway.

"You'd better make haste," shouted kind Uncle Lucky. "Maybe the hurry-up wagon will come tearing down the street. "I've just heard the Policeman Dog's whistle."

"No, you didn't," answered a voice, quick as a wink. "It was my whistle," and out of the Shady Forest hopped Little Jack Rabbit, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back, and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. "Mother wants the Old Red Rooster to weed the vegetable garden."

"The weeds are all choking the turnips and peas,
And hiding the corn stalks way up to their knees."

"Goodness gracious meebus, how terrible," laughed the old gentleman rabbit, picking up his small nephew. "Isn't that a ca-lam-i-ty!" and he shouted three times and a half, "Old Red Rooster! Old Red Rooster! Old Red ——!"

"What's the matter?
What a clatter!
And a chatter.
Broke a platter?"

"No, no, no, o, oh!" answered dear Uncle Lucky. "Nothing really serious. Get your hoe and run over to the Dear Old Bramble Patch. Lady Love's garden needs weeding. Hurry up, and don't delay. Pro-cras-tin-a-tion doesn't pay!" Dear me, little reader, I must explain that big word. It means to put off for tomorrow what we don't want to do today."

POETRY

BACK IN HIS OWN TONGUE.

A fire-mist and a planet,—
A crystal and a cell,—
A jellyfish and a saurian,
And caves where the cave-men dwell:
Then a sense of law and beauty,
And a face turned from the clod,—
Some call it Evolution,
And others call it God.

A haze on the far horizon,
The infinite, tender sky,
The ripe, rich tint of the cornfields,
And the wild geese sailing high,—
And all over upland and lowland
The charm of the goldenrod,—
Some of us call it Autumn,
And others call it God,

Like tides on a crescent sea-beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts high yearnings
Come welling and surging in,—
Come from the mystic ocean,
Whose rim no foot has trod,—
Some of us call it Longing,
And others call it God.

A picket frozen on duty,—
A mother starved for her brood,—
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
And Jesus on the rood:
And millions who, humble and nameless
The straight, hard pathway plod,—
Some call it Consecration,
And others call it God.

DEWDROP.

Small shining drop, no lady's ring
Holds so beautiful a thing.
At sun-up in the early air
The sweetness of the world you snare.
Within your little mirror lie
The green grass and the winged fly,
The lowest flower, the tallest tree
In your crystal I can see.
Why, in your tiny globe you hold
The sun himself, a midge of gold.
It makes me wonder if the world
In which so many things are curled,
The world which all men real call,
Is not the real world at all,
But just a drop of dew instead
Swinging on a spider's thread.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

EXPERT SAYS PROPERTY REVALUATION WILL HELP SMALL TAX PAYER

At a conference of the tax committee of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce held Wednesday evening in the mayor's office at the courthouse, Thomas Linder, appraisal engineer of the New Britain assessors' office, pointed out how a revaluation and equalization of taxes tends to lower the taxes of the small property holder—the man who owns his own home. The conference was held for the purpose of hearing suggestions from Mr. Linder, who is an expert on taxes. He was accompanied by Edward A. McCarthy, who is engaged in similar work in Middletown, and who contributed considerable valuable information on how the situation is being handled in that city. James L. Case, general chairman, presided at the meeting, which was attended by all but one or two members of the committee. In the absence of John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, who has been called to Lowell, Mass., the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Miss Rose Peloquin, stenographer for the chamber.

Mr. Case then explained the purpose of the meeting and presented Mr. Linder, who gave a more or less informal talk on methods and results of revaluations. Mr. Linder stated at the beginning of his talk that he would welcome any questions that the committee members might ask and the opportunity to secure valuable information that might aid in solving the local tax problem through questions was taken advantage of by a number of those present.

In the course of his talk Mr. Linder said that without maps it is extremely difficult for the assessors to do any work whatever. He said that he had inspected the maps being made for Norwich at the office of Chandler & Palmer Wednesday afternoon and pronounced them the best maps he has ever seen.

Mr. Linder said that in endeavoring to effect a revaluation and equalization of taxes the first step is to secure a tax map. The second step is to follow out the streets and get the ownerships of the various properties settled. The next step is the revaluation of the buildings.

With reference to securing outside expert advice, the speaker said that in both New Britain and Middletown there was co-operation in plenty but that there was a feeling that outside expert advice would be better to have than local advice.

Another point brought out by Mr. Linder was that local people are very apt to look at replacement costs rather than market values. The market value is the value, not the replacement cost, he said.

In answer to a question as to whether he knew of any city where local advicew as sought entirely, Mr. Linder said he knew of only one—Meriden. In answer to other questions, he told how the manufacturing plant and business house values were arrived at through inventories, state tax returns, etc., and there was considerable discussion on the matter of replacement values as compared with market values. Speaking of insurance policy values as a method of arriving at fair assessments, Mr. Linder said that in many instances insurance policy values are in excess of the market values.

The speaker said that in the case of the New Britain revaluation the small man, the man who owns his home, is paying less in taxes than he was under the old system. This is due to the fact that the small property owner was assessed higher in proportion to the large property holder, as it is easier to arrive at a small property value than at a large property value such as a mill, factory or business house. He also pointed out one particular case where the revaluation revealed the fact that one man in New Britain was paying taxes on one house although he owned six more.

Mr. Linder said the equalization process was started through the appointment of an advisory committee of ten members made up of both small and large property holders, who worked with him in his capacity as an expert. Every street was gone through and land values were fixed. These were checked up and in some cases revised, after which they were published in pamphlet form. By means of this system, any owner could figure up his own land values.

Mr. Linder said assessors should not be tied up in the office by clerical work as their duties are to assess values. In answer to a question as to how long he thought a reassessment in Norwich would require, Mr. Linder expressed the opinion that it could be accomplished in from 15 to 18 months by a tax expert working in conjunction with full time assessors.

Mr. McCarthy answered a number of questions relative to tax revaluations and how they are accomplished and both Mr. Linder and Mr. McCarthy exhibited and explained various forms of cards used to chronicle detailed information about each piece of property for the card index in the assessors' office. They also displayed an aerial map which proved of much interest to the committee members.

The meeting came to a close about 9.30 o'clock.

REPUBLICANS TRIUMPH IN BIG STERLING VOTE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Sterling, Oct. 7.—The town meeting in this town this year was one of unusual interest, the largest vote ever cast at a town meeting being polled. The popularity of I. E. Frink, republican first selectman, is easily shown in the result of the voting, he receiving 379 of the 411 votes over Charles E. Baton, democrat, whose vote was but 134, giving Frink a majority of 11 more than Mr. Baton's entire vote. Fred W. Sherman, the other democrat, received 187 and was elected. He is a new man on the board.

One of the radical changes was the selection of Mrs. Helen M. Thompson, of this village on the school board to replace A. J. Dixon many years chairman. Mr. Thompson is not only one of the best educated women in town but a successful former school teacher and will add greatly to the already popular school board.

One other change was the return of "Uncle Ben" Doylan to the job of collecting taxes after the post had been held one year by Robert J. Dixon, democrat, who was a first class man for the job, but "Uncle Ben" was swept in on the wave of republicanism. Both parties polled the largest votes in the town's history, the democratic gain being on an average of about 50 while the republican gain except for First Selectman Frink averaged up about 30.

The business meeting was a lively one, especially so in regard to $3,000 that has been in some way lost for over half a century. A committee has been appointed to find where it went.

DOGS DO TEAM WORK AGAINST TAFTVILLE CATS

A local man who was driving up Providence street in Taftville about 2.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon noticed two dogs, one a bull dog and the other an Airedale pulling a live cat back and forth in the gutter. The bull dog had the cat around the throat and the Airedale had grabbed the cat around the back.

He stopped his machine and caused the dogs to drop their prey. The vicious animals skulked up Providence street. The cat was in agony and so badly injured that word was left at a Taftville store to notify the constable and have the animal shot. Wednesday evening a report of the incident was made at local police headquarters with a request that the local Connecticut Humane agent be notified so that steps may be taken to have the dogs kept from the streets. It is said that these dogs have killed two or three cats in this manner lately.

Installation of Italian Pastor.

The installation service for Rev. Valentino Panizzoli, the new Italian pastor at the Central Baptist church, will be held this (Thursday) evening. Rev. E. E. Gates of the state convention will be present and deliver the address. Following the service, a social hour has been planned by the members of the Italian group in the church.

SCHULER MADE HIGH IN PINOCHLE PLAY

G. Schuler captured high score, 8,650, Wednesday evening, the second night's play in the West Side Pinochle club tournament. Alexander Jordan maintained first place in the standing, his score of 8,110 being the second highest of the evening. Schuler's high score jumped him from fifth place to second place in the standing. C. S. Peckham who was in second place last week dropping back to fourth. C. V. Pendleton retaining third place. The scores Wednesday evening:

C. Shuler, 8,650; A. Jordan, 8,110; J. A. Parker, 7,475; C. V. Pendleton, 7,355; A. J. Bailey, 7,345; H. Pettis, 7,150; C. S. Peckham, 7,140; E. C. Underwood, 7,125; E. Peckham, 7,105; J. Jordan, 7,075; N. B. Lewis, 7,065; Dr. Boynton, 6,235.

The standing to date:

A. Jordan, 16,930; C. Schuler, 15,865; C. V. Pendleton, 14,940; C. S. Peckham, 14,810; J. Jordan, 14,660; A. J. Bailey, 14,370; E. Peckham, 14,035; N. B. Lewis, 13,770; J. A. Parker, 13,605; H. Pettis, 13,520; E. C. Underwood, 13,055; Dr. Boynton, 12,305.

SUPREME COURT DIRECTS INTEREST ON TRUST FUND

Hartford, Oct. 8.—The Connecticut supreme court of errors concluded the business of the October term and adjourned sine die today. Two decisions were handed down by the court, in one of which error was found.

In the case of Frederick C. Wright, administrator and others against Harry M. Lee, trustee and others, a New London case, the supreme court found error and remanded the case to the superior court, with direction to enter judgment for Frederick C. Wight, administrator to recover $2,975.67 with interest from February 6, 1918. The case was an appeal from two decrees of the New London court of probate brought at the superior court of New London county and tried before Judge Allyn L. Brown. The lower court found that certain sums being income from a trust for the benefit of Charlotte R. Coit were placed in a special bank account earning no interest.

Justice Kellogg in his opinion says: "The duty of the executors would have been to render the fund productive. To this sum in such case, interest is incident to a matter of law."

MISSIONARY ADDRESSES TO CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN

Two interesting and instructive addresses were made Wednesday at the afternoon session of the Eastern Connecticut Branch of the Women's Board of Missions which was held at the Woodstock Congregational church. The speakers were Mrs. Franklin H. Warner of White Plains, N. Y., president of the Women's Board, and Miss Margaret Welles, who has recently returned from Ahmednagar, India.

Miss Abby G. Willard of Colchester, president of the branch, conducted the sessions, reports being made in the morning. There was an attendance of over 100 and lunch was served by the ladies of the church.

BREAKS HIS LEG IN FALL FROM LADDER

Joseph Dubois, 24, of Broad street, Lonsdale, R. I., employed by the Cornell Construction Co., is a patient at Backus hospital today as the result of a fractured leg received Wednesday morning.

Mr. Dubois was repairing a chimney at the Aspinook mills, Jewett City, and was descending a ladder when he lost his footing about 30 feet from the ground and fell, breaking his leg between the knee and ankle. He was taken to Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's office and later removed to the hospital where it was discovered that the two main bones, the tibia and fibula, in the leg were broken.

FIRE DEPARTMENT SHOWS EFFICIENCY IN TEST

A two-alarm firm demonstration was held Wednesday afternoon at Union square by the Norwich fire department as part of the observance of Fire Prevention Week. Chief Howard L. Stanton and the officers and men of the fire department went through with the programme just if a large fire had broken out and their work was watched with much interest by the large crowd present.

At 1.27 o'clock a telephone alarm was sent in to the fire department at the central fire station stating that the United Congregational church was on fire. Less than a minute later Chief Howard L. Stanton, Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft and Squad A were on the scene. Smoke from a tar fire set in the inclosure between the church and the Masonic building was rolling up in thick dense clouds giving the impression that a good sized blaze had broken out in the church.

Chief Stanton immediately ordered box 38, in front of the Otis library, pulled in. The remaining companies at central station, engine No. 3 stationed at the new station on Joseph Perkins road, and the West Side company were quickly on the scene. While hose was being rapidly hooked up to hydrants in the vicinity the aerial truck drove up in front of the Masonic Temple and in a few seconds the big ladder had been raised to the roof of the building as the flames were supposed to have spread and set fire to the Masonic Temple. Engine No. 3 hooked up at the cistern in the middle of Union square and within a very short space of time several streams of water were shooting toward the supposed fire.

As the imaginary fire was rapidly "spreading" and threatening adjoining property Chief Stanton had a second alarm pulled in, this calling out the Thamesville and Greeneville companies. Within a very short space of time they were on the scene and laying hoses. Two pumpers were put to work pumping from the cistern in Union square and in all some half dozen lines of hose were shooting streams high in the air. At 2 o'clock the "fire" was "under control" and the recall was sounded, this being the end of the half hour demonstration.

The demonstration was conclusive proof of the efficiency of the local department in handling fires of any size and gave the large crowd that quickly gathered when the box was pulled an insight into the workings of the department. It also brought home to many of the audience the fact that a conflagration is liable to break out at any minute of the day or night and served to impress on them the importance of care in preventing fires through keeping their premises clear of rubbish and lessening fire hazards.

While the demonstration was taking place precautions were taken by Chief Stanton in case any call came in to the department during the absence of the apparatus from their stations so that any such calls would have been looked after in the department's usual efficient manner.

Chief George Linton and the members of the police department aided in the demonstration by keeping Union Square and lower Broadway clear of machines and routing traffic through Union and Church streets during the half hour period. The Connecticut Company also cooperated by holding back cars while the demonstration was on thus helping to keep the streets open for the department.

Street Commissioner John C. Donovan cooperated with the department by keeping West Main street open for the apparatus responding from the West side. The street between the two bridges is torn up as new rails are being laid there by the trolley company in preparation for the new pavement. Street Commissioner Donovan kept one side of the street clear of traffic so as not to hinder the apparatus.

In spite of the fact that published notices in both local papers requested owners and drivers of machines to respect the restricted district during the demonstration there were a number of drivers who parked their machines on Union square and Broadway in the vicinity of the court house and left them there. They could not be located in some instances and the machines therefore could not be cleared from the scene of operations. One machine left near the church was directly in line with the streams of water and received a thorough drenching.

FALL RECEPTION GIVEN AT Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

The fall reception of the Young Men's Christian Association, was held Wednesday evening at the association building with a programme of entertainment that was enthusiastically received. After selections by Swahn's orchestra words of welcome were given by General Secretary Edwin Hill on behalf of the social committee and the board. Well rendered solos by Mrs. R. P. Potter, contralto, and Frederick J. Maples, tenor, for which encores were demanded, were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Potter obligingly substituted at the last moment for Joshua Heap, flute soloist, who was detained at home by sickness in the family. F. C. Geer was the accompanist for the evening.

A 30 minute demonstration in the swimming pool was given by Fred Williams, Otis Fellows, Philip McNamara, Havas Lacombe, William Wyman, Ernest Stevens, Nunzi Grieco, George Chappelle and Nemo Angelopolis following which ice cream and cookies were served under the direction of the social committee, N. Eugene Smith, Arthur F. Wyman and Charles L. Stewart, who were in charge of the reception.

Secretary Hill announced during the evening that an entertainment course of three numbers had been arranged for this season.

Four Weeks Motor Trip.

After a motor trip of four weeks to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lambert of No. 24 Broad street have returned to their home. The trip which was made via the Green mountains covered 947 miles. Stormy weather was encountered going north but the weather was fine on the return trip.

During the trip they visited relatives at Newport, Vt., St. Guillaume, the Sacred Heart College at Granby Hugues, Windsor, St. Johnsbury, St. Anne du Beaupre, Quebec, Nicolet, St. Jean, and other places. They felt the sharp earthquake while at St. Jean at 6 a. m. September 29th. The shock was so pronounced that it woke them up.

The trip north was a more or less unpleasant ruin owing to heavy rains. They found bridges down and encountered fires and floods which forced them to take detours over the mountains.

DANGEROUS AGONIZING ASTHMA!

Simple New England Prescription of Essential Oils Gives Speedy Relief—Makes Breathing Easy.

In New England, where bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other diseases of the throat and lungs are so prevalent, remarkably successful results are being reported following the use of a new form of treatment known as Oxidaze, a physician's prescription.

Oxidaze is a harmless but powerful combination of curative essential oils concentrated and compressed into a small tablet. One of these tablets slowly dissolved before going to bed seems to have the effect of releasing the muscular constriction of the bronchial tubes, opening up the air passages and regulating spasmodic lung action. This enables the patient to breathe easily and naturally while lying down and to get a comfortable night's sleep.

So much interest has been shown the local druggists, including Lee & Osgood, have secured a small supply and state that they are authorized to refund the money paid for the first package if in any case this new treatment fails to give relief. Oxidaze is pleasant to take, contains no harmful, habit forming drugs, and is not expensive. This makes the test an easy matter.

JOHNSON'S AMBITION OF A LIFETIME SHATTERED BY WAR-CLUBS OF GIANTS

Giants Pole Out 13 Hits, Including Homer by Bentley, and Win 6 to 2—Senators Unable to Hit With Men on Bases—Goslin Hits a Homer—Zachary Will Pitch Against Nehf Today.

New York, Oct. 8 (By the A. P.)—Walter Johnson, the "Old Master," buckled on his armor today in a final fight for the glory of world's series victory that he has sought for eighteen years but fate, it seemed, and the mighty bats of his foe, turned him back.

Unleashing a furious, ruthless attack, the New York Giants battered the great veteran into defeat for the second straight time, captured the fifth game of the series from the Senators by a score of 6 to 2, and left tonight for Washington with the 1924 world's championship within their reach.

The Giants, coming back today with the powerful type of attack that carried the Senators to triumph yesterday, now hold a formidable dege of three to two in games. They need but one more victory to clinch the series and give their leader, John McGraw, his fourth baseball crown and a new major league record.

The forces of McGraw, who shares the present record of three world's series victories with Connie Mack and his Athletics, are heavy favorites tonight to carry off the major honors in one of the game's most spectacular battles, for today they spiked Washington's big gun and left the Senators with shattered resources for the rest of the fight.

Nehf to Pitch Today.

Art Nehf, McGraw's brilliant southpaw who was prevented from starting today's game by a thumb bruise sustained in his victory over Johnson on the opening day, is able to take the mound tomorrow, the Giants will have an excellent prospect of ending the series. If not, or if Nehf fails, the decision will go to the seventh game, which will also be played in Washington.

Johnson a Tragic Figure.

Through the smoke of today's conflict Johnson stood out as a gallant but tragic figure, one of the most noble baseball has ever known. An ovation outpouring of 50,000 fans, bravving the chilliest day of the series rose cheerily in the hope of seeing Johnson hang up his first world's series victory. Their sympathies, which were with the Senators throughout the New York games of the series, were redoubled when Johnson was touched for a run in the ninth part of the game but as it wore on and Johnson's defeat seemed more certain became quieter, realizing as Bucky Harris, one of the game's gamest sports was taking the bitterest defeat of his career.

Even the punishment administered by the Giants' bats gained a sad spectacle to those [illegible] greatness ever reach[illegible] and the valiant [illegible] refused to be knocked. Yet [illegible] behind the target, [illegible] Johnson [illegible] Goose" Goslin's [illegible] series had [illegible] the eighth [illegible] walked the veteran [illegible] and taunted the [illegible] over the outcome.

Refuses to Take Out Johnson.

[illegible] embarrassment it [illegible] to Manager "Bucky" [illegible] Johnson in the game, [illegible] which meant so much [illegible] championship hopes, [illegible] Washington pilot apparently [illegible] to accept defeat [illegible] in the climax of the [illegible] stand by leaving him [illegible].

Johnson's decision after the [illegible] that he will retire from the game next season for all time may be the real reason for keeping him to the last. If it was to be the veteran's final battle, he wanted to be on the firing line to the last, even in the face of impending defeat.

Johnson's famous fast ball, which had forced the Giants to twelve bitter-contested innings before they won the opening game, held no terrors today. The National league champions pounded "Barney" for thirteen safe blows and bunched three of them in each of the third fifth and eighth innings when they did all their scoring. Jack Bentley, southpaw star, opposed Johnson and held the Senators to one run until the eighth inning, when he left under an outbreak that was started by Goslin's homer, a blow that gave the slugging "Goose" a tie with Babe Ruth for the greatest number of circuit clouts made in a single series.

Bentley's Homer Puts Giants in Lead.

But before Bentley left the game his own bat gave the Giants a lead they held to the finish. He caught one of Johnson's curves in the fifth inning for a towering home run into the upper tier of the right field stands, scoring Hank Gowdy ahead of him. This proved the deciding punch of the game, although the Giants came back in the eighth with a three-run rally that clinched their victory.

Bentley's was the crucial blow, but the most dynamic figure in the Giant attack was Freddy Lindstrom, 18 year old Chicago schoolboy, who was in the cradle when Johnson first broke into the big leagues in 1906. Lindstrom, who took the place of the veteran Heinie Groh at third base when the latter was injured, smashed out four hits in five times at bat. He drove in two runs, sparkled in the field and established himself as one or the greatest sensations of the series.

Double Plays Feature.

Every Giant but "Hack" Wilson shared in the barrage of hits that whistled past Johnson, and had it not been for two double plays that checked the Giants in the midst of rallies, the margin of victory would have been much greater.

The first of these double killings came in the third inning after the Giants had tallied once and filled the bases with one out. Jackson scratched an infield hit to Miller and scored on singles by Bentley and Lindstrom, after Gowdy fanned. Miller's failure to touch third for a force-out on Frisch's bounder to Bluege filled the bags, but Ross Young lined to Rice, and Bentley, due largely to poor base running, was doubled at the plate on a relay throw by Johnson.

Again in the fifth, after Bentley's homer had brought in Gowdy, the Giants were halted by fast fielding. With Lindstrom out, Frisch got a double on a Texas leaguer to right-center, and Young was hit in the knee by a pitched ball, but Kelly lie into a double play via Bluege, Harris and Judge.

Senators Fail to Hit Timely.

Meanwhile the Senators were making little headway against the southpaw shoots of Bentley, although they threw away good chances to score in both the second and third innings before finally breaking through for a run in the fourth on Judge's single, a sacrifice by Bluege, infield out and Miller's single.

In the second Goslin registered his sixth straight hit when he beat out an infield blow, was forced by Bluege, and Ruel walked, but Miller failed in the pinch. Three hits failed to produce results in the third. Johnson's hard single to left was wasted when he overran first and was caught on the return to the infield. It was a particularly bad break, because McNeely and Harris followed with hits, only to be stranded by two of the clubs heavy artillery, Rice and Goslin.

Goslin Sends Bentley Out.

Encouraged by his home run blow Bentley improved as the game wore on, allowing only one hit in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings, and retiring the side on strikes in the sixth, sending Goslin, but the "Goose" had his revenge in the eighth, when his home run, followed by Judge's single, drove Bentley from the hill in favor of Hugh McQuillan, right-hander, who held the Senators scoreless for the rest of the game.

Just when Goslin's homer put the Senators within striking distance of the lead, the Giants fell on Johnson in their half of the eighth for the final, clinching attack. Singles by Kelly, McQuillan and Lindstrom, Jackson's sacrifice fly and a pass to Terry figured in their three runs.

Peck is Missed.

The Senators, as in the previous two games here, sadly missed their veteran shortstop, Roger Peckinpaugh, who was forced out by a "Charley horse." The substitute link in Washington's inner defense, Ralph Miller, at third in place of Oscar Bluege, who took Peckinpaugh's place at short, was largely responsible for the hole in which Johnson found himself in the third. Two scratch hits, which the third sacker handled poorly and his failure to touch third with a force-out in sight were costly mistakes, although he partly atoned for them by knocking in the Senators' first run in the fourth.

WORLD'S SERIES NOTES

Roger Peckinpaugh was a much-missed cog in the Washington machine. The Giants concentrated their attack on the rookie Ralph Miller at third and reaped a harvest of results. Peckinpaugh also was sorely missed in the batting rallies staged by the Senators. His bat, one of the most dangerous on the Washington team in a pinch, was needed today.

Nick Altrock, Washington's clown and coach, played a great game at first for the Giants during infield practice. He emulated the flashy Frisch, the high-diving Lindstrom and the polished Harris all in one on a line drive from Hughey Jennings bat when he snared the crash with his gloved hand while stretched out on the ground.

According to the sequence of games and results thus far, the Senators should win tomorrow and the Giants Friday. The New York club has won every odd game and the Senators have broken the tape on the "even" contests.

"Muddy" Ruel has yet to get a hit in the series. The Washington receiver has been passed frequently but popping or grounding out more often. In the eighth today with Judge on second and two down, Ruel smashed to Lindstrom, who juggled, but got him at first by a step.

The "Goose's" string of consecutive hits was broken at six when he was tossed out in the third. He made a safe blow in the last time at bat on Monday, chalked up four yesterday and got an infield hit on his first time up today.

Terry's terrific drive in the fourth that landed near the stands in deep right center, was the first triple of the series and one of the longest hits ever seen at the Polo grounds.

Goslin hit a foul over the right field stands in the eighth just before he clouted his third homer of the series and tied "Babe" Ruth's record total of three for any single series made last year.

Jack Bentley got well started on his journey to tie "Hod" Eller's mark of six consecutive strikeouts in the world's series, when he fanned Harris for the final out in the fifth and opening the sixth by whiffing both Rice and Goslin but Judge broke up the exhibition by shooting a single to right after which Bluege obligingly fanned. Eller pitching for Cincinnati fanned six of the White Sox back in 1919. Eddie Collins being the sixth victim of the "shine ball" artist.

The breaks were against the Senators. In the seventh Harris' long fly to Young, with two on, would have gone into the stands for a homer had it been a few feet to the right. McNeely and Goslin also hit terrific shots into the stands that went foul by close margins, while Bentley's circuit blow was in fair territory by only a foot or two.

WORLD'S SERIES WILL BE MEGAPHONED BY BULLETIN

As has been the custom for many years the World's Series games will be megaphoned, play by play, from the Bulletin office window. The Bulletin will have a special A. P. service direct from the playing field at Washington and from the Polo Grounds. The games will start at 2 o'clock (Eastern Standard Time) each day. Stephen P. Coffey, who has been announcer for the past 15 years will officiate at the megaphone.

How It's Done In the Majors
By Frank Frisch
Fordham New York Giants

Fifth inning. Score, 3 to 0 in favor of team in the field. Due to an overflow crowd, ground rules are necessary allowing two bases on any ball hit into crowd.

How should outfielders play all balls?

When ground rules are necessary in a ball game allowing two bases on any ball hit into the outfield, a team should get together before the game starts to discuss them. In such a situation as the above the outfielders should have an understanding between themselves to back up one another on every ball hit to them in order to try to prevent such hits getting by them. This is especially necessary in a close game, for a hit into the crowd in such a struggle often means the game.

JOHNSON HAS LITTLE TO SAY; HARRIS PHILOSOPHICAL

New York, Oct. 8.—(By The A. P.) Walter Johnston said today after he was beaten for the second time during the world series by the Giants, that it was doubtful if he would play ball next year.

The big pitcher, who waited 18 years to get into baseball classic, would not elaborate on his statement but did deny a report that he had bought stock in the Oakland club of the Pacific coast league.

"I couldn't hold them," he said, referring to the game which he evidently considered to be his last appearance in a world series, if not in big league baseball.

"I'm sorry," he continued, "I had two chances to beat them but I couldn't hold them at either time."

Manager Harris was philosophical.

"They made breaks and they beat us. Life is that way. But we'll catch them tomorrow. Zachary will pitch."

Rogers Peckinpaug, veteran shortstop and captain of the Senators whose absence because of a Charley-horse has been severely felt during the last three games, was determined to play tomorrow.

"I'll get in that game if I break the leg," he said.

Manager McGraw was in happy spirits as his team made ready to be escorted by a motor cordon through town to catch the special train chartered to take the players of both teams to Washington shortly before 6 o'clock.

"I think Nehf will be ready to use tomorrow" he said. "His hand was in fair shape today and 24 hours should make a lot of difference. If Nehf cannot work, Barnes will get another chance."

The veteran manager would not predict an end of the series tomorrow.

"Washington as a good, game team and anything can happen in baseball, you know."

MURPHY HAS BIG DAY AT LEXINGTON WINNING THREE OUT OF FOUR EVENTS

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 8.—(By The A. P.) Driver Thomas W. Murphy added to his impressive showing this year by winning three races on today's Grand Circuit card, which included the Phoenix for 2:04 pacers with Baron Worthy and the Ashland for 2:11 trotters with Etta Druein. For extra measures he also won the 2:22 trot, with Henry W. Oliver's Elsie Scott. Each of these was a comparatively easy winner.

The real fight developed in the 2:12 pace in which winners fought it out in the final heat. Brook Volo in the stable of Lon McDonald was a big favorite but unsteadiness almost caused his downfall. He made breaks in three of the heats but in the fourth was so much the best that he got up in time to win in a stretch battle. The first heat went to Spooks in a close finish with John S., the second went to Brook Volo that paced all the mile. Star Ruth won the third after Brook Volo and John S. got together near the quarter. McDonald was thrown and John J's sulky smashed. Despite a break Brook Volo won the fourth heat and race. Brook Volo is owned by J. J. Mooney, of Detroit.

EACH PLAYER OF WINNING TEAM TO GET ABOUT $6,000

New York, Oct. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Washington and New York players will divide a fund of $331,092.51, it was announced after the fourth world's series game, the last from which the players receive a share of the receipts. The winners will get $148,991.63 and the losers $99,327.75.

The Giants have 26 elegible men, the Senators only 23. Exact figures for each man cannot be computed now because of the practice of donating lump sums to certain ineligible players and attaches, but the aproximate shares follow:

Each Washington player will receive about $6,477 if the team wins the series but only $4,319 if it loses. If the Giants win, each player will be entitled to about $5,731, but the Amount will be cut to $3,821, if McGraw's team fails.

Brooklyn and New York, second place clubs in the two leagues, will each receive $24,831.93 to be divided among its eligible players. Detroit and Pittsburgh, finishing third, will each receive $16,554.62 to split.

The total players' fund for 1923, the record year, was $362,783.04. Each winning Yankee received $6,530 and each losing Giant was given $4,363. The Senators, because only 23 men are eligible to divide the smaller fund of this year, will nevertheless approach the record Yankee figure if Harris' team wins the series.

The defection of O'Connell and Dolan, who were removed from the Giant eligible list on the eve of the series after having been adjudged guilty of attempted bribery has not only deprived the two men of a share of the proceeds but will add $400 to the winning share of each Giant now eligible and $300 to the losing share.

SHURE ELECTED MANAGER OF BULKELEY BASKETBALL

Special to The Bulletin.

Oct. 8.—Further indications that Bulkeley activities on the basketball court were due for some improvement and elevation of a much higher plane than in previous seasons came in the respect that a basketball manager was already decided upon by the student council. Arthur J. Shugrue of the senior class was elected to the position of manager of the quintet, but while the announcement of a manager has been received, th important question is who will assume the coach's position at the school was left unsettled, and likewise the decision of a home floor or court where games in this city are to be played.

Little difficulty is being experienced at booking games, and among those teams which will be met by Bulkeley five include, Fordham College freshmen, Springfield Commercial High in a home and home series, Bridgeport High, Crosby High, Wilby High and other leading High school teams in this state and out. In order to make the season a successful one, partly at least if not wholly, a coach with a thorough system must take the men's reins into his hands here. Much will depend upon the coach to turn out a good team, for there is fairly good material on hand to start the season. Bulkeley has never been a strong contender for basketball honors, but it seems this season has a chance to make a comeback with the revival of this particular branch of sport.

WASHINGTON FANS ARE DISAPPOINTED IN JOHNSON

Washington, Oct. 8.—Walter Johnson's second defeat at the hands of the New York Giants today cast somewhat of a gloom over Washington tonight. Fans were disappointed because Johnson again failed in an effort to annex a world series victory to his long string of wins for the Senators.

Return of the Senators tonight, however, brightened matters to some extent, and from practically every quarter satisfaction was expressed that the battle ground for the world's baseball championship had shifted from the Polo grounds to Griffith stadium.

The captial took as an omen of good luck, Clark Griffith's winning the toss of the coin to determine where the seventh game of the series will be played, should the Senators even the count with the Giants by a victory tomorrow.

Officials at American league park here tonight announced that al seats were sold for tomorrow's contest, with the exception of a few thousand bleecher tickets which will not be offered the public until 9 a. m. tomorrow. They also said that anticipating the possibility of a seventh game to determine the winner, tickets for the contest were printed and ready for sale.

Thousands of Washington fans today were at their accustomed posts for out of town contests—scoreboards and radio stations.

VETERAN GUARD RETURNS TO PRINCETON SQUAD

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 8.—"Red" Howard, for two years Varsity guard, returned to the Princeton football squad today and immediately took up his old place on the line.

Aside from a strenuous signal drill "Bill" Roper gave the team a long session in front of the blackboard where several new plays were explained.

So far this season the Tigers have used nothing but straight football, but Coach Roper declared today the tactics will have to be changed if the Orange and Black is to turn back its formidable opponents.

SEVERAL HORSES SOLD AT GRAND CIRCUIT MEETING

Lexington Ky., Oct. 8. — Belwin, with a record of 2:06 3-4 for the mile has been sold to W. M. Wright of Chicago, by H. J. Schiessinger of Milwaukee for $50,000, it was announced here today during the Grand Circuit meeting. Roland Harriman of Goshen, N. Y., bought Anna Bradford's Girl, 3 year old undefeated pacer in 1922, with a record of 2:01, from Fred F. Field, of Brocton, Mass. The sale was made through W. H. Gocher. The price was announced at $10,000.

Harriman also purchased a yearling colt by Guy Axworthy, for $4,000, from H. M. Jones.

To Captain Columbia Tracksters

New York, Oct. 8.—John Theobald of New York city, mile runner and member of the cross-country team for two years, today was elected captain of the Columbia University track team.

LADKIN PULLS UP LAME AFTER WORKOUT

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 8.—Ladkin, one of the main hopes of the east in the International special race here Saturday, pulled up lame after a mile and a quarter try-out as the cause, but veterinarians were sanguine over his chance of getting into the last International against the Great Epinard.

August Belmont's colt went the full International distance in 2:10 2-5, breezing the last quarter. He was given his head but a short time, and then checked. It was while being led off the track that a slight limp was noticed and almost immediately the report spread that the eastern contender has gone hopelessly lame and would not start.

EVERY EFFORT BEING MADE TO SAVE DAUBERT'S LIFE

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 8.—Blood transfusions were resorted to today in an effort to save the life of Jake Daubert, veteran first baseman of the Cincinnati Nationals and Captain of the team, who is suffering from complications following an operation for the removal of his appendix. Attending physicians said Daubert's condition was not very satisfactory following the blood transfusion.

Daubert's wife and two children have been called to his bedside

Rangers Play at Hartford

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 8.—Encountering unusually good teams, the New London Rangers, Eastern Connecticut's entrant in the state soccer league will battle with Hartford Thistles at the Capitol City Sunday. Every conceivable element to give the locals a wrong start in the league has entered itself quite prominently without the sanction of the local players, in the games played to date. As a direct consequence in three attempts to come out on top, the Rangers have met with failure and while disheartening, has given the players a determination to come out on top in their invasion of the Capitol City on the Sabbath Day.

WORLD'S SERIES NOTES.

Two sparkling fielding plays featured today's game. In the fourth inning Bluege sewed a base hit tag on a screeching grounder past third but Lindstrom threw himself far to the left, snared the ball and got his man. Manager Harris of the Senators duplicated this feat in the final inning and saved the game for the Washington team when he took Meusel's grounder in his gloved hand, just back of first base, and threw Meusel out.

Peckinpaugh also produced a fielding feature which compares favorably with the plays of Lindstrom and Harris when he picked up Lindstrom's hot grounder in the eighth and from an awkward position tossed his man out.

Marberry surely lived up to his reputation as a relief pitcher when he halted the Giant rally in the ninth. He came in with the score tied and the winning run on second base and Jackson at bat. He fanned Jackson on three pitched balls.

Manager Harris increased his already somewhat heavy hold on the fans' affections with a drive in the fifth that took him all the way around the cushions and squared Washington's count with the New Yorkers on home runs.

The tension apparently was broken today, for the crowd acted like a regular everyday crowd, cheered and booed to its hearts' content. The customary seventh inning stretch produced two fights in the crowd and plenty of action in the bleachers.

Two Ways to Misfortune.

There are people so eager to reach the top that they pay little heed to the kind of ladders they are climbing. It is possible to climb to misfortune as well as to fall into it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
Chesterfield Cigarettes

One of the outstanding "successes" of recent years is the astounding way in which Chesterfield Cigarettes are running away from the field in popularity—a fact which is not only self-evident from an observation of smokers' tastes but which is backed up by those figures which never lie—sales.

Sometime ago, the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, manufacturers of this popular brand, compiled statistics showing conclusively that smokers were switching from other brands to Chesterfield at the rate of over 1000 a day—a rate which assured that 1924 sales would far exceed all previous records.

Since that time, the records show that there are apparently no signs of abatement to the rapid pace which this popular brand is traveling, and in fact an actual compilation of statistics, based on the revenue figures of the United States government, proves that of the total increase in Cigarette Sales this year, Chesterfield has 61 per cent.—almost double the increase of all other brands combined!

This fact is given wide publicity in a striking big advertisement just published by Liggett & Myers, which company naturally takes a not unpardonable pride in the new record hung up by its star performer.

In searching for the reason for such widespread demands, it is pointed out that Chesterfield's swift rise to popularity was no accident. Smokers were ready for a better cigarette and in Chesterfield they found it. Taste convinced them and as a result men are literally turning by thousands from other cigarettes to Chesterfield.

BROADWAY THEATRE

It has been the aim of and it has been proven that the Broadway always has had consistently good shows which leads to the fact that another perfect program has been arranged for the last half of this week starting today.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville program is as follows:

Arch & Veeda open with a diverse program of songs and steps; following Golden & White, those smart syncopators offer lively entertainment. Cupid's Close Up is the feature act. It is claimed to be the best comedy skit on the stage today. They offer twelve minutes of hilarious fun; Stanley Chapman is a comedian above everything else. The Zellias Sisters make a very good novelty closing number.

"Empty Hands," a Paramount picturization of the novel and magazine serial of the same name by Arthur Stringer, will be the feature at the Broadway theatre today to remain for three days. It is a Victor Fleming production, adapted by Carey Wilson.

This story furnishes audiences with the nth degree of excitement, is filled with dramatic contrasts and conflicts, and is the type of outdoor stuff that Victor Fleming can get away with big. Remember he made "The Call of the Canyon," "To the Last Man," "The Heritage of the Desert," "Code of the Sea," and many others.

Allyn Rubber Co. in California

The H. H. Allyn Rubber Corporation of this city has announced the opening on Oct. 6, 1924 of the Allyn Rubber Co., at 1247 Van Ness avenue, San Francisco. The Pacific Rubber company is owned by Wm. B. Hayes, an experienced tire distributor and several San Francisco business men. Initial stores and service stations have been opened in San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles. Further additions are planned as soon as the personnel can be extended. The initial shipment consisting of several hundred tubes was shipped entirely by water.

H. H. Allyn, president of the Norwich company states that while winter conditions will affect the tire industry in general, he does not anticipate any slowing up of business in the local plant. The sales department of the company as been enlarged and with the increase in the number of fleet and industrial users the plant will operate without the usual slowing up prevalent in the tire industry.

PALACE THEATRE

No wonder he made it a whole thousand! His wife was on the steamer waiting for him to go on his honeymoon and there was also a hired gunman in mad pursuit. If he failed to make the ship, he'd lose both wife and life.

This is just one of the humorous and thrilling situations in "Never Say Die," the new Douglas MacLean success now at the Palace. The trip to the steamer aboard a London hackney cab in charge of a bibulous driver who is more happy than sober is said to be one of the hilariously funny and break-taking scenes ever filmed. Careening down the steepest grades, flying almost through past whizzing automobiles and street cars, the cab finally arrives at the dock but why give the big surprise of the picture away.

"Never Say Die" is a screen presentation of Willie Collier's great Broadway stage triumph which ran New York in hysterical laughter for a year. Leo Maloney in a two reel Western thriller "Washed in Advance" Pathe News, Sport Light and Special showing of the world series baseball games complete the bill.

BREED THEATRE

At the Breed Theatre yesterday the picture was Jackie Coogan's newest Metro-Goldwyn production "Little Robinson Crusoe" which was filmed especially for him by William Mac the famous author of several Belasco plays, including "Tiger Rose." Advance notices said it was Mr. Mack's first attempt at writing a story for a child. If this is so, it must be admitted he was uncannily successful, for the picture is a delight the way through, and is undoubtedly Jackie's best feature yet.

The story adapts the old Robinson Crusoe tale to the uses of a boy hero but instead of the desert island being uninhabited, it is filled with cannibals. This premise is carried along into a thrilling climax of adventure when Jackie is taken by the natives for a white god, and he saves the white settlement.

The supporting cast includes Tom Santschi, Will Walling, Gloria Grey, Bert Sprotte, Noble Johnson, Clarence Wilson, Eddie Boland and Tote Du Crow. The production was supervised by Jack Coogan, Sr.

"Little Robinson Crusoe" will be shown for the remainder of the week and other pictures on the bill include Larry Semon in "The Gown Shop" and the Fox News.

Studebaker Production Increasing

According to official reports from South Bend the new Studebaker models announced Sept. 14 have made a decided popular hit, the sincerity of which is being evidenced in a steady increase in orders. The new type so called the Duplex, which takes the place of the customary open car is proving especially popular everywhere. The Duplex has an all steel body which, by a very unusual roller side enclosure, can be converted into an enclosed car in half a minute by drawing down the roller side enclosures. The steel upper structure of the body is made strong enough to mount the rugged steel rollers and room is provided to conceal them when they are rolled up. This new type car is a snug and comfortable as any enclosed car when the enclosures are rolled down and fastened—and of course open car airiness and freedom are obtained when the enclosures are rolled into the roof. At this season of the year a car which combines both open car and enclosed car double service is especially popular.

The price is no higher than that of the former open car.

There is also a complete variety of unusually handsome closed cars including five and seven passenger sedans; three, four and five passenger coupes, and three berline type bodies.

It is interesting to note that all the new duplex and closed models carry a plate stating that the "bodies are by Studebaker."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS DULL

New York, Oct. 8.—Except for rather brisk selling of some of the high priced public utilities just before the close, trading in today's stock market was extremely sluggish with prices in the general list moving irregularly lower. Absence of many traders in observance of the Jewish religious holiday was reflected in the volume of business, total sales against approximately half a million shares.

U. S. Steel common fluctuated within a range of ⅝ of a point, closing unchanged at 107⅞. Independent steels made no response to reports of possible mergers as a result of the abolition of the Pittsburgh plus price plan which were hinted at in the weekly steel trade reviews. Baldwin and Studebaker showed small fractional recessions. American Can which had sold as high as 131¾ in the early trading later fell back to 130⅝ up ¼ on the day.

General Electric closed more than three points lower at 250¾ after having sold as high as 255½. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Nash Motors each broke about five points while losses of 3 points or more were recorded by American Water Work, West Penn Power and Virginia Railway and Power. Central Railroad of New Jersey broke 12 points on one sale. North American, the most active feature in the public utility group dropped 1¼ to 28⅝. Further accumulation of Jordan Motors sent that stock up to a new high record for the year at 35¾, recent buying being based on high current earnings.

New peak prices were attained by Packard preferred, Nash Motors preferred, International Nickel preferred and Federal Light and Traction preferred. Leather touched another new low at 20⅝ and then rallied to 30¾ for a net loss of 1⅛ on the day. General Motors and Great Western Sugar also sold at new low prices.

Railroad issues held relatively firm. Wall Street interests today that recent heavy selling of St. Paul was for the account of a Chicago operator who is taking a short position in the stock.

Strength in the local traction issues was attributed to the somewhat unexpected declaration at this time of a quarterly installment of $1.25 on Manhattan railway stocks by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

Money rates held steady. Call money was unchanged at 2 per cent. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with borrowers manifesting little interest.

Extreme irregularity characterized sterling moved up more than a cent, to the foreign exchange market. Demand $4.47 and French francs fluctuated around 5.20 cents. Silver exchanges touched new highs. Further weakness cropped out in Japanese yen which yielded 7 to 25½.

BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 8.—St. Paul issues made further recovery in today's moderately active bond market, the general list moving irregularly higher. Prompt sale was reported of the $7,000,000 Finnish guaranteed municipal 30 year sinking fund external 6½ per cent. bonds and the $5,000,000 issue of General Asphalt 15 year convertible 6's.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of the $7,000,000 Republic of Peru bonds at 99½ and interest to yield 8.05 per cent. The $200,000,000 German loan, half of which will be floated here, is expected next Tuesday. Other issues to be offered tomorrow include $15,000,000 Wheeling Steel Corporation first and refunding mortgage 5½ per cent. sinking fund bonds and $1,000,000 State of North Dakota farm loan bonds, the latter on a 4.50 per cent. basis.

St. Paul 4s of 1925 rallied more than two points in today's trading on the New York Stock exchange, but lost about half of their gain before the close. Most of the other active St. Paul issues showed small fractional gains. Colorado & Southern 4½'s were among the few weak spots, dropping 1⅜.

Local traction liens responded favorably to the unexpected declaration at this time of a payment of $1.25 on Manhattan railway stock, Third Avenue Adjustment 5's standing out with a gain of one point. A few public utility mortgages yielded in sympathy with the sharp recessions in some of the stocks, Kansas Gas & Electric 6's dropping a point.

Announcement was made tonight at a $4,000,000 issue of 5½ per cent. bonds of the Little River drainage district of southern eastern Missouri will be offered tomorrow on a 5.20 per cent. basis. The proceeds of the sale will be used for the future improvement and completion of the drainage system.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Wheat prices scored a brisk upturn at the last today as a result of enlarged buying based more or less on a correct opinion that crop estimates issued this afternoon at Winnipeg would prove bullish. Reports of rain in Canada counted also as a strengthening factor. Closing quotations on wheat were firm ¼ to 1⅝c net higher, December 1.50¾ to 1.50¾ and May 1.55¾ to 1.55⅞. Corn finished unchanged to ¾ up, oats at ⅛ to ¼ gain and provisions unchanged to 30 cents lower.

According to the latest unofficial figures, the 1924 yield of wheat in Canada's prairie provinces is 266,000,000 bushels, contrasting with a recently widely noticed estimate of 296,000,000 bushels and with 452,000,000 bushels harvested in 1923. Announcement of recent liberal export sales to the Orient from the United States tended further today to re-establish confidence here among friends of higher prices for wheat and so likewise did less optimistic forcasts regarding the outlook for the Australian crop. On the other hand the market early was depressed by a decided setback in values at Liverpool, by better weather in Argentina and by views in some quarters here that world shortage of production had been discounted.

Unfavorable weather did a good deal to rally the corn market from a decline due to wheat weakness early. Besides, gossip was current that the government crop report tomorrow would turn out to be more bullish than has been generally expected. There was talk too that, whereas the wheat, rye and oats market have advanced considerably of late, corn has scored little or no gain for a month.

Oats today followed other grain, declining early, with sellers taking profits, but turning strong later.

Provisions were inclined to drag, commission houses had few orders on either side, and packers were inactive.

CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 8.—Selling pressure against the public utility shares again carried several of those issues into lower ground in today's quiet session of the curb market, trading being on a reduced scale owing to the religious holiday. The oils generally were heavy.

American Gas & Electric, one of the weakest in the utility group, lost four points. Fractional recessions were reported by many others. In contrast to the general weakness, American Light & Traction scored a gain of 3½ points, closing at 142 after having touched 144¾.

The weakness of Pipe Line stocks had a depressing effect on the popular oils. Standard Oil of Ohio closed five points off on a small turnover and Prairie Oil & Gas and Prairie Pipe Line each lost two points.

Interest in the industrial group centered chiefly on the decline in Gillette Safety Razor, which showed 3½ points lower. The Radio group sowed an improved tone.

Your Constipation Can Be Relieved

Take it in hand today. Clean out your bowels with the pure quality herb laxative used for over seventy-three years.

Dr. True's Elixir

The True Family Laxative

Mrs. F. E. Smith, 112 Huntington Ave., Boston, wrote: "I have been taking Dr. True's Elixir for constipation and find it to be more effective than anything I ever used."

You know the symptoms of chronic constipation: Sour stomach, belching, offensive breath, heavy, dull eyes, constant headaches, and general out-of-sorts, grouchy feeling. Let Dr. True's Elixir bring you relief. Family size $1.20; other sizes 60c and 40c.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

MARRIED TWELVE YEARS BEFORE BABY CAME

Gladly Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska.—"I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the newspapers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine." —Mrs. Joe Novak, Box 662, Louisville, Neb.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

CELEBRATE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF BALTIC ACADEMY

The Sisters of Charity of the Holy Family Academy at Baltic celebrated on Tuesday the 50th anniversary of the foundation of their boarding school and parochial school, with impressive ceremonies.

A pontifical high mass was celebrated by the Right Rev. J. G. Murray, D. D., of Hartford, with Rt. Rev. J. G. Murray, D. D., celebrant; Rev. M. H. May of Norwich, assistant priest; Rev. L. O. Bellerose of Tafville, deacon; Rev. J. V. E. Bolanger of Hartford, sub-deacon; Rev. F. P. Keough, assistant chancellor, of Hartford, master of ceremonies; Rev. A. A. Jabot of Baltic, assistant master of ceremonies; Rev. J. Valdambrini of Waterbury, censer bearer, and Rev. Oscar Normand, Moosup, and Rev. W. Tisdell of Worcester, Mass., acolytes.

Difficult and classic though the music was, the pupils carried it through in a splendid manner. Very much of the credit for their success was due to the skilfull help of Miss Nellie Milner, the organist of St. Mary's church.

The sermon was by Rt. Rev. M. M. McAuliff, president of St. Thomas Seminary, Hartford. He paid a splendid tribute to the great work accomplished by the Sisters, not only those who were celebrating their half century of labor in the cause of education, but to the Sisterhoods throughout our country, who are working with unflagging zeal for the social and moral uplift of our American boys and girls regardless of their nationality and religious beliefs.

Mgr. McAuliff congratulated the people of the village, who as he stated, had enjoyed the blessing of the Sisters' presence among them for the past two generations.

Among the large number that filled the church during the services were men and women who had long years since been pupils either of the boarding school or day school and whose children and grandchildren have been placed, as were they, under the efficient charge of the Baltic Sisters.

To them the able speaker pointed out the benefits they, and not only their village but the whole diocese, had reaped from the generous work of the Sisters.

He gave a rapid but skilfull survey of the history of the little band of Sisters who, in 1874, opened a school for Catholic education, the second of its kind in the state of Connecticut, sketching the progress of the school and its spread to other places.

Mgr. McAuliff gave a splendid exposition of the nature and necessity of moral training and character building, the prime reasons for which Catholic people undergo so many sacrifices in the founding and upkeep of Catholic schools.

He told the Sisters they had every reason to rejoice in the success of their noble efforts, and he congratulated the diocese in having the benefit of the Sisters' work.

At the close of the services Bishop Murray addressed a few remarks to the Sisters, offering them congratulations on the happy event and thanking them in the name of the diocese for all they had accomplished in the cause of charity and education.

After church services the bishops and clergy visited the Academy where dinner was served in the school dining hall, which had been beautifully decorated, as were the assembly rooms, in the school colors, blue and gold. The tables were decorated in pastel shades of autumn flowers, the school stage being a veritable autumn woods.

Later in the afternoon a formal reception was tendered by the school to the bishops, the visiting clergy, Sisters, and the delegates of the alumnae.

Addresses were read by three of the pupils, a beautiful song was sung also by the pupils, after which Bishop Murray responded in a delightful manner, assuring the pupils and faculty of the pleasure the day's event had given, and of the credit they deserved for its exceptional success.

A delegation of alumnae attended the golden anniversary exercises for the purpose of offering their congratulations and to present to the Academy in the name of the society, a very beautiful golden tabernacle.

The members of the delegation were: Mrs. Cassidy of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs Andretta of Hartford, Mrs. M. L. Bailey, president of the Alumnae association of Hartford; Miss Maria Magnell, Hartford; Miss Mildred Lamb, Middletown; Miss McNierney, Wethersfield; Mrs. Case, Baltic; Mrs. Perkins, New London, Mrs. J. Conway, Baltic; Mrs. A. Gordon, Springfield, Mass., Mrs. F. Gauthier, Hanover.

A large number of clergy from Connecticut and out of the state honored the services with their presence.

MISS DOROTHEA C. TUCKER PLAYS CATHEDRAL ORGAN

A number of friends of Miss Dorothea Carrier Tucker, of School street, attended the mission services at St. Patrick's church, Wednesday evening having learned that the young musician was to be given an opportunity of playing the great organ. Miss Tucker a pupil of Prof. Frank L. Farrell, played with great confidence, giving first the "Hymn of the Niens," by Lefebure —Wely, having also the recessional, the Majestic Marche Pontificale, (J. Lemmens.) Although a very young girl, Miss Tucker is considered a musician of talent and great promise. Many from the immense congregation of women at the service waited to congratulate her and praise her playing.

Admits Indecent Exposure.

After pleading guilty in the city court Tuesday morning to a charge of indecent exposure, Harvey M. Turner of No. 56 Washington street, voluntarily offered to go to the Norwich State Hospital for observation. For some time the police department has received reports of such acts on Washington street, as well as elsewhere in the city, and on Monday evening Turner was caught in the act. He was arrested and taken to police headquarters. One man was fined and paid $5 and costs for intoxication. Judge Arthur F. Libby then adjourned the regular session of the city court.

Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis, at an additional session of the court, reopened the case of Wasil Ludiga who has been out on bonds of $300 on a charge of operating a machine while under the influence of liquor. As Ludiga had failed to put in an appearance the bond of $300 put up by Morris Markoff, proprietor of the Thames Square garage, was called.

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

A well attended meeting of White Cross Council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, was held Tuesday evening at the K. of C. home on Broadway. The newly elected officers of the council were installed by District Deputy John F. Hennon of Jewett City. Plans were made for the observance of Armistice Day and committees were appointed for the coming year by Grand Knight M. Frank Leonard.

Interesting remarks were made by District Deputy Hennon and following the meeting a smoker was held during which an excellent entertainment program was given.

STERLING

On Monday evening the Wright Chapel hall was a place of much merry making when about forty friends of Miss Mildred Boyle gathered there to shower her a shower in honor of her approaching marriage. The following program was pleasingly rendered:

Solo, At Dawning, I Love You, Ethel Burton, accompanied by C. Novack on piano and F. Vere on violin; solos, When God Gave Me You, A Paradise for Two, from the opera "Maid of the Mountain," Emily Davies, accompanied by E. Belknap; duet, Kiss Me Again, F. Vere and C. Novack; reading, E. Belknap; solo, Memory Lane and Pinin' Just for You, E. Burton accompanied by F. Vere on violin and C. Novack on piano.

At the close of the program Miss Boyle was requested to wind a ball of string and after much difficulty she arrived at a basket of gifts which had been cleverly concealed. After opening the various packages she expressed her appreciation in a very pleasing manner. There were some nice gifts consisting of silver, glass, linen and other useful articles. Dainty refreshments were served after which singing and dancing were enjoyed by all who expressed their best wishes for a bright and happy future for the bride-to-be.

FIRE PREVENTION MAKES SUBJECT FOR NORWICH ROTARY MEETING

Several fine talks on Fire Prevention and a practical demonstration of Norwich's fire fighting equipment featured the joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions' Clubs of Norwich Wednesday noon. This was in observance of National Fire Prevention week which is being observed in all cities throughout the country this week. The demonstration which followed the meeting was arranged by Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton, who is recognized as an authority on fire-fighting throughout the country.

The meeting was opened by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell with the singing of America and the asking of grace by Rev. A. H. Abbott. President Campbell welcomed the members of the Lions club, members of the council and selectmen and other city fathers. He called on President George A. Finn of the Lion's club and President George responded briefly. Alex McNicol was song leader and there were the usual solos and chorus singing. After a brief business session at which Dr. R. R. Agnew, chairman of Boys work committee reported two cases of crippled children and the matter was referred to the directors. President Campbell turned the meeting over to James L. Case. Mr. Case in introducing the subject of Fire Prevention said in part:

In common with thousands of other cities throughout the length and breadth of the United States, Norwich is conducting today, a "Fire Prevention Program." Its purpose is twofold. First: because of its educational value to the community, and second of its desire to secure on the part of every man, woman and child a greater endeavor to protect and conserve both life and property.

From records most carefully prepared by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the fire losses of the country in 1923 amounted to more than $500,000,000 and in addition thereto, nearly 15,000 lives were sacrificed in conflagrations of various characters.

The per capita loss in the United States far exceeds that of any other nation on the face of the earth, and it well behooves the American people at large, to pause long enough, not only to count the cost, but to endeavor to provide ways and means for checking this reckless loss of life and property.

It is, therefore, the purpose of this meeting to bring to your attention, as representative citizens of this community, a plain statement of facts and to appeal to you and to all others as well, to attempt to make the coming year, one of far less reckless extravagance and carelessness than ever before. For that particular purpose, and for that alone, the program of the day has been prepared.

A statement will be presented to you by the Assessors of the town, telling something of the property values which are subjected night and day, in season and out of season, to the terrible menace of fire. It will, I am sure, cause us all to think more clearly of the need of a consistent "Every Day Fire Prevention Program."

A further statement will be made as to the way in which our population is divided, and the particular hazards which are exposed in Norwich at the present time.

The Community's Needs' will also be submitted for your consideration as one of our most expert fire and life insurance agents, and the conclusion will be presented by Chief Stanton of our Fire Department, who will tell us in a practical way, what we are doing, as a community, to protect the lives and property of our citizens. And, may I, at this time, again express to the Chief the appreciation which I know we all feel, for the manner in which he has conducted the affairs of our department for nearly a quarter of a century. I am almost willing to make the statement, that, because of his work in Norwich, and the results he has accomplished, he is much better known throughout the state and nation, than he is within our midst.

The services he has so efficiently rendered to the cause, have been recognized and rewarded by National officials and National Organizations. I have been told by fire prevention experts, in various sections of the country that Norwich ought to consider itself most fortunate in being able to command the services of such an official as is Chief Stanton. Long may he live, and long continue to direct the affairs of our department.

There are in the world today, two classes of people: Those who care, and those who don't.

If by any manner of means this program can so influence some who do not care, so as to compel them to care, our labors shall not have been in vain.

Such an object is worthy; such a need is very great; and the consummation of such a desire is an ideal worthy of the cooperation of every intelligent, home-loving citizen.

Property Values at Risk

Mr. Case introduced Arad R. Manning, a member of the board of assessors, who gave some interesting figures relative to the taxable value of property in Norwich. Mr. Manning presented the following:

The total grand list of the town and city of Norwich, said Assessor Manning, is $28,102,461, of which $6,623,629 is exempt. This leaves $21,478,832 taxable property in the town, of this $16,262,519 being in the city. Nearly all of the exempt property is in the city. There is in the town $979,959 assessed value which is not a fire risk, consisting of 3039 building lots values at $393,335, 12,896 acres of land valued at $546,773 and $39,851 of cash. Of this $979,959 total $440,473 is in the city.

The principal items of the grand list are made up as follows: 4450 dwelling houses in the city valued at $6,498,990. In the town outside of the city are 498 houses valued at $2,041,105. There are 558 barns and garages in the city with a value of $186,515 and 262 in the town outside the city valued at $92,320. There are 336 buildings in the city used for stores valued at $3,440,052 with 183 in town outside valued at $3,246,857. The apparent inconsistency of these figures is explained by the fact that 115 of these buildings are exempt from tax, being owned by the federal and state government, the city and town of Norwich and the several societies exempt from taxation. The value of buildings used for manufacturing in the city is $2,905,660; those in the town outside the city $3,315,340. The balance of the list is made up of automobiles, stocks of merchants and manufacturing plants. It would be of interest to know what the insured value of these items is.

At the conclusion of Mr. Manning's talk Mr. Case remarked that the true value of the property was not shown by these figures and that at least 33 per cent. could be added and possibly 100 per cent. in some cases before a true value could be arrived at.

Assets of the Community

Mr. Case then introduced President George A. Finn of the Lion's club who spoke on "The Distribution of our Local Assets." He said in part:

First—Norwich is a city of 30,000 people, plus.

Second—They are located in the several districts of the town; in the city proper; in the West Side; in Norwich Town; in Preston; in Greeneville; in Taftville; in Occum; in Yantic; in Fitchville.

Third—A large proportion of them are to be found each day in stores, offices, mercantile and manufacturing properties, conducting their many and varied business transactions. By night they occupy various homes, boarding houses and hotels in the community.

Fourth—There are within the limits of the town, 25 different school buildings, with an approximate enrollment of 6000 school children of various ages.

Fifth—There are 22 churches, four theatres and many public buildings and halls, all occupied a certain portion of the time.

Sixth—All of those people need constant, dependable fire protection.

Seventh—They represent the wealth and man power of the city and town of Norwich.

Eighth—They are the physical and material assets of the community.

Ninth—Therefore, it is essential that each and every citizen should cooperate with the authorities in every possible way, to secure the adequate projection of our material assets and the prevention of careless and unnecessary conflagrations.

Fire Prevention

As the next speaker Chairman Case introduced Rev. Alexander H. Abbott who gave a very interesting talk on fire prevention. Rev. Mr. Abbott in opening his remarks said that 500 years before Christ there were two philosophers, one Democritus, "the laughing philosopher" and the other Heraclitus, "the weeping philosopher." The former regarded everything through a rosy haze but Heraclitus considered things and wept. If he were here today we would be inclined to remark "how do you get that way?" He pondered over the most essential thing in man's existence and came to the conclusion that it was fire and he wept. Heraclitus saw the effect of fire when not properly controlled. Others see fire and think it beautiful not counting the cost when it gets beyond control. I was in Maine several summers ago and was impressed by the beautiful sight of the fire-weed, with its brilliant flaming colors. I asked about it and found that some time before a forest fire had swept through the woods and the brilliant flower was the result, the beauty coming after the disaster. In Albany in 1911 there was the big conflagration that destroyed part of the capital and the state library. This fire blotted out records of untold prize and now there is a beautiful structure, but little do people realize when they regard this beauty the great loss that was incurred in the first place.

Prevention, said Rev. Abbott, means hindering the progress or breaking out. But if we look into the derivation of the word we find it means "to go before." It is in this last sense that we should consider Fire Prevention. Another word that goes when speaking of Fire Prevention is "Cooperation". Not merely cooperation between individuals but between individuals but between individuals and things. Everything takes on an animate spirit at one time or another. The automobile, an inanimate thing, is a harmless and well behaved thing when there is cooperation between the driver and the machine but let there be lack of harmony and the machine piles up off the road with more or less damaging results. Harmony between the individual and the trees in the forest is productive of beauty. A new sense of beauty comes when there is harmony but let there be indifference or discord and the results are dire. A thing can be abused and the Divine Architect of the Universe never intended that we should abuse the inanimate things of the world and let us urge the cooperation of individuals with things that benefit the community.

Norwich Conditions

After Rev. Abbott's talk Chief Howard L. Stanton of the local fire department was called upon to give his views on the fire situation in Norwich. The chief said: Norwich is a city of shingled roofs which make it more of a fire hazard. We are seeking the abolishment of the shingled roof especially in the business districts and also in the residential sections as much as possible. Every building should be roofed with some non-combustible material and when a man shingles his roof he should be made to put some such roofing and in a few years all buildings would have fire-proof roofs. Fire prevention means little to the city of Norwich for every day is fire prevention day here and the department and others are always on the job. It has been this way for many years and this is really the cause of so small a fire loss. I worked under a chief a number of years ago who preached fire prevention continually and even went so far as to compel people to get rid of faulty stoves and if they did not he threw them into the street. This feeling of fire prevention has always been the end and aim of the Norwich department and today there isn't a city in New England with as clean a business district as Norwich. We must admit however that while we have a number of good pieces of fire-fighting apparatus the water pressure in some places in the city is not what it should be especially outside the city limits and on the hills.

Speaking of fires Chief Stanton said that 90 per cent. of the fires in Norwich are do to carelessness and he urged that men be careful with cigarettes, matches and cigars and that the women be sure the electric flat is turned off when they leave the room. Everyone needs to be on the alert. Here Chief Stanton paid tribute to the men of his department saying that nowhere in New England or in the country in fact was there a more willing and better crew of fire-fighters than right here in Norwich. They are always willing and are continuously on the job as we have the continuous system here. He predicted that the day was coming when Norwich would have the two platoon system which would give the men a little time with their families at home.

We want better water pressure in Norwich for one thing and we must urge and compel people to be careful in their use of fire.

At this point Chief Stanton was notified that there was a fire at the United Congregational church and the meeting broke up to adjourn to Union square where a most satisfactory demonstration of Norwich's fire-fighting apparatus was given.

EXPECTING 6,000 FOR ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

The general committee which has in charge the arrangements for the dedication of the war memorial tablet, on Chelsea parade, erected in honor of those who served in the World war, from Norwich, and which will be dedicated on Armistice day, Tuesday, November 11th, held a meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms Tuesday evening.

Chairman H. M. Lerou, presided at the meeting which was devoted largely to hearing reports of the various committees which have been in charge of the details of the affair, and the great public interest which is being manifested indicates that the event will be one of the biggest celebrations ever held in Norwich.

The report of Arthur E. Story, chairman of the parade committee, aroused the greatest enthusiasm. Eighty-four invitations had been sent to the civic and fraternal organizations of Norwich and nearby places and already a number of acceptances had been received. A communication from Major H. C. Allen, commander of the 11th Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Wright, stated that it would be a great pleasure to participate in the parade and that they would send two companies of troops, totalling about 150 officers and men, accompanied by a band. The commander at the Submarine base has promised to send sailors and marines and altogether it looks now as though there would be at least 5,000 to 6,000 men in line on this occasion.

The general committees voted to extend a special invitation to the two local companies, Battery B and the Combat Train, it having been stated that they were considering going to Stamford on that day, to take part in an Armistice day parade, which invitation had been taken for the dedication ceremonies in Norwich. Inasmuch as the two companies are largely interested in this memorial, the names of many of them being inscribed thereon, it was felt by the committee that in all probability the members of the two companies would prefer to take part in the ceremonies at home if they received an invitation from the general committee.

It was reported that the town had appropriated $1,000 and the court of common council of the city have voted $500 toward defraying the expenses of the celebration. It is further proposed to solicit public subscriptions as additional funds will be needed to provide for the hiring of bands and the entertainment of the various military organizations, civic and fraternal orders that will be the guests of the city on that occasion. George A. Finn was elected treasurer of the committee and the work of soliciting will be in charge of a committee of which he is chairman.

At the conclusion of the business session, Chairman H. M. Lerou of the general committee, expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the program that is being made, and the splendid spirit of cooperation that is being manifested throughout the community, and stated that everything pointed to a celebration that would be a credit to the city and a fitting tribute to the World war veterans.

Are You a Tired Out Housewife?

Many people do not realize that the most exhausting of all work is housework and the care of children. Many a woman who should be in the prime of life finds her strength gone, her nerves unstrung and is weak, worn out and run down with pale, thin, watery blood from the strain of housework.

In such cases, what you need is something to put more iron into your blood. Nuxated Iron contains iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and like the iron in your blood. You will be astonished at how much better you feel often in even a few days.

Try taking Nuxated Iron for two weeks, and you will see color come back to your lips and cheeks, you will not be so easily upset by trifles, and best of all, you will find that you have new strength and energy and endurance for your daily tasks. At all good druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

NEGLECTFUL CHILDREN THEME OF MISSIONARY'S SERMON

Heading what one may call the second table of the law, God Himself as written the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother," indicating its importance, said Rev. Father O'Loughlin, one of the three Holy Ghost fathers giving a mission at St. Patrick's church, addressing the large congregation assembled Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, for the fourth day of the women's week. It would seem that such an admonition would be scarcely necessary—that natural instinct would move children to love and respect the parents, who, next to God are responsible for giving them life. But disobedient and negligent children have been in the past and are in the present.' This, although it is the duty of all children enjoined by God's command, to love, honor and respect, and while they are under the parents' roof, to obey them as well.

The preacher cited instances which had come under his observation in which children have failed wofully in this obligation. A man who had worked hard all his life, bringing up a large family of children, three of whom at least, had good homes, came to the mission house to ask the fathers if there were not some home to which he could go. It was an example of the common condition—"father's in the way" "mother's in the way." Finally the Little Sisters of the Poor had to take the aged man, care for him, keep him comfortable, do for him as though he were their own father, because his ungrateful offspring shirked the obligation. Often because father does not use good grammar, or because mother is not up in social usages, their children will act positively ashamed of the parents. The missionary had only the strongest terms of censure for such unfilial conduct. Such children—so often what they are through the sacrifices of their parents—can never hope for God's blessing, he declared with emphasis.

Often children turn out unworthy, also because their parents have indulged them unwisely. The lesson of the brief instruction was the importance of beginning early to teach children that their one aim in life should be not so much to advance socially, as to become true children of God. If they attain to this, they will never fail to be loving, respectful, obedient children to their parents, growing more tender and devoted as father or mother advances in years, proving their affection by increasing solicitude, by constant care and tender ministrations.'

The sermon Monday evening was by Father O'Loughlin also and was a most impressive discourse on Death and the importance of being ever prepared for any sudden summons to go before one's eternal Judge.

Already the fruits of the mission sermons are manifest in the increasing number of penitents receiving Holy Communion at the morning masses at 5, 7 and 8 o'clock, following confession. The parish children are entering ardently into the devotions of their own special mission, the concluding exercises of which will be held this (Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN HEAR MISSIONS PRESIDENT

Mrs. Franklin H. Warner of White Plains, N. Y., president of the Woman's Board of Missions, was the speaker Tuesday afternoon at the meeting of the missions department of the Women's League of the United Congregational church, which was held at the Community house. Mrs. W. H. Dawley, the department chairman, presided, and representatives from the women's societies of the other churches were in attendance.

Miss Abbie G. Willard of Colchester, president of the Eastern Connecticut branch, conducted the devotional exercises which opened the meeting, and Mrs. Warner spoke of the conditions which she had seen in trips to India, China and Japan, which made it necessary to send the gospel to the lands.

Sandwiches and tea were served by Charitable Circle of the King's Daughters at the close of the meeting.

NORWICH GIRL SOUGHT FOR LOOTING HOUSE

The police of New London and Norwich are seeking the whereabouts of Doris Bogue, whose home is at East Great Plain and who is an escaped patient from the Norwich State Hospital. It is alleged that the girl on Monday looted a rooming house on Tilley street, New London, where she was staying. The girl who was committed to the Norwich state hospital recently for the second time, having been paroled some time ago, disappeared from there during the early part of last week.

The day after her disappearance from the institution she appeared at her mother's home at East Great Plain. Mrs. Bogue, it is said, was afraid to notify the authorities while the girl was in the house. The girl packed a suit case and left the house. Mrs. Bogue then notified the police, stating that Doris had boarded a West Side car bound for Franklin square. Officer Charles Smith was detailed to meet the car at the square but the girl was not on it. He learned from the trolley crew that she had boarded the car at Dunham street and got off at Mt. Pleasant street, thus making a good getaway.

She turned up in New London and rented a room at the Tilley street house, giving a false identity and referred to residents of New London for references. During the absence of a resident of the house Monday the young woman is said to have made a clean sweep of the house, taking with her many articles, some of which are very costly. The missing articles are as follows:

Hamilton gold watch, gray vest, chain and knife, charm, gray canton crepe skirt, black satin dress, blue flannel dress, blue gray coat, green and white sweater, white gold watch, Nile green evening gown and a dressing gown.

The New London police investigating the case learned that several days prior to taking the room at the Tilley street house she stayed at a hotel, leaving an unpaid bill of $35. While there it is understood, she registered as Mrs. Keeney. At the Tilley street house she gave her name as Doris Bogue of Norwich. She is about five feet in height, with her hair Dutch cut and looks about 20 years old, but is between 16 and 17.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS ATTEND TRAINING SCHOOL

The first session of the Norwich Training school for Sunday school workers which was held Tuesday evening at the church school room of the United Congregational church, had an attendance of close to 100 for whom a profitable evening was provided by the course of instruction.

Prof. A. J. Myers of Hartford conducted two periods, one upon The Old Testiment A Living Voice, the other upon The Teacher's Study of the Life of Christ. The pupil and the teacher were the topic of Wallace I. Woodin general secretary of the Connecticut Sunday school association, who spoke specially of physical activity in relation to the pupil and of the teacher's preparation.

CROSS-COUNTRY HONEYMOON TRIP OF 4,811 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kingsley of Plainfield, who left here July 16, had a unique honeymoon trip to the Pacific coast by motorcycle with sidecar arriving in San Francisco September 8 and having covered 4,811 miles cross country.

Their Harley-Davidson machine was equipped with the leak proof, self-seal inner tubes, manufactured by the H. H. Allyn Rubber corporation of this city and in every large city they had the mayor or some city official drive a nail, wedge, screw or blade into one of the tubes.

The test proved very successful insamuch as the tubes arrived in San Francisco with 68 holes in them, but still intact and serviceable. From an advertising standpoint the trip was also very successful as numerous orders and inquiries have been received at the local factory as result of Mr. Kingsley's demonstration. He is at the present time connected with the Allyn Pacific Co. in the capacity of demonstrator.

DEFENSE FOR GILPATRIC TO BE PREPARED ON 25 COUNTS

Defaulting Cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam Pleaded Guilty to 14 of 39 Counts in United States District Court in New Haven—Trial Deferred Until October 30 to Give Counsel For the Accused Opportunity to Prepare Defense.

New Haven, Oct. 9—G. Harold Gilpatric, treasurer of Connecticut for more than four years, and for many years cashier of the Fist National Bank of Putnam, was led into the United States district court this afternoon to listen to an indictment read which charged him in 39 counts with misuse of the bank's funds. To fourteen of these counts he entered a plea of "guilty." His attorney, William A. King, of Willimantic, asked the court for opportunity to prepare a defense against the 25 other counts to which a plea of "not guilty" had been entered, "because evidence which Gilpatric should have and which might be essential to prove that he was not guilty as charged," was in the hands of the federal receiver of the bank.

Assistant United States Attorney George Cohen was desirous of a two weeks' delay in proceeding to trial but Mr. King wished at least a month and Judge Edwin S. Thomas allowed three weeks or until October 30. On that date or before the district attorney's office and the counsel for the defense may have opportunity to inform the court whether or not the case is ready for trial.

Gilpatric was carefully led into the court room by United States Marshal Jacob Walter. He was accompanied by his brother, Raymond, of New Britain, who had brought him from Putnam by machine. A woman also accompanied Gilpatric and sat beside him in the court room.

A jury case had to be finished so the proceedings were delayed. Former Judge of the Superior court William H. Williams, of Derby, had a seat beside Judge Thomas. There were many in the room. Major John Buckley, a newly appointed United States attorney was also present and before the Gilpatric case was called was formally introduced to Judge Thomas by Marshal Walter.

The only part Mr. Buckley had in the proceedings was to briefly address the court after Mr. King had made a plea for a month's interval, in which he spoke of his friendship with Gilpatric but pointed out that the district attorney's office had a duty to perform in prosecuting the case. He thought that sufficient time should be given so that both his office and the defense might be able to prepare their sides. He made no suggestion. Mr. Buckley had left the matter in the hands of Mr. Cohen as the latter was familiar with the details.

Gilpatric had been brought to the federal building some time before the afternoon session of the court was to open. Photographers who were outside the building, doors were unable to see him. When court re-opened in the afternoon the case which was being tried was sent to the jury with the charge of Judge Thomas. There was a short delay and then Mr. Cohen came in with the indictment and Gilpatric's case was called. The accused had his eyes bandaged and over the bandages he wore opal colored, horn rimmed glasses. He carried a cane. Marshal Walter is a long time friend and he led in Gilpatric and seated him at the long table in the center of the court room. Others of the party sat close beside him. Mr. Cohen addressed the court saying that Gilpatrick was present to plead to the indictment. Mr. King stood close by with a sheet of paper on which were entries as to the counts. Mr. Cohen did not read the document but simply referred to each count by number and Mr. King entered the plea for the defendant. The plea of "guilty" was to the first, fourth, eighth, twelfth, fifteenth, nineteenth, twenty first, twenty third twenty fourth, twenty fifth, twenty seventh, thirty sevenh, thirty eighth, and thirty ninth counts, fourteen in all.

Mr. Cohen then asked for a two-weeks' delay before proceeding to try the accused on the counts to which a plea of "not guilty" had been entered. Mr. King objected saying that it was not the intention of the defense to set up delay or to throw any obstacle in the way of early disposal of the case, but he said with the "myriad" of charges it was only reasonable for the defense to ask that it have time enough to prepare its defense. He said that he was not willing to admit that Gilpatric was guilty of the things charged in the indictment, that evidence which it needs has not been available and time was needed to secure that evidence. He said that Raymond Gilpatric wished to make a statement bearing on the need for a month's delay, at least.

Raymond Gilpatric addressed the court, and said that when the bank trouble came he turned over to the federal receiver all his brother's papers and all the documents that could be found among his brother's effects in order to assist that official in his investigation. He said that it was desired that needed evidence he obtained from the receiver. He pointed out that one of the counts in the indictment charged his brother with having disposed of $200,000 of land bank bonds while he had been informed only this week that those bonds were still in the bank's possession. He said it may be that many other counts could not be supported by the district attorney's office and the defense wanted the opportunity to prove it. He, himself, was desirous of having the case proceed as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Cohen again asked that the interval be limited to a fortnight and Mr. King again spoke and then Major Buckley, the latter evidently being willing that the time should be extended.

There was further discussion between Mr. King and Mr. Cohen and then Judge Thomas made the postponement three weeks.

Gilpatric was led out of the room and the others in the party followed.

The counts in the indictment to which Gilpatrick pleaded guilty are: First, $20,000 bonds; fourth $8,000; eighth, Liberty bonds, $56,000; twelfth, Liberty bonds $40,000; fifteenth, $14,250; nineteenth, $5,000; twenty first, $18,000; twenty third, $9,393; twenty fourth, $4,500; twenty fifth, $8,500; twenty seventh, $12,000; thirty seventh, $4,000; thirty eighth, $10,000; thirty ninth, $1,130.77. This is a total of $219,773.77.

The counts to which the defendant pleaded not guilty follow:

Second count $19,000; third count, sixty seven shares of the Putnam Foundry and Machine company, $10,000; fifth count, Liberty bonds, $7,000; sixth count, $7,060; seventh count, Liberty bonds, $8,000; ninth count, $3,319.66; tenth count, $8,305.39; eleventh count, $12,000; thirteenth count, $39,000; fourteenth count $15000; sixteenth count, $4,000; seventeenth count, Liberty bonds, $1,050; eighteenth count, Liberty bonds, $1,000; twentieth count, Liberty bonds $400; twenty-second count, $4,000; twenty sixth count, $20,000; twenty eighth count, Liberty bonds, $21,600; twenty ninth count, $10,000; thirtieth count, $12,000; thirty first count, $24,000; thirty second count, $3,000; thirty third count, $8,399; thirty fourth count, $1,000; thirty fifth count, $3,500; thirty sixth count $1,666.83.

ENGLISH ELECTIONS HAVE BEEN SET FOR OCTOBER 29

London, Oct. 9—(By the A. P.)—Events following the government's defeat last night have moved with quite unusual expedition. The prime minister early today obtained royal assent to the dissolution of parliament, which was prorogued with the usual formalities tonight, and immediately dissolved by the king's proclamation, the privy council for these formalities meeting at the unusual hour of seven o'clock in the evening. The king, as always, omitted no courtesy in meeting the labor premier's wishes, despite the fact that the unaccustomed haste to get the formalities provided for by the constitution through, is somewhat of a novelty.

Premier MacDonald had two reasons for advancing the date of the elections as much as possible—the first a desire to avoid inconvenience to the community and public interests generally, and the second the necessity of holding the general elections on a date which would not conflict with the English municipal elections, scheduled for November 1.

Mr. Macdonald and his parties conceive themselves as on a wave of popularity and therefore considered it advisable to hasten to the elections to the utmost.

The date has been fixed for Wednesday, October 29, and this choice was only possible through the house of lords adopting the Irish bill unamended.

GRAVE CHARGE MADE AGAINST SENATOR WHEELER

Burlington, Iowa, Oct. 9 (By the A. P.)—An alleged affidavit by A. L. Fink, of Buffalo, N. Y., describing Fink's version of how Senator Burton K. Wheeler induced Roxie Stinson to testify against Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, was read tonight by Daniel F. Steck, democratic candidate for United States senator, in a campaign speech. Mr. Steck charged that his republican opponent, Senator Smith W. Brookhart, assisted in obtaining Fink's services to induce Miss Stinson to testify. Steck said he has started petitions to Attorney General Stone requesting an investigation of the Daugherty investigation committee.

The affidavit said that Fink, in return for assistance in the senate investigation, was promised the office of internal revenue collector in Buffalo and that his attorney, Henry Stern, of Buffalo, was promised a federal judgeship in New York, the affidavit said these promises were made by Senator Wheeler. It asserted that Wheeler promised Miss Stinson opportunity for personal gain on the New York stock market if she would testify.

$1,849,090 INCOME TAX CLAIM AGAINST BANKRUPT BROKER

Boston, Oct. 9—Claims for income tax totalling $1,849,090 against George F. Redmond, treasurer of the bankrupt brokerage firm of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc., were filed in federal district court today by Malcolm E. Nichols, collector of international revenue. The claims against Redmond personally a previous claim for nearly $300,000 having been filed against the firm.

Redmond is at present in jail where he has been for several months on a contempt commitment. He is to be sentenced next week on a conviction in federal court for using the mails in a scheme to defraud. The contempt commitment was based on evidence given by Redmond regarding his financial affairs.

The claims filed today include income tax penalties for 1920, 1921 and 1922. Collector Higholas informed the trustees of the Redmond firm that the government is a preferred creditor and that if any other claim is paid before the tax claims are settled they would be held responsible. The assets of the company are estimated at $350,000.

FIVE FIREMEN INJURED AT FIRE IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 9.—Five firemen and a seven-year-old boy were seriously injured late today when a wall collapsed during a fire at the plant of the Buchman Manufacturing company, pillow makers. A number of other persons suffered minor injuries.

The total loss was estimated by fire department officials at $150,000.

Autos Blockade Fire Apparatus

Fire Chiefs Are Considering Means to Forestall Growing Hazard.

Boston, Oct. 9.—Automobilists get to a fire nowadays before the firemen, and the Massachusetts Fire Chiefs club today called a meeting for next Wednesday to consider means of getting close enough to fires to fight them.

"If the fire department doesn't get to the scene first, and it's often impossible to do so, it's out of luck, or the man whose place is burning is, because the automobiles jam the roads as soon as an alarm is rung," one of the fire chiefs said. A house burned down in Westwood a few weeks ago while a congestion of automobiles kept the apparatus a quarter mile away. Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin suggested that towns pass ordinances requiring all vehicles to stop for three to five minutes after an alarm is sounded, and this will be considered by the chiefs.

ST. LOUIS WINS NEXT RED CROSS CONVENTION

Washington, Oct. 9.—After a heated discussion lasting nearly an hour, St. Louis was chosen for the 1925 Red Cross convention by the chapter delegates in annual convention here. This decision reversed the recommendation of the committee on rules and organization, which recommended to the delegates a motion to hold the next convention in Washington as usual.

Far western and middle western delegates vigorously opposed the motion on the ground that the Red Cross in those states was suffering from apparent neglect from headquarters. This, the state, more than neutralized the good effects of the annual speech of the president of the United States, which, they contended, was the only real advantage of holding the convention in the capital.

The official attendance to the convention was given, in a report by the committee on credentials, as 453 delegates and 158 visitors.

A number of resolutions were adopted, including approval of co-operation with the Veterans' bureau for the spiritual and physical relief of veterans, appreciation of President Coolidge's activities as honorary president of the society, and approval of the suggestion of placing a tribute on the tomb of President Wilson.

CAPT. FORD ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF PIRACY

Montreal, Oct. 9.—Capt. Samuel C. Ford, New England shipmaster, was acquitted of the charge of piracy on the high seas, after two hours' deliberation, by a jury in the court of king's bench this afternoon.

Captain Ford was accused of having seized the liquor cargo aboard the ship Lutzen off Rum Row, New York, in October, 1923, after placing in irons the supercargoes, Jack Morris of Montreal and a Winnipeg lawyer named Isaacs. The prosecution had alleged that he had sold the cargo for between $80,000 and $100,000.

The Lutzen, which had sailed from St. John, N. B., was taken from Rum Row to Bermuda and, according to the prosecution, there one of the supercargoes had reported "everything O. K." because they had been cowed by Ford's threats. The owners of the Lutzen filed a claim shortly after with Lloyds for payment of insurance on the cargo, but this claim has not yet been met.

MAY FURNISH $20,000 BOND FOR THE RELEASE OF M'NAMARA

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9.—Bond of $20,000 set for the release of John J. McNamara, who served nine years of a fifteen yera sentence imposed in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building in 1920, and who was indicted today by the Marion grand jury on charges of blackmail, is expected to be furnished by local No. 22, Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' union, of which he is business agent. McNamara is held in the county jail.

The indictments, containing four counts, charge that McNamara, by intimidation and threats, attempted to obtain employment for union iron workers on various building projects in this city. They followed several investigations into acts of vandalism at the new Elks' clubhouse and other buildings under construction.

MARTIN BOMBERS ARE TO MAKE FLIGHT TO HARTFORD

Mitchel Field, N .Y., Oct. 9—With Hartford, Conn., as the objective, a group of nine heavy Martin bombers are scheduled to land here tomorrow night at 9:30 o'clock, after a night flight from Langley Field, Va. Led by Major John H. Pirie, the army air service men will, for the first time, attempt to execute a maneuver involving the moving of a base of attack from one point to another during night hours.

Leaving the present base at Langley field just after sundown, the fliers plan to advance their base to this station. This accomplished, the bombers will take off for Hartford at sunrise.

9,000 BOTTLES OF BEER SEIZED AND DESTROYED

St. Albans, Vt., Oct. 9.—Nine thousand bottles of beer were seized and destroyed today by customs officials who held up a freight car billed as "Laths" and consigned to a firm in Somerville, Mass., from Sherbrooke, Quebec.

The shipment was billed to E. Prefontain and Brothers, Somerville, from the "Hemlock Lathe Company," Sherbrooke, Que.

SHENANDOAH FLYING OVER ROCKY MOUNTAINS

Aboard Shenandoah, Oct. 9.—The Shenandoah finished her journey above the plains of Texas tonight. The Pecos river was crossed at 7.50 and the long steady climb over the Rocky Mountains started. This is expected to be the severest test of the 9,000-mile cruise.

As it approached El Paso, and the Mexican border tonight, it was the opinion aboard the dirigible that Tucson, Ariz., would be reached around dawn tomorrow.

FROSTS HAVE REDUCED COUNTRY'S CORN CROP

Washington, Oct. 9.—Frosts played havoc with the country's corn crop during September, and today's forecast of production by the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture showed a loss of 54,000,000 bushels in the month with the present prospective production placed at 2,459,000,000 bushels, much of which will be of low grade.

The wheat crop's prospects were increased to the extent of 19,000,000 bushels, with the total crop now preliminarily estimated at 856,000,000 bushels, of which 589,000,000 is winter wheat. Spring wheat, the preliminary estimate shows, is an excellent crop with 266,000,000 bushels of which 93.4 per cent is of a high medium grade.

There is a large crop of oats, estimated at 1,509,000,000 bushels; a potato crop that is above average, with prospective production placed at 424,000,000 bushels, or 33,000,000 bushels more than last year; and a large cultivated hay crop of 95,100,000 tons, or about ten million tons above the average.

Tobacco production, estimated at 1,182,000,000 pounds, if 300,000,000 pounds below last year's crop and rice is below expectations, sweet potato, apple and cranberry production also are below last year.

NO INDICTMENT AGAINST SIR RICHARD SQUIRES

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 9.—A grand jury, investigating charges gainst Sir Richard Squires, former premier of Newfoundland, in connection with alleged irregularities in the course of his administration, returned no indictment tonight. The grand jury held that evidence in support of charges of larceny and of receiving money in the testimony of Mrs. Jean Harsant, formerly secretary to Squires, was insufficient to warrant finding a true bill.

The former premier was placed under arrest last April on charges of larceny which were the immediate outgrowth of the report of Crown Commissioner Hollis Walker. The Walker report sustained charges that Squires, while premier, received $22,000 from the funds of the government liquor control department which was paid into his account at the Bank of Nova Scotia instead of into the public treasury.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL ON TRIAL FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Torrington, Oct. 9.—The trial of Ira A. MRS. TELL GIVES DETAILS OF RELATIONS WITH BLAIR

Accused Woman Was a Relutant Witness in Her Own Defense on Charge of Manslaughter—Testified That During Their Quarrels Blair Often Flew Into a Rage and Broke Furniture and Tore Down Some of Her Pictures—Maintained That Just Prior to the Fatal Shot Blair Stood Over Her With an Axe in His Hand.

Middletown, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Johanna Tell, who confessed to District Attorney Albert Cohen of the Bronx last April that she had killed her employer Charles F. Blair, farmer, of Killingworth, took the stand in her own defense today in her trial in Middlesex superior court, charged with manslaughter. She was reluctant to testify and only consented to tell her story after her attorney had pleaded with her.

Mrs. Tell, under questions asked by her attorney, Judge Daniel Donahoe, went back to January of this year, telling of her relations with Blair afetr her return from New York. She said that Blair had chided her about dancing with another man in New York and stated that from then on they had had many quarrels. Blair asked her to secure a divorcefrom her husband, she testified, declaring that because of the manner in which he acted in New York she wanted nothing more to do with him.

During their quarrels, Mrs. Tell continued, Blair often flew into a rage, breaking the furniture and tearing down some of her pictures. A few days before Blair was killed, the witness continued, they had a serious quarrel, and on the morning of his death, according to her testimony, he threatened her, telling her that "this is your last day on earth." Blair asked her to give him the revolver his sister had sent to him, she said, but she refused, and then he again threatened her.

On the afternoon of the day of Blair's death, Mrs. Tell testified, he came into the house carrying an axe. In the meantime, she said, she had taken the revolver from a shelf and had hidden it in her sweater. Blair followed her upstairs, her story continued, and stood over her with the axe in his hand. She went to a table in the center of the room, she said, and stood on one side of it with Blair on the other. Here her story became vague. She said she heard the report of a gun and saw Blair fall to the floor. She did not say, however, that she had shot Blair.

Continuing her story, Mrs. Tell said that she saw the axe lying beside Blair and taking it in her hand she struck the body several times. She then dragged the body downstairs, she continued, and hid it in the cellar one night. Early the next day, she testified, she took the body out to the yard and buried it in a pit.

Mrs. Tell said she could not remember in what hand Blair held the axe. She indicated that she and Blair were standing but a few feet apart when the shot that killed him was fired. They were standing face to face at the time, she continued, but could not explain how the bullet took the course that it did. According to the testimony of doctors, the bullet entered Blair's head behind the right ear and its course was upward and backward to the top of the head.

Mrs. Tell said she did not say anything about the shooting before she left for New York, although she had talked with neighbors.

Before Mrs. Tell took the stand her daughter Lillian was called as a witness. She told of the relations between Blair and Mrs. Tell and of the quarrels that they had had. She was away at school at the time of the shooting, she said, and did not return until she had returned to New York.

Following Mrs. Tell's testimony court was adjourned until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

RAILROAD EXECUTIVES TO MEET IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 9.—The eastern president's conference, embracing executives of Class 1 railroads operating east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, will hold its first fall meeting next Thursday, in this city. While no program has been prepared, it is understood that one of the important questions to be discussed is the stabilization of railroad labor.

Suggestions have been made by some of the executives for the adoption of a method whereby the railroads would place orders for steel rails and other track equipment in the fall to furnish employment in the steel mills for men qualified for maintenance of any work on the railroads. Upon the completion of these orders early in the spring the men would be released so that they could be engaged by the railroads at approximately the same wage level.

Wall Street also heard today that a committee of eastern railroad executives would meet members of the interstate commerce commission at an informal conference Saturday for the purpose of discussing future consolidations in this district.

WAS STRANDED ON CRUISER ABOVE CANADIAN FALLS

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Frank Stewart of Cleveland, Ohio, stranded in his cabin cruiser "Osprey" in the rapids above the Canadian falls since Tuesday night, was taken off this afternoon and his craft pulled away from an impending plunge over the cataract.

Stewart, who said he was on his way from Cleveland to New York on a fishing trip and had mistaken the Niagara River channel for the barge canal in the dark, refused to divulge his name to rivermen who discovered his craft hanging in the rapids Wednesday and refused to leave his boat when warned of his danger from the falls.

BANKERS TO FINANCE THE TEXAS COTTON CROP

New York, Oct. 9—Financing of a large percentage of the cotton crop handled by the Texas farm bureau cotton association again will be undertaken by a banking group headed by the Seaboard National Bank of Goldman, Sachs and Company, by means of a revolving credit not to exceed $10,000,000 at any one time it was announced.

Banks in San Francisco, Chicago, Philadelphia, Providence, R. I., and Houston and Dallas, Texas, are members of the group.

The association which was financed last year in the same way, expects to handle more than 200,000 bales of this seasons' crop.

WATERBURY BOOKKEEPER DROWNED IN BANTAM LAKE

Torrington, Oct. 9—Walter T. Doyle, 24 years old, employed as a bookkeeper in Waterbury, was drowned late today at Bantam Lake, in the town of Litchfield. Doyle apparently had gone swimming. He went out in a boat and was seen swimming about the lake. Later he disappeared from sight. The bottom of the lake was dragged but on account of the rough water the body was not recovered. He was identified by a hunting license found in one of the pockets of his clothing which he left on the shore.

DIRIGIBLE ZR-3 READY FOR TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT

Fredrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 9—(By the A. P.)—The start of the ZR-3 on her trans-Atlantic flight from Fredrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J., has been fixed for Saturday morning, weather permitting, it was announced this evening.

HEARING DEMANDED ON "SLUSH FUND" CHARGE

Washington, Oct. 9.—An immediate meeting of the senate campaign contributions committee to hear Senator La Follette, independent presidential candidate, on his charges of republican "slush fund," was demanded today by James M. Good, former representative from Iowa and preconvention western campaign manager for President Coolidge.

Mr. Good made such a demand today at the White House after a brief conference with President Coolidge, in which he discussed political conditions in the west.

While several visitors were received today by the president, he did not discuss at any length the political situation otherwise. Nor was made any comment on the candidacy of Senator La Follette.

It was reported to the committee early this week the campaign fund was running low.

At noon Mr. Coolidge received delegates to the joint convention of the American Civic Association, the American Institute of Park Executives and the American Park Society, suggesting that they sponsor a movement, to provide accommodations for motor tourists, and lauding them for their work in providing recreation.

Declaring there was never a campaign carried on more economically than the one of the republican party this year, Mr. Good insisted that "Senator Borah, chairman of the committee, should call Senator La Follette before the contributions committee."

"The committee," he continued "should find out what Senator La Follette knows and inform the country of its findings."

ROUSING WELCOME FOR DAWES IN WYOMING

Casper, Wyo., Oct. 9 (By the A. P.) Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president, was given a rousing welcome today in Wyoming traveling through a section not visited by any presidential or vice presidential candidate in years.

Beginning the day with a rear-platform speech at Douglas, he was escorted into the town by a dozen Yellow cowboys firing revolvers and after his address was presented a cowboy hat by Lem Carmin, of "T D." ranch, winner of the roping championship at Cheyenne three years ago, and with an Indian pipe by members of the American Legion post. Mr. Dawes in return gave Carmin a cap and promised to send some of his own type of pipes to the legionnaires. An unscheduled stop was made at Glen Rock, where a couple of hundred people heard him attack the La Follette independent movement.

MODERNISM IN MUSIC BY BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Boston, Oct. 9.—Modernism in music will play a part in the programs of the Boston Symphony orchestra this season under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky, former leader of the Russian state orchestra, and the first piece of novel music will be played tomorrow in the form of a symphonic interpretation of the mechanics of a locomotive. "Pacific, 231," the piece is called, and is by Arthur Honegger, its author, expresses by percussion and wind instruments with occasional emphasis of tam-tam, drum, horns and trumpets against the counterpoint of a string choir, the big locomotive at rest, and in action. In the words of Honegger, whose piece was first played at Koussevitzky's concerts in Paris, "the music begins with the quiet breathing of the machine at rest. Then follow the straining start, the gathering speed, the progress from mood to mood, as a 300-ton hurtles through the dark night, racing 120 miles an hour."

WILLIMANTIC

S. Williams and Captain E. L. Averill; Tuesday, Oct. 21, Norwich, Col. Hiram Bingham and Senator Bert M. Fernald; Wednesday, Oct. 22, Willimantic, Col. Hiram Bingham, Congressman James P. Glynn and Senator Bert M. Fernald; Thursday, Oct. 30, Danielson, Mrs. Emily Spiers, Hon. Richard P. Freeman; Saturday, Nov. 1, Putnam, Congressman F. W. Dallinger; Plainfield, Central Village, Wauregan and Moosup, Hon. Norman E. Stevens and Senator J. H. Turnbull. Speakers for this section have not yet been assigned by the democratic state central committee.

Rev. William J. Dunn's Harvest Bazaar got under way Thursday evening in the new Ashford town building, Warrenville, with an attendance which surpassed even the most optimistic expectations. A delegation of members of San Jose Council No. 14, Knights of Columbus of this city, was present and took an active part in staging the affair. Nearly fifty Willimantic automobiles loaded with local people made the trip to attend the bazaar and it is indicated that three times that number will be present for the second night. The hall of the new building provided plenty of room for all. The B. P. O. E. band from this city, Chas. N. C. Wheeler, leading, rendered the dance music, furnishing its services gratis for the worthy cause, the proceeds going to Father Dunn's Warrenville parish.

Frank P. Fenton, chairman of the Windham town democratic committee, has issued a call for the party caucus to nominate candidates for representatives to the general assembly and justices of the peace to be held at the town hall here Monday evening.

After reading the story regarding the replacing of the copper cross on the spire of St. Joseph's church this week by Steeple Jimmy Mahoney of Northampton which also contained a statement that the late Thomas Ashton was the only local man to ever ascend the spire, Timothy Day, of Valley street laid claim to have performed the hazardous feat in years gone by. He produced a newspaper clipping dated Sept. 22, 1911, which told of his assisting Steeple Tom Fitzpatrick, then of this city, in replacing the cross for the purpose of re-gilding. At that time Mr. Day was a constable and also sexton of the church. He hoisted himself to the top of the spire in the climber's chair and from there Steeple Tom Fitzpatrick pulled himself over his shoulders to the cross where he posed for a few minutes for the benefit of a crowd of thrilled watchers. A cross of wood was placed on the spire, when the church was built 50 years ago. Later this cross became worn at the base and in a terrific wind storm in the spring of 1890 it went crashing down through the roof of the edifice. The present copper cross was placed in position May 30, 1890, 34 years ago.

According to Charles F. Curran, a local sport enthusiast who, with some thirty odd Thread Cityites witnessed some of the world series games at the Polo Grounds between the Giants and the Senators, Willimantic's representation in one accord swallowed defeat along with their favorite, Walter Johnson, in the fifth game of the series. It was apparent that by far the larger majority of the 54,000 fans assembled at the grounds had grounded all hope in seeing the "old master" come through with the laurels in his second and probably final opportunity to triumph in a world series. Johnson started off with a good display of ability but he appeared to falter and lose hope when Bentley hit a ball in the right field stands for a homer with a runner on base. Thirteen hits were taken from his delivery, but even this disappointing end of his eighteen years of valiant service with Washington failed to turn the heart of the mob and he was given a big hand as he started for the clubhouse. Included among the local fans who witnessed Johnson's turning point were: John P. McLaughlan, Dennis Haggerty, John F. Pickett, William H. Smith, P. J. Twomey, Michael Longo, John E. Adams, William L. Flynn, Lawrence Shea, George Casey, George F. Marrotte, John M. Ryan, Louis J. Flynn, James S. Donahue, Jr., Godfrey Johnson, Dr. Edward J. Ottenheimer, Frank P. Lombardo, Mr. and Mrs. George Parker, William Foran, Joseph Klasik, Aime Clouthier, Augustine Ash, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. George McGuire, Dr. Owen O'Neill, Daniel Leary and Charles F. Curran.

Windham High invades Killingly's stronghold in Danielson, Saturday afternoon with all confidence of securing another victory to add to its list for this and last year. The departure of Williams, heavyweight fullback, opens up a gap in Killingly's lineup which further weakens its fighting strength.

Miss Madge Rafferty of 75 Maple avenue, died at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam Wednesday night after an operation for appendicitis performed last Sunday. Miss Rafferty was born in New York, but had been a resident of this city the greater part of her life and a wide circle of friends here were shocked at the news of his death. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Katherine E. Pratt, Miss Agnes B. Rafferty, and two brothers, Frank P. Rafferty of this city and James Rafferty of New York.

The call for the republican Twenty-ninth senatorial district convention has been issued by A. Linn Weatherhead of this city, chairman of the committee, to be held at the town hall here Saturday, to place in nomination a candidate for the state senator of the district. John Ash of Pomfret, republican, is the present incumbent. On the same date and hour the Twenty-ninth district democratic delegates hold a convention in Plainfield for the same purpose. The call for the latter convention was issued by State Central Committeeman Valentine L. Murphy of this city. The towns that make up the Twenty-ninth district include Brooklyn, Canterbury, Chaplin, Hampton, Plainfield, Pomfret, Scotland, Sterling and Windham.

Five hundred and twenty applications to be made voters for the national and state election in November were received at the session of the board of registrars held this week. Selectmen Andrews, Ahern, and Larrabee and Town Clerk Fenton will have a busy time of it Saturday when they will administer the oath of citizenship to the applicants. If the expected two-thirds of the applicants receive the oath in addition the 257 new voters qualified for the town elections, the total number of new voters on the list will be 600, making the total list close to 6,400.

Dear Sirs

Please guard your hair

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I feel sorry to see men grow bald. It is easy to keep and to cultivate your hair and you owe it to yourselves and to me.

For many years I have sought and studied some of the world's greatest experts on hair. They all agree that hair health comes from a clean and healthy scalp. Combat the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots. Tone and stimulate the scalp. Then hair thrives, just as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

Those experts have always supplied me the best helps known to science. Each new and better help discovered has come to me at once. Now I have had all of these combined in a product I call my Hair Youth. I have placed it in drug and toilet counters at every woman's call. But men need it more than women, so this is written to urge men to learn how much it does.

I am no longer young. For 35 years I have been a stage star. But my hair today is thicker and finer than 20 years ago. I have never had falling hair or dandruff and never a touch of gray. Now I offer you in my Hair Youth every help which brought those results to me. I am well assured that they combine the greatest hair helps in existence.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is sold everywhere today. It cost 50c and $1 per bottle.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send with it something else to please you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

JEWETT CITY

Mrs. Charles T. Armstrong and Miss A. Idella Young entertained the members of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in their chapter room in Slater library, Wednesday afternoon. The business meeting was conducted by the regent, Mrs. H. E. Olsen. The chapter voted to send a box of materials to Ellis Island emigrants, detained on the island. A letter was read on International Relations by Mary L. Goodale, chairman of international relations committee, which gave a message from President Coolidge, who says "I welcome the woman's vote as a great instrument of mercy and a mighty agency for peace. I want every woman to vote and I urge each one to study well the different platforms put forth by various parties, and the candidates as well, and then cast their vote as a high moral obligation entrusted to patriotic, Christian women, not for one country alone but for the best interests of the whole wide world for which Christ, the Prince of Peace, gave His life. Thus our problem for international relations will be met and solved."

Miss Alice Brown read an excellent paper on Patriotic Songs and Their Origin.

The hostesses were assisted by Miss Beatrice Read in serving delicious refreshments.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tague of McClellan avenue, included their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Tague and sons Henry and Lloyd Tague, of Springfield who motored to Norwich Town for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Perry and Mr. and Mrs. William Tague were visitors in Middletown Sunday.

Men in the employ of the Norwich Gas and Electric Company, completed laying pipes last week, for the gas main through Town street. For many years residents on Upper Washington street and East Town street as well as a continuation through West Town street, have been supplied with gas. An extension down Town street as far as the residence of the late Congressman John Wait, was as far as the gas main came in that street for a number of years.

In the summer of 1923, the gas was brought through Town street, from the approach at Harland's corner and Washington street, to a point near the property of Miss Nellie McGarry, thus leaving a space of about 300 feet to where it ended in front of the Wait property at the other end. Since completing laying the pipes on Town St. the main pipe has been connected much to the satisfaction of the residents, who until now were unable to have gas service.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Friends here have received news of the death in Detroit, October 3, at the home of her nephew, Walter D. Spalding, of Mrs. Helen E. Wheaton, 80, many years ago a resident of this place. Burial was in the Rosemere cemetery at Detroit, October 6. Mrs. Wheaton had been making her home with her nephew for the past two years. She was a native of the town of Plainfield, a daughter of Lyman and Sarpina Spalding. Mrs. Wheaton was a sister of Mrs. George Saunders, who died two years ago and who also formerly lived here.

Fans who are following the games in the World's series with ayidity were keyed up to concert pitch late Thursday afternoon, followin. Washington's defeat of New York and the evening of the series with only one more game to play. Expression of viewpoints as to who will win today's game became so ardent that in many cases debates wound up with the posting of money to back opinions.

Plans are being made for the construction on the F. A. Davis property at railroad square of quarters for an automobile repair plant. An old dwelling on the property will figure in the work to be done, activity probably starting in the very near future.

Saturday of this week the authorized officials of the town will be in session at the offices of the selectmen to admit qualified persons as electors. On November 3 the officials will again be in session, but only for the purpose of admitting those who have become 21 by October 18. Saturday will be the last chance for all others to be admitted.

The southern representative of the mill supply houses of the N. H. Jacobs Mfg. Company, with their plant here, writes: The white goods mills of South Carolina seem to be much busier than the colored goods mills of North Carolina. It looks as if ginghams were dead. Watch Coolidge and Dawes in North Carolina this year.

The country for miles around has been stripped of what was an abundant crop of wild grapes. These grapes will largely go into the making of wines, with some devoted to sauces and jellies. Wild grapes have brought $1.50 a bushel in the local market this year, sales being mostly from pickers direct to consumers.

It may be perfectly all right, but to one not familiar with the inside operations of the oil business, it does seem a bit peculiar that kerosene should be selling at retail in Danielson just now for approximately the same price as gasoline which is retailing at 17 cents per gallon. Gasoline a highly refined product, is in a slump as to selling price as present, but kerosene prices stick right up there like the Washington baseball team.

Analysis of the results of this week's town election in Killingly furnished —viewed from a point of hopefulness —a bit of inspiration for those who love their home town and strive for its happiness and contentedness.

The unemotional election figures dispel numerous bogies—spectres of the early night. The figures demonstrate that Killingly and its voting people are among the wisest of those who are blessed with the privilege of exercising the right of franchise. They may err in an instance, but their hearts are in the right place. They have said, impressively, that a citizen who has served his town loyally and well through all the turmoil of the years shall continue to serve through this and possibly other years. Groups of citizens have not been inveigled by malignant sorcerers into assuming an attitude of class against class, or of heeding any call that would array one against the other on any other grounds than honest difference of political opinion. For that the people of Killingly are profoundly grateful.

Killingly has returned to office among others who have served it well, John A. Gilbert, as first selectman, in which position he has served for 24 years out of 26 as a member of the board. Few fully realize the responsibilities of filling the office of first selectman in the town of Killingly, nor the dividends that this town realizes out of the experience and business acumen of Mr. Gilbert. No one could be expected to realize it without being in intimate touch with the innumerable little matters, not to menion the big ones, that he must pass upon and decide. The office of first selectman is generally regarded as a choice plum from the spoils garden. It is nothing of the kind. It is a highly responsible position as head of a board that represents about 9,000 people. Mr. Gilbert has learned much and applies his knowledge well after 26 years in public office. Among hundreds of instances of what he does to save money for the town and never gets a word of commendation or more than beggerly compensation for the application of his general experience and native mechanical skill in Killingly's interest may be mentioned the matter of the replacement of a particular bridge in the town. It had to be replaced. Mr. Gilbert looked the situation over. Returning to the selectmen's office he made the rebuilding plans, at a cost to the town of $4 for the single day he spent upon it, and saved the town the 10 per cent. fee which would have amounted to $110.45, had a bridge engineer furnished the plans. The general public has not known of this, but it is a fact. Not ten men in the town of Killingly are qualified to have met that particular opportunity to have saved the town money. Likewise, Mr. Gilbert has been particularly successful in handling juvenile cases in which little people have been left as a burden of expense upon the city. He has saved the town thousands of dollars in handling such cases, and has been enabled to do it because of his experience in the office he has filled and a thorough knowledge of the town's legal rights in what are many times really complicated situations.

Killingly has said, too, that its town clerk and treasurer, Frank T. Preston, shall serve it for another year, voting for him, it so happens in 1924, merely as agent of the town deposit fund. Honesty and integrity is written in letters of gold over the records of every month of the 38 years that Mr. Preston has served Killingly in one of the town's most important offices. No amount of persiflage, on any ground, can distract the attention of the electorate from that splendid record.

In this particular year, Killingly, through all three of its political parties said in the caucuses that James R. Walsh, tax collector, should be renominated, that an official with a remarkable record of efficiency in his first year in office should not be deposed therefrom to suit the political whims of anyone. He was returned elected on Monday with an almost unanimous vote—only three electors registering

Chief John McFarland of the Danielson police force received congratulations Tuesday from many friends on the splendid showing he made in his candidacy for constable on the republican ticket at Monday's election. Chief McFarland received the remarkably fine total of 991 votes, indicative of the fact that many democrats aided the republicans in re-electing him to be a constable.

Charged with reckless driving, Uldric Paquin paid a fine of $25 and costs of $15.35 when presented before the town court. He preaded not guilty, but was found guilty. His difficulties with the court developed when his machine collided with one owned by Sessions Adams of Central Village, while the Adams car was parked off the traveled part of the highway in the eastern section of this town last Sunday.

At the first of the fall boxing exhibitions at the Casino arena here, Promoter Frank Barber said this week that he will have a great bill for the fans. Among other pairs they will see Frankie Bucco of Norwich and Baldy Pelky of Worcester, in action against each other. The two make a fine pair of go-getters. Another promising bout is that booked between two willing colored boxers—Joe Gans and Battling Gill. There will be other bouts.

Attending by radio the world's series baseball game in New York was a repeated diversion Thursday for fans who had the time.

PUTNAM

The superior court session opened in Putnam Thursday morning, Judge William H. Maltbie, presiding. The case was an appeal from a justice court and involves the sale of 3,000 bushels of potatoes. The parties to the action are Maurice Foster, a Moosup fruit dealer, and Irving W. Foote of Preston, a potato grower.

The parties entered into a contract to purchase and sell 3,000 bushels of potatoes, at a dollar a bushel. When all but 1300 bushels had been received the plaintiff claims that the defendant called him on the telephone and stated that he could sell the potatoes for plaintiff at 15 cents a bushel profit, and this would save the defendant carting the potatoes and to this the plaintiff agreed.

The plaintiff claims a profit of 15 cents a bushel on the 1300 bushels less $126, which the plaintiff admits he owes the defendant.

The defendant claimed that there was a falling market on potatoes and that plaintiff refused to accept the 1300 bushels and told the defendant to sell them for what he could get. The defendant in his counterclaim asks for damages of $400 for loss on the sale and for commission and expenses in selling the potatoes. The coure reserved decison.

The case of Marie Magnan executrix vs Mederice Magnan executrix, which was down for today (Friday) to follow the short calendar session, was withdrawn by the plaintiff. Mederice Magnan is the wife of the late Alderman Horonious who was killed in an automobile accident in May 1923, at which time Captain of Police Remie Delage lost his life.

Marie Magnan is the mother of the late Honorious Magnan and had in her possession after her husband's death two notes for $200 each made by the son to the father. These notes were made in 1911 and 1912 and it was to recover on the notes that the suit was instituted bwy the plaintiff.

October 13th being a legal holiday, the Windham County National bank in Danielson, Conn., will be closed for the day, and the representative for Windham County National bank will not be at the office of the Putnam Light and Power Co., on that day. Odd Fellows' hall was hardly large enough to hold the gathering at the last republican rally under the auspices of the Putnam Coolidge club, Thursday evening, when ex-Congressman James F. Glynn of Winsted and Mrs. Albert Chamberlain, of Meriden mad addresses touching on national and state questions from the viewpoint of the republican party. The audience became enthusiastic and heartily joined in the campaign songs, some of these written especially for the Putnam Coolidge club by one of its members, Miss Anna C. Levitt. The high school orchestra furnished music. At the meeting Miss Clara Larned, president of the club presided. She is one of Putnam's four candidates for representatives in the general assembly.

A wild bob tail cat weighng 14 pounds was killed recently by Ralph Litchfield employed on the farm of G. L. Keach, Woodstock. The barking of a dog, which kept up for a long time, attracted the attention of Litchfield and he went to see what the dog had found. He found the dog and cat in furious battle, the dog apparently trying to attract attention and secure help by his yelping. The cat was soon killed and after the incident had become known many people called to view the dead animal.

..On account of the large gathering at the town meeting in West Woodstock last Monday the meetin was adjourned from Lyceum hall to the open space in front of the hall. The reular appropriations to run the town for another year were made under beautiful October skies. The town elected the republican ticket as usual.

..The hunting season is two days old. Although a few birds have been bagged not many hunters have as yet been in the woods. Most of the old sportsmen prefer to wait until the leaves are off as until then it is only an aggravation to hear the partridge get up but be unable to see them on account of thick foliage. The few hunters who have been out report that birds are plenty but wild. It is almost impossible to get a clear shot this time of year unless a stray bird is started in the open, which seldom occurs. With pheasant shooting, conditions are different. These birds find cover in swamps and swale and are as easily started and killed now as at any other time. They my even be found in flocks in fields where corn has been stocked, or in stubble. This bird is comparatively a new-comer in this section. It is of good size and excellent eating.

Alfrd Bonneville employed in a Putnam drug store, has entered the Rhode Island School of Pharmacy and will attend classes there twice a week.

Business depression in Putnam the past year is evidenced by the amount paid by the town in support of its poor. The total was $12,209.53 in addition to which there was $3,792.07 spent for insane poor. In their annual budget the selectmen estimate that it will cost the town $10,000 for aid to the poor during the coming year. This amount may be decreased if the factories resume operations during the year furnishing employment for familes that are now idle. The closing of the First National bank may also have affected the amount somewhat. In a number of cases it is known that the bank's closing has worked a read heardship and left people destitute for ready cash.

Allan Smith of Revere, years ago a resident of Putnam, has been here the past few days calling on friends. He is now a Pullman car conductor with a run between Boston and Portland, Me., making four round trips a week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Maryotte, who have been spending a month at Caratunk, Me., have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Mansfield have returned from Crescent beach. Mr. Mansfield is recovering from an illness that came upon him while at the beach.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich is to hold a clinic at the Day Kimball hospital next Tuesday.

Letter received from Alexander Varbedian, who left to vist relatives in Syria three weeks ago, state that he is to make a trip to the Holy Land before he returned to Putnam.

PLAINFIELD

One of Plainfield's citizens will always remember the 8th of October as his unlucky day. Wednesday evening when the Lawton fire whistle was sounded he ran out of his house in excitement, barefooted, stepped on a piece of glass and cut his foot. On Thursday morning when he arose he broke his false teeth and lost his jackknife.

A fire that broke out in Bassini's shoe store Tuesday evening was said to be started by rats gnawing a box of amtches. Praise was given the fire department for their quick response and good work at the fire. One thing overlooked was to place someone on guard at the store during the night. The son of the owner, a child of 12, was forced to remain on guard alone all night except a few times when Officer Vincent came around to see if everything was O. K.

Fred Eglin and Alfred Kaiser were callers in South Canterbury, Tuesday.

Tuesday evening opened the Women's bowling league season. A good crowd of women from other parts of the town was at the alleys. Mrs. Leland Raney took the honors of the evening with a high single of 110. Miss Neisie Hartwell took second honors with 290 for high three. The results were: Spark Plugs 1201; Go-Get-Ems 1095; Wild Fires 1090; Runaways 1035. There was a meeting in the upper hall after the matches.

The Athletic Association of Plainfield High school plans to put on a play. This will be the first show by the students in the new building. The players are being coached by Miss Dodd.

The faculty of Plainfield Grammar school held a meeting Wednesday and voted to send Miss Dodge, a teacher in that building, a bouquet.

Monday night patrons of the Plainfield Community House were very much disappointed at the show that was produced by a traveling troupe called the Casino Girls.

A good crowd attended the dance at the Community house Wednesday evening.

The usual world series "gang" were on hand at the various announcing stations about town today.

By the report in Tuesday's Bulletin Plainfield polled a larger vote than Putnam, a city much larger in population than Plainfield.

Mrs. Arthur Holmes and Mrs. Charles Reynolds were callers on Mrs. Harold Mercier in Moosup on Tuesday.

Since Fred Lindstrom has been making such a great showing in the world series for the New York Giants many baseball fans in Plainfield claim to be well acquainted with the young star. It seems strange that they all have the same idea about Lindstrom living in this section of the country. If they are correct Lindstrom was a resident just outside of Jewett City on the road to Bethel.

Even Chronic Rheumatic Swellings in Knee, Elbow, Shoulder or Finger Joints Yield to the Mighty Powerful Influence of JOINT-EASE.

It's here, right in town and Lee & Osgood and every live druggist has it.

It's a low price remedy, to be sure, but that doesn't stop it from taking the kinks, lameness or torture out of your troubled joints.

Joint-Ease is the name, so called because it is compounded solely for the purpose of relieving all joint ailments.

Just rub it on the tromented, lame joints and in just a few seconds it will penetrate to the bone and blessed comfort comes quickly.

It absorbs instantly and is so clean and stainless that you can rub it on often and get thereby, results much more quickly, when the joint is inflamed and the agony intense.

Being such a powerful counter irritant, it cannot help bringing speedy and helpful results in congestion, sore throat, chest colds, lumbago and neuralgia much quicker than almost any remedy you can buy.

But you must remember that it is for joint afflictions that it is mostly dispensed and its helpfulness will astonish you after all ordinary liniments have failed.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

SLUSH FUND DISCOVERED.

It was inevitable that the "slush fund" cry should be raised by La Follette. He is one of those great publicists who wants the world to know what others are doing when their efforts happen to be aimed at him, while he thinks it has no interest in any similar undertakings which are being promoted in his behalf.

La Follette has told what he believes will be raised in the state of Pennsylvania and New York by the republicans and of course he is interested because he considers that part or all of such funds will be employed against him. That of course is open to the interpretation that he regards himself as a formidable opponent, but it gives no consideration to the fact that whatever is being raised for campaign purposes and whatever is employed against him will be given and used for the prevention of that menace to sound and constitutional government which his candidacy is believed to furnish. The committee directing the raising of funds in Pennsylvania brands La Follettism as the forerunner of "a violent social and industrial revolution." It therefore considers that it is justified in using all proper means of preventing it.

The fund is a "slush" fund because it is being raised to combat La Follettism. If it should be employed for boosting the cause of the senator from Wisconsin all would be milk and honey. In fact nothing is being said by the leader of the third party about the funds which the American Federation of Labor is collecting for LaFollette as being "slush."

It makes all the difference in the world whose ox is being gored. La Follette can be expected to rant over the alarming size of campaign funds but he should and does realize that there is a congressional committee named for the purpose of dealing with this very question. If he has, as he seems to think he has, discovered a terrible "slush" fund it is his duty to tell the committee about it and let it be correctly shown up. Of course he had rather talk about it and the iniquity connected with it than to have it investigated for he knows that talk is cheap while if there was an investigation he would be expected to present proof. Talk and proof concerning such matters seldom jibe.

STRAW VOTES.

Straw votes may not be accepted as a guarantee of what the voters will do on election day. They are always open to the claim that they are not representative, and yet there is a significance which cannot be totally disregarded when taken on such an extensive and careful a scale as that by the Literary Digest.

For four weeks the Digest has been announcing the response of the voters to the ballots which have been sent out to 15,000,000 voters throughout the country, and it is impossible to overlook the fact in connection with these recorded preferences that President Coolidge has maintained a lead throughout. On the total vote thus far cast of nearly a million and a half votes the president has more than a majority, or more than all the other candidates combined.

There are of course republican states and democratic states. In those commonwealths it can be expected that the candidate of the respective party standard will be in the lead, but of the 42 states from which votes have thus far been received President Coolidge has a lead in 33 of them, Davis leads in nine and La Follette in his own, Wisconsin. Even the states of Kentucky, West Virginia and Missouri on the votes thus far tabulated show the president leading. Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont are of course showing a strong leaning to the president while Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island are among those states from which no ballots have as yet been recorded. Even North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa show a good advantage for the president in spite of the claims to the contrary.

The poll must be regarded as showing how the wind is blowing, and it is of no little interest that invariably where smaller tests have been made that the sentiment of the voters is practically the same, and this even where democratic papers or those leaning to La Follette are concerned.

Straw votes may be interesting but it cannot be forgotten that they do not take the place of going to the polls on election day.

TESTING AIRSHIPS.

Within a short time this country expects to have two large dirigibles, the Shenandoah which is already possessed and the ZR-3 which is one of the Zeppelins allotted to this country following the war. The latter must be delivered from Germany, involving a crossing of the Atlantic, and that test is bound to be regarded as a demonstration of its stability and fitness for that type of an airship.

The two airships are not built upon the same lines. There is a difference and in view of the recent completion of the ZR-3 it must be regarded as strictly up to date, and while 24 feet shorter it has a greater gas bag capacity by over a third of a million cubic feet.

A flight over this country, where there are mooring masts stationed for the purpose of making stops, is decidedly different from the long non-stop flight from Germany to this country with the long flight over the ocean, but there will nevertheless be an opportunity for more or less comparison of the performances of the two ships as the Shenandoah makes its 9000-mile cross country trip and return and the ZR-3 heads for these shores.

The ZR-3 is looked upon as the last word in Zeppelin construction, but it differs from the Shenandoah in that it is built for commercial uses while the latter was constructed for war purposes. Following its delivery to this government serious consideration must be given to furnishing it with the protection that is received by the Shenandoah through being inflated with the non explosive helium gas. Not until that means of preventing disaster is obtained will it be on a par from the standpoint of protection with the Shenandoah, and considering the value involved that protection, even though expensive, deserves every possible attention.

The tests of the respective ships will be watched with keen interest throughout the country in these days when more and more attention is being given to air navigation and air travel.

WEAK ENFORCEMENT.

Many are the disclosures which have been made concerning the difficulties involved in enforcing the dry law. It has been shown what trouble is involved in getting enforcement officials who will give honest service. It has been disclosed how extensive is the desire to break the law regardless of the penalty that might be imposed. It has been revealed with what leniency those who are caught in a premeditated and deliberate violation of the law are treated, and now comes the tale to a federal court in Philadelphia that liquor which has been seized and placed in a warehouse for safe keeping until court action had been taken has been withdrawn and replaced by water, sand and brick.

This makes it evident that the location of the seized liquor was known, that the guard that was supposed to be placed around it amounted to nothing and that in all probability what had been seized as illegal goods and destined for destruction was immediately brought into use again for the actual violation of the law which the placing of it in a warehouse was supposed to prevent.

There is little wonder under such situations that there is a belief that too much leniency, too many needless delays and too lax methods are permitted for the proper enforcement of the law. The Philadelphia case is only one of many where those who are getting rich off of it are making a joke of the law, and of course there are plenty who are eager to give them a helping hand.

It indicates the difficulties that are involved in enforcement, but it likewise reveals the effect of making it easy for law breakers.

MACDONALD GOES.

Premier MacDonald has gone down even as it was predicted that he would. He has held the reins of government in Great Britain for a period of nine months through the division existing in the other parties and now there is to be a new election this month to determine the next government, in which the country will have a chance to endorse or denounce the action of the house of commons.

During his premiership Ramsay MacDonald has accomplished a number of important things. He has done what other premiers did not do in regard to the establishment of better relations with France and in aiding to bring to an end through the Dawes report the deplorable situation in Europe. In doing these it is to be remembered, however, that he had the aid of different conditions in France from what were faced by his predecessors. He profited through changes which had developed in the French government bringing that government more in keeping with the British viewpoint and away from its hitherto unbending policy.

All that contributed to his accomplishments, or in other words he happened to be premier when the time ripened for putting into effect certain policies which had been strongly urged.

When it came to the matter of a treaty with soviet Russia and dealing with communism MacDonald fell. There was a convincing lack of confidence in his course which was strangely to say quite in contrast to what he had preached. He followed the bidding of the extreme left of his party. The house of commons has spoken and now it remains for the country to express itself on election day.

EVERYTHING LOVELY

"Well!" said the eminently sensible person as the newly-weds tumbled up the stairs to their their miniature apartment and thumped down bags and hunted for keys and laughed at nothing, "how did the week end trip come out? You were going to surprise somebody or something, weren't you? My wife said you told her something like that when you went—by the way you left your front door open. We shut it."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Beamer!" gurgled the bride. "Now wasn't that awful! You see, we decided all in a minute, sort of to surprise my folks who are at their summer cottage in Michigan. Natural since we just got back from our wedding trip they didn't expect we'd start out again so soon! Didn't we have a marvelous time though, Edgar?"

"Swell!" said the groom enthusiastically. "It's wonderful what a good time two people can have, isn't it, Mr. Beamer."

"It seems just like a dream!" agreed the bride regarding him fondly. "Don't you wish we were just starting out instead of coming home, Edgar?"

"You bet!" said the groom, absentmindedly trying his gym locker on the front door.

"Did you have good weather?" asked the eminently sensible person.

"Did we have good weather, Edgar?" the bride repeated somewhat vaguely. "Why, we had such a good time, Mr. Beamer, that I can't just recall—oh, yes, I remember now that when we started out from the station in our rented Ford and got stuck on the road it was raining, wasn't it? Edgar ran off the road because it was so dark and the wheels sank in the mud and he just about ruined his brand new shoes pushing the old car back. I tore my best silk stockings on the brambles and got my hat soaked because I would help—didn't I Edgar?"

"You sure did!" laughed the groom. "And two miles farther just as we struck the woods the gas gave out and I had to walk a mile—"

"And a hoot owl sang in a tree all the time you were gone so I covered my head up with the robe and that finished my hat—"

"And when we finally got to the cottage the folks had gone to bed and it was pitch dark and I banged the radiator into a tree and we had a time getting them up. And it was 3 o'clock before we got an extra bedroom ready and got through explaining how it all happened and were nearly dead! We sure laughed!"

"We were going to have the loveliest day!" broke in the bride. "Driving all over through the woods and up the beach and back to mother's chicken dinner—exactly like another honeymoon! Well, when we tried to start the car the next morning it wouldn't budge. I guess Edgar cranked that old thing a million times, didn't you Edgar? Wasn't it funny though?"

"I'll say I did!" agreed the groom, showing his blistered fingers. "Oh, yes it was still raining! Everything dripped! So we had to go in and sit on the porch and just look at each other! Remember how we laughed?"

"And of course as the car didn't run we couldn't go after a newspaper and there wasn't a thing to do!" said the bride. "There we sat looking at things drip when we planned all the way over to drive miles and miles through the lovely scenery and have such a grand time! But wasn't it fun, Edgar?"

"You bet!" the groom agreed fondly. "We just sat in the hammock and talked, except when we ate dinner and in the evening we sat by the open fire and talked. I thought your mother got kind of sleepy."

"It was a little late," agreed the bride. "You see we had to take a train that left at 2 o'clock at night so's Edgar could be back at work this morning on time so we talked till 1 o'clock when the taxi came for us—how much did you have to pay that man for the horrid old car we rented that wouldn't run, Edgar?"

"Ten dollars," said the groom. "Ten dollars for nothing—but wasn't it a joke on us?"

"A perfect scream!" laughed the bride. "So we took the 2 o'clock train still in the pouring rain and tried to sleep for hours and couldn't. Heavens, didn't we have the grandest time?"

"You bet!" said the groom, finally unlocking the door. They vanished to the sound of more laughter.

The eminently sensible person stood for some minutes just staring at their door with an oddly wistful expression on his face. Then he sighed a little and got out his own latchkey.—Chicago News.

Borglum Ran Away From His Art Work

Born on the shores of Bear Lake in the then wilds of Idaho, Gutzon Borglum was the eldest child and had to help care for his eight brothers and sisters.

Still a boy, he was taken by his father, a doctor, to Nebraska City, Neb., another frontier town, and later to newly-settled Fremont while his father studied in Omaha.

In school, the boy loved to draw pictures on his text books and to run away to the country. When the father took the family to Omaha and sent the lad to St. Mary's College, near Topeka, Kans., young Gutzon's talent was discovered and he was given so much art work that he fled to his home.

In Omaha he attended public school, then was taken to Los Angeles, where he spent his time painting. Although he had received little instruction in the technique of art, he produced paintings and sold them using the money to pay his way while taking a two-year art course in San Francisco.

Starting East, he got as far as Omaha when his cash gave out. Selling his paintings and bronzes for $2,000, he then decided to go to Paris. At 23, he entered the Academie Ecole des Beaux Arts. Two years later he was elected a member of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts, then studied in Spain. Returning to this country, he married and after working in Philadelphia and California went back to London.

Without funds, but securing credit, he staged a one-man exhibition of his western paintings and bronzes. Royalty became interested and the exhibit won success. After six years in Europe, he returned to New York and had to do inconsequential designing to make a living. Taking up sculpture, he sold his Mares of Diomedes to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York, and at 38 gained recognition in his own country.

Then followed his colossal bust of Lincoln in the Capitol at Washington, his statue of Lincoln at Newark, N. J., and many other statues and marbles. Now he is commissioned to carve the gigantic group on the side of Stone Mountain, in Georgia, as a Memorial to the Southern Confederacy.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William E. Knox, the new president of the American Bankers' association, is a striking illustration of the opportunity America offers to the boy of ambition, energy and integrity. Coming to New York from his native Ireland as an emigrant lad he is today the president of the largest savings bank in the world. After completing a public school education he began his business career as an office boy in a New York publishing house at the age of 15 years. His banking experience began when he entered the Bowery Savings bank as a junior clerk in 1885. He was elected secretary of that bank in 1905, comptroller in 1908, vice president in 1920 and became president in 1922. Mr. Knox has been active in banking association affairs, having served as vice president of the American Bankers' association and vice chairman of the National Association of Mutual Savings banks.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Miss Mousie

"Can't you stay awhile?" asked dear Uncle Lucky, to his bunny nephew, as the Old Red Rooster, with the hoe over his shoulder, hurried off to the dear old Bramble Patch.

"'Fraid not," answered Little Jack Rabbit. "Mother wants two seedless raisins and a popcorn. I must hop down to the Three-in-One Cent store," and away went the obedient bunny boy, looking back over his shoulder to wave at his lonely old Uncle before turning the corner at Lettuce avenue.

"Dearest me!" sighed the old gentleman rabbit. "I wish Little Miss Mousie would come home. The house seems empty without her, although, goodness knows, it's full of furniture. But chairs and tables don't have blue eyes and bobbed hair," and lonely Uncle Lucky hopped up on the porch and lay down in the hammock. Pretty soon he fell asleep to dream of clover patches and crisp lettuce heads, when, all of a sudden, something cool and soft as velvet, soothed his forehead. Then it slipped down over his eyes and a voice asked.

"Guess who it is?"

"What will you give me if I guess right the very first time?" answered the old gentleman rabbit, with a contented laugh.

"Apple pie and angel cake," answered the oices.

"My little housekeeper," murmured dear Uncle Lucky. "But you'll put me to sleep again unless you tickle my right ear!"

"But I'm not hungry," and leaning over he picked up the old carpet slipper that had fallen off his right foot.

Gracious me, there's a hole in your sock! exclaimed Little Miss Mousie. "Put on a new pair and bring down the worn one," she added as the old gentleman rabbit hopped upstairs to his bedroom.

'Til darn it now before it grows
Big enough for all your toes."

And his careful little housekeeper ran in for her darning needle.

"Well, did you have a nice visit?" asked Uncle Lucky, again sitting down in the hammock as Little Miss Mousie slipped a china egg into the sock and commenced to darn the hole.

"Lovely time," answered his tiny housekeeper. "But it took lots of time and postage stamps to send so many postal cards."

"You sent me only two," sighed Uncle Lucky, but before Little Miss Mousie could answer, Reddy Comb, the rooster newsboy, tossed the Bunnybridge Bugle on the porch.

"Hello, what's this?" exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit glancing at the headlines.

How To Banish Piles

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy.

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles, and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Making Saving Effective

Gothe observed that, "enthusiasm is of the greatest value, when we are not carried away by it."

In the matter of saving, there is such a thing as being carried away by enthusiasm. The miser is an example of this. In order to save and get ahead steadily it is vital that we always keep our feet on the solid ground of prudence.

To be effective, saving must be continous. The person who pinches and saves every possible penny for a short time and then gives up and quits will never reach the goal of independence or success. Therefore, it is well always to have in mind the matter of moderation. Saving a reasonable amount regularly gives ever increasing stabilization and strength.

When we are strong and well we are apt to pay little or no attention to matters of health. Then if we become ill we suddenly become greatly interested in the care of our physical being and we feel that when we recover we will never again allow ourselves to become neglectful in these matters.

It is the same way regarding financial matters. In the vigor of youth or in times of great prosperity, we are apt to disregard the value of thrift. We drift along from day to day and year to year without preparations for the future. Then suddenly some misfortune happens and we find ourselves confronted by the stern realities of financial impairment. Possibly we have lost out position through illness or the source of our income is unexpectedly wiped out. Then we think of thrift and make up our minds that if we ever become prosperous again we shall not neglect to put aside a portion of our earnings for the future.

Being thrifty does not mean that we must be an extremist in the matter of saving money or in giving up rightful pleasures. Cultivate moderation. Do not save to the point of being a miser nor to the exclusion of the various unlifting elements that have a rightful place in our lives.

On the other hand, we must use moderation in the matter of pleasure and out of our earnings make sure that we are providing for the lean days that are sure to come.—American Society for Thrift.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ASIA'S GEORGIA

With nearly all of the Republic of Georgia, that country, save in the Capital, Tiflis, and the Black Sea port, Batum, is in much the condition that it was in its independent days following the World war. What the country was like before it succumbed to Soviet influence is told in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, quoting a communication from Melville Chater.

"Though one has penetrated fairly far into the East at Tiflis," says a bulletin, "if one expects vistas of caravans, camels, and Rebekahs-at-the-well, he will suffer disillusionment in his first impressions. The Golovinsky Prospekt, which runs through the heart of the Georgian capital, is as handsome a bit of modern metropolitanism as can be found anywhere. With its restaurants and cafes, its jewelers, art shops and opera, its vice-regal palace, the Prospekt, especially when seen in the lounging hour, is undeniably chic.

"Here stroll Russians, Georgians, Armenians and the representatives of a score of mountain tribes who have business in the new capital. There is a splendor of uniforms and of sidearms, the Caucausian national costume dominating the picture. A very long, swagger over-garment of brown or gray, padded square at the shoulders, with wasp-like waist, and descending as a smartly flared skirt—this, together with high, heel-less boots, a square astrakhan cap, a clanking sword, two magnificently chased daggers, a brace of pistols, and sixteen fountain pens strung across his chest represents what I would term the picturesque scenery worn by your typical Georgian in war, in peace, and in the bosom of his countrymen.

"What I have called fountain-pens turned out to be more weapons—hollow tubes, anciently designed to contain powder and shot.

"One looks at these magnificently accountered swaggerers, with their stiff mustaches and close-shaven skulls, and things of comic opera and of the dear old kingdom of Zenda, also one trembles for the League of Nations, fearing that the Georgian will never consent to a reduction of his armament.

"Mere militarism has no mortgage on uniforms at Tiflis. Everybody wears one, including school children and their teachers according to Russian custom; and hundreds upon hundreds of civilians are thus attired because; clothes being scarce and expensive, they prefer buying some officer's cast-off outfit.

"The 'lounging hour' is important in Georgia. In fact there are some sixteen of these to the Georgian's day, and perhaps it would be simpler to speak of the working hour. Between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon, down go the steel lattices which guard the shop windows—then Tiflis resumes its national pastime of joie de vivre until 6 o'clock of the following morning; for that is the hour when the Georgians' all night parties break up—break up, I mean, with shots exchanged across the table.

"The Georgian is renowned for his hospitality. His customary greeting is, 'While in Tiflis you will consider my home yours,'—an offer which was tendered us so regularly that we suffered, I may almost say, from an embarrassment of homes.

"The Georgian dinner-party, a mighty matter of courses and wines, begins at 2:30 in the afternoon and lasts until 5. Then there will be a dance in the evening, refreshments commencing at 9 o'clock and continuing between dance-numbers until the company reels homeward in the dawn.

"Occasionally the floor is cleared for a dagger-dance, a picturesque and barbaric business performed to a rhythmic accompaniment of hand-clapping by some tall, beskirted native, who prances murderously about with from five to seven daggers held between his teeth.

"The Georgian public function is a superb affair of uniforms, healths drunk, huzzahs, celebrities carried shoulder-high about the room, and a chorus of liveried trumpeters who sound fanfares at the close of every toast. Once again one realizes that though the Georgians have gone red republican, Zenda's dear old comic-opera kingdom still lies deep in their hearts."

GRAVE ROBBERS

Grave robbers disturbed the rest of prehistoric Americans just as they despoiled the tombs of the Pharoahs along the Nile.

Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic Society's Pueblo Bonito Expedition, which is working at Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, writes:

"After clearing three more burial chambers we now have 65 skeletons and have solved the riddle of the headless bodies and the disturbed condition of the burials. Prehistoric vandals did the trick.

"Pueblo Bonito—the Beautiful Village—must have been famous in ancient times, as at present, for the wealth of its primitive jewelry.

"Grave robbers, most likely tribal enemies on raiding expeditions, discovered the room burials and stripped the bodies of their turquoise and shell ornaments. In their search they showed a disregard for the dead. Burials were disturbed; portions of the bodies were torn from the remainder and the heads, in most instances, placed in a corner or along the walls of the room.

"Only the deeper burials were left intact. With these we found our better treasures."

The National Geographic Society's expedition has just completed another successful summer's work in the valley which was the metropolis of pre-Columbian America. In that region Pueblo Bonito, a Chevy Chase of the American aborigines, has yielded remarkable specimens of early Indian art, jewels, domestic utensils, and other paraphernalia of a civilization which, in many of its aspects is as interesting as that of early Egypt or Mesopotamia, and which, explorers say apparently had no connection with old world civilizations.

When Mrs. Salena Lewis, of San Francisco, obtained a decree of divorce she asked that the court order her to pay $35 a month to her former husband. Mrs. Lewis explained that Mr. Lewis was in poor health and since his income was only $55 a month, she thought it only right that she be allowed to help him.

OBITUARY.

Henry Hough

William Henry Hough, crossing tender for the New Haven road at Noank died at his home on Collins hill Tuesday night, following an illness of a few weeks. He was born in the town of Stonington 58 years ago.

He had been flagman at the Main street crossing in Noank for several years and was highly thought of. He leaves his wife and three children, Mrs. Eugene Batty of Mystic, Mrs. B. M. Doolittle of New Haven, and William Hough of New Haven; two brothers, Frank and Charles of Sag Harbor, and one sister, Mrs. White of Norwich Town.

Joseph W. Wheeler

(Contributed

Joseph Warren Wheeler of Stonington who died at his ancestral home on Monday, Oct. 5th, 1924, was the only son of Warren and Phebe (Gallup) Wheeler and was born there Dec. 27th 1854. A sister, Lucy (who later married Clark Whitford,) was included in the family circle. Mr. Wheeler attended the Wheeler school in the third district of Stonington in his boyhood and youth but later went to Mystic and then to Stonington Borough to the school, taught by Mr. Foster under the present Congregational church. Here he studied civil engineering, intending to make that his business in life, but later because his father felt that he could not spare him from the home farm, he reluctantly gave up the work he had planned to do, and remained on the farm with his parents, being a great comfort to them in their declining years.

After his mother's death, he married Jan. 26, 1888, Estelle, daughter of Oliver and Sarah (Eccleston) Miller of Ashwillat.

Mr. Wheeler was very fond of music and greatly enjoyed his Victrola records and took great pride in the tall trees and heavy timber on his land, which all admire as they go through the woods near his home. He could scarcely be induced to have one felled, but did sell some in the time of the world war for ship building. Mr. Wheeler was a home loving man devoted to his family. He is survived by his wife and three children—Warren, who resides in the borough—Phebe (Mrs. Urban Whitford) who lives in Old Mystic and Alton who lives in Stonington. Their youngest child Gladys died a few years ago—there are also eight grand children.

FUNERALS

August Juneau, Sr.

The funeral of August Juneau, Sr., was held at 8.30 o'clock Thursday morning from his home, 27 Fifth street with solemn requiem high mass at St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. William A. Keefe was celebrant and was assisted by Rev. William N. Kennedy, deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Cohalan, sub-deacon. The music was in charge of Miss Elizabeth Malone and during the service Mrs. T. J. Donovan sang as a waiting hymn Some Sweet Day. For the recessional the choir sang Nearer, My God to Thee.

Included in the large attendance at the church were relatives and friends from Springfield, Hartford, Bristol and Plainfield. The flowers were very beautiful, among them being a pillow from the Foresters or America, of which order, Mr. Juneau was a member.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Keefe. The bearers were Paul Lemoine, Paul Calande, Anthony Bonin, Donai Simaneau, Louis Guertin and Louis Ouilette. Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

Loraine Helen Barber.

The funeral of Loraine Helen, 9 days old daughter of Arthur and Winifred Barber, who died Wednesday, was held at the home of her parents at 92 Sherman street, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial was in Yantic cemetery. The services at the home were conducted by Rev. S. H. Howe, pastor of Park Congregational church, who also read the committal service at the grave. Funeral arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Stone Broke Store Window.

Early Thursday evening an automobile passing through Main street shot a stone frb mthe road through one of the Manhattan store windows. A small hole was made in the glass. It is not known who was driving the machine as the driver evidently did not notice that his wheels threw the stone against the window.

Well Child Conference at Colchester.

A well child conference was held Thursday at Grange hall, Colchester, under the auspices of the state department of health.

Out of Date Quickly

The Oxford dictionary is far from complete, writes Ernest Weekly in the Atlantic Monthly. You will search it in vain for "aspidistra" and "appendicitis," "boche" and "bolshevist," "cinema" and "camouflage," "decontrol" and "Dora," "broadcasting" and "listening-in," "bootlegging," and "dope fiend," for a dictionary published today is almost out-of-date tomorrow.

Creatures That Laugh

Human beings are not the only creatures that have a sense of humor. Some animals have a keener sense of humor than some human beings. The hyena laughs, many dogs laugh, and most monkeys laugh. A sense of fun is not a human monopoly.

RECOGNITION SERVICE FOR ITALIAN PASTOR AT BAPTIST CHURCH

A recognition service fro Rev. Valentino Panizzoli, pastor in charge of the Italian Department of the Central Baptist church, was held Thursday evening in Bushnell Chapel, members of the church and members of the department in charge of Rev. Mr. Panizzoli, taking part in the services.

The service was opened by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church. Following a brief prayer and song service, Rev. E. E. Gates of Hartford, secretary of the Baptist State Convention, who has been instrumental in securing Rev. Mr. Panizzoli for the Central Baptist church, gave the welcoming address.

In his remarks he explained the lack of Italian pastors and congratulated the Central church upon having secured a leader for the Italian mission. Briefly he outlined the Italian missionary work being done in the state and spoke of the noble way in which the work was being done in Norwich.

I know, said Rev. Mr. Gates, that you will support Rev. Mr. Panizzoli and that he will work with you. In welcoming him to Norwich and to the state of Connecticut, I also welcome him on behalf of the Baptist State Convention and bid him God speed in his work for the kingdom in Norwich. It is great and growing work, he said, and by Christianizing these foreign born people we make true citizens, both for our country and for the Kingdom of God.

James L. Case, representing the Italian committee of the church, also spoke briefly, gave a history of the growth of the work in the church and extended a welcome to Rev. Panizzoli and sugegsted for a motto, the slogan, "If God be with us, who can be against us."

Rev. Mr. Panizzoli, Mrs. Panizzoli and their daughter were then presented to the members and following the introduction Rev. Mr. Panizzoli thanked the church for the expression of good will. Through prayer and work, he said, these Italian people who are yet children in the Christian faith, may be brought close to God and the day of an Italian Protestant church in Norwich will be brought closer and finally to fulfillment.

Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed, refreshments served and a fine musical entertainment given by a local orchestra.

The Italian work in the Central church began about 10 years ago and today the Italian department is steadily increasing. The volume of work required the services of a minister for these people and Rev. Mr. Panizzoli accepted the call, coming to Norwich in August. He is a graduate of Rochester Theological Seminary and came to Norwich from a mission in Utica, N. Y. He is married and has one child, one child having passed away since the family came to Norwich. Their home is now on Broadway.

HARRIS DELIVERS HIT WITH TWO ON THAT EVENS SERIES FOR SENATORS

Game Was Pitching Battle Between Zachary and Nehf Which the Former Won 2 to 1—Rice Saves Game at Critical Times with Spectacular Catches—Peckinpaugh Injures His Leg Again—Ogden Will Pitch For Senators in Final Battle Today—President Coolidge Enjoys Game.

Washington, Oct. 9.—(By The A. P.) Launching a spectacular come-back just when their hopes seemed to be at their lowest ebb, Washington's batting Senators captured the sixth game of the 1924 world's series today from the New York Giants, 2 to 1, and forced baseball's championship struggle to the limit for the third time in history and the first time since 1912.

President Coolidge, establishing himself as a dyed-in-wool fan by watching his 2nd game of the series, joined in the tumultous enthusiasm of a victory-frenzied crowd of 35,000 that saw "Bucky" Harris, the slim, dark haired young manager of the Senators, come through with a pinch hit that clinched one of the most thrilling triumphs of the series.

Harris, with two out and the count two strikes and three balls, slashed a single to right in the fifth inning that scored Peckinpaugh and McNeely with the Senators' only runs, and broke up a sensational southpaw battle between Art Nehf, Giant ace, who had won the first game, and "Old Stone," Zachary, who came through with his second triumph of the series. It was a costly victory for the Senators, however, for in a dramatic fifth inning when the Giants threatened to rally, two stars of the Washington infield were injured on the same play, and Roger Peckinpaugh again was lost to the team, and will not be able to play in the seventh and deciding game at Griffith stadium tomorrow.

Peck Injures Leg Again

Peckinpaugh, veteran shortstop whose return to the game today for the first time since Monday, had plugged the gaping hole in the Senators' floor defense, and put new life into the entire team, aggravated a leg injury in fielding Meusel's hot smash for second base. He made the stop and throw to Harris that forced Kelly and checked the Giant rally, but there was a fresh cry of alarm from the stands when Joe Judge was hit in the groin by Harris' low throw and fell to the ground in pain.

Peck pulled up limping and finally had to be half carried from the field. Judge recovered sufficiently to continue the game, and Taylor, substitute infielder, who himself is just recovering from an injury to his throwing hand, which was swathed in bandages, went to third base to finish the game for Bluege, who moved over to Peck's place at short.

The fresh injury to Peckinpaugh, aggravating the pulled tendon, or "charley horse," which forced him out of the series last Monday, was particularly tragic, not only for Washington's championship hopes, but for himself, who celebrated his return today playing in spectacular fashion. He even fielded brilliantly, started a doubleplay that stopped the Giants in the fourth besides helping repel the final charge of the Giants in the ninth, while he had a perfect day at bat, starting the winning rally and scoring the first Senator run.

His absence, already keenly felt in the defense which the Senators sustained in two out of the three games at New York, will severely handicap Washington's final bid tomorrow for the club's first world title.

The Fighting Spirit Won

The Senators were outhit today, seven to four, but they made them count and won because of the never-say-die spirit that has kept them in the thick of one of the game's most sensational championship battles.

Undiscouraged by the second straight defeat of their great pitching star, Walter Johnson, in yesterday's game, Washington came back with a rush that upset the best laid calculations of McGraw, accomplished the downfall of Nehf, and aroused in the Capital City tonight an outburst of enthusiasm that has been unprecedented this season, even in the club's first pennant victory.

No better proof of this high spirit could be given than the tremendous rush at Griffith stadium's box offices after today's game for tickets for tomorrow's deciding battle. Thousands left as early as the seventh inning this afternoon to get the favored places in line, while additional throngs stormed the ticket windows and formed lines that were blocks long tonight.

Zachary Master of the Giants

Zachary, after a shaky first inning, when the Giants scored their only run on Frisch's double, and a fielder's choice, by Young, who scored on Kelly's long single, waved a magic spell over the Giant bats that had volleyed and thundered base hits yesterday. Instead of Johnson's fast ball, on which they had thrived, the Giants had Zachary's slow curves and tantalizing floaters to contend with today and they made no effective headway against them. After the third inning, when Frisch doubled for the second time, with one out, and got to third on Young's infield tap only to be stranded by Kelly, the Giants failed to get a runner to second base.

Rice Saves the Game

In this six-inning span, only four reached first base altogether and Zachary was always dominant in the with three spectacular running catches pitches, aided by some great defensive work which Sam Rice featured in right field.

One of Rice's catches checked the Giants spurt in the first inning and robbed Irish Meusel of a home run. Kelly, who had just driven in Young, was on first with two out when Meusel drove a long hit to right-center. It seemed headed for the bleachers there, a favorite mark for "Goose" Goslin, Senator slugger, but Rice, running backward, jumped and speared the liner with his gloved hand, a few feet in front of the stands.

Between the third and the ninth, when the Giants made their final threat, "Hack" Wilson was the only man to reach first, he singled in the fourth, with one out, only to be doubled up when Jackson hit to Peck. He got another one-base blow in the seventh with one down but this time Jackson and Gowdy were unable to advance him.

Young fouled out to start the ninth but Kelly singled and was replaced on the bases by Southworth as McGraw marshalled his forces for a last stand. Meusel smashed one of Zachary's curves over second base. Peckinpaugh got it on the run, but his injury became apparent as he stopped and limped after making the throw to Harris. There was a double play in sight but Harris's throw hit the dirt, escaped Judge's glove and hit him in the leg. Meusel was safe, but after the Senators had reorganized their forces and given first aid treatment to their casualties, Zachary struck out Wilson to end the game.

Nehf a Puzzle to Senators

Washington missed a fine chance to score in the first inning. It was due chiefly to a bad bit of base running by Harris, but the young manager fully redeemed himself for this fault, in the eye sof the fans, when he came through with his winning blow in the fifth.

McNeely walked on four straight balls to start the first and was forced by Harris, who started to steal second before Nehf's windup and was caught easily at second base. Rice followed with a long single to right and Goslin was safe when Kelly kicked is bounder around, a play on which Harris would have been able to score, but Judge closed the inning by striking out.

Peckinpaugh singled in the second, but was stranded, while with two out in the sixth, Bluege walked, stole secpassed, only to have "Muddy" Ruel second and Peckinpaugh was purposely who has been the batting "Bust" of the series, again fall in the pinch. Score:

World Series Notes.

Zachary had his slow hook working perfectly in the sixth and retired the Giants on only three pitched balls, a world's series record. All of the batters hit at the first ball and Peck threw out Gowdy. Rice robbed Nehf of a hit by coming in back of first to take his fly, while Zachary tossed out Lindstrom.

Frisch, normally a left hander at the plate, turned over to the right side in facing Zachary's southpaw shoots. The first two times up he placed drives down the right field foul line, both going for doubles.

Rice was the fielding star of the day, robbing the Giants of three hits. He picked a home run right out of the laps of the bleacherites off Meusel in the first inning with a leaping one-hand stab. Then in the third he made a fine running catch on Lindstrom, and completed the woes of the Giants by bagging Nehf's Texas leaguer in the fifth close to the foul line.

The base running of the Senators has been a big factor in keeping them in the fight. They have not only gotten the most stolen bases in five to, two for the Giants, but have utilized their speed to make the most of their hits. McNeely's steal of second today in the fifth put him in a position to bring across the deciding run on Harris' single.

FILLMORE HANGS UP RECORD BUT TEAM LOSES

Although Roy Fillmore hung up 352 for an indivdual high total mark last night his team mates were unable to produce enough pins to win the match from the Peerless Five that took two out of three games. Fillmore was hard pressed for high honors by Smith of the New London aggregation who toppled the maples for a total of 351. Smith also took high single with 130. Henry Sistare also hit heavy when he scored 342 for his three strings. The local boys took the first game by a margin of 10 pins but were entirely outclassed in the next two.

This victory puts the Peerless five in a tie with the Moosup team which lost two games to the Lawrence five at New London. The scores:

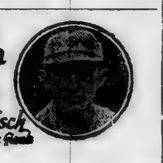
How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Fordham, New York Giants



Bases full. None out. Eighth inning. Score 3 to 3.

How should the infield play?

In such a situation the infield must arrange itself so as to play for the man at the plate. If ball is hit sharply to the shortstop, for example, he should make a quick throw to the catcher so as to give the latter a chance to double up the batter at first base. If the shortstop sees that the runner on third makes no attempt to score and that there is a better chance of making a double by way of second, he should make the play that way. After ball is thrown to second, if the runner on third then attempts to score, the second baseman should throw him out at the plate.

HARRIS WILL DEPEND ON AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY

Washington, Oct. 9.—(By the A. P.)—The deciding game of the World series will be fought with uncertain quantities in the pitching mound. Harris has announced that he will gamble with Ogden, a young right hander obtained in mid-season from the Athletics. McGraw stated that he would probably use Virgil Barnes, who was knocked out of the box Tuesday.

Ogden, good when he is "right," is a speed ball pitcher. If the Giants beat his fast ones as they did those of Johnson and Marberry, Harris will switch to Mogridge, whose slow southpaw shoots baffled McGraw's team for more than seven innings Tuesday. "Firpo" Marberry, champion relief pitcher, will be held in reserve.

McGraw said that he would warm up his staff and indicated that Barnes would be the probable choice, although McQuillan might be used.

"It was a great World series game," the veteran Giant manager said after today's contest, "and a tough one for Nehf to lose, but tomorrow it will be our turn again and I'm certain my boys will come through in the pinch as they always do."

"Bucky" Harris, young Washington leader, was confident that his club would go out tomorrow and finish the good work they began today.

"We have the advantage of our home grounds," he said, "and are doubly anxious to win for the people here now, because of the great reception they gave us when we came back from New York. Peckinpaugh's injury will keep him out tomorrow and that will be the heaviest loss we could receive but I believe Taylor will fill in the gap at third and that the others will continue their high grade work of today. Rice's fielding was marvelous and Zachary pitched fine ball."

WORLD'S SERIES STARS AT NEW HAVEN SUNDAY

New Haven, Oct. 9.—Manager Stanley Harris, "Goose" Goslin and Zachary of the Washington team, American league champions, will play with an all star team against the New Haven Eastern league team at Weiss park here Sunday, it was announced tonight.

Attention Hilltops

The Jewett City Speedboys would like to know why you didn't show up Sunday as scheduled. Here you are yelling your heads off for games and when you get one you don't show up. The Speedboys challenge any team in Eastern Connecticut weighing 135 lbs. Write S. Jaskiewicz, Jewett City.

SEVERAL RECORDS ARE MADE IN TROT AND PACE EVENTS AT LEXINGTON OVAL

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 9.—(By the A. P.)—The "thirteen hoodoo" had no terrors for the unbeaten stake trotter, Tillie Brooks, for in landing the Transylvania today, she trotted the fastest two heats ever trotted in a stake race and scored her 12th consecutive victory. The winner is owned by John C. Elbs of Rochester, N. Y., and was driven by Thomas W. Murphy of Syracuse. However, she had the hardest fight of the year from the four-year-old filly, Ethelinda in the second heat. Time for the first heat was 2.01½, and the second 2.01¾. The stake record of 2.02½ by Peter Manning, was beaten in each heat.

The day was replete with thrills as Mr. McElwyn, driven by Ben White, lowered his own record for three-year-old trotters from 2.02 to 2.00¾. Tose Scott, entered the 2.00 list by trotting in 1.59¾, and Theodore Guy set a new world's record for 3-year old pacing geldings by stepping in 2.02¾. Will Dickerson drove Pluto Watts in 2.02¾. The performances the 2.05 list in the second heat. Fair May, best liked finished fourth. The half mile track trotter Peter Wooster proved best in the 2.17 trot.

LAWRENCE TAKES TWO FROM LEAGUE LEADERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 9.—Overcoming a 14 pin lead in the last two boxes of the final game and spares by Ryan and Sistare, the Lawrence five furnished a temporary sensation by taking the Moosup bowling five for two strings out of three.

The first string went to Moosup by 13 pins but the next string due to Bosworth's spare in the final box, gave the local bowlers a four pin margin when the final totals were made. The final string was a thriller and was decided by the two anchor men of the rival team. Even though Sistare gained two pins in the ninth box over McKenzie he spared in the final box for a sure victory.

Sullivan of the Lawrence five had high single with 113 while Wukas of Moosup was second with 113. Wukas led in the high three strings with 317. Score:

BULKELEY PLAY SPRINGFIELD TECH TEAM THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 9.—After waiting in abeyance for three weeks for the Bulkeley football eleven to open its home season, local football fans will forsake Friday afternoon's Word's series game for the purpose of viewing the Orange and Black eleven this fall for the first time on home soil against Springfield Tech. Bulkeley's opening game Friday is more than the ordinary game for any high school football team, for this contest will be the intersectional game for both Springfield Technical High school of Massachusetts and the Canty coached aggregation. It is the most important game slated on the state grid calendar for that day, and will find the teams lined up at 3.15 ready to oppose each other.

Color and background which will make the opening game of the season for the Orange and Black successful, will be very much in evidence when the festivitives begin. The visitors coming to this city an excellent coached eleven will give the local fans their first opportunity to view a team which produces nothing but the best athletic teams throughout the year. This game will also tend to give all those pessimistic fans, a chance to see the calibre of teams which Bulkeley opposes each season. Thi game will only be the first of three excellent home amges scheduled for this city, and the fans should appreciate the efforts made to bring good teams to this city.

Bulkeley has already demonstrated its ability on the gridiron this fall, and has held two much heavier teams to a scoreless tie. These teams, the Rhode Island State College Freshmen and Ansonia High, both outweighed the local by a large margin, but Bulkeley showed up well. The Bay State players will outweigh the locals, but Bulkeley may ultimately come out the victor because of the speed and endurance which is hers. If the lighter Orange and Black forwards can hold the onslaughter of the enemy, it will be an easy thing for a Bulkeley victory. For hte Bulkeley team, especially the back field with the returning of Walter Rice to the half berth will give the locals their first chance this season to present their full fighting strength.

"JAKE" DAUBERT, VETERAN PLAYER, PASSES ON

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 9.—The body of Jacob Ellsworth, veteran captain and member of the Cincinnati National league baseball club who died in a hospital here early today, will be taken to his old home at Schuylkill Haven, Penna., for burial.

Louis Fonseca, utility player of the Cincinnati Reds and one of Daubert's closest friends in Cincinnati, was at the bedside when the end came. He immediately notified Ed Roush, who has been leading the Reds on a barnstorming trip through Ohio and West Virginia. Roush was located at Welch, W. Va., and immediately cancelled the rest of the trip.

SAINTS WIN FROM ORIOLES IN FIFTH GAME

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Held subjective for five innings by the twisting shoots of Lefty Groves, famed for his strike-out string, St. Paul fathomed his offering in one big inning today and won 5 to 2 from Baltimefore in the junior World's series.

It was the 5th game in the series to determine the minor league championship and the result gave St. Paul, American Association title winner, two victories and the International league champions three wins in the five games played, five victories decide the series.

Brown Off for Chicago

Providence, R. I., Oct. 9.—The Brown university football squad left here today for Chicago, where they will meet the University of Chicago, Saturday, Keefer, a former Michigan star, probably will start the game in the backfield. The Brunonians have shown strength and include reserves of high standing for every position.

P. E. HOUSE OF BISHOPS ELECTS THREE NEW BISHOPS

New York, Oct. 9.—The house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church, after electing three new bishops and accepting the resignations of two others, got down to the business of planning the church's work with members of the national council today.

It was the house's first meeting with the council, organized in 1919 to serve the church very much as a board of directros serves a non-sectarian corporation. The joint session didn't get going until late in the day, as the house spent many hours in executive sessions in its selection of bishops.

It was later learned that there was some stir during the election when one of the bishops placed in nomination for the diocese of north Texas the name of Rt. Rev. Paul Jones, who at the height of a pacifist agitation in 1917 resigned as missionary bishop of Utah. Although Rt. Rev. Mr. Jones resigned as bishop of Utah, he continues a member of the house of bishops, though without a diocese.

At 40 years of age Sir George Thomas has won the last four successive All-England badminton championships, a fact that is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that badminton is an unusually strenuous game.

Through the Needle's Eye

It is a fact that there is in the wall of Jerusalem a small gateway built for the use of pedestrians and known by a name which is translated as "The Needle's Eye." Through this gate it is quite possible for a small undernourished camel, divested of all its equipment, harness, etc., by kneeling, to work its way, though not without difficulty. The gate is still in existence.

Mexico's Largest Pyramid

The pyramid at Cholula, west of the city of Puebla and about 60 miles southeast of Mexico City, is the largest in Mexico. Its base is 1,400 feet square and the altitude is 200 feet. Its volume is 130,666,600 cubic feet. This pyramid in Mexico has a greater number of cubic feet of masonry, although it is not so high, than the great pyramid in Egypt.

To Clean Rusty Steel

Rusty steel ornaments, fire irons and the like may be cleaned by being rubbed well with sweet oil, enough of the oil being allowed to remain on the article to soak in for some time.

Charity in Judgment

Those who themselves need the charitable judgment of other people should above all things be lenient in their own judgments. For my part, I consider the best and most finished type of man to be the person who is always ready to make allowances for others, on the ground that never a day passes without his being in fault himself, yet who keeps as clear of faults as if he never pardoned them in others.—Pliny the Younger.

Something Worth Living For

There is scarce any lot so low but there is something in it to satisfy the man whom it has befallen. Providence having so ordered things that in every man's cup, how bitter soever, there are some cordial drops—some good circumstances, which, if wisely extracted, are sufficient for the purpose he wants them—that is, to make him contented, and, if not happy, at least resigned.—Laurence Sterne.

Glycerin to Cool Steel

Glycerin and its water solutions have such good cooling powers that the bureau of standards of the Department of Commerce believes that it will span the gap between water and oil as a cooling medium. Glycerin has properties and characteristics distinctive from oil, which are apparently in its favor.

Belief in Vampires

No legend like the vampire is more common in central Europe and the Balkans, especially in Transylvania. It has persisted in the folklore of these peoples for ages, and in many Balkan villages there are persons today who are considered vampires and who not infrequently are found mysteriously dead, with their heads cut off and a stake driven through their hearts.

Famous Roman Roadway

About 312 B. C., Caesar Appius Claudius built the Appian way. This great 350-mile thoroughfare stretches out almost in a direct line from the walls of Rome in a southerly direction to Brundisium. Today, as in the days of ancient Rome, heavy oxen draw great loads of produce along this ancient road.

Height of Nervousness

"He was as nervous," we heard a girl say, "as a man trying to avoid tipping a waiter."—New York Evening World.

A CHANGED WORLD

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

I had a hundred-and-fifty-miles-long sermon preached to me, last week, and am moved, this morning, to pass a few furlongs of it on to you.

You see, it came about this way: Henry Ford Sedan and I took a trip from the old farm home up in eastern New York down to Norwich, to have one more look at the scenes where the now old man spent some busy years of youth, and to shake hands, once more, with a few of the veterans with whom he used to associate. And oh, the difference!

But it isn't about the changes in us that the sermon was preached. The years come and the years go. They take, every one of them, their inexorable toll. "There is no discharge in that war." This we all know. The subject is somewhat threadbare and over-worn. It would be difficult to find anything new or interesting to say about it. And, besides, who wants to waste good white paper and good black printer's ink on merely sentimental reminiscences of the days that were? Not we old guns, of all men. We may indeed be "has-beens," but at least we WERE. And, while there are chords of memory which thrill yet to the sound of old familiar voices and the touch of the friendly hands which once were stronger, we veterans are really more interested in what the young guns who have calmly slipped into the places we once filled are doing.

No; the sermon which interested me so much and took up so much of my thought in that hundred-and-fifty-mile drive was one with a highly up-to-date text and—I hope—some sort of appeal to even the cadets and raw recruits.

In those old days, forty or fifty years ago, I used to make that same journey when vacation leisure permitted or filial duty required. Though the distance was not great, the arrangements for it nevertheless required some adroit planning and involved no little study of time-tables. For the only way of making the trip was by railroad, and railroad connections were not always convenient or even sure. Of the four or five alternate routes the question always was which would enable me to catch trains at various junctions with the least delay, and bring me within footing distance of the farm by daylight. At the best, the train would drop me a long five miles away, with my shortest route thence over a steep mountain trail, through thick woods. Often, owing to constant changes in train time and failures of branch roads to connect, it was impossible to make the journey in any twenty-four hours. The trains ran fast enough when they were going. But I sometimes had to go a long ways round to get a little bit ahead. And long-distance connections frequently kept me dawdling at depressing junctions for hours at a time.

But this time it was different. When we got ready to start Back I gave Henry Ford Sedan a good drink of city water, an adequate foddering of gasoline, a dose of engine oil, and a casual once-over as to tires, spark-plugs, etc; stirred him up gently with the starting-clutch, and hey for the long ribbon of home-bound road, unwinding its concreted length endlessly before me! In all the trip I knew there was but a single mile of dirt road. The rest was all concrete or macadam. Also there was no hill which H. F. S. wasn't able and willing to negotiate "on high." Also, I was able to choose an almost air-line route along whose whole stretch there were to be no "Danger: Road Construction Ahead" signs. So, as soon as I had gotten out of city traffic and into the comparatively open roads of the country, I set the throttle at twenty-five miles an hour and —loafed. That's the true word for it. Sitting sheltered form both sun and wind in cushioned comfort, we laid the miles away behind us at what my friend of the highway department commends as a sane and safe speed. They meant little exertion and no worry to me. Henry simply ate them up with imperturbable good will and, apparently, equal comfort.

Just a gentle pressure, first on one side, then on the other, of the steering wheel as the road curved this way or that, an occasional touch on the brake as we went down a steep hill or a still lighter push against the accelerator as we breasted an ascent—that was all.

The touring season was past—thank heaven!—and traffic was light. I drove many miles without meeting a single other car. Nowhere, outside of the few towns I had to go through, was there anything suggestive of congestion. In one sense, it was like sailing one's boat across an open sea with no shoals or reefs to watch for and few other vessels to avoid.

It was just as soon as I got fairly settle down to this progress that the sermon began to take form. The last time—forty or more years ago, that I had driven over any of these roads was behind a horse. And it had to be a pretty good one if I expected to make an objective twenty-five miles away and get back the same night. The roads were all of dirt (and cobble-stones,) narrow, winding, rutted, steep and full of unexpected shaky little bridges or projecting boulders which good judgment advised the driving around. Possibly they might have been traversed in a high-powered car. But, if there had been such a thing in existence,—which there wasn't,—its manipulation would have been a constant worry and an incessant struggle with a wobbling wheel. Nor do I believe that even the best over-sized cord tires would have endured the punishment for long.

Yet here was I driving nonchalantly along roads as smooth as the top of a billiard table, as hard as the rock out of which they were made,—roads without unduly sharp curves, without difficult grades, with wide, substantial bridges over every stream with actually informative signboards at every junction, with monitory warnings unlifted before the approach of any remotely possible danger-point,—and roads pointing all the while with almost compass accuracy to my destination.

As I have said, there were many miles in which I saw no other vehicle. At such times I couldn't help feeling as if all that wonderful road had been built just for Henry Ford Sedan and I. I visualized the hundreds and thousands of men who had quarried out rock and broken it up, who had cut down hills and filled in swamps, who had labored in cement mills, who had shoveled uncounted loads of gravel, who had manipulated huge machines, who had driven innumerable work teams, who had labored for weary months and years to make the road over which I could drive in more than former safety and much more than former comfort at the steady road gait of a mile every two and five tenths minutes. And this not only for the short trip I was making. Why, had I been so minded, I could have kept on for day after day, till I had spanned more than half the continent on such roads.

"Old man," said my internal sermonizer to me, "You can appreciate as some of the youngsters can't what a difference this makes. You can remember What-Used-To-Be; thank your stars for What-Is."

Then that same inward preacher drew my attention to the auto in which I was riding. Now a Ford car is sneered at by many: it is called contumelious names: it is looked down upon from the seats of Rolls Royces and the like. I admit it isn't all for which wealth may hanker or vanity aspire. But, it gets there, just the same, and for those of us who must be rated in the more or less impecunious class it has its merits. Wherefore the preacher turned my thought to the simply incalculable amount of inventive genius, of mechanic skill, of steady labor which have made the modern automobile possible. How many brains have ached over the untangling of ignition and carburetor and other involved juzzles! How many workmen have struggled with refractory materials to combine in smooth running connection the numerous intricate parts, all of which must function with meticulous accuracy! How many laborers have toiled and sweated in dark mine galleries to get out those raw materials! What an army in dark mine galleries to get out those raw materials! What an army is constantly at work pumping up the crude oil and transforming it into the gasoline which supplies motive power!

Why, as these thoughts came drifting across my mind, it seemed as if the people of the United States must have been, at one time or another, engaged in making smooth his pathway for one insignificant old hayseed from a back farm! For once, at least, I felt humbled before the majesty of service, that vast, continent-wide service which has opened up the whole wide land to all who have time and opportunity and means to take advantage thereof. It seemed as if I ought to keep my hat off in mute recognition of what that Service had accomplished. I felt as if it was hardly respectful to wear it as unconcernedly as I would have done, forty years ago, driving a "top buggy" over roads little better than forest trails.

Well, you'll say, perhaps, "What has all this rhodomontade to do with farming and farmers?" Pardon me for suggesting, as deferentially as may be, that even a baggy-kneeded old farmer has the privilege, once in a while, of considering something else besides dirt, manure and weeds. I didn't think about good roads and automobiles all the time on that trip. Sometimes, as I drove by a swamp flaming with sumacs and soft maples, I recalled that other Burning Bush from which God once spoke to the Hebrew leader. And sometimes, as we smoothly climbed what once were rugged mountain passes, I thought of the inconceivable Power which had heaved up those mountains, and took to myself somthing of the strength which abides in their everlasting ridges.

Seems to me it is a good thing for the farmer man occasionally to give himself a temporary divorce from the worries and drudgeries of his daily grind and forget them, while letting his mind take a broader sweep over the natural world and his fellow humans. We have been told often enough that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. We do not need to be told that life-long residence in the same hen coop never opens up new pastures for even a Leghorn.

But, after all, the feeling which my hundred-and-fifty miles sermon left most sharply printed on my mind was that of a changed world. We see something of it in the new cement roads; we see something in the fifteen millions of cars which are reported to be using them.

We farmers have got to remake ourselves to fit that changed world, just as surely as other men.

And here I am at the end of my weekly tether, with no space left further to develop the sermon which that thought suggests! We shall have to leave consideration of it to another time. Meanwhile, suppose You take a whack at the idea, as you're going about your chores, and see if you can't make something out of it, applicable to yourself and your particular conditions.

Red Seal Records

	Number	DOUBLE-FACED List Price
Symphony in B Minor ("Unfinished") (Schubert) Stokowski and Philadelphia Orchestra
1st Movement—Part 1 / 1st Movement—Part 2	6459	$2.00
1st Movement—Part 3 / 2nd Movement—Part 1	6460	2.00
2nd Movement—Part 2 / 2nd Movement—Part 3	6461	2.00

The Philadelphia Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski here presents a contribution of the highest beauty and importance to the permanent music of the world—the immortal Unfinished Symphony of Franz Schubert. Three records are necessary to give it in full. It is a masterpiece of music, and a masterpiece of recording.

Quintette in E Flat Major (Schumann) Piano, Two Violins, Viola, 'Cello Ossip Gabrilowitsch with Flonzaley Quartet

1st Movement / 2nd Movement	6462	2.00
3rd Movement / Finale	6463	2.00

These extraordinary ensemble records introduce Ossip Gabrilowitsch, internationally famous pianist, composer, and conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, as a Victor Red Seal artist. In conjunction with the Flonzaley Quartet, he has recorded, entire, this monumental quintette for piano and strings—an achievement of the highest musical importance.

Melodious Instrumental

What'll I Do (from "The Music Box Revue") / Marchéta (Love Song of Old Mexico)	Victor Salon Orchestra	19433	.75

First record by this remarkable artist-organization. An enormously popular waltz hit arranged as a concert number, with a whole melody in violin-harmonics; and a companion scored with exquisite artistry.

Light Vocal Selections

Hard Hearted Hannah / Sweet Little You	Belle Baker / Belle Baker	19436	.75

Fox-trotty songs, the first of them in the manner of the African sister. You may have danced to "Sweet Little You." Fetching numbers, pleasingly sung, and clearly and strongly recorded.

How Come You Do Me, Like You Do? / Knock at the Door	Frank Crumit / Frank Crumit	19437	.75

Two songs in the "blues" rhythm, but happier in general idea. The melodies are light and catching; they are sung to the piano.

Dance Records

Tea for Two—Fox Trot (from "No, No, Nanette") / I've a Garden in Sweden—Fox Trot	The Benson Orchestra of Chicago / Waring's Pennsylvanians	19438	.75

A melodious, light, springy fox trot, with deft changes of key; and then a jolly companion for it, robust and full of color.

She Loves Me—Fox Trot (vocal refrain by Billy Murray) / Sioux City Sue—Fox Trot	International Novelty Orchestra / The Virginians	19439	.75

Two hilarious numbers. The first has unusual piano and saxophone rhythms; the second begins—and ends—to the choo-choo of a big locomotive.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

LACK OF HUMIDITY HARMFUL TO PEARS

According to a recent experiment conducted at the Oregon experiment station by Henry Hartman there are several important factors to be taken into consideration if one wishes to save a great loss in storage of pears. Mr. Hartman says that excessive loss of weight results in decreased tonnage and causes wilting, which seriously impairs the appearance of the fruit. A loss of three to four per cent in weight is usually sufficient to cause noticeable wilt. Insufficient humidity appears to be the chief casual agent in loss of weight. Storage at a relative humidity of 80 to 86 per cent practically prevents loss of weight in all cases.

The time of picking has a great bearing upon this loss of weight. Pears picked when they are immature lose more heavily than pears which have just reached maturity. The use of common fruit wraps and commercial oil papers does not seem to be effective in preventing loss of weight in pears.

This loss of weight is constant throughout the storage period and is accompanied by a corresponding loss in volume. Pears from heavily loaded trees are usually more advanced in maturity than those from lightly loaded trees in the same orchard. Pick may need to be done from eight to 10 days earlier on these heavily loaded trees than on the ones which have a lighter crop. These indicators of maturity, viz, ripening of imperfect specimens, changes of "ground" color and loss of bloom are more reliable than such indications as ease of separation from the fruit spurs, color of the seeds and size of the fruit.

Core rot in pears seems to be associated with over maturity. In general when pears are picked prematurely they will wilt in storage, becoming dull in appearance, and more or less astringent. When picked too late they lack in juiciness, and usually go down rapidly due to core rot.

Cockleburs as Poisonous Plants

Cocklebur plants are poisonous to swine, cattle, sheep and chickens, according to the experimental findings of the United States department of agriculture. For a long time many people have been convinced of the poisonous properties of cockleburs when eaten by livestock but this belief was not shared in by everybody, some contending that the deaths reported due to cockleburs were caused by the mechanical action of the burs rather than by any toxic effect of the plant.

A series of experiments carried on by the department in the years 1920, 1921, 1922, and 1923, to determine the poisonous character of cockleburs is the basis of a report just issued as department bulletin 1274, in which it is concluded that the cocklebur plant is poisonous to swine, cattle, sheep and chickens. There were in all 67 experiments with swine, 11 with sheep, 12 with cattle, and 19 with chickens.

To avoid the losses the most important thing is to prevent the animals from eating the weed, says the department. If there is a shortage of good forage, and animals find the young cocklebur plants, they may easily eat enough to cause serious results. Feeding milk to pigs immediately after they have eaten cockleburs has proved to be beneficial, probably because of the fat content. Successful results may be expected also, when such oils and fats as bacon grease, lard, and linseed oil are used as remedies.

While the burs may produce some mechanical injury and while the seeds are very poisonous, stock poisoning, the department concludes, is caused by feeding on the very young plants before the development of true leaves.

CONTROL OF CUCUMBER MOSAIC

Cucumber mosaic is one of the most serious diseases which affect cucumbers both in the field and in the greenhouse. This disease has caused extensive loss in the field for many years and occurs wherever cucumbers are grown throughout the eastern, southern, and central states. The losses from mosaic in the greenhouse have been on the increase during the past five years, and at the present time the greenhouse industry in certain sections is seriously threatened by the disease. It is not uncommon, says the United States department of agriculture, to find one-third to one-half of the plants in a house destroyed by the disease within three to five weeks, and the losses in a single locality during 1922 were estimated at $75,000. In many greenhouses the cucumber is being replaced by other crops as a result of continous losses from mosaic.

It has been found, however, that the disease can be successfully controlled under glass if its nature is understood and the proper precautions are taken during the early part of the season. If the houses are thoroughly fumigated at frequent and regular intervals to keep down aphids and other insects which spread the disease and all mosaic or suspected plants are cut off as soon as they are found, there should be little difficulty in reducing the losses from this disease. The nature of the disease, together with the results of experimental study in its control are described in a new bulletin just issued by the United States department of agriculture, as department circular 321, control of cucumber mosaic in the greenhouse.

POISON EMPLOYED TO KILL FIELD MICE

Very shortly, farmers will be thinking of using protectors around their orchard trees to keep mice away. Some persons have found that poisoned bait is as effective as wire or paper protectors around the trees. The bureau of biological survey of the United States department or agriculture give directions for poisoning field mice as follows:

"Preparation: Mix together, dry, one eighth ounce of powdered strychnin and one eighth ounce of baking soda. Sift the strychnin-soda mixture over one quart of rolled oats, stirring constantly to insure an even distribution of the poison through the grain. Heat the poisoned rolled oats in an oven until thoroughly warm. Mix three parts of melted beef fat with three parts of melted paraffin, and sprinkle six tablespoonfuls of this mixture over the warm poisoned rolled oats, mixing until the oats are evenly coated. Allow the grain to cool, when it is ready for use. If large quantities of the bait are needed, use one ounce of strychnin, one ounce of soda, eight quarts of rolled oats, and 1 1-4 pints of the beef fat-paraffin mixture.

"It is very important that in applying the coating the beef fat-paraffin mixture be hot and the poisoned rolled oats be thoroughly warm, otherwise it will not be possible to obtain an even coating.

"Distribution: Tablespoonful quantities of the poisoned rolled oats baits should be placed in small containers or stations to protect them from the weather, and these should be distributed over the infested area. The poisoned baits may also be scattered along runways and into entrances of burrows, a teaspoonful at a place. In orchards where mice are abundant it is advisable to place one poison container under each tree. These should be set close to the base of the tree to escape cultivating machinery and should be lightly covered with vegetation. prunings or some other material that will afford harborage for the mice. Poison containers should also be placed on high ground to avoid standing water and where a good circulation of air will aid in keeping the baits in good condition for long periods. They should be examined and refilled at least once a year late in fall, and preferable also in spring. With pioson stations properly placed, a maximum of protection is furnished at a minimum of labor and expense

"Poison Stations: Poison stations may consist of any object which will protect the bait from the weather and from birds and larger animals. Wooden boxes, drain tiles of 1 1-2 inch diameter, or larger, or wide mouthed jars or bottles serve the purpose fairly well. A homemade poison station consisting of two squares of lumber held apart by two short strips has proved most attractive to the mice A convenient size is a six-inch square for the top, while the two side walls should be 1 1-2 inches high. A depression should be cut in the bottom board of door to contain the poisoned bait. The whole may be fastened together with four nails.

"Caution: All poisoned baits and poison containers and utensils used in the preparation of poisoned baits should be kept plainly labeled and out of reach of children, irresponsible persons, and livestock."

Where there is danger of domestic animals eating this poisoned bait, the following might be used to good advantage because animals except mice, do not like sweet potatoes.

Cut sweet potatoes into pieces about the size of grapes. Place three quarts of these cut baits in a pan or bucket, and from a salt shaker slowly sift over them one-eighth ounce of powdered strychnin mixed with an equal quantity of baking soda, stirring constantly so that the poison is evenly distributed. (Poison should be applied as soon as potatoes are cut and bait should be put out while fresh.)

"One or two pieces of the bait should be dropped into the mouse tunnels through the natural openings or through openings made with the finger. Mole runways should be similarly poisoned as they usually harbor pine mice."

WHOLE OR CUT SETS IN POTATO GROWING?

The use of whole or of cut sets for seed in potato production has served as a subject of investigation for at least a century and a half and is still a moot question. A critical study of the literature on the subject leaves the impression that much of the data presented is inconclusive, says the United States department of agriculture. It also serves to convince the reader that much depends upon the manner in which the experiment was planned and executed whether whole or cut sets gave the most profitable yield.

The successful determination of the most profitable size of set to use and whether it should be planted whole or cut primarily involves a careful study of the proper spacing to give to each size of set in order to obtain the maximum yield.

Departmental studies covering several years show rather conflicting results so far as the yield of primes, or marketable potatoes, is concerned. The data, which is now published in a new bulletin just issued by the department as department bulletin 1246, clearly show that seasonal conditions have a very definite influence upon yield, particularly with respect to the size of the tubers. Abundance of moisture and plant food throughout the growing season insures a maximum crop from whole and large-sized cut sets, because fewer tubers are produced, and in consequence they have a better chance to reach marketable size.

There is a definite relation between the size of the set used and the number of stems and tubers produced to the set.

A study of stem-frequency correlation shows that as the weight of whole seed increases from 2 to 6 ounces the stem frequency shifts from three stems in the case of 2-ounce sets to seven stems in the case of 6-ounce sets. Halved seed shifts from 2, 4, 5, or 6 ounce tubers, show that the greatest stem frequency falls in the 2-stem column in the Presque Isle, Me., data. In the Virginia data whole sets shift from 3 to 5 stems, halved sets from 2 to 3 stems, and quartered sets from 1 to 2 stems.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

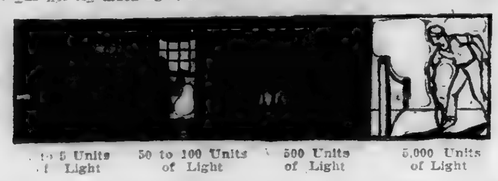
HELPS ABOUT HOUSE LIGHTING

The Proper Use of Light.

Have you ever gone into a room at night, and felt that there was too much light in the room. Perhaps it was because you came in out of the dark and your eyes were dazzled by the light. If this feeling of dazzle persisted there was surely something wrong with the lights.

It was not too much light, however.



5 Units of Light | 50 to 100 Units of Light | 500 Units of Light | 5,000 Units of Light

For in that room there was certainly not more than one-hundredth part of the light that we find during a clear day on the shady side of a tree or building. Nor one-five hundredth part of what we are accustomed to find in the bright sunlight. Surely, then, the trouble in that room was not too much light!

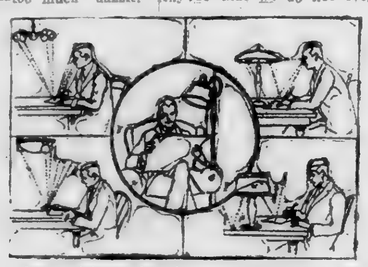
GLARE

The trouble in the room was too much glare—too much dazzle. Any bright light which shines directly into the eyes produces glare and eyestrain. This becomes more and more unpleasant as the light stands out with greater contrast to the darkness of the background.

Lights for use in the home have changed quite rapidly during the last two or three generations and a much better light was invented before we just put the new one in the place of the older one. First the candle was replaced by the oil lamp, and this in turn by the gas light. When the modern electric light bulbs or incandescent lamps were invented and used in homes instead of gas, they gave more light and were much brighter than anything we had before.

A bright light burning outdoors in the day might not even be noticed, and it would not cause glare because there would not be enough difference between the brightness of the light and the brightness of the daylight. However, at night this same light would be quite disagreeable and might not be very good for our eyes.

In order to protect our eyes, all lamp bulbs should be shaded in such a way that we cannot see the lighted filament or wire inside the bulb and so that we do not even see a very bright spot in the shade directly in front of this lighted filament. When lights are shaded in this way, it is hardly possible to get too much light for comfortable vision. Sometimes the use of frosted bulbs will help to remove annoying glare.



The two lower pictures show how to improve bad lighting. The man at the left shaded the light and changed his position the man at the right changed the shade on the table lamp. The picture in the center shows a good arrangement for reading.

Whenever you hear someone say that there is too much light in a room, it is safe to say the real trouble is not too much light, but rather that there is too much dazzle and glare and that the lights are not properly shaded.

ANOTHER KIND OF GLARE

How tired our eyes become after a day on the water, or when the sun shines brightly on the snow covered playground. Do you remember the mischievous boy in the classroom who caught a beam of sunlight in a mirror and reflected it into your eyes? It made you start. These things are particularly annoying because our eyebrows give us no protection from this indirect or reflected light which comes in from below the level of the eyes.

This kind of glare must also be guarded against if we are reading or writing on glossy paper. The light should come over the shoulder, or be directed to the page at such an angle that a beam of light from the lighted filament of a lamp bulb cannot be reflected up into our eyes. Lamps placed in front of a mirror and shaded by shields should not be placed in such a position that the mirror will reflect the image of the lighted filament of the lamp bulb back into our eyes and cause this kind of glare.

After Illness Get Strong Again With Cod Liver Oil

Every schoolboy as well as every grandmother, knows that Cod Liver Oil is a great strength creator and body builder—the best on earth.

But sick folks won't take the nasty tasting, horrible smelling, stomach upsetting oil and who can blame them?

And thanks to science—they don't have to—for now at any drug store in America you can get 60 McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets for 60 cents and before you have taken one box you will know why all the Doctors praise Cod Liver Oil and tell you that it is chock full of vitamines that build you up, make you strong and wonderfully aid digestion.

If you want to feel fit and fine all the time put your faith in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets — the original and genuine—as easy to take as candy and money back if they don't help you.

Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any real druggist about them. Mrs. T. Frahy, West Orange, N. J., writes: "I have been using McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets and they have been helping me wonderfully."

MYSTIC

Jennie White, wife of J. Edwin Thompson, who died Tuesday evening at Home Memorial hospital, New London, following an illness of about five weeks, was the daughter of Edwin and Martha York White and resided in North Stonington for many years prior to moving to Mystic a few years ago. She was a member of the Union Baptist church and Sunday school, also was a member of the Women's Missionary Society, Ladies' Aid Society and the Worldwide Guild; other organizations of which she was a member were North Stonington Grange, Parent-Teachers' Association, and she was treasurer of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. Thompson was a good neighbor and a loyal friend. She is survived by her husband, J. Edwin Thompson, four children, Lawrence, Evelyn, Arline and Arthur; a sister, Mrs. Leander E. Park of this place, a brother Arthur White of New London, and a half-sister, Mrs. Emma Stedman, of North Stonington.

The Parent-Teachers' Association is to meet this (Friday) evening at Mystic academy, this being the first meeting since the summer vacation. Arrangements will be made for the lecture to be given by Thomas Mott Osborne on Rebuilding Manhood.

The Garden club held a very interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alden Fish. Mrs. Louis P. Allyn, president, presided and Mrs. Charles H. Latham read a timely article in regard to the autumnal colors in trees, and several other short articles along this line were read. Mrs. L. P. Allyn brought a collection of attractive leaves of trees for identification and this proved an interesting feature. The work of planting the shrubs, vines, etc., adjacent to the new state highway over Baptist Hill was begun Tuesday and will be carried forward as rapidly as conditions permit. The work is in charge of Mr. Verkade of New London.

Vegetables are still obtainable in market and lima beans and corn are exceptionally good flavor and the corn in particular is as sweet as that in market earlier in the season. The supply is limited now and almost any night a frost may spoil what remains. The farmers have been harvesting their fruit as fast as it matures but considerable remains on the trees waiting for the sun to ripen it still further.

The Home Missionary Society of the Methodist church, which met on Tuesday afternoon in the chapel postponed the business meeting until next Tuesday.

Mrs. Sarah B. Barstow went to Waterford Monday to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dick and family have been in Boston recently to visit their daughter Carrie, who is ill in a hospital in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrell Brown and daughter have returned from a visit with relatives in St. John, N. B.

Mrs. W. E. Brown, Mrs. C. C. Dodd, Mrs. Ruth Dodd, of this place, and Mrs. Frances Geer of Norwich, grand marshal of the state of Connecticut, Order of Eastern Star, went to Providence Wednesday to attend the Rhode Island Grand Chapter meeting. Others who attended were Mrs. Charles Sweet, Mrs. Hillio Packer, Mrs. Millicent Kelly, Mrs. George H. Griswold, Jr., Miss Ethel W. Latham and Mrs. Emma R. Latham of Noank.

Helen Starkey Chapter of St. Mark's church met Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Lydia Perkins of Uncasville is the guest of Mrs. Warren Rathbun.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church met Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Samuel Z. Chesebro of Middletown has been the guest this week of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Haley.

Raymond L. Snell is spending a few days in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Colby and family have returned from a stay of several weeks at their cottage at Groton Long Point.

Mrs. J. E. E. Brown has arrived home from a visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albertis Brown, in Hartford.

Mrs. Irvin Haley is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Billings Crandall at Gales Ferry.

Mrs. Edward Smith and son Raymond are planning a trip to Cape Cod.

Mrs. Ebenezer Morgan has returned from a visit with Northampton, Mass., friends.

Williams Woman's Relief Corps No. 42, met Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ella Perkins of Uncasville, Mrs. Minnie Fowler and daughter, Mrs. Ruth King, of Norwich, were guests this week of their cousin, Mrs. Frank Dickinson.

BROUGHT SUIT AGAINST BOSTON MANUFACTURER

Abraham Hirsch of New London has brought suit in the superior court for $445 against Victor Miller of Boston doing business as the Canton Clothing Manufacturing Co. The case has been transferred from the common pleas court and is accompanied by a bill of particulars for making 123 dozen pants at $3.60 per dozen, or $442.80. Twentyone sewing machines, cloth and other articles have been attached.

LIBERTY HILL

A. W. Noyes, of Chicago, general passenger agent of Chicago Great Western railroad, called on friends here Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Wachtel went to New York Monday. Mr. Wachtel is having a vacation as mail carrier. Richard Dimon is substituting on the route.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Foote entertained over the week-end Mrs. Foote's sister-in-law, Mrs. Elisha Spafford, her son Harry and daughter, Carrie, and Mrs. Chauncey Brown of Glastonbury. They attended church here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Adams and J. Earl James and family visited Mr. Adams' parents in North Westchester Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Harrison and children of North Branford and Carl H. Lewis, father of Mrs. Harrison, visited their cousin, J. George Clark Monday. Mr. Lewis is a graduate of Yale and has taught school 27 years and been supervisor and superintendent of schools three years. He has now retired.

Miss Laura Green substituted at the piano at church Sunday morning for Mrs. Clarence R. Adams. The former's sister, Miss Lucy Green, sang a hymn Sunday which was a pleasing addition to the service. Miss Green has a sweet voice and all enjoy her singing.

The Men's club held the October meeting Tuesday evening at the church rooms. A speaker from Storrs college was present and gave a talk.

Henry H. Starkweather of Danielson called on friends here Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke and Mrs. Annie L. Harvey are in Schenectady visiting Mrs. John Clarke's and Mrs. Harvey's sister, Mrs. Ella Loomis.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert James and family were in Willimantic Tuesday afternoon attending the funeral of Mrs. James' grandmother, who was 93.

SPRING HILL

At the annual town meeting Monday there were 249 ballots cast. 126 straight republican and 50 straight democratic. The average republican vote was 10, and the following were declared elected: Assessor, George S. Clark; board of relief, Albert E. Anthony; selectmen, Daniel C. Flaherty, Robert W. Gardiner, Clark H. Crane; agent of town deposit fund, Llewellyn J. Storrs; auditors, Frank W. Millard, George H. Andrews; grand jurors, Walter F. Storrs, Albert E. Anthony, Frank W. Millard, Willard B. Farrington; collector of taxes, Henry E. Knowlton; constables, Charles G. Hall, Wayne L. Storrs, James J. Kerwin, Edward J. Champlin; registrar of voters, Frank W. Millard, Edwin W. Slater; town school committee, T. Arthur Barrows, M. Hibbard Parker, Fracis R. Fish.

Mrs. Harriet B. Micha and Miss Ebba Smith were ballot clerks; James O'Sullivan was booth tender; Walter F. Storrs was box tender and Mrs. Theoda Swift checker.

At the business meeting in the afternoon George H. Andrews was appointed moderator. After the usual amount of discussion and hot air, the following was voted: To attempt the reprt of the town officers; to leave the repairs of the highways in the care of the selectmen; to close a short stretch of highway at Mount Hope on which there are two old bridges; a committee, Ivan F. Wilcox, George S. Clark and George H. Andrews, was chosen to investigate the call for more schoolhouses and report at the next annual meeting. T. Arthur Barrows, for school committee, received the largest number of votes, 181.

The Ladies' Aid society served a baked bean dinner at the church Monday as usual.

You are loaded like a coolie, or a Zulu carrier, now;
High as a drum-major's busby rise piled worries from your brow.

You are swaddled like an onion under layers of thick coats—
He has lost the race at starting, who an inessential totes!—
Do you sneeze at thought of breezes, don't you want rain on your skin?
The answer's plain: to try were vain; stay in, old dear; stay in.

Cower round the niggard fire grudged you by your higher-up;
Bow to bondage, fawn and flatter, drain to lees Sloth's sour cup;
Weakness sits at second-table in the banquet-feast of Life;
Do you brave first-hand refreshments? Then wade in; and laugh at strife!

You've been only flirting, so far, with intent to do and win;—
When it grips you, when it wrings you through the marrow, you will grin
At the small considerations; the contemptible poor trash
That you once allowed to crowd you—and you'll MAKE the dash!

Shrink from no one, wince at nothing; leave behind the mean and base;
Let the wind of prairie spaces have your hair; the sun, your face.
There is nothing that can stop you; none may hinder or delay;
From the gun and to the wire all your track's a straightaway!

If you'd be a first-class sprinter, with a strong and lengthy stride,
If you'd take-off a jump finish when you reach the Great Divide,—
You must cut out inessentials such as greed, fear, anger, spite,
On your mark! Get set! and FORWARD! Life's a game, a race, a fight!

Palace Theater

A gale of sparkling comedy breezed into the Palace theater last night and brought with it all the laughter which any audience could possibly give to one evening's entertainment. The cause of this laugh storm was Douglas MacLean in his new starring comedy-success Never Say Die.

This production surpasses in entertainment anything which Douglas MacLean has ever given to the screen. He has a brand of humor all his own. The picture is an adaptation of William Collier's famous stage success which ran for a year on Broadway. The screen version is even more thrilling and funny than the stage play due to the wider scope of the motion picture camera and a perfect continuity. The tempo mounts into faster and faster action until the last burst of hilarious laughter in the final scenes.

Actual scenes of the World series, showing the second third and fourth games, Pathe news, Short Light and Lee Maloney in a two reel western thriller. Warned in Arvance complete the bill.

Broadway Theater

In her new Paramount pict ure, Her Love Story, which is scheduled for an early showing at the Broadway theater, Gloria Swanson proves the truth of that old adage: Love makes the world go round. Of course, there are all kinds of Love, but it is safe to assume that the man or woman who first uttered those words of wisdom had in mind mother-love. Because mother-love is the only real, pure, genuine, unselfish love that will stand every acid test.

Her Love Story, was adapted from Mary Roberts Rinehart's story, Her Majesty, the Queen. Mrs. Rinehart, besides being one of the greatest of living novelists, has born and raised five sons, so that when she writes of mother-love, it is from the angle of a woman who is thoroughly familiar with her subject.

Glorious Gloria plays the part of the Queen, and Allan Dwan, who produced the picture, has surrounded her with a capable cast. Among others you will see Ian Keith, George Fawcett, Mario Majeroni and Donald Hall.

We suggest every mother see this picture! Sure, take dad and the kiddies! They'll enjoy it too!

Broadway Theater

Of course, you'll see another perfect show of vaudeville and pictures at the Broadway the last half of this week.

The vaudeville program was arranged as follows: Arch and Veeda offered a clever routine of songs and steps.

Golden and White, those smart syncopators, followed in a pleasing offering.

Cupids Close Up in third spot scored highly. The three people in this company made this act a great comedy.

Stanley Chapman, who is more to be pitied than censored, kept all in convulsions of laughter.

The Zellias Sisters closed this fine program with a clever routine of acrobatics.

It would be impossible to choose a theme containing more of the element of suspense than Empty Hands, Paramount's latest cinema thriller which opened at the Broadway theater last night for a three day run. The story of a man and a woman lost in the woods, battling for survival and for the retention of their own self-respect, grips the interest of the audience right from the start and holds it through to the finish. The method of handling the plot makes it impossible to forecast the final outcome.

Jack Holt is the strong, handsome mining engineer and Norma Shearer, one of screendom's loveliest actresses, has the role of the up-to-date Eve. The rest of the supporting cast includes Charles Clary, Gertrude Olmsted, Ramsey Wallace, Ward Crane, Hank Mann and Hazel Keener.

Film fans in search of novel screen fare will made no mistake by seeing Empty Hands.

Breed Theater

After witnessing Little Robinson Crusoe, Jackie Coogan's latest Metro-Goldwyn picture, now showing at the Breed theater, the wonder arises why this film wasn't made sooner! It is so obvious that Jackie should appear in a juvenile version of the famous Robinson Crusoe story—the famous boy star in the immortal tale of a desert isle.

Only this isle, as pictured by Willard Mack, who wrote the story, is far from uninhabited; it is filled with cannibals, and right there is the material that makes this feature one of the most humorous entertaining films of the year. Jackie's adventures realize to the full every dream of boyhood days, and it is, for once, not too much to say that the picture is a "knock-out."

Perhaps the only criticism we can make of this production, which was supervised by Jack Coogan, Sr., is that it is too short. We could stand a great deal more of the comedy and adventurous stuff which are woven so skillfully into this story.

William Duncan in The Fast Express, Larry Semon in The Gown Shop and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

On the Week's New Records

Thousands of music lovers would go through life without the experience or opportunity to hear such works as Schubert's Unfinished Symphony (Symphony in B Minor) were it not for records such as those by Stokowski and the Philadelphia orchestra issued this week. These records form a contribution of the highest beauty and importance to the permanent music of the world.

Orchestration is the order of the week. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony, co-operates with the Flonzaley quartette in recording the four movements of Schumann's "Quintette in E Flat Major." None who loves symphonic music (this work has the compass of a symphony) will ever tire of these records—rehearing but reveals ever new beauties.

The heroines of Belle Baker's two records this week are studies in contrasts, certainly revealing the attraction of opposites. "Hard Hearted Hannah" is ice and carborundum while "Sweet Little You" speaks for herself. Both songs are fox-trotish.

There's more dolor to the thought of Frank Crumit's two "blues" records this week than to the reality. "How Come You Do Me, Like You Do?" and "Knock at the Door" are like a battle and reconciliation.

Two interesting records are offered by the Victor Salon orchestra, the first being Irving Berlin's deservedly popular "What'll I Do" arranged as a concert number with a hole melody in violin harmonics. "Marcheta" the second number, is described as a "love song of Old Mexico," and is said to be a favorite with the Queen of England.

All the dance records are fox trots this week, though of course you can dance to the concert waltzes just mentioned. The Boston orchestra of Chicago takes "Tea for Two" from "No No Nanette" and makes a light, deft dance of it. "I've a Garden in Sweden" by Waring's Pennsylvanians on the other side is stout and colorful.

The party gets lotous at the end with Billy Murray and International Novelty Orchestra making hilarious going over "She Loves He," including kisses and yum-yum effects. "Sioux City Sue" by the Virginians starts and ends with some realistic locomotive stuff.

At Osgood Memorial

Mabel Francis Knight who appears at the Osgood Memorial, Park church, Friday evening ceremonially received the name Ta-de-win in the presence of the Omaha tribe of Nebraska. In the summer of 1922 Miss Knight was the only white person in camp with 1400 Omaha men, women and children at the time of their annual celebration and took an active part in their feats, games and dances.

Miss Knight will give the following program illustrating the music, legends and dances of our first American, the Indian:

Indian musical instruments, flute, rattle, whistle and drum.

Indian musical selections for the piano: Ripe Corn dance, flute call; Ichibuzzhi, Offering of the Sacred Pipe; Zon-zi-mon-de, the Chattering Squaw; Music of the Calumet.

Our Indians of today and how they helped us in the past.

Legends told to Ta-de-win by the Indians themselves: Stories of Kluskabe, How the Karoks got the Fire Brand, Adventures of Old Moshop, Cotton Tail, and other legends.

Three Original Omaha Songs and Dances.

Three Abenaki ceremonial Indian dances (with Drum and Rattle): Passamaquoddy Snake Dance, Micmac Scalp dance, Penobscot Wedding dance.

Miss Knight has appeared recently before the Buffalo Historical society, the New England Woman's club, Columbia University, Institute of Arts and Sciences (fifth appearance) and Lewis H. Morgan Chapter, N. Y. State Archeological society.

Connecticut College Concert

"A new star has appeared on the horizon," wrote one of the noted reviewers, when Elly Ney made her American debut in New York. Much had been written about the pianiste, long celebrated in Europe. She had been hailed there as "the female Paderewski." She had been described also as the greatest exponent of Brahms. Russians had declared her one of the supreme interpreters of Chopin and Tschaikowsky.

Carnegie Hall housed an unusual audience that afternoon. It taxed the capacity of the auditorium and had come from a variety of motives. Yet before Mme. Ney had been playing ten minutes, a homogenity was noticeable. A piano recital had become something more than that; it had become a pilgrimage to the shrine of a great composer. Elly Ney was his priestess, giving forth his message as only a great artist could communicate it.

Mme. Ney has won unusual favor as soloist with orchestra. During her first season in America she had four appearances with the New York Philharmonic orchestra under four different conductors, Mengelberg, Stransky, Richard Strauss and Willem Van Hoogstraten. She will appear as soloist with the orchestra when it comes to New London Monday October 20, to open the series of concerts sponsored by Connecticut college.

"ALWAYS MORE FOR LESS"

WESTERLY

A verdict for the defendant was returned by the jury Thursday afternoon at 4.25 in the automobile collision case in suit for substantial damages, Albertus R. Maxson vs Ernest Jones, began Wednesday morning in the Westerly session of the superior court. The jury with Everett Barnes foreman returned to the jury room at 2.50 where they remained for about an hour and a half.

The superior court resumed session Thursday morning at 10.30 o'clock with Dr. Michael H. Scanlon on the witness stand. Other witnesses for the plaintiff were Dr. George R. Barden of St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, Harriet B. Maxson wife of defendant, and Joseph M. Dussault.

Mrs. Edith Jones, wife of the defendant was the first witness called for the defense and was followed by other members of the Jones family. Attorney Bathbun completed his plea to the jury before the noon recess. Following the recess Attorney Ledwidge for a half hour presented the plaintiff's case, the jury were then charged by Judge Sumner and retired. The computed amount of actual damage was laid by the plaintiff amounted to $1,729.95.

After the retirement of the Maxson jury, Westerly Motors, Inc., vs Walter M. Broadfoot was called and a default entered, after Broadfoot had been called to come into court and made no appearance.

Westerly Lumber Co. vs Frank Tuori, in which previously Attorney Ferguson stated he was unable to get in touch with client was next called and allowed to stand.

Trial of the case of Edna M. Gregory vs Joseph E. Stedman, an action to recover for wages alleged due was begun with the following jury: John Hopkins, Richmond (Foreman); Geo. H. Chappell, South Kingstown; Joseph D. Wilcox, Westerly; Edward L. Gavitt, Westerly (excused); Hector A. Lafreniere, North Kingstown; William A. Sheridan, South Kingstown; Edgar Howard, Westerly (excused); William H. Clark, Hopkinton; Edwin Northrup, Exeter; Roland Habard, South Kingstown; Walter L. Northrup, South Kingstown; M. DePietro, South Kingstown and S. Gillies, South Kingston.

Edna M. Gregory testified that $38 was the approximate amount due her. She was followed by her mother, Mrs Edith Gregory. Attorney Dunn then had the jury drawn for a motion in which he argued that evidence should have been introduced to show that the daughter had been emancipated, which had not been done before the plaintiff rested. Judge Sumner granted the non-suit and the jury was dismissed.

For today (Friday) the following cases will be called: Marguerite Burdick vs Almeda Varian, Angelo Algiero vs Angelo Turo et al, and Empire Cream Separator Co. vs C. Palmer Chapman.

It was voted that notes of the town of Westerly be issued in the amount of $50,000, dated Nov. 1, 1924 and payable on the first day of May 1925, for the purpose of providing funds necessary to the construction and maintenance of main drains and public sewers.

At the October town council meeting notification having been received from the Rhode Island public utilities commission of permit No. 863 having been granted, for the Sullivan Granite works at Bradford to operate a spud track at grade across the highway there, the privilege was voted by the council.

Milk dealer licenses were granted Varian B. York and James Verbeck.

On motion of Councilman Fowler, seconded by Councilman Rossi

A communication was received from the Westerly school committee by E. P. Maxson, clerk, stating that the school committee had voted to discontinue the use of the Avondale and Bradford schoolhouses stating that the town was at liberty to sell the same.

Adverse comment was given overseer of the Poor Oliver Crandall's report for $628.49 expended as no itemized statement of receipts and expenditures of this department of the town was available. It was suggested that the manner of conducting this department be brought before the next financial town meeting for remedy.

Westerly police bills were voted paid as follows: Automobile hire, $5; special police, $436.50; George Hoxie, Watch Hill patrolman's bill being $432; motorcycles, $118.35; telephone and telegraph $36.18; and miscellaneous $301.26, of which $231.88 was for police revolvers. The total bills were $897.29. Councilman Fowler questioned the larger amounts for itemization and Town Solicitor Ferguson declared the police should be furnished with up-to-date handcuffs.

The report of Health Officer Dr. Samuel C. Webster showed two cases of whooping cough one of scarlet fever and one of spinal meningitis. Councilman Thomas Morrison stated that the attention of the health officer had been called to the unsanitary conditions at the corner of Canal street and Railroad avenue in front of the Chester block. He said that the Westerly health officer had taken no action here, although he had received numerous complaints. Foul odors arise a culvert at this point, which is nothing more than an open and public vent for private sewers. At a recent cleaning of this pocket no less than three pipes were found running through this catch basin. Present sewage installation does not include Railroad avenue. It is apparent that no action will be taken here until an epidemic may be the cause for interference from state sources.

Report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown showed seven arrests during September, with one taken into custody. The cases were operating automobile while intoxicated, 1; operating automobile without license, 1 operating automobile without registration, 1; intoxication, 1; reckless driving, 1; and the possession of intoxicating liquors, 2.

Town of Westerly bills were voted paid as follows: Water works bills, $5,942.25; sewer bills, $5,99.95; poor department bills, 626.49; a total of $7,170.59. Other bills paid were miscellaneous, $936.14; town hall, $828.28; printing and advertising, $254.02; street lights, $1,313.14; labor on shade trees, $225; new school buildings, $10,598.39.

Councilman Charles Fowler brought up the matter of a boulevard system of highways for Westerly, stating that he had been in Louisville, Ky., recently where such a system works out advantageously. He recommended that Elm, School and Granite streets be made boulevards for the beginning of such a system and that the word "stop" be marked on the intersecting streets to these thoroughfare, saying that traffic signals would then be unnecessary.

Councilman Rossi stated that Charles P. Ecclestone had offered to the town as a public dump the low place in the extension of Narragansett avenue to Tower street, and it was the sentiment of the council that it be accepted as such and marked "town dump."

The application of Proprietor Kebabian of the Plimpton hotel at Watch Hill for permission to erect an 8 space private garage off the Bay street highway was held for further investigation.

Councilman Rossi asked for permission to hold a parade in the celebration of Columbus day by Westerly societies, saying in this connection a band concert was planned for Wilcox park, and permission had been obtained for a fireworks display on the Westerly playground. It was voted.

Wilson D. Main was in New York Tuesday and attended the fourth baseball game between the Senators and Giants.

A stated communication of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., was held Tuesday evening in the Masonic rooms on High street.

"No Parking, N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co." is the sign erected on railroad property at the eastward of the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad Wednesday morning.

The work of clearing out the refuse and waste matter from the banking room of the Washington Trust Co., in the new building at the corner of Main and Broad streets continues, so that by the time the interior staging is removed there will be a clear floor space.

Frank L. Burness of Pawcatuck, who has been visiting in Atlantic City, the past week, is spending the present week in Washington.

At the October meeting of Westerly Board of Trade Tuesday evening, Oct. 14th, Richard B. Watrous, secretary of the Providence Chamber of Commerce, will speak on The Value to a Community of an Active Board of Trade.

Rev. J. Alexander Morris addressed the Colored Political club of Westerly at 43 Pierce street Wednesday evening at an oyster supper, the subject of his remarks being Appeal to Caesar.

Lorano Macomber returned Monday evening from a two months' visit in New Hampshire and New York state.

At their rooms on Union street on Tuesday evening the annual meeting of Rhode Island Steam Fire Engine Co. No. 1, resulted as follows: Foreman, Maurice Laing; first lieutenant, Henry Cottrell; second lieutenant, William Thompson; clerk, Arthur Clemens; treasurer, Earl Palmer; steward, Mitchell Roberts.

Narragansett council, No. 21, K. of C., Tuesday evening held an installation at their council rooms on Main street. The installation was by District Deputy John J. Black of Providence, assisted by his warden, Lewis Wynn. The following officers were installed: Edward J. Butler, grand knight; Russell Lenihan, deputy grand knight; James A. Donahue, chancellor; James McCormick, recording secretary; James F. Spellman, financial secretary; John H. McGuire, treasurer; Richard J. Butler, Jr., lecturer; Louis Phelan, warden; Angelo Pucci, inside guard; Thomas Donovan and Louis Toskas, outside guards; Cornelius L. Murphy, trustee for three years.

At her home, 55 Cross street Monday evening at 8.30 o'clock occurred the death of Mrs. Jane Rae Lobban Aiken.Aiken, wife of Alexander Aiken after a long illness. Mrs. Aiken was born in Aberdeen, Scotland July 17, 1859. She was a member of Clan Lady Leslie Lodge and of the Congregational church. She leaves, besides her husband, five daughters, Mrs. James Ray with whom she lived; Mrs. Elizabeth Blatcher of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. John Bain of Westerly, Mrs. Edward Russell of Providence and Mrs Clarence A. Vars of Westerly; also two sons, Alexander G. Aitkin of Boston and John Aitkin of Charlotte, N. C.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna M. Wilson, widow of Edgar L. Wilson were held Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur N. Nash, 160 West Broad street. Rev. Byron U. UNCLE SAM'S MASTER AND CREW HELD IN $2,500 BONDS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 9.—The master and crew of the motorboat Uncle Sam (there are a couple men in the group) depraved looking fellows, were before U. S. Commissioner Earl Matthewson of Norwich, at the local custom house at 4 o'clock this afternoon and were held for trial in the United States district court in a bond of $2500 each. The Uncle Sam had all the booze she could well carry and didn't stop a bit of it. The Cutter Tampa was on the lookout for the boat, the appearance of which was proof positive that she had a load of liquor. She was well down in the water so that a heavy sea would have washed over her. The men aboard are of the ignorant sort manifestly. They were not supplied with money, but that is not an indication that they did not have cash where they could command it when the time to produce it arrives. It is not believed that they acted of their own volition when they secured the liquor—it cost too much for any such presumption to be considered as likely. It has not been disclosed for whom they were carrying the stuff, nor is it known where the destination was to be.

The republican senatorial district delegates for New London and Groton are to nominate a candidate for Senator next Tuesday at the county court house here.

Harriet Benham and Margaret Ganley, inmates of the Hillside home here, have been committed to the state hospital for the insane at Norwich. Their mental condition is believed to be such as will be improved by treatment at the state hospital.

The laying of cement at the intersection of Montauk avenue and Town Hill for a state road was begun today and is being carried on with a speed that insures the completion of the highway in a few days. The change will be greatly appreciated by automobilists who have been obliged to detour to get into or come from Waterford. The work has long been in progress but it has included changes in the road, the sidewalks and the gutters.

Andrew Daniels of Mystic; George Cowles, Waterford; Mrs. Timothy O'Neil, Pleasant street, and Paul Sley, Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

A robe was stolen from the public service automobile owned by William Parmalee, Broad street, early this morning while the car was parked on Main street, near Church street.

Mischievous youths smashed three large windows in the Robert Bartlett school, corner of Broad street and Connecticut avenue late yesterday afternoon or last evening. The acts of the boys was reported to the police today.

Ruby Girard, about 19, residing in Worcester, Mass., was arrested late last night at the union station by Sergeant Louis Green, of the force of police of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, charged with vagrancy. This morning, when the girl was presented in the police court, the case was continued until Jan. 10, 1925, with the understanding that the girl get out of town and remains away from New London. Should she return the girl will receive a jail sentence.

The girl was in New London a few weeks ago and at that time she consorted with sailors, one of which is stationed at the submarine base and whom the girl declares she is engaged to marry. However at that time Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy ordered the girl to leave the city for the latter was frequently seen in the company of numerous bluejackets. Mrs. Cassidy also requested Sergeant Green to apprehend the girl should the latter again be observed loitering about the depot. Last night when the train from Worcester arrived at 10.30 o'clock the girl was seen to alight by Sergeant Green, who placed the girl under arrest and took her to the police station. The girl carried a Boston bag, but there was nothing in it in the shape of apparel. The girl did not have funds, being penniless and stated that she intended to go to the submarine base and secure financial assistance from the sailor whom she expected to wed. To insure the girl being prevented from continuing in sailor company, she was made a prisoner until the convening of court this morning. Following the girl's arraignment in court she was taken by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who saw to it that she boarded a train that would carry her back home.

D. Dow Bentley, Andrew J. Bentley, Mary Bentley Keeney and Ruth Bentley O'Neill have sold to Helen Bartnycka a house and lot on Cedar Grove avenue.

Harold May has returned to his home on Prest street, having spent several days in New York.

Miss Inez B. Tiffany, 3 Barrows court, is spending a week with relatives in Hampton.

Miss Elsa Bachert, Connecticut avenue, clerk in the office of Attorney Arthur B. Calkins, is spending a week with friends in New York.

Director of Finance Carey Congdon has resumed his duties in the municipal building after a motor trip through New York state.

As the result of Mrs. Jennie Lenox Gorman, 21 North Bank street, engaging in a quarrel with Florence Drake, waitress at the O. K. restaurant, 44 North Bank street, this afternoon, Mrs. Gorman will be in the police court tomorrow morning on charges of breach of the peace and conducting a disorderly house.

During the early afternoon Mrs. Gorman went to the restaurant and there, it is alleged, she abused the Drake woman, applying vile names to her. The quarrel soon became so noisy that it was believed the two women would come to blows, but this was prevented by employes of the place. The Gorman woman then sought revenge by going to the police station and lodging complaint against the waitress, the Gorman woman charging Miss Drake with breach of the peace, Sergt. Nelson Smith and Patrolman Dennis Murphy were assigned to the complaint and when the officers arrested the Drake woman the latter lodged a counter complaint against Mrs. Gorman. Both were held in bonds of $50 for trial tomorrow and both furnished sureties on their respective bonds.

The trouble did not end there, but was only beginning for the Gorman woman, since the Drake girl is alleged to have supplied the officers with information that Mrs. Gorman was maintaining a house of ill repute. In a short time Sergeant Smith and Patrolman Murphy and Policewoman Jane Cassidy had rounded up Mrs. Gorman again, also Grace Pringle and Lillian Caughey, the last named former wife of a New London printer, and James Moore, the three being charged with frequenting. Mrs. Gorman was held in bonds of $500 for trial tomorrow, but could not obtain a surety on her bonds, so was locked up for the night. The other two women and Moore were held in bonds of $100 each. They could not obtain a surety and also were locked up for the night.

The house has been complained against several times of late as being a place resorted to for immoral purpose and has been watched by the police, but nothing to indicate the truth of the allegation was revealed until the quarrel of the two women today.

Mrs. Isabelle Silva, 168 Shaw street, late this afternoon lodged complaint with the police that boys had damaged her property by smashing windows. Patrolman Patrick Sheehan rounded up the offenders and supplied their identity to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The youths will be presented in the juvenile court the latter part of the week.

Mrs. Mary Cronin, 75, widow of Daniel Cronin, died late this afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. James Sharrock, 313 Montauk avenue. Besides Mrs. Sharrock, Mrs. Cronin is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Mary Kenealy and Miss Mary Cronin, both of Bridgeport, and by a son, John Cronin, of Salem, Mass., and by seven grandchildren. Mrs. Cronin formerly resided in Derby and the body will be forwarded to that city for burial. Mrs. Cronin had been in ill health sometime, but had only been confined to her bed since last Friday.

Miss Ella Howard of Walker street, employed as secretary to City Manager William A. Holt, and Miss Isabelle Austin, Gorton street, employed as clerk in the office of Director of Finance Carey Congdon, who are on vacations, are now in New York, where they will terminate their trip this week.

William Elwood, employed as night watchman by the several banking institutions, is having a vacation of a fortnight. During his absence from duty his place is being taken by Frederick Manchester, a former member of the New London police department.

Oliver A. DeWolf, 14 Ledyard street, informed the police tonight that last night thieves visited the yard of his residence and stole several articles of ladies' silk undergarments that were suspended from a clothesline.

A commercial automobile in which there were several calves bound to a Douglass street abattoir rounded the corner of State and Main streets this evening with such speed that one of the animals was thrown from the machine and to the pavements. The calf was not injured, for it scrambled to its feet immediately, but instead of running away it was captured by Traffic Officer Clarence Wells. The driver of the machine was not aware of the loss of the calf and continued to his destination. The calf was placed in a barn, where it was later claimed by the driver of the automobile.

The force of laborers at work on that part of Bank street known as Town Hill began today the task of completing the improvement to the highway there that has been in progress several weeks by starting the laying of cement. The work, it is planned, will be completed within a fortnight.

Frank T. Johns, candidate of the socialist labor party for president, spoke this evening at the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, State street. The speaker had a very small audience, for at no time of his hour's discourse was there more than a score of listeners of his remarks.

Mrs. Ida B. Loiselle, 69, wife of F. Joseph Loiselle of 594 Bank street, died at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital late Tuesday from pneumonia. Mrs. Loiselle was taken ill about six weeks ago with diphtheria and about a week ago pneumonia developed. She is survived besides her husband by two sons, Russell Hutchinson of Taunton, Mass., and George T. Hutchinson, Chicago, and by a daughter, Mrs. Harold J. Campbell, of Florence, Mass. Mrs. Loiselle had resided in New London about two years.

Mrs. Jennie L. Thompson, 50, wife of J. Edwin Thompson, of Pearl street, Mystic, died Tuesday at the Home Memorial hospital from pneumonia. Mrs. Thompson was a native of North Stonington, the daughter of Edwin and Martha York White. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Lawrence and Arthur Thompson, and by two daughters, Misses Arlene and Evelyn Thompson, all of Mystic. A brother, Arthur T. White, of New London, and a sister, Mrs. Leander F. Park, of Mystic, also survive.

Complaint was made to the police on Wednesday that a dangerous obstruction existed on Pratt street. A large quantity of sand has been deposited in the highway and without lights to denote the existence of the danger. The sand, it was stated, is the property of John Turello, a contractor.

Patrolman Augustus Ray visited relatives in Brooklyn Tuesday also witnessed the fourth game of the world series in which the Senators defeated the Giants.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of John Bartolucci, 26 East street, to be returned to the owner. Bartolucci's automobile was recently found wrecked on the outlying district of Groton, the car having crashed against a stone wall and badly damaged. Bartolucci was at first believed to have been operating his car while under the influence of liquor, but this charge could not be substantiated when the police of Groton investigated the accident. Commissioner Stoeckel has also approved of the right to operate of Ernest L. Howard, 69 Rosemary street.

Paul Bedleda was taken into custody by Sergt. Nelson Smith Wednesday at the request of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, the young man apparently being on the verge of falling into ways of vice. He was later taken in charge by his father and was returned to his home.

The Groton police are seeking the whereabouts of a young couple, who are representing themselves to be husband and wife, but who are believed to be a pair of crooks. It is alleged that the young man and woman recently secured lodging accommodations in a private family in the borough and when the opportunity presented itself the rooms of other lodgers were ransacked and plunder was taken. It is also known that the young man secured title in a second-hand automobile in this city by passing a fraudulent check upon a garage man.

MAY WINS FROM MORGAN; NOMINATED FOR SENATOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Oct. 9.—The democratic senatorial convention of the 18th senatorial district was held this afternoon at the courthouse, James A. May, New London, son of James R. May, democratic nominee for comptroller, being nominated. The nomination was contested, for Attorney G. Curtis Morgan sought to be the choice of the party for the office. Mr. May, however, carried seven votes, while Mr. Morgan had one less. Charles J. Ducy attacked the eligibility of Attorney Morgan for the office. Mr. Ducy attacked Mr. Morgan vigorously, alleging that Morgan was a republican Daniel J. Lucy, who nominated Morgan, spoke in protest of the allegation against the candidate, stating that Morgan had been a democrat many years, and referred to measures that Morgan voted with the democrats when Morgan was a member of the court of common council. However, Morgan, when elected a member of the city council, was elected on the republican ticket. Mr. Lucy argued further in Morgan's favor by submitting a letter he had received from Edward M. Yeomans, chairman of the democratic state central committee, in which Yeomans said it was poor politics to have two members of the same family nominated on a state ticket. Mr. Ducy argued that it was worse politics for the democrats to nominate a candidate who, it was known, was a republican.

1000 EGGS In EVERY HEN

If You Keep Chickens CUT THIS OUT

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet, it has been scientifically established that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute egg germs in her system—and will lay them on a highly profitable basis over a period of four to six years' time if given proper care.

How to work to get 1,000 eggs from every hen; how to get pullets laying early; how to make the old hens lay like pullets; how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production: make slacker hens hustle. These and many other money making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, a copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. There is big profit for the poultry keeper who gets the eggs. Mr. Trafford tells how. If you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and send it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 853K, Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y., and a free copy of "The 1,000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.

APPEAL TAKEN IN LIQUOR VIOLATION CASE

According to papers filed with Clerk George E. Parsons, of the superior court, Mike Maurisky of Montville, perfected his appeal to the supreme court on Oct. 2. Maurisky was tried at the recent session of the superior court for violation of the liquor law on two counts and is now out on bonds of $1,000 during the time of his appeal.

On Oct. 29, 1923, Maurisky was a partner in Montville with one Joe Zukef, both conducting a meat and grocery business in that town. The case was first heard at the January session of the superior court and was continued to the May session before Judge Frederick M. Peasley. He was tried by jury and a verdict of guilty was returned against the accused. He was fined $200 and costs on each count to commence at the expiration of the sentence on the first count. Costs of $153.04 were also added. The two counts that were held were actual and intent to sell, reputation also playing a big part in the trial.

Maurisky was arrested at his place in the latter part of 1923 by state police and County Detective William E. Lewis of New London, who raked the evidence.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, Oct. 9.—Stock prices made moderate recovery on a slight increase in activity n today's market. Predictions of a favorable United States Steel tonnage statement tomorrow and indications of an early offering of the $200,000,000 German loan had a cheerful effect on speculative sentiment.

The market opened steady but soon swung into a vigorous upward movement on a partial retreat of the short interest. Traders on the long side, however, showed little disposition to follow up their advantage and the early gains, which ran from one to four and one half points, were modified by subsequent profit taking.

Stocks were somewhat unsettled in the late trading by another sharp break in General Electric, which dropped from its forenoon high of 254 to 247 and then rallied a point for a net loss of 2¾ on the day. Erratic fluctuations also took place in American Water Works, which opened ¾ higher at 106, advanced to 109 advanced to 109¾, dropped to 105¾ and then rallied to 106½.

United States Steel common and Baldwin closed fractionally higher at 108 and 121½ respectively. American Can, which sold up to 133 in the early trading, closed at 137¾ for a net gain of 1¾. Other active industrials to show net gains of 1 to 2¼ points were American Smelting, American Sugar Refining, DuPont, General Motors, United States Cast Iron Pipe, United States Industrial Alcohol, Utah Copper, Stewart Warner, Woolworth and West Penn Power.

New peak prices for the year were attained by Jordan Motors, Packard preferred, Maxwell B, Goodrich preferred, Wells Fargo Express old and new issues, St. Joseph's Lead and Tobacco Products A.

Trading in the rails was rather quiet, although good gains were made by Union Pacific, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Peoria and Eastern, Illinois Central, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico and Lackawanna.

Several of the larger copper companies are expected to benefit materially by the recent high prices for silver, which explains the steady accumulation of these issues. International Nickel was heavily bought on reports of a substantial increase of earnings in the third quarter.

Call money again ruled unchanged at 2½ per cent. time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business quiet.

Considerable irregularity developed in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling advanced more than a cent to above $4.48 and French francs were quoted several points lower around 5¼ cents. Strength of sterling was attributed in some quarters to the transfer of French funds from New York to London. Heaviness of francs also was attributed in part, to fears of a change in Franco-British relations in the advent of a new British government taking control. Further weakness of Japanese yen and strength in Indian rupees was believed to reflect the Japanese buying of Indian wools.

South American exchanges yielded on profit taking.

BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 9.—Chief interest in today's bond market centered in the arrangements for the forthcoming German loan, which Wall Street heard would be offered next week in the form of 25 year 7 per cent. bonds at 92 to yield 7.75 per cent. Trading in listed bonds was quiet with prices holding relatively firm.

Prompt over-subscription was reported on the three large issues aggregating $33,700,000 which were offered today. They were the $15,000,000 first and refunding mortgage 5½'s of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, $11,700,000 Continental Gas and Electric secure6's and $7,000,000 Republic of Peru external sinking fund secured 8's. An offering of $12,000,000 Pan-American Petroleum and Transport ten year convertible six per cent. notes will be made tomorrow at 97 to yield 6.40 per cent. These notes will be convertible into Pan-American B stock at 70, the proceeds to be used, in part, in retiring the 8 per cent. bonds of the Mexican Petroleum company. This is expected to be the last large offering until the German loan is out of the way.

French 7½'s yielded a point in today's trading and some of the other French governmental and municipal issues fell back fractionally, presumably in sympathy with the heaviness of French exchange, Australian 7's also lost a point. United States government securities moved irregularly within narrow limits. Second grade railroad liens showed moderate strength with most of the high grade mortgage holding firm. Industrials were mixed. establishment of a new high by General Baking 6's being counteracted by the heaviness of Warner Sugar 7's, which dropped 1½ points. Public utility issues improved slightly.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Severe breaks in price resulted today from heavy selling of wheat to be delivered next July. The quotations for that month fell 5⅝ cents a bushel to 1.33½ on account of excellent conditions for seeding the new 1925 crop and as a result of prospective enlarged acreage. Despite the fact that much of the selling of July was matched by simultaneous buying of May, the wheat market closed unsettled 1⅞ to 3⅜c. net lower December 1.49⅜ to 1.49½. May 1.54¾ and July 1.34⅞ to 1.35. Corn finished at ¾c off to ⅞c gain, oats ¼c down and provisions varying from 15c decline to a new rise of 10 cents.

Aside from the depressing influence of the selling drive against the July delivery, that wheat market had to contend with a prevailing correct opinion that the government crop report after today's close would be of a character which would tend to bring about lower prices for wheat. Under such circumstances, a sharp advance in quotations at Liverpool failed to have much effect here, and so too did estimates that export buying on this side of the Atlantic today amounted to 1,000,000 bushels. Selling of other months than July was largely of a profit-taking character, but was of sufficient volume to be somewhat burdensome combined with uncertainty as to the government report.

Anticipation that the government crop report would be bullish regarding corn acted as a prop to the corn market. On the other hand, there was a good deal in talk current that feeding of livestock would be on a smaller scale than last year. Numerous trades in oats appeared to have foreseen the nature of the government figures on oats.

Provisons were irregular owing to conflicting influences from the grain market and from hog values.

CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 9.—Price movements today's curb market lacked uniformity although the main tresd appeared to be upward. Professionals continued to dominate the trading although brokers reported increased public particpation in some of the industrial and public utility stocks.

Oils improved on publication of a private report showing another sharp decrease in crude production but the early gains were not maintained. Red Bank broke 3 points and Prairie Oil and Gas dropped 1½ while Vacuum closed a point higher. Other active issues showed only fractional changes with pipe lines shares displaying a slightly better tone.

A sharp break of 23 points in National Tea 15 of which were later recovered, as the feature of the industrial list. The selling in this issue undoubtedly was inspired by the announcement of the president of the company that no stock dividend would be paid this year. Radio shares moved upward under the leadership of Ware and Dubilier, which advanced 2 to 1⅝ points, respectively. American Light and Traction was the outstanding strong spot in the public utility group, jumping six points to 148 and then easing to 147.

Trading started today in the new American Tobacco issues, the "A" stock being quoted between 82 1-8 and 83 and the "B" between 81¾ and 82⅝. Wickwire Spencer Steel new stock also made its appearance for the first time, a few shares taking place between 4¼ and 5.

EVERY FORM OF MURDER SCORED BY MISSION PRIEST

"Only God can give life—only God can take it!" said Rev. David O'Brien, one of the three Holyh Ghost Fathers giving a mission at St. Patrick's church. Father O'Brien was preaching to the usual large congregation of women at their special services, following the 8 o'clock mass Thursday, his instruction on the Fifth Commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Kill."

This is the commandment of God, he declared, which protects society. Murder terminating human life, has ever been a great crime. While God alone can take life, the state has the right to take it under certain circumstances: also man can fisk life in just wars, or in self-defense. But the sin of murder is not only a crime against God but against another person, since it deprives that person of the opportunity of saving his soul. No individual has the right to take his own life, nor that of another.

In this age of the decline of religion there are those who would advocate what is really murder—in the case of the sick, the suffering, the defective, claiming that it is just as well to end their lives. So with suicide, a crime against society, also against the family of the man who, by ending his existence brands himself a coward, running away from some trouble, or calamity, or fear. Wilful murder, the taking of human life, is always a crime.

Very delicately, since there were school children in the congregation, the preacher told the significant legend of the ruthless pirate whose ghost haunted the shores where his crimes had been committed and on questioning, cried out that the sin which was causing his soul the anguish of remorse was the murder of an unbaptized babe. To the wives and mothers among his listeners the missionary made plain the teaching of the Roman Catholic church regarding those women who would shirk the obligations of motherhood, depriving the unborn babe of its eternal salvation, of its right to heaven. Murder of this character was condemned in no uncertain terms.

Incidentally, the Fifth Commandment forbids also quarreling, fighting hatred, anger and revenge. Father O'Brien denominated anger a capital sin, since from it so often arises fury which ends in taking of life. Certain forms of anger may be necessary at times to combat oppression or injustice, but must be kept under control of the will. There must be no rage, no hatred, or jealousy or envy, from which so many evils rise. Ill feeling is often founded on one's own imagination, or one's own faults.

Summing up, the rule was given—follow the example of Our Divine Lord, forgive enemies, forgive injuries. Especially is this a salutary rule in families, among relatives, among outsiders, for peace and harmony everywhere. Resentment of certain treatment, self-assertion, may be necessary—but not for long.

Forbidden also by this commandment is scandal, which takes the spiritual life, as murder takes the life of the body. Leading others into sin, perversion of the divine word "love", these can never make for that charity which God demands in what is called love of neighbor.

If we must fight, the preacher said, let it be for principle—not for self.

Two priests are now required to administer Holy Communion after every mission mass. The fathers are kept busy hour after hour, in hearing confessions, or in giving advice and counsel to those, in and out of the church—who seek them for direction or conference. The evening services rarely fail to crowd the great auditory, the congregation often overflowing into the galleries. The rector of the parish, Rev. M. H. May considers the attendance and fervor very satisfactory indications of the mission's great success, although it is believed that next week, when the men start in on their particular mission, there will be even larger congregations each evening.

Days of Delight

A red-letter day is a lucky day, a day to be recalled with delight. In almanacs saints' days and holidays are printed in red ink; other days in black.

Talk Not Filling

And one of the hardest things to do in this world is for an orator to play on the emotions of people who want to go home to dinner.—Dallas News.

Ale Once Labeled Poison

Years ago in the merry days of the English tavern there was a turmoil among radicals over the "poisoning" of the ale drunk by the common people. The trouble was caused when some one learned that in making ale sulphuric acid, made from Spanish pyrites, was used and that this contained arsenic. It was a tempest in a teapot, however, because it would have taken five barrels of ale to contain enough arsenic to hurt one individual.

Family Watch

A man in St. Louis has a watch on which the numerals of the face have been replaced with tiny photographs of the members of his family. He himself is 1 o'clock, his wife is 2 o'clock, his oldest child is 3 o'clock, and the other figures are covered by the pictures of the remainder of his ten children, 12 o'clock being the baby of the family.

Classifying Milton

Julius was a well-brought-up child and when he went to visit Milton who just ran wild and did all the things a boy shouldn't do, he was greatly surprised and he said to his mother: "Why, I don't believe Milton ever does anything but don'ts."

Stray Bit of Wisdom

Too many individuals are like Shakespeare's definition of "Echo," babbling gossips of the air.—H. W. Shaw.

Paper Currency

It has been computed that the cost to the United States of making a $1 bill is about as great as to make a $20 or a $10,000 bill. The expense is 1.3 cents each. The length of service varies in direct ratio to the value of the note. The $1 bill lasts little more than a year, it is estimated, a $10 bill lasts about four years, while a $10,000 bill obviously, seldom wears out.

Eulogy of the Dead

The custom of funeral sermons, together with various other rites in connection with the burials may be traced back to antiquity. Even the primitive peoples had certain ceremonies in connection with the burial of their dead. In ancient Greece and Rome the custom of eulogizing the dead was very popular.

Women Outnumber Men

In the Babuyan islands, recently disturbed by volcanic eruptions and earthquakes, a very large portion of the population is composed of women. Fishing is the principal pursuit of the men in the islands and the frequent typhoons are fatal for the frail fishing craft, which accounts for the greater proportion of females among the inhabitants.

Again the Sower

And again the sun blinks on [illegible] the poor sower is casting his grain into the furrow, hopeful he that [illegible] diacs and far heavenly horologes have not faltered; that there will be yet another summer added for us and another harvest.—Carlyle.

Qualities of the Great

A great man illustrates his place, makes his climate genial in the imagination of men and its air the beloved element of all delicate spirits.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

TAFTVILLE

The regular Thursday evening meeting of the Aowakiya Camp Fire Girls was omitted this week.

Wilfred Lemire of Worcester, Mass., was a business caller in the village Thursday.

Mrs. Otto Czikowsky and Adolph Czikowsky of Riverside Grove have been in New York, attending the wedding of Stephen Ruffnach, a former Taftville resident.

Chief Ranger William Smith was in the chair at the meeting of Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, Thursday evening. A number of important business items were disposed of.

The Ponemah dairy on South Second avenue is being painted.

The Knights and Esquires of Castle Perilous, No. 3747, K. O. K. A. met in conclave Thursday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. Following the conclave, a social hour was spent in the recreation rooms.

Although the hunting season opened Wednesday, the weather did not attract many sportsmen, but Thursday being an ideal day, a number of them took to the woods with their dogs and guns. Hen pheasants and quail are on the taboo list this year, but the law is off on cock pheasants, grouse and grey squirrels. It is said that the grouse are none to plentiful this season.

MAPLEWOOD

The Eastern Star Sewing Circle met with Mrs. Avery Gallup at the home of her mother, Mrs. O. B. Leffingwell. About twenty were present to enjoy a pleasant afternoon sewing. Refreshments were served

TROLLEY CARS IN TWO ACCIDENTS WITH AUTOMOBILES IN NORWICH

Two automobile accidents in which trolley cars were involved were included in the record of Thursday, the first just before noon at Norwich Town and the other about three hours later on Broadway at the Park church corner. Both trolley cars were of the one-man type.

The south-bound trolley car from Yantic due in Franklin square at noon ran into and about demolished a Dodge delivery truck, owned by Shallett's cleaning and dyeing company of New London, which was standing on the track in front of the residence of E. L. Baldwin, 417 Washington street, while the driver of the truck, Thomas Connor of New London, was making a delivery at the Baldwin house. The driver had just returned to the truck and was in the seat preparing to start the motor when he saw the trolley car bearing down on from Peck's corner He had just time to jump before the car hit the truck, knocking it back about 40 feet and into a stone wall from which five stones were dislodged. The motorman on the trolley car was Fred Dewitt who applied his brakes in an effort to stop, but was unable to do so, due, it is claimed, to leaves on the track.

The trolley car suffered slight damage while the Shallett company claimed the truck was so badly damaged that they would have to get a new car. The radiator, both front wheels, one axle, a fender and other parts were smashed.

State policemen Anderson and Watson from the Groton barracks investigated the accident and the wrecked machine and the trolley car were allowed to remain for an hour or so after the accident so that the officers could see them. The state policemen claimed that the motorman had a clear sight of the motor truck for 400 feet before he hit it.

At Park Church Corner

A. W. Buchanan of Mansfield Center, employment agent of the state board of education, who comes here every Thursday to issue employment certificates for children of school age, hit a trolley car at the corner of Broadway and Williams Ave. losing the right front wheel of his machine and having a spring, radius rod and other parts broken and a tire cut to pieces.

He was coming down Broadway towards the corner in his Ford coupe and the trolley car, operated by W. C. Higgins, was traveling westerly along Williams avenue. According to Mr. Buchanan's statement, he heard no whistle from the trolley car and did not see it until it was directly in front of him. He put on his brakes and tried to steer around the rear of the trolley but hit the fender, ripping this from the trolley car, which went on along the head of Chelsea parade before it stopped. Mr. Buchanan's coupe came to a stop on the trolley tracks with the right wheel off. He was not injured.

SONS TAKE APPEAL IN RING WILL CASE

An appeal from probate of the will of Mrs. Michael B. Ring has been taken by her sons, Charles B. Ring of Springfield, M. Bernard Ring and Joseph Ring of this city. Their sister, Miss Mary M. Ring is named in the will as executrix, and the will was admitted to probate by Judge Otto B. Robinson of Willimantic, when he sat in the probate court here on Sept. 15, 1924, taking the place of Judge Nelson J. Ayling, who was disqualified from sitting. Opposition to the probating of the will appeared at that time on the ground of Mrs. Ring's incapacity and undue influence exercised upon her, but Judge Robinson sustained the will and admitted it to probate. Miss Ring qualified as executrix on Sept. 15, 1924.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE IN NORWICH AND PUTNAM

An all day teachers' institute is to be held next Monday in Putnam and Norwich with the speakers or leaders of the various sections alternating between the two places. The Norwich meeting will be at the Elizabeth street school and the Putnam meeting in the high school.

The programme for Norwich will be as follows:

8.30—Commissioner Meredith. Functions of the Course of Study.
10.30—J. L. Meader, New Haven Normal School, The Basis Monograph.
11.15—F. E. Harrington. Arithmetic.
2.00—F. S. Camp. Social Studies.
3.00—Earle S. Russell, Oral and Written English.
3.45—L. C. Staples, Reading.

NIGHT SCHOOL SESSIONS BEGINS NEXT WEEK

The night schools under the town school board are to begin their term next Monday evening and will be held in the Broadway and the Greeneville schools. The sessions will be from 7 to 9 o'clock.

There will be three classes at Broadway, the advanced class taught by Miss Sadie Driscoll, the intermediate taught by Miss Claire Coughlin, and the beginners taught by Miss Margaret Coughlin. At Greeneville there will be only a beginners class, which will be taught by Miss Mary o'Sullivan.

Policeman McIntyre in Paris

Conducted Communion Service

At the Wednesday afternoon session of the New England Methodist foreign mission conference in the New England Methodist foreign mission conference in the New London church a communion service was held in charge of Rev. W. H. Bath of Norwich, superintendent of the Norwich district of the New England southern conference, assisted by Rev. Myron E. Center of New London; Rev. M. S. Stocking of Westerly, R. I.; Rev. J. G. Fallis of Mystic and Rev. R. H. Graham of Norwich.

STATE OFFICERS ELECTED BY KING'S DAUGHTERS

Miss Mary B. Woodruff, of New Haven, was elected president and national council member of the King's Daughters at the annual election of state officers in Waterbury Friday morning. Other officers elected were: Miss Harriet Eaton, of Hartford; vice president; Miss Elizabeth G. Day, of Colchester, second vice president; Miss Ada L. Shelley, of Windsor, secretary and Miss Ida J. Lyon, of New London, treasurer. Members of the executive committee chosen were: Mrs. Ira E. Forbes, Wethersfield; Mrs. Frank M. Crawford, New Haven and Mrs. John Wadhams, Torrington. Nominations were made by the nominating committee and it was voted to accept their nominations and to instruct the secretary to cast one vote for the nominees, which done, they were declared elected.

GAVE SUGGESTIONS FOR WEST SIDE COMMUNITY

A questionnaire that was distributed at the Tuesday night meeting of the West Side Community association asking for suggestions of subjects that might be considered by the association brought out the following: Sidewalks, tree planting, removal of all front fences, removal of unsightly buildings, fences and dead trees, grading of streets, cleanup campaign through a block system organization of the school children. Community beautiful campaign, removal of fire station farther west, grading of lots, parking regulations for lower West Main street, repairs of street at trolley switch in West Main street, athletic field and playground, survey for more lights, park or recreation ground, Americanization work, building regulations, extending Connell street to Elizabeth street.

PAROLE VIOLATOR IS RETURNED TO PRISON

Having violated his parole from the state prison at Wethersfield, Jacob Byzdil, Polish, 51, was taken back to the state prison Thursday. He was held at the local police station and a deputy warden was sent here for him as he had been out on parole about three months.

It is understood that he was implicated in a shooting affair in Preston several years ago over an argument about some cattle.

Virginia Brick First

Bricks were first made by the settlers in this country in Virginia in 1611, in Massachusetts in 1629 and in Pennsylvania in 1688. History shows that the brick walls of Fort Duquesne and Fort Pitt afforded protection against the savages, and that other structures of the time were built of brick. Commercial production, however, did not attain any importance until the latter part of the Eighteenth century.

Pawning Is Popular

Many London society women habitually pawn their jewels and other precious possessions when they are going on a trip. Not wishing to leave their valuables in an empty house, they put them in a pawnshop, where they are assured of good care.

ANNOUNCES ENGAGEMENT DURING SURPRISE SHOWER

Miss Helen West Higgins was given a pleasing surprise Thursday evening during a Hallowe'en party at the home of Miss Miriam Bergstresser of 62 Asylum street, by 16 of her friends, and, later in the evening, those present were given a second surprise when Miss Bergstresser announced her engagement.

The surprises were arranged by Miss Bergstresser and were carried out in a most novel manner. Shortly after the arrival of Miss Higgins the hostess proposed that the guests have their fortunes told, and, after several had enjoyed a glimpse into the future, given by Miss Bergstresser, Miss Higgins was called into the sitting room and was blindfolded. Upon the completion of the fortune telling she was surprised to find in the room a prettily decorated "pumpkin" basket containing many fine gifts for the bride-to-be, whose marriage to George Bunyan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Bunyan of Colchester, is to take place on the 25th of this month. Miss Higgins was taken completely by surprise and after receiving congratulations opened the many gift packages.

The second surprise of the evening came when the guests were seated about the table, which was decorated in the Hallowe'en scheme. Favors to represent ice cream sandwiches were served by the hostess and upon being opened were found to contain a cupid telegraph boy bearing the announcement of Miss Bergstresser's engagement to Arthur E. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hall of Wallingford.

The remainder of the evening was spent in enjoying Hallowe'en games and the house decorations added greatly to the effect, being of black and orange with utumn leaves.

PIRATE STOPS SHIPPING ON DANUBE RIVER

Playing hide and seek with Rumanian gunboats in the sixteen mouths of the Danube river, a robber chieftain called Terrente, self styled "King of the Swamps," is reported to have brought shipping on the great river to a standstill.

"Standing well to the front among the rivers of the world the Danube with its many mouths, presents innumerable lairs for the piratical inclined," the National Geographic Society says in a bulletin from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"After sprawling in a great angle around the barrier of Dobrudja continues the bulletin, "the so-called blue Danube drops its load of mud and sand gathered from eight nations of Europe in a large delta at the western end of the Black sea. This delta takes the form of a huge, equilateral triangle fifty miles long on each side. The northern border is the Kilia branch, the south, the St. Georges branch, while on the east is the Black Sea shore. The two main branches of the Danube are subdivided time and again in their never-ending impossible task of trying to make land and flow over it at the same time.

"Bisecting the triangle is the Sulina branch of the Danube which receives practically all of the shipping trade, since a deep channel to the upper river is maintained through it by the concerted action of the governments of Europe. The treaty of Paris of 1856 created the European Commission of the Danube and ordered it to make the mouths of the great river open to navigation within two years. Evidence of how little the diplomats knew of the engineering problems involved in making a huge river serve mankind is shown by the fact that the Commission not only worked two years but is still at work.

"Of all the varieties of earth surface, deltas rank high as the most useful to civilization. Mountains are admired for their inspiration, deserts hold rare beauty for those who seek it, but no one goes to a delta even to hunt ducks if he can help it. The Danube's delta is particularly unattractive since the peasants have not been able to adapt it to agriculture as sugar cane planters have large parts of the Mississippi delta. Some deltas such as those of the Amazon and Yangtze consist of a large islands surrounded by a considerable water, but the Danube's waters run through a vast swamp which was almost a complete barrier to navigation before the European Commission of the Danube took a hand.

"In country that is neither land nor water the reeds and willows take command and do not catch malaria. Deprived of timber the peasant fisherman put the reeds to many uses. Willows are used for basket-making and for fish weirs. A plumed reed is cut for fuel and still another kind is woven into mats or used as thatch. Inhabitants of the Danube delta are mostly Russian fishermen. Those who are irritated at fishing restrictions in the United States can appreciate what a fisherman's paradise they live in by comparison. The Rumanian government considerers fishing a government monopoly and every commercial catch must be brought to a government customs house to be auctioned off.

"By the construction of levees and piers, the European Commission of the Danube has opened a channel to Galatz, the Rumanian naval port, capable of receiving shipping up to 4,000 tons. The traffic in and out the river amounts to more than 5,000,000 tons annually. By this route Rumania, fifth nation in petroleum production sends out much of her oil to the world. From the loess plains of Bessarabia and southeast Rumania, continuations of the Black Earth belt of Russia, come tons of cereals and even American corn which is a staple Rumanian product.

"Before the Sulina Channel was made products were brought to the sea in lighters and put aboard ships waiting in the open roadstead. Once a heavy storm arose and dashed 24 sailing vessels and many lighters on shore with the loss of 300 lives. Such a disaster is now impossible.

"The Danube rises in the Alps and flows 1,750 miles to reach the Black Sea, breaking through the Carpathian Mountains at the Iron Gate which is the Culebra Cut of the Balkans. It is about 750 miles shorter than the Mississippi, and although it drains a great part of Europe outside of Russia, the Danube basin is one-fourth the size of the Mississippi basin. The flow is about one-fourth of that of the Mississippi. The Nile, like the Danube, has many mouths, a recent map showing eleven. The Mississippi once divided into many sizable streams to reach the Gulf, but engineers have succeeded in guiding most of its force into a single channel.

"It may be that Terrante, the Danube pirate, is using the uninhabitated Isle of Serpents off the mouth of the river for the headquarters of his fleet. This precipitious island about a mile in circumference figures in Grecian history and is supposed to be the home of the spirit of Achilles. Great flocks of white winged sea gulls frequent its rocky slopes together with the black snakes from which the island takes its name."

WOMEN WHO LOOK OLD

In many cases they are not old in years, but because they are overworked, overtired, nervous and run-down, ailments have developed peculiar to their sex, and this condition makes them look years older than they actually are. Such women should consider the remarkable record held by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a recent canvass among over one hundred and twenty-one thousand women who had used it, ninety-eight out of every one hundred women reported benefit from its use.

Methodist Prelates

Methodist bishops are the highest prelates in the Methodist church of America. It is their duty to preside over the Methodist conferences, held once a year, in the different districts. One layman from each district and the minister of each Methodist church in that district attend these conferences. There are 45 Methodist bishops in the United States.

Now We Know

A correspondent, signing herself Elizabeth, writes to us and asks: "Can you tell me why it is that more girls marry in June than in any other month of the year?" No, Elizabeth, we cannot tell you, except perhaps it is that the grooms do not have to start their wedded life by buying coal.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR LOAN TO GERMAN GOV'T COMPLETED

Loan of 800,000,000 Gold Marks Will Be Put on the Financial Markets of Nine Countries Within a Few Days—More Than Half of the Entire Loan, $110,000,000, is to be Raised in the United States—Will be Offered to Investors at 92, Bear 7 Per Cent Interest and Mature in 25 Years—J. B. Morgan Signed For the American Banking Syndicate.

London Oct. 10 (By the A. P.)—The negotiations for a loan of 800,000,000 gold marks to the German government, provided for by the Dawes reparations plan, were successfully concluded this afternoon, and the loan will be put on the financial markets of nine countries, including Germany, within a few days. More than half of the entire loan—$110,000,000—is to be raised in the United States.

The bonds will be dated Oct. 15, mature in 25 years, and bear 7 per cent interest. They will be offered investors at 92, thus yielding approximately 7 3-4 per cent to maturity.

The terms of issue in the various markets are virtually identical.

Signatures to the agreement to loan money to the German government were affixed this afternoon in the Bank of England building. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, and Dr. Hans Luther, the German financial minister, signed for Germany. J. P. Morgan signed for the American banking syndicate acting by his own company; Monta gu Norman for the Bank of England and Jean V. Parmentier for France, and the other financiers for their respective financial fields on the continent.

The Bank of England decided tonight not to let the British public know any of the details of the agreement just yet, but Mr. Morgan subsequently issued a statement for the American press, explaining the outlines of the negotiations which had been carried on here between the Germans and the bankers of the world. His statement follows:

"The negotiations of which I spoke in my statement of Oct. 3 have now been carried through successfully. The essential cooperation of continental markets has been assured and confidence is expressed as to the success of the issue. The contract under which the loan of 800,000,000 gold marks is to be issued for the German government, as provided under the Dawes plan, was signed this afternoon, the shares undertaken by the various markets being as follows:

"A nominal amount of $110,000,000 on the United States; 12,000,000 pounds in Great Britain; 1,500,000 pounds in Belgium; 3,000,000 pounds in France; 2,500,000 in Holland; 100,000,000 lire in Italy, 25,200,000 kronen in Sweden, and 3,000,000 pounds in Switzerland. It is arranged that the small residue required to complete the full amount of 800,000,000 gold marks will be taken in Germany.

"The contract for the issue becomes effective upon receipt of official notification from the reparation commission that it has completed its action subordinating the present reparation claims against Germany to the lien of this loan and that it has taken the necessary action for putting the Dawes plan completely into effect.

"The terms of issue in the various markets are practically identical, the bonds being dated October 15, 1924, maturing in 25 years, bearing 7 per cent interest and being offered to investors at 92, thus yielding approximately 7 3-4 per cent to maturity. Adequate sinking funds are provided. Public issues in all markets will be as nearly simultaneous as possible."

SHIPPING BOARD INQUIRY ON OCEAN FREIGHT RATES

Washington, Oct. 10—Sessions of the shipping board inquiry to determine whether existing ocean freight rates are unfair to gulf and South Atlantic ports and advantageous to those of the North Atlantic were continued tonight with representatives of the gulf region offering the concluding evidence.

A motion by Julius H. Cohen, counsel for the port of New York authorities, and concurred in by attorney's from all interested sections, that oral arguments on the rate question be presented before the entire shipping board in addition to Examiner Mangnum, was taken under advisement.

Matthew Hall, head of the South Atlantic Freight association, resumed the stand this afternoon and declared it was unjust to permit North Atlantic and Canadian ports to compete as between themselves and an equal rate basis while denying the same privilege to South Atlantic ports.

"I believe it is particularly unfair," he said, "when it is predicated upon rates established by steamship companies interested primarily in New York and foreign lines."

Frank S. Davis, manager of the Merchants Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, testified that the port favors equalization of both east and gulf freight rates. Boston, he said, has dropped from second position on the list of ports because of the rate situation. He added he believed Boston would be benefited if the shipping board would recognize that Boston was closer to foreign destinations than are other ports, and base rates accordingly.

PRESENTED MEDAL OF LEGION ON DEATH BED

Stamford, Oct. 10.—Major Charles G. West, U. S. A. (retired), was presented with the medal of the Legion of Honor of France as he lay on his death bed in Stamford hospital this afternoon, in recognition of services performed during the World war in France. Death came shortly after Andre Brouset French consul-general in New York, had made the presentation.

Major West was 72 years of age and had lived in Sound Beach, Conn., for 10 years past. During the war he served as marine superintendent at St. Lazaire and Bayonne, France, and at the close of the war was in charge of troop debarkation at Brest. He is survived by a wife, Kate, and five children, Mrs. C. L. Brown, Glenbrook, Conn.; Mrs. John B. Hasbrouck, New York city; F. West, of Greenwich; Charles G. West Jr., and Roy A. West, of Stamford. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

HEARING ON APPEAL OF ECLECTRIC PHYSICIANS

Bridgeport, Oct. 10.—Pleading before Judge Marvin in superior court here today that the appeals of five eclectic physicians against the revocation of their licenses be re-committed to State Referee Marcus H. Holcomb who made a finding of facts against them, Attorney John E. Dillon, their counsel, declared "the proceedings against the suspended eclectic physicians from beginning to end are a disgrace to the state of Connecticut," and turning to Attorney Frank E. Healy, he added, "whether brought by you or State's Attorney Alcorn."

TWO MEN INJURED IN D/OP OF ELEVATOR

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 10.—Lawrence Welch, 46, of Medford, Mass., suffered fractures of the left knee and shoulder, and Michael J. Both are structural iron workers. They were taken to a hospital

TELL MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL GOES OVER TILL TUESDAY

Middletown, Oct. 10.—The trial of Mrs. Johanna Tell on a charge of manslaughter in the killing of Charles F. Blair, her employer, in the latter's farmhouse, went over yesterday until Tuesday. In the meantime Judge Arthur F. Ells, who presides at the trial, will decide on the admissibility of a question put by State's Attorney Inglis to Mrs. Tell as she was on the stand in her own behalf. Mr. Inglis asked her why, when convicted of petit larceny in New York on Nov. 22, 1922, she gave the name of Josephine Tell. Public Defender Donahoe, who has charge of Mrs. Tell's defense, objected to the question, and asked that the jury be sent out. This was done and the question was repeated to Mrs. Tell. Judge Ells told her not to reply and he temporarily ruled that the question should not be admitted but said he would consider the nature of the question and make a final decision on Tuesday. The question was ruled out for the time being on the ground of irrelevancy.

MEXICAN BANDITS WRECKED TRAIN, KILLING NINE PERSONS

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 10.—Nine persons were killed, one or two of them Americans, when Mexican bandits wrecked and robbed a train on the Chihuahua and Orient railroad near Casderio, about 30 miles south of Juarez, according to messages received tonight by military authorities in Juarez. Troops were ordered tonight to try to intercept the bandits, who are believed to have started for the Texas side of the Rio Grande.

Invaders of Ouda Defeated.

Jerusalem, Oct. 10. (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Emir Abdullah, ruler of Transjordania and brother of King Ali of the Hedjaz, today received a cable from Mecca that the Hedjaz army had defeated the Wahabi invaders at Ouda, leaving 1,500 Wahabis in dead and injured on the field of battle, and following up their advantage vigorously.

Zeppelin Was Ridiculed.

Berlin, Oct. 10.—When Count Zeppelin propagated the idea of the dirigible airship, 30 years ago, Wurtemburg court circles and the common people ridiculed the idea, according to the memoirs of the late German foreign minister, Baron Alfred Von Kiderlen-Watchter, recently published. The baron, on visiting his Suabian home in 1895, was told by Stuttgart, the locksmith, whom Zeppelin had employed to construct his first model, that he had advised the inventor to give up his plans because they were "Swinish nonsense."

German Built ZR-3 To Begin Flight For United States Today

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 10. (By the A. P.)—The great dirigible ZR-3, built by the Zeppelin works here for the United States navy, will leave on her trans-Atlantic flight for Lakehurst, N. J., at 7.30 a. m., tomorrow. The airship will take the southern course, flying by way of Belfort, France, to the Bay of Biscay, thence over northern Spain and out over the Atlantic across the Azores Island.

The decision of Dr. Hugo Eckener, president of the Zeppelin company and commander of the ZR-3, to fly over the southern route, was taken after he was convinced that weather conditions along the North Atlantic line still were unsettled and that the northern route involved hazards as well as delay in awaiting more auspicious air conditions.

Scenes of great activity, similar to those of war times, were witnessed today at the Zeppelin plant here, with the workmen putting the finishing touches on the airship. This evening everything was absolutely in order on board, and it was announced that the crew was simply awaiting word to hop off, with the prow of the dirigible pointed toward the United States.

Tonight a full moon was beaming down upon Lake Constance and the weather in this immediate vicinage was ideal for the start of the flight. Dr. Eckeper and Hans C. Flemming, navigating and watch officer, however, until a late hour scrutinized the weather charts after an intense all-day survey of incoming bulletins, some of which gave details of air conditions as far to the westward as Medicine Hat, Canada. It was not until 11 o'clock tonight that Dr. Eckener reached his final decision to leave on the journey tomorrow morning and to take the southern course.

All the food, fuel, oil, mail, baggage and other necessary things had been placed aboard the ZR-3 during the daylight hours. A canary bird, which is to be the only mascot of the airship, swung tonight in its cage in the cabin.

The Americans who are to make the trip across the ocean were allowed to take aboard the ZR-3 one suitcase and three blankets. In their belongings were playing cards, several cartons of chewing gum and also some chewing tobacco. Cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco are taboo aboard ship.

The Americans will each do a four hour watch as observers, this having been decided upon so as to help them pass the time and also to aid them in obtaining further knowledge in navigation.

They are Captain George W. Steele, who will take command of the ZR-3 when it is turned over to the United States navy; Lieut. Commander S. M. Krauss, who is to be engineer officer; Commander Jacob H. Klein, who is in charge of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J.; and Major F. M. Kennedy, U. S. army, who was designated by his superiors to make the trip.

It was announced today that the members of the crew of the ZR-3, as well as the ship itself, had been insured for the passage across the ocean.

SHERIFF FOUND GUILTY VOLSTEAD LAW CONSPIRACY

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 10.—Don Chafin, sheriff of Logan county, was found guilty of conspiracy to violate the Voistead act by a jury in United States district court here tonight.

SHENANDOAH MADE PERILOUS FLIGHT OVER MOUNTAIN PEAK IN HEAVY WIND

Aboard U. S. S. Shenandoah, en route from Fort Worth, Texas to San Diego, Calif., Oct. 10—(By the A. P.)—Struggling into a roaring wind that whistled down a mountain canyon east of Cochise, Arizona, this $2,000,000 pride of the navy's air fleet proved her worth in her greatest emergency during the darkness of the early morning when she answered the helm, scraped by a mountain peak at 7,000 feet altitude and negotiated the dangerous gap in safety.

At 3.07 o'clock there loomed ahead the black gulch between Pina Tinol, an 11,000 foot peak in the north and Dos Cabezas, a mountain of 7,000 feet to the south.

The moon had disappeared and the railroad tracks, which had been a dim line on the showy sands beneath, faded out of sight.

Providentially a freight train twinkled into sight from behind a mountain wall and with this as a guide, the Shenandoah's nose was headed into the pass.

The wind, which had joined with her motors in driving her at a speed of 73 miles across the state of New Mexico, had changed. How it was roaring against her, down the canyon at 25 miles an hour.

The ship had climbed to an altitude of 7,200 feet to be as near a level with the peaks as possible.

"Hard left," ordered Lieutenant Commander Lansdowne on the bridge. The rudders turned and the big craft exposed her full length to the air and dies that came whirling over and around the peaks.

The Shenandoah was bobbing like a cork. All motors were driving at a speed which would have sent her along at 50 miles an hour in a calm, but she seemed to stand still, hesitating.

Slowly she drifted to the right, and a wall of mountain arose out of the darkness so close that it seemed within arm's length. It was but a moment before the whirling blades of the propellers were taking hold and, gently, with but a second to spare, she slid forward, away from the mountain that would have torn her fragile sides into shreads.

The lights of Cochise were sighted ahead at 4:12 a. m., but the Shenandoah's troubles were not over.

Twenty minutes later, the green switch lights of the cattle side track of Manzoro, were below, and the ship was at the mouth of Dragoon Pass, narrower than the former one, and without moon or favoring winds.

Again fate was kind; another freight train showed the entrance to the shadowy passageway of canons, although a mile and a half in the air, the big ship was only a few hundred yards above the sides of the mountains and low than some of the peaks.

Benson near the summit of the divide, was below at 5:19 a. m.

Day was breaking, and the Mountain tops were emerging from the darkness.

Tucson, lying like a picture, all reds and greens on the sandy plains, was passed over at 6:30 a. m.

Naval Inquiry at The Submarine Base

Into Alleged Part of Enlisted Men in Activities of the Ku Klux Klan—Finding Withheld.

New London, Oct. 10—A special naval board sat on the U. S. S. Chewink, at the submarine base here today, in what is said to be the first official naval inquiry into alleged connection of enlisted men in activities of the Ku Klux Klan. The allegation in this instance was that Chief Electricians Mate Joseph J. Capdeville, Chief Electricians Mate John L. Hess and Chief Machinists Mate Roy T. Johnson, who are at the base, had attended a ceremonial of the Klan at Cheshire, Conn., on July 2, and that while there in uniform they carried clubs and served as traffic officers for Klansmen's cars and also drove away persons who were not members who had sought to attend. It was further alleged that when the petty officers were asked by what authority they were there and performing traffic duty they replied that they had been sent by their commanding officer and were doing duty by his orders.

It is understood that the matter was called to the attention of the navy department by the Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church here. The naval board of four members were under orders from Secretary Wilbur, and after its session the papers were forwarded to Washington.

Captain King, commandant of the base, has stated that he is not a member of the Klan and did not order any of the men to attend or do duty at the ceremonial. The matter before the board did not include alleged membership of the three petty officers in the Klan but as to the charges that they attended the ceremonial under orders.

The witnesses heard by the board included Jess Devine, collector of taxes of Waterbury and former member of the legislature; Edward Hart, Eastern league baseball player of Meriden; Philip Doherty, former Eastern league umpire, also of Meriden; Deputy Sheriff Robert J. Higgins of Meriden; John J. Spellacy, of Meriden; and Edward Dickson of Hartford all of whom were spectators at the Cheshire affair.

The witnesses, it is understood, were instructed to refrain from making known their evidence. The board, it is understood, made no finding before sending the papers to Washington.

It is understood that Father Crowley had impressed upon the naval authorities the fact that as the men were alleged to have stated that they were at the meeing by orders of their superior officer the inquiry warranted a regular board under orders from the department.

FRENCH STEAMER LOOTED OF 36,000 CASES OF WHISKEY

Brest, France, Oct. 10.—Charges of complicity in piracy on the high seas, upon which Max Jerome Phaff, of New York, is being tried here, were reiterated today by affidavits of the owners of the Mulhouse, the French steamer which is alleged to have been looted of 36,000 cases of whiskey last June off the Canadian coast.

In their documentary evidence, the Mulhouse owners insisted that Phaff organized the raid on the steamer, possibly under orders of the so-called "rum-runners ring." The French magistrate, however, stated that the court was not concerned with the bootlegging and would deal only with the alleged piracy.

DECISION AGAINST MRS. BULAH CROKER

New York, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Bulah Croker, widow of Richard Croker, former Tammany chieftain, has lost another step in her fight against a court decision which gave her stepson, Richard Croker, Jr., approximately $104,000 of his fther's estate.

The appellate division of the supreme court today denied her appeal from an order of the supreme court denying her the right to file an amended answer to the younger Croker's suit.

YOUTH FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING HIS EMPLOYER

Middleburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—Ralph Shadel, youthful farm hand, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury in the Snyder county criminal court today for the slaying of Harvey C. Willow, his employer, last December.

Mrs. Willow, widow of the slain man, who Shadel said had urged him to kill her husband so she could marry him, will be placed on trial Monday as an accessory.

Advertising Begun Long Ago

When Ennion marked a drinking glass centuries ago with these words: "Made by Ennion, let the buyer remember," he started advertising. Today every manufacturer who is really proud of his product, marks it, that all may know and identify his work. Then, by advertising, he throws on both product and mark the searchlight of public attention.

Only good goods, fairly marked, can flourish in the light of advertising. The goods must be as advertised. Otherwise they lose caste in the buyer's mind. And no business can thrive under the weight of public condemnation.

That is why a merchant or manufacturer places the reputation of his business at stake every time he advertises. He spends his money to invite your consideration of his wares, and then, perforce, must leave the final decision to you.

That is why it pays to read The Bulletin's advertisements and to buy advertised goods.

During the past week the following news matter has appeared in The Bulletin's columns:

Liggett to Pay Liabilities in Full

To Liquidate With Full Interest $1,200,000 in "Rexall Loyalty Trust Fund Certificates."

Boston, Oct. 10—Louis K. Liggett, head of the United Drug Company, who fell into financial embarrassment in 1921 after the post-war reaction in business conditions, will pay off his liabilities in full on November 1, he announced in a letter sent to friends who secured money to aid him at that time, and made public today.

On that date, the letter said, he will buy in with full interest $1,200,000 in "Rexall Loyalty Trust Fund Certificates" subscribed to by about 3,000 persons. Holders of the certificates will be permitted either to convert each $100 certificate into cash or to exchange it for two shares of first preferred United Drug Company stock each $50 par.

"It will be three years on the fifteenth of this month since the Rexall Loyalty Trust Fund was completed and since I received the funds raised thereby under the leadership of Fred S. Rogers," the letter read, " "I assure you that your participation in the Loyalty fund deepened the confidence of the investing public in our organization and greatly stimulated our business through the favorable reaction of the consumers of our merchandise.

"And now are wholly out of the woods. I have not yet paid all my personal obligations, but I have made this start with you to whom I owe everything since you gave the opportunity to come back.

Mr. Liggett, who is only 49 years old, is still the largest stockholder in the United Drug company, which has a working capital of $21,000,000. On July 27, 1921, he placed his personal affairs in the hands of three trustees, Frederick C. Dumaine, Frank W. Rexmick and Neal Rantoul, transferring to the trustees all his assets for the protection of creditors. The fund was raided by his friends to enable him to ask the discharge of the trustees.

SUIT INVOLVES G. W. AND BENJAMIN W. MORSE

New York, Oct. 10—Trial of a suit for $100,000 damages against Charles W. Morse, Benjamin W. Morse and the Frederick Steamship Company, filed by Mrs. Adelaide C. Nelson, whose son Lawrence was lost when the Steamer Frederick foundered in 1916, started today before Judge Goddard and a jury in federal district court.

The Frederick sailed from New York for Archangel, Russia, January 3, 1916. What became of the ship or of its crew of 31 remains a mystery.

Silas B. Axtell, counsel for Mrs. Nelson, said that the Frederick lay in Baltimore shipyard five years as junk before purchased by the Morse company for $5,000.

James Collins, one of the crew, testified that he deserted at Portland, Me., on the fateful voyage because he was frightened by the unseaworthiness of the ship.

DAYTONA, FLA., ALMOST ISOLATED BY FLOOD

Daytona, Fla., Oct. 10—Daytona was practically isolated late today as a result of floor waters brought on by excessive rains. Bridges on all highways leading out of the city are reported washed out. Business is almost at a standstill, many of the business streets being from six inches to two feet under water. Persons in the residential sections have been forced to seek higher ground.

At New Smyrna, 12 miles south of here, where business is practically suspended, one man was reported drowned when he fell from his bed into water that covered the floor. Residents of the west section of the town were forced to abandon their homes.

BRYAN HAS OPENED HIS NEW MEXICO CAMPAIGN

Bryan Train, En Route to Albuquerque, Fort Sumner N. M., Oct. 10—(By the A. P.)—Crossing the Texas panhandle where he made three speeches before breakfast, Governor Bryan, democratic vice-presidential nominee, opened his New Mexico campaign during a stop for breakfast at Clovis. Speaking from a railroad baggage truck, the governor told the crowd that the "democratic party was making a fight for relief to agriculture in every state in the Union," and that it was his party that "believed in a government with the power coming up from below."

He attacked "great combinations in restraint of trade."

Fay Yu Hsianz, Chinese general, had his army of several thousand soldiers baptized in a group.

WASHINGTON WINS WORLD'S BASEBALL TITLE IN HARD 12-INNING STRUGGLE

Walter Johnson Holds Giants at Critical Times and Gets Full Credit For Winning the Final Game—"Bucky" Harris' Bat is Responsible For the Downfall of the McGraw Piloted Team—McNeely Delivers the Winning Hit of the Game in the Twelfth Inning—Washington Fans Stage Huge Celebration After the Game.

Washington, Oct. 10.—(By the A. P.)—The miracle of baseball, the dream of forty years came true this afternoon when Washington won the baseball championship of the world from the New York Giants in the most thrilling, dramatic climax that any diamond series has ever had. Out of the depths of two crushing defeats Walter Johnson came back to the heights and reached his goal, the end of the eighteen-year trail by leading the Senators to victory by a score of 4 to 3, in 12 innings of spectacular baseball.

And when Earl McNeely, young outfielder from the Pacific coast, drove in "Muddy" Ruel with the winning run, after the mighty bat of "Bucky" Harris had kept the Senators in their greatest fight, the rookie also drove a vast crowd of more than 30,000 into a outburst of victory-inspired frenzy.

Crowd Is in a Frenzy

The crack of McNelly's bat was the match that set fire to a conflagration of enthusiasm; a whirlwind of excited joy swept the big crowd as it flooded upon the field. Then rushed wildly for the dugout of the winning team and gave unrestrained vent to spirits which had been whipped to fever heat.

The president of the United States and his wife, watching their third game, clapped and waved their hands with the enthusiasm of the most ardent fans. Men and women, many of them prominently known throughout the country joined with the rabid throng of fandom in the tumultuous outburst. Fashionably dressed women hugged one another in joy, cheerleaders sprang up, as if by magic, while hats were thrown into the air with abandon. For more than an hour after the game, the crowd swirled about the field and the club house where the Senators were given a continual ovation and nearly mobbed.

Washington Stages Celebration

Tonight the nation's capital gave itself over to the celebration of their greatest baseball achievement, one of the greatest team has ever gained. It was a victory that not only stirred the country's Hub, but undoubtedly throughout the land, to the crossroads and the boulevards, for it seemed that the whole nation had rooted for "Bucky" Harris and his gallant band and shared Washington's own joy in the triumphant outcome.

Never has baseball's premier crown been won under circumstances so remarkable as those this afternoon in the seventh and deciding game of a series that has swayed back and forth with brilliancy, uncertain to the last moment. Not since the famous series of 1912 have American and National league rivals fought with such tenacity and courage for the title and oddly enough, it was the Giants who went down to defeat this time, as they did 12 years ago before the Boston Red Sox.

It was a shattering setback for John McGraw, gray-haired, veteran pilot of the Giants, turned back on the threshold of the greatest goal of his career—a fourth world's crown which would have put him beyond all rivals—but it was also a marvelous victory for "Bucky" Harris, black haired, dynamic young leader of the Senators.

Harris the Peerless Leader

Harris, 27 years old, the youngest manager that ever led a major league team to the top, was dominant, flashing figure in his team's triumph, gained, through the brilliance of his tactics and individual play, a place in baseball that few leaders have ever held.

Harris rallied his men to their victorious successful finish when it seemed that disaster would overcome their staunch spirit. Two setbacks for their greatest hurling ace, Walter Johnson, and the loss of the greater part of the series, of their veteran shortstop, Roger Peckinpaugh, might have daunted the courage of any but the Senators. In the face of the heaviest sort of odds, and trailing the National league champions, two games to three, Washington came back and before the president and a home crowd evened the series yesterday and won it today.

In the final analysis, it was the never-say-die spirit instilled by Harris, the unquenchable "will to victory," that seemed almost a thing of fate and pulled the team through. It was a fight from behind for the Senators from start to finish. Always the road to victory was uphill, and they overcame many obstacles before finally conquering the peak.

The whole story of the series, in reality, was written into the final game, for in it, the Senators, their make-shift defense crumbling momentarily, yielded a lead that seemed insurmountable until they rallied in the eighth, tied the score and then fought off the Giants until the twelfth and its victorious culmination.

The game sparkled with the most thrilling sort of play, terrific hitting, spectacular defensive work, brilliant and erratic pitching, good and bad baseball. One dramatic moment followed another from the sudden withdawal of "Curly" Ogden, Washington's first twirler, after he had pitched only two batsmen in the opening inning, until the veteran Johnson, the "old master" came to the rescue in the last four innings.

Johnson to the Rescue

"Old Barney" had sustained two heart-breaking setbacks at the hands of the Giants, and it seemed the irony of fate would keep him from the goal of a life-time. But this afternoon, Johnson came back. He was the Johnson of his prime when the altitude was the most dangerous, and the "smoke ball" that had failed him twice before, lifted the veteran to his greatest glory and his team to triumph.

Johnson was under fire in those last four innings, for the Giants fought to the final ditch. Twice, when they threatened, Johnson walked Ross Young purposely to get George Kelly and twice Kelly fanned in the pinch. Frisch tripling with one out in the ninth, was on third and Young on first when Kelly whiffed for the first time and Irish Meusel closed the inning by grounding out. A double play checked the Giants in the tenth but in the 11th, Southworth scored for Groh, a pinch hitter, and Young were on second and first. Kelly was out, when Kelly again was a victim of Johnson's fast ball.

The twelfth saw Johnson hold off another charge after Meusel opened with a single, before the Senators broke through after themselves opening in the ninth and eleventh innings.

Ruel Starts the Fireworks

Ralph Miller, substitute third baseman started the Senators' drive for victory when he bounded out to Frisch. "Muddy" Ruel who has failed to get a hit until today's game, brought the crowd to its feet with a sensational double down the left field foul line. Gowdy veteran Giant backstop, who had gloriously dropped an easy foul fly that would have retired Ruel, showed that they had been the steadier of the two as they were now crumbling and Johnson safely to first when Jackson misplayed his sharp grounder. Ruel was held on second on this play but after McNeely had fouled the first pitch of Jack Bentley, Giant southpaw, he drove the next one for a drive that bounded over Lindstrom's head and bounded to left field for a double.

Behind this great moment for the Senators, however, was a little struggle, one in which it seemed only a miracle would pull them through. For six innings they were virtually helpless before the sharp breaking curves of "Zeke" Barnes, young Giant right hander. Harris struck a telling blow when his homer sailed into the left field bleacher in the fourth but he was the only man to reach base as that opening span, while in the sixth the Giants forced ahead, scored three runs when the Washington infield, sadly missed its great cog, Peckinpaugh, hero of two of the Senators' victories, went to pieces.

George Mogridge, veteran southpaw who had checked the Giants after relieving Ogden, also weakened in the sixth, but the trio of Giant runs came while his successor, Marberry, ace pitching rescuer, was on the mound. A pass to Young and Kelly's single brought about Mogridge's retirement but Meusel greeted Marberry's first pitch with a long sacrifice fly to Rice that scored Young. Kelly went to third on Wilson's single and scored when Judge juggled Jackson's grounder. Gowdy's hot a grounder went through Bluege's legs at short and Wilson came home with the third run, but Barnes and Lindstrom were quickly retired.

Senators Tie Score

Checked by a double play that offset two hits in the seventh, the Senators finally broke through Barnes in the eighth and tied the score before Ayers Nehf, who had twirled and lost yesterday, came in and stopped the rally. eLibold, diminutive pinch-hitter, opened the attack, with one out, when he lined a double to left. Ruel scored on an infield hit, his first of the series, and Tate, batting for Marberry, sent the bases when he walked. McNeely to Meusel was too short for Lindstrom to make a dash for home. But Harris brought him and Ruel in with a single that took a bad bound over Lindstrom's head into left field. Barnes withdrew at this juncture and Nehf retired to end the inning.

Thus while the Senators, by the own mistakes, paved the way for all the Giant scoring, they also benefitted from several "breaks" at critical moments. Harris' telling single in the eighth seemed headed for Lindstrom's glove and a third out when it bounded over the youngster's head. In the 12th Ruel's double followed by an error by Gowdy on an easy chance to retire the Washington backstop, while McNeely's double was a hit similar to that of Haorris.

Throughout the earlier part of the game, hits were constantly cut off by the most brilliant sort of fielding on the part of both teams, a feature that was only one of the many that were bound up in this thrilling struggle. In the second, Bluege robbed Wilson of a hit by taking his grounder back of second and making a fast throw to first, while Wilson himself pulled a startling play when he made a diving catch of Rice's hot liner in the fourth.

Notes of the Game

Four of the contests were won by one run, the first, which went to the Giants by a score of four to three; the second which the Senators captured by the same score; the sixth game, which the Senators took two to one and the deciding game which went to the American league, 4 to 3, in 12 innings. The first and deciding contest had identical

Discovering a little camp fire in the light of which a man crouched, much after the manner of an Indian, residents of Columbia complained and Deputy Sheriff A. L. Frink of Andover answered. He found Charles Wojcik, 36, apparently enjoying all the comforts of home with the sky for a roof and the green grass for a carpet. Wojcek was presented before Justice of the Peace H. F. Collins of the Columbia town court Friday morning but no penalty was affixed for vagrancy. Grand Juror Joseph N. Clark prosecuted, but did not force a charge against the man. Wojcek said that he had been working on a farm and upon leaving that to seek other work he lost his way, having come from the direction of Stamford. Wojcek said that he passed over the Middletown and the Brooklyn bridge.

OTTO B. ROBINSON RE-NAMED FOR JUDGE OF PROBATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, Oct. 10—Otto B. Robinson, judge of probate for the district of Windham for the past six years, was unanimously renominated by the republican probate convention held at the Windham Republican Club rooms Friday. The convention was called to order at 8.15 p. m. by Louis S. Mosley of Scotland, chairman of the probate committee. F. Louis Hall of this city was elected clerk. The following delegates were in attendance: Windham, Nelson A. Daniels, F. Louis Hall, Joseph M. Berard and Harold S. Maine. Scotland, Louis S. Moseley, Charles J. Fisher and Edward L. Dennis.

JUDGE OTTO B. ROBINSON

The name of Judge Robinson was presented by Nelson A. Daniels and seconded by Joseph M. Berard. There were no further nominations and Judge Robinson was declared unanimously renominated. A resolution adopted embodied the endorsement and approval of the principles and policies of the republican national and state conventions, also of the nominations for national and state officers and of Richard P. Freeman for candidate for representative in Congress. In stating the pride of the delegates in presenting Judge Robinson as candidate for re-election mention was made of his honesty, courtesy and unfailing devotion to the duties of his office, and his just and impartial conduct of the affairs of the probate court during the past six years. Joseph M. Berard and Harold S. Maine were appointed a committee to inform Judge Robinson of his nomination. The candidate was escorted before the convention and in a brief speech thanked the delegates for the honor conferred upon him and promised if elected to continue to conduct the probate office in the same fair and impartial manner; to continue to maintain the office at its highest standard and to serve the people of the District to the best of his ability.

BALTIC

Concerning this week's anniversary a correspondent writes:

The golden jubilee of the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, was observed Tuesday. In recognition of 50 years of splendid service, educating and training the young ladies committed to its care, special services were held at the Academy. Alumnae gathered from several states to assist at the exercises, which began with mass celebrated at 10 o'clock by Right Rev. Bishop Murray, Right Rev. Msgr. McAuliffe preached the jubilee sermon. The Academy was founded in 1874 under the supervision of the Sisters of Charity of Our Lady of Mercy, who were brought to Baltic by Rev. Father Van Laar, at the request of Bishop McMahon. The Mother House of this order is at Tilburg, Holland, where the house was established in 1808, after the approval of constitution and general rules by Pope Pius IX. The first year the Academy at Baltic was opened, only two pupils presented themselves for registration and there were two Sisters in charge. Since then the Academy has grown wonderfully, due primarily to the ready recognition given the success of the Sisters in training the young. At present there are 115 students at the Academy, in eight primary and four high school grades. Rev. Mother Frances is superior at Baltic, which now serves as the Mother House of the Order in the United States.

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT WORK

Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped her Suffering and Restored her Health

Monence, Illinois.—"I surely can recommend your medicine to other women who have female weakness, as it has helped me very much in every way possible. I was working in a dining room in town, and sometimes I could not do my work; had pains in the lower part of my body and had to stay in bed. One of my neighbors told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and it has surely done wonders for me. I hope all women who suffer will take my advice as the Vegetable Compound has done so much to bring back my vigor and strength."—Mrs. ALBERT E. DESCHADU, Monence, Illinois.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes."

That is 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

MRS. THOMPSON GAINS 20 LBS. TAKING TANLAC

Rochester Lady Tells of Remarkable Recovery.

Adding her voice to the 100,000, or more, who have offered their personal experience as proof of the wonderful health-giving and reconstructive powers of Tanlac, Mrs. Garner C. Thompson, 26 Grand View Terrace, Rochester, N. Y., says:

"For a year or more I had been badly run-down. My blood was thin, my nerves weak and I was subject to bilious spells. My stomach was weak, I had no appetite and got up mornings feeling tired and without energy. Every little while I would have to take to my bed for a day or two at a time.

"Five bottles of Tanlac has relieved my troubles, brought me a good appetite, sound sleep and built me up 20 lbs. in weight. I am now enjoying good health and hope my experience will convince others of the unmistakeable merits of Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation; made and recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

After two years of license, Norwich voted for no license fifty years ago in the town election by 923 No and 709 Yes. The following are items from the Bulletin of October, 1874

Monday, Oct. 5, 1874—The funeral services of the late David L. Gale took place at the Central Baptist church at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The church was filled to overflowing and many were unable to gain admission. The desk and Deacon Gale's chair were appropriately draped and the pulpit was adorned with beautiful flowers. The services were very impressive and effective and many in the audience were moved to tears.

Mr. George A. Kies has entered upon his duties as organist at Park church. He brings to this position a high reputation for so young an artist and when the expected church organ is set up, he will find ample scope for his talents as a player.

Tuesday, Oct. 6, 1874—There has rarely been a town election which has excited more interest than that of yesterday. The interest of course centered upon the election of the first selectman. In the first district there were a great many republican tickets distributed and, as the vote showed, voted with the name Archa P. Willoughby, democrat, in place of that of Paul B. Greene, republican Mr. Willoughby, the fortunate candidate for selectman, is one of our most respected citizens and will undoubtedly make a good selectman. The greatest surprise however, is the large vote against licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors. It will be illegally impossible to sell a drop of liquor in town for a year at least. Willoughby beat Greene by 1018 to 981. The vote on the license question was, 925 No, and 700 Yes.

At the town meting yesterday afternoon a 7 mill tax was laid and the salary of the selectman was made $1600 the same as last year.

Preston votes for license. The question arises if our 200 or 300 barkeepers now set up their shops in Preston, whether a toll gate on the bridge would not be immensely profitable.

Wednesday, Oct. 7, 1874—The current expenses of the several schools for teachers' wages, fuel, repairs and incidentals for the year ending August 31, 1874 is $26,633.18.

After 18 years of prohibition Norwich voted on Sept. 23, 1872 to permit the licensed sale of liquor. The vote was a surprise to temperance men being against them overwhelmingly, 1008 to 455. As to what the vote of Monday is due to there is a difference of opinion. It is probably, however, due to an awakened opinion. The ladies have been exceedingly industrious and the fact that to a recent petition to the Common Council the names of 1200 ladies were signed shows that the cause of temperance has been carried into and argued in the homes of Norwich on a most extensive scale.

Thursday, Oct. 8, 1874—Frederick L. Osgood and Miss Eliza White were married at Christ church last evening in the presence of a large and brilliant audience. The Rev. W. Geisey performed the ceremony. A reception was given by the newly married pair at the residence of Col. Devotion from 7 to 9 when they took the steamboat for their bridal trip. Mr. Osgood is of the firm of Charles Osgood and Co., and his bride a daughter of Mrs. John L. Devotion.

The new academy of the Roman Catholics in Baltic, which was begun last year is now ready for occupancy and will be opened on the 15th inst. for the reception of students.

Friday, Oct. 9, 1874—A man was arrested last night about 12.30 trying to enter the rear window of Hawes jewelry store on Main street. Special Policeman Dewolf, who rooms at Mr. Allen's, ran out and nabbed him in the act and turned him over to Officer Bowen. The man gave his name as James Smith of Providence.

Those who have in charge the proposed new railroad between Danielson and Providence seem to be quite in earnest, and enthusiastic fancy sees the coming Poneganset railroad trains rattling into the precincts of our northern neighbor. Yesterday a party started from Providence for a careful examination of the several proposed lines preparatory to the field work which will be commenced early next week.

Saturday, Oct. 10, 1874—There is some doubt as to who is the first selectman of the town. Had Mr. Willoughby, who was first in the democratic ticket for selectman, recieved the largest vot of the three who were elected there could be little question as to the propriety of his serving as chairman of the board. On the contrary he got the smallest. The vote was, for Charles J. Winters, republican, 1252; for John B. Clark, republican, 1210; for A. P. Willoughby, democrat, 1018, so that, though Mr. Willoughby stood at the head of the democratic candidates for selectmen he stands at the foot of those elected. As far as the vote is concerned Mr. Winters seems to be the one indicated for this position as chairman of the board. In declaring those elected, he was the first one named. It is claimed however, that it is the power of the board to elect its own chairman.

Sale of More Norwichtown Land

James L. Case has sold for Messrs. Krieger & Sholes, to Dr. James D. Donohue a tract of land located on Harland Road, being about an acre and a half in extent, formerly a part of the property owned by the Estate of Edward Harland.

The tract adjoins one of about two acres, recently purchased by Dr. Donohue through the same office.

JACK LONDON HERO SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

An unusual opportunity is offered to the public of Norwich and vicinity tomorrow (Sunday) at 4 o'clock, when the hero of the story by Jack London, The Star Rover, and former life prisoner at St. Quentin prison, will give his thrilling and inspiring address under Y. M. C. A. auspices at the Community House on Church street at 4 o'clock. "Ed" Morrell has gone through more thrilling experiences than the fiction characters Monte Cristo and Jean Valjean. While yet a young man he was sentenced to life imprisonment and for five long years he suffered unbelievable torture in solitary confinement, and in the terrible straitjacket for 110 hours at a stretch; some have marvelled how Morrell survived it; how he kept his sanity and lived at all is a real miracle. Soul, mind and body were kept alive under conditions that would have killed an ordinary man. When he felt his sanity slipping, a strange prompting came to him that he would live, that he must will to live, and that his sufferings were not in vain.

Morrell heeded the prompting, thanking his God for an unconquerable soul; he was released from his dungeon crypt by a new warden. Finally the governor of the state, being convinced that this man was worthy journeyed to the prison and personally handed him his pardon. Since that eventful day millions have heard his voice and have felt the power of his great personality. His blue eyes give no hint of the horrors he has looked upon and suffered. He is an acknowledged orator as well as a writer, having written the book, The Twenty-fifth Man, and others. Mr. Morrell's visit to Norwich will doubtless prove a real event, and a large audience is expected.

PUTNAM

H. H. McKee of Washington, D. C., who came to Putnam following the closing of the First National bank as representative of the comptroller of the currency, and who was the first one to announce the actual shortage of the bank's funds, arrived in the city Friday. While no statement has been issued by any member of the citizens' committee, it is known that Mr. McKee has been in consultation with some of the members and a meeting has been arranged for him to confer with the committee. It is believed that his sudden reappearance in Putnam has to do with the proposed Citizens' National bank, which the sub-committee of four has been so hard at work upon for several weeks.

G. Harold Gilpatric, Mrs. Gilpatric, F. Raymond Gilpatric, brother of the former cashier of the First National bank, and Attorney Ernest C. Morse arrived in Putnam Friday afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock. After the former cashier was arraigned in the U. S. district court at New Haven Thursday afternoon and pleaded guilty to 14 counts of an indictment containing 39 counts for embezzling bank funds, the party motored to New Britain and spent the night at the home of F. Raymond Gilpatric. The fromer cashier and state treasurer stood the trip well and suffered no ill effects from the long journey and the ordeal through which he passed Thursday. He will remain at the home of his parents on Fremont street for the next three weeks, to which time the case was adjourned.

Miss Elizabeth Wheelock gave a mah jong party and preserve shower at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock, on Church street, Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Willimena Frost, whose forthcoming marriage with George Vaughn, Jr., has been announced. During the afternoon refreshments were served. Others present were Miss Geraldine Frost, Mrs. John Moss, Mrs. Nelson Lown, Miss Elizabeth Rafferty, Miss Annette Johnson, Mrs. Guy L. Baker, Mrs. Joseph Chamanska and a friend, Miss Constance Russell and Miss Sylvia Wheelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Elliott of Thompson announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Elliott, to Malcolm Kenneth Douglass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Douglass of Castine, Me. Mr. Douglass is a Yale man, class of 1924, and is a member of the St. Anthony and Yale clubs. During the ewar he served two years overseas with the Second division, U. S. marines, and was twice awarded the Croix de Guerere. The wedding will take place the latter part of next month and will be followed by a reception.

To observe Columbus day, Cargill council, K. of C., is to attend mass in a body Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, hold its regular meeting in the afternoon, and will be addressed by Rev. Fr. George J. Donahue of Pomfret and other priests at an entertainment, luncheon and smoker in the evening.

Attorney Irving H. Miron was given a surprise party Thursday evening, it being his 29th birthday. The affair was arranged by relatives and a birthday dinner was served by Mrs. Miron. During the afternoon an ostensible client called Attorney Miron and made an appointment to meet him at his office at 7 o'clock in the evening. Having waited long past the hour appointed, Attorney Miron returned home. Here he found relatives assembled, the house decorated and several substantial birthday presents, including $25 in gold, awaiting his arrival. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Horne and family, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Horne and family, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perry and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Despart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Kane and Winifred Linsay, all of Millbury, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rondeau and family of Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Miron and daughter of Chepachet and Mrs. Charles Miron of Putnam.

Teachers from Thompson, Killingly, Woodstock, Eastford, Union, Pomfret and Putnam will attend a teachers' institute to be held in the Putnam High school next Monday. The arrangements are in charge of R. D. McAllister, superintendent of schools in the towns surrounding Putnam. At 10 o'clock in the morning 69 children from Woodstock schools will give the second act of an operetta they sang last June under the supervision of Miss Margaret Burns, supervisor of music. The general theme of the institute will be New Connecticut State Course Study. The speakers will include F. S. Camp, state supervisor of elementary education; E. S. Russell, superintendent of schools in Simsbury, and Leon Staples, superintendent in Suffield, who will talk at the morning session. At the afternoon session the principal speakers will be Dr. A. B. Meredith, Connecticut commissioner of education; J. L. Meader, principal of the New Haven school, and S. H. Harrington of the bureau of statistics, Hartford. It is expected that at least one hundred teachers will attend the institute.

Monday next, Columbus day, the banks in Putnam will be closed. This

High school football team of Willimantic is coming to Danielson with a view to listing Killingly High school's team on the short end of the score in a game they are to play. That the visitors may be encouraged in their ambition, a big delegation of the student body of Windham High will come along with them. Killingly High school is depending on the loyalty of its entire following in town to be on hand and inspire the players with cheers. The game promises to be an interesting and lively one.

Electric lights are to be installed in the East Brooklyn schoolhouse, frequently in use evening's for holding sessions of court or for other purposes. Kerosene lamps heretofore in use are to go into the discard.

Cavanaugh orchestra, a Nantasket beach attraction during the summer season, played for the usual Friday night dance at the state armory Friday evening.

A vaudeville bill that brought out a large attendance was included in the program at the Orpheum theatre Friday evening.

Tons of leaves that would in past years be saved for bedding down the family horse are getting burned up this year because a flivver stands up all night.

FOLEY PILLS REACHED THE SORE SPOT

Mrs. Ellen Reighard, South Fork, Pa., writes: "I had been suffering with my kidneys and nothing seemed to touch the aching spot until I procured Foley Pills, with wonderful results." HELPS ABOUT HOUSE LIGHTING

HOW WE SEE

Objects are seen by the light that falls upon them and is reflected to our eyes. A dark object reflects upon it—perhaps less than one-fourth; a light colored object reflects a large part of the light—perhaps three-quarters.

If we are to see objects, the light must fall upon them and be reflected from them. The more darkly they are colored, the more light is needed to enable us to see them. The light that falls on objects which we wish to see may be termed useful light. Most electric lamp bulbs when used without shades or reflectors throw out light in all directions—just as much to the ceiling and walls of a room as down to the table top. Well designed shades are made so that they not only soften the light, but also reflect some light that would otherwise be wasted and direct it downward and outward to the objects that we wish to see.

GLOOM

Proper lighting requires two things: First, that there be enough light so that the eye can see quickly and easily; and second, that this light be shaded and so placed in the room that the eye is not strained by glare. Many homes have soft, shaded light that is too dim for good vision; others have enough light but harmful glare is a part of it; too few homes have plenty of light without glare, which is necessary for proper lighting and the protection of eyesight.

The eye is truly a wonderful organ. Because it does not always immediately complain, we often make it work under great difficulty, and strain it.

Have you ever stopped reading because of a feeling of discomfort? You have a headache without any reason for it that you can think of, or your eyes feel tired, or you find that you cannot fix your attention on your book or paper. You may find later that these are signs you were straining your eyes.

We can see under a dim light, but we can see more easily and more quickly if we have more light. When we live day after day with too little light, we are likely to find that our eyesight is affected, and that we may need glasses. Then we know we have strained our eyes until they cannot do their work without help.

DECORATE WITH LIGHT

Up to this point we have thought of lighting only as it helps us to see easily—in other words, as it is useful. Of course, this is very important in every room in the home, and everywhere else. But when we light our home, we want the lighting to make each room pleasant and attractive, and our lighting, except for the work rooms (the kitchen, the laundry, the basement and attic), should be as much of a decoration or ornament as the pictures and rugs and curtains.

Lighting equipment may be ornamental and decorative, and at the same time it can be made in such a way that it will properly light the room. Much of the lighting equipment in use today can be greatly improved by using shades that are longer, so that no extremely bright spot appears in the center of them.

A FEW CAUTIONS

Here are a few cautions that will help you protect your eyes:

Don't judge the amount of light in a room by the brightness of the bare, unshaded bulbs. That is the indication of glare.

Don't expose your eyes to unshaded lights. That may cause eyestrain.

Don't read while facing a bright light or a sunny window. Have the light come from beside you or over your shoulder.

Don't use bright lights against a dark background.

Don't try to read in a dim light that tires your eyes.

Don't let your lighting equipment get dirty. Clean it regularly. Dust and dirt may cause you to lose as much as one-half or even three-fifths of the light that the bulbs produce and that you are paying for.

Don't depend on taking out light bulbs to connect appliances and portable lamps. Have convenience outlets put in for this purpose.

Don't be indifferent to the preservation of your eyesight.

includes the Putnam Savings bank and the branches of the Windham County National bank and Danielson Trust company. George Bino of Fabyan and Philip Spiro of Webster were found not guilty of a charge of burglary after a hearing before Justice Charles M. Perrin of North Woodstock that lasted late into Thursday evening. The two men were charged with breaking and entering the home of George Wetzler in North Woodstock on the night of Sept. 13 last. Wetzler testified that about 11 o'clock the man whom he identified as Bino came to his door, where he lives alone, and asked him to go out to the road and help start an automobile. Upon his return he found the man whom he thought was Spiro ransacking his house. Wetzler, who is a former blacksmith and a man of good proportions, set upon the pair and gave them more or less of a thrashing and put them out of the house. Each defendant set up an alibi. Bino admitted he had been to the home of Wetzler but not on the Saturday night in question. He testified that he spent the 13th in Worcester and was there that night. In this he was corroborated by several witnesses. Spiro testified, and was corrboorated by other witnesses, that he spent Saturday evening, Sept. 13, the night of the alleged burglary, in Webster. In view of this testimony, Judge Perrin found both men not guilty.

LIBRARY LIBERTY BONDS GONE IN BANK WRECK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Oct. 10.—One of the facts that came to light through the reading of the indictment against G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank, is that $8,700 in Liberty bonds owned by the town of Putnam were found to be missing from the bank, where they were left for safe keeping.

These bonds represented the Mary Gardner library memorial fund and was a trust fund, the income from which was to be used for the benefit of the Putnam public library. When Mrs. Gardner died she left her homestead on South Main street to the town conditionally that it be used wholly or in part as a library. The town got the consent of the residuary legatee, Miss Fannie Barber, of Willington, to waive the condition in the gift with the understanding that the property could be sold and the interest from the proceeds used for library purposes. A committee empowered to sell the property conveyed it to the Arcanum club, the present owner, and the money was invested in the bonds —which have now disappeared. There are receipts for the bonds in the hands of those in charge of the fund and therefore a recovery is assured at such time as the affairs of the bank are liquidated.

It has also become known that Gilpatric has been removed by the Putnam probate court as executor of the Gardner estate and the sole beneficiary, Miss Barber, has been appointed to succeed him. Miss Barber has filed her bond and qualified as executrix. She is now engaged, with the assistance of her counsel, Attorney J. F. Carpenter, in straightening out the estate, which is said to be in tangled form from the handling of Gilpatric.

Like the First Baptist church of Putnam, the Congregational church of Abington is facing the problem of raising money to pay a 100 per cent. assessment on its holdings of stock in the First National bank of Putnam. The Putnam church owned five shares and the Ladies' Aid society of the church has undertaken to raise the amount. To do this they are giving a series of sales and entertainments. The Abington church owned but four shares, therefore will raise but $400. They have decided to do this by popular subscription and a committee composed of Joseph Stoddard, Mrs. Henry Holbrook, Mrs. Fred Keene and Mrs. Seymour Beal has been named to take charge of circulating the subscription papers.

TWO WIVES DIVORCED IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Oct. 10.—Judge William M. Maltbie granted two uncontested divorces at a short calendar session of the superior court in Putnam Friday morning.

The first decree was granted Isabella S. Pawluc of Mechanicsville from Herkulan Pawluc of parts unknown. The petitioner testified that she was married Feb. 4, 1909, in Manchester, N. H. She said she came to Mechanicsville with her husband twelve years ago. He left her once seven years ago but returned. She said her husband drank every chance he got and one week spent over a hundred dollars for liquor. When he was drunk he would beat her. He was drunk at least once a week and sometimes several times a week.

Other witnesses testified to defendant's drinking habits and a brother-in-iwa of defendant testified that he saw the plaintiff with a black eye following her husband's abuse of her.

Georgiana Blais of Plainfield, mother of four daughters from 11 to 19 years of age, was granted a decree from Eugene Blais of parts unknown on the ground of desertion. The wife testified that her husband didn't like to work but said he didn't drink much. They were married in Baltic in 1905 and went from there to Plainfield. Her husband had left her in all three times, the last time in 1913, since which time she had neither seen him nor heard from him.

A foreclosure of mortgage by sale was granted the Danielson Trust company on a farm in Scotland on which the trust company holds a mortgage for $1,500. There are two attachments on the property, also a judgment lien. The date of redemption was fixed at Dec. 1, 1924.

The Good MAXWELL

NORWICH TOWN

A radio communication, dated Oct. 6, handed on board S. S. Cameronia for transmission via S. S. Tuscania, came from Miss Gertrude Avery, telling of fine weather and a pleasant voyage, all well, and enjoying steamer letters.

The Home Missionary society of the First Congregational church was pleasantly entertained Friday afternoon, from 3 to 5, at the home of the president, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, at Peck's corner. The meeting, the first for this season, was opened with Scripture reading from the 103d Psalm, and prayer by Mrs. Yerrington, who also read interesting accounts from the October Bulletin from Home Missionary headquarters, as well as several letters of interest. Much time was devoted to formulating plans for the winter's work regarding sales, suppers, packing boxes to be sent away for worthy causes, sewing, etc. It was decided to hold meetings from time to time at the homes of members, instead of meeting in the chapel. Mrs. Yerrington paid a tribute to Miss Mary E. Wattles, for several years the society's president, she having presided at the 1923 meeting by special request; also to the late Mrs. Edwin C. Gay, for many years a helpful and energetic worker for the society's interests. Both were present for the last time at the meeting one year ago this month. Members of the society are to piece one or more blocks each for a quilt, this to be the first work taken up. From time to time work will comprise sewing on aprons and other useful articles to be sent away for distribution among those needy, also used at sales to swell the society's funds and thereby help meet its apportionment for another year. The full quota for this year's apportionment is in the treasury and will be sent in due time by the treasurer, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin. During the summer members saved their pennies which were placed in paper containers which read—"Wanted, A Mile of Pennies." From this a substantial sum was realized at the meeting Friday afternoon.

The hostesses for the winter include Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey, who is to have the next meeting; Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood, Mrs. Frank E. Sterry, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, Mrs. David M. Dean and others.

At the close of the business session Mrs. Yerrington, assisted by Miss J. M. Case and Miss Louise Hyde, served tea, fancy wafers and fudge. A social hour followed.

The officers of the society are: President, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington; vice president, Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin; and the following committees: Work, Mrs. Charles P. Learned, Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, Mrs. Earl Browning; cutting Mrs. Edwin Hutchinson, Mrs. E. T. Grant, Mrs. Frank Wheeler; Marthas, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, Miss Ida Beebe; entertainment, Miss Jessie Hyde, Mrs. Henry T. Frazier and Miss Sadie J. Dawson.

BE MADE A VOTER.

This is the first day which has been fixed for the making of voters this fall in anticipation of the coming presidential election. Throughout Connecticut today boards of registration will be busy passing upon the qualifications of those who have made applications and whose names are on the to-be-made lists. It is a day when thousands of new voters will be made in this state.

There may or may not be other days on which voters can be made, but whether there is or not the need of taking full advantage of the opportunity to obtain the franchise should be fully appreciated by those who are eligible.

There are those organizations that are doing their best in a meritorious effort to get out the voters at the coming election. Sight cannot be lost of the fact that before many who should vote can do so they must be made voters. Having applied for such a right the thing to do is to go through with it, qualify, take the elector's oath and then exercise your good judgment on election day.

President Coolidge has most fittingly said: "It is more fitting than ever that we regard the right to vote not alone from the standpoint of the privilege it conveys, but from that of the duty it imposes. Neglect of that duty does not harmonize with that high standard of citizenship which the past history and future aspirations of the American people should inspire. To this movement every citizen interested in the public welfare should give encouragement."

The president has spoken freely in behalf of the efforts that are being made to arouse the voters to the proper recognition of their responsibilities in going to the polls and voting. Getting out the vote is always highly desirable. The bigger the vote the more nearly we come to our democratic form of government.

To become voters it is necessary to comply with only a few requirements, but it is not possible to vote without doing so. Insist upon being made a voter, if such is possible, and then cherish and exercise that privilege.

RED CROSS WORK.

Upon inquiry one would find that it is generally known that there is such an organization as the American Red Cross and that it is engaged in administering relief, but it is questioned whether there is a realization of the broad scope of its work and the help that is actually rendered.

There are those who look upon the Red Cross solely as an emergency organization, equipped and ready to give aid in case of disasters. There are those who consider its activities are confined to periods of war and that its service is restricted to the battlefields.

In the time of disaster or in time of war the American Red Cross is ready for service, but in addition it is engaged in rendering peace time relief to hundreds of thousands who are in need of it. The situation to which it responds may be due to war, to pestilence, to floods, to earthquakes, to famines but it is also engaged in a most important work of teaching prevention.

The annual convention at Washington has served to throw much light upon its activity to the unenlightened. When it is shown that there are 30,000 American Red Cross nurses on active duty at the present time it becomes apparent that there is work to be done. When it is reported that more than a million were given instructions in life saving and about 13,000 qualified in the courses on the administration of first aid to the injured there is revealed the character of a much needed service. In addition to this the fact that 13,000 adults and 136,000 children were instructed in the influence of the food upon health and 56,000 were taught how to care for the sick it becomes evident that it is dealing with big problems, the solution of which is of the greatest importance to humanity.

Is there any wonder that the American Red Cross has so many friends, or that it gets such recognition when the time comes for raising funds? Relieving suffering is a great service but right along with it comes the work for the prevention of much of it, and the Red Cross is constantly demonstrating that it knows how to do both and do them well.

WHAT LYNCH LAW DOES.

From Chicago comes the report that in the opinion of the police a mob killed an innocent man. The mob succeeded in doing just what it set out to do. It was determined that a colored man should die and it didn't care very much which one it was. It probably would have preferred that it would be the one who it was claimed molested two white women, but it didn't take the trouble to make sure it was the right one. It beat a man to death and then when one of the women who had been accosted was called to identify the dead man she was unable to do so. That is too often the case with mob rule and lynch law.

That there should be resentment of the act of a man who had taken hold of the arm of a woman without justification or reason, whether his color was white or black, was natural. But there was nothing in the act that called for punishment by death. It was a crime that was typical of those sections of the country where too little respect for the law prevails, where efforts to take the law into their own hands are frequent and where the number of cases of killing innocent men is too large.

It was proper that the person or persons who accosted the women should be arrested and dealt with by the courts. It was grossly unjust that he should be deliberately murdered because of the demands of a lot of hotheads who knew little or nothing about the circumstances and who apparently cared little so long as they administered a beating to someone.

The effort to penalize the innocent man must be regarded as far worse than the offense which started the trouble. If the dead man was suspected of the act he should have been arrested and been given a trial. His death simply calls for the punishment of those who were involved in it, and it will be most unfortunate if they cannot be located. The fact that it occurred in one of the "worst spots in Chicago's west side" simply calls for Chicago to clean up that spot.

BORAH ON COOLIDGE.

It has long since been known that Borah is Borah. He has views of his own and he expresses them. He has long been regarded as a progressive member of the republican party and his views are invariably pointed and direct.

There usually isn't much question as to where Senator Borah stands. There hasn't been in the present campaign except that he hasn't been heard from until he opened his own campaign for the return to the upper house of congress from Idaho. He took that occasion for clearing up any doubt as to where he stood.

There may have been a time when he was rated as a La Follette supporter, but that has disappeared. He recognizes the fact that his candidacy is endorsed by the La Follette party in his own state, for which he is appreciative, but he doesn't give his endorsement to La Follette. He emphasized the fact that he was a member of the republican party and he intended to remain one and he likewise came out in support of President Coolidge in no uncertain terms.

When he lauded the president as the only president who has had the courage to combat the growing tendency toward bureaucracy and extravagance he referred to that attitude with which everyone is familiar, and what that meant to Senator Borah is expressed in his own words when he said, "President Coolidge, because of this, is the greatest man in the political history of the United States."

That is an endorsement which is wholehearted. Coming from Senator Borah it cannot be claimed that he was bound to say it anyway. There is a Borah independency which disposes of any such thought. When he says a thing he means it and nothing could be more sincere than his rating and support of the president.

WORLD CHAMPIONS.

World series have come and world series have gone but there was none just like the 1924 contest. Zigzagging from one to the other until the decision rested upon the seventh game that contest provided all the thrills that could be expected and went into three extra innings before the tie could be broken.

Unquestionably it is a great popular victory which has been won by Washington. The masterly manner in which that aggregation under Manager Harris has claimed to the front and gained supremacy in the American league naturally made it a favorite, but even stronger was the sentiment in its behalf after the disclosure concerning two of the New York team's men.

If it were possible for wishes to have guided the victory it would have been won long before it was. Could thoughts as to just what kind of a hit or play at critical points have had their influence the series would have been greatly shortened.

From first to last, however, the world championship has been a masterly demonstration of the American classic. There have been stars and there has been magnificent team work. Washington has reason to be enthusiastic over the honors obtained, but it is to be realized that there is no disgrace in the loss of such a contest. Two well matched teams have battled. It was inevitably that one should win. Washington was able to make the most of its opportunities and as it takes the flag it gets the plaudits of the country.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

'Twas a wonderful finish for a close and interesting world series.

The board to make voters doesn't like to waste time. Keep it busy today.

A lot of hard work is done putting out fires. It would be much better if the fires were never started.

One can be positive in the claim that the new baseball scandal has not helped the national game.

You might as well start in getting acquainted with the new traffic regulations so as to make enforcement all the easier.

If there isn't enough helium in the country for two dirigibles, no difficulty would be experienced in getting enough political hot air.

The recklessness displayed by La Follette in telling what he would do makes it evident that no ship of state should ever be entrusted to his guidance.

The talk which La Follette is indulging in regarding republican funds reminds one of similar talk by Candidate Cox four years ago. The Cox claims were baseless, the cheapest kind of a political dodge and La Follette is indulging in the same stunt.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Let us devoutly thank President Remsen B. Ogilby of Trinity College for stating so forcibly that any sophomore, or even the class itself, will be expelled if found guilty of hazing any freshman. It is high time that this barbarous custom was put into the museum of other dead relics of the past. There is no more sense in keeping up hazing than there is of wearing wigs or burning whale oil. During a solar eclipse why don't we go out and beat drums and put on sackcloth to drive away the evil spirits that obscure the sun? Hazing was born in an age that did such things. What a howl students would put up if they were compelled to study the science they had in the days when hazing was in flower! Harvard has stopped this and all other colleges that have caught the modern spirit. Why can not sophomores be broad minded enough to hold a reception in honor of the incoming class and thus get out of the prehistoric spirit!

How it thrills our hearts to learn that a project is on foot to fitly commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific ocean! We certainly hope that this great body of water will duly appreciate the intended honor! Is there not some little difficulty in discovering who it was who first saw this mighty ocean and when? Of course we know that Columbus was the first white man who heard of it; Balboa the first white man to see it; Magellan the first white man to traverse it; Capt. Cook the first white man to really explore it, and soon followed by Anson, Perouse and particularly Vancouver. Before these great white men made their daring voyages of discovery 400 years ago, there must have been countless men on the Asiatic as well as on the American side, whose skin was not white, who saw and to some extent traversed and explored this greatest of the oceans. The eyes of men who are not white can see.

There are valid reasons for feeling that every patriotic citizen would cordially indorse the attempt of every chamber of commerce to get out the full voting strength at the coming presidential election one month hence. It is hardly flattering to our much vaunted democracy to be reminded that our presidents are elected by a minority of the voters. When it comes to getting out to the polls we "let George do it" with a vengeance. A search into the figures of some recent elections brings out some startling facts. In 1922, the democratic nominee for governor of Florida was elected by exactly one tenth of the voting strength of the state. In the presidential election of 1920, when the largest number voted in our history, Pennsylvania brought to the polls 40 per cent or two fifths of her qualified voters. In the country at large at the national election in 1920, 26,713,832 people voted, while 20,000,000 stayed at home. But the worst feature of the situation is that it is the more undesirable that are most active.

How easily and quickly the forces of nature can disrupt the works of man! For the second time within a few weeks we have evidence of what damage a gale of unusual velocity can do with trees, electric light, fields of corn and otherwise. Do we realize what in all probability would happen if the gale attained twice the velocity that it sometimes does, which it might easily do. In that case it would mean that poorly-built houses would be blown down, and human life would be frightfully sacrificed! There was a big maple blown over in the recent gale. There was one short crack and down the tree came. It was solid wood, free from decay, and one foot in diameter. It simply shows what power nature has when she bones right down to business. We can hardly fail to realize that some Mighty Power is holding nature in check.

The writer of these paragraphs is in hearty sympathy with the indignation of the Veterans of the World War with the cartoon in The New York World recently representing Col. Theodore Roosevelt in his father's uniform which was vastly too big for him. It was clearly a slur on the American uniform. If the New York World could step aside from its political prejudices long enough to acquaint itself with young Theodore Roosevelt's career in the late war, it would see the injustice of putting the young man into the garb of his father which was too big for him. Theodore Roosevelt fought in the battles of Contigny, Soissons, St. Mihiel, and the Argonne-Meuse. He was twice wounded, and for his bravery he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, which was the highest medal given by the United States government; and also he received the Croix de Guerre which was the highest given by France for bravery. It was utterly unjust to make this young man appear as the shadow of his great father!

Isn't it about time that a little pep was injected into this presidential campaign? A mild quantity of dynamite used hyperdermically might show that this contest was a living issue. Up to the present time the symptoms of the two major parties must be very pleasing to the so-called "progressives." Is it not quite possible for the two old parties to be a bit over confident? It cannot be that both parties are expecting that they are going to have a landslide. If so it is hardly a credit to their judgment. Of course both cannot be sweepingly victorious. Is somebody asleep or is somebody lying low ready to spring a surprise just at the strategic moment? It may be that the age of brass band, marching in uniforms, and public speaking is gone, and the age of reason is come. If so let us not be too hopeful of results.

Even if constitutional prohibition is not all its most ardent admirers would desire, still there is one argument in its favor that makes it worthy of a lasting place in the constitution of our country. This argument is clearly indisputable, and that is the increase of property on the part of wage earners. This is seen in the enormous increase of savings banks deposits, and in the building of homes. If there are other reasons for this, what are they? It cannot be attributed to an era of unusual material prosperity. For the most part it has been quite the reverse since 1918. In this period we have been fighting to recover from the money drainage caused by the war. Something radical has happened to turn wage earnings into other channels. If not constitutional prohibition, then what?

Kate Douglas Wiggin's Struggle for a Livelihood

"Lack of money never was mentioned during the early years of Kate Douglass Wiggin, and her childhood was one of "dream and fancies" but after she had arrived at the age when she could enjoy the delights of affluence she was made to feel the pinch of poverty.

Her father died when she was very young, and she was taken from Philadelphia to little Hollis, Maine. Her girlhood was marked by delightful times in the old garden, in studying music and in attending Abbot Academy at Andover, Mass.

At 17 she was taken to Santa Barbara, Calif. Her stepfather became excited over a land boom, invested heavily and when the growth of the town went another way after his death, the mother and daughters found themselves without funds.

Money or income had never been discussed at home before, and the outlook was dark. Learning in five days to play an organ she received $15 a month as church musician. Writing a story based part on the experience at a girls' seminary, she named it "Half-a-Dozen Housekeepers," and sent it to a magazine. After many days of waiting she received a check for $115, which helped to pay the family's taxes.

She desired to write more but could think of nothing "to write about" and believed her "call in life" was in other directions. After studying kindergarten teaching she opened a free school for poor children in San Francisco and to raise funds for the school she wrote The Birds' Christmas Carol and The Story of Patsy.

Marrying Samuel Wiggin, an attorney, at 23, she later went with him to New York. His death forced her to return to San Francisco and resume teaching.

To earn money after the disaster of 1906 had wiped out her school, she sent The Birds' Christmas Carol and The Story of Patsy to a publisher. Both met with instant success. Then she wrote A Cathedral Courtship, Rebecca and many other stories that made the name of Kate Douglas Wiggin popular in this and other countries. Happily married at 35 to George C. Riggs of New York, she became a social as well as literary favorite, and her death was mourned in many ports of the world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Earl Beauchamp, who has been chosen to succeed Viscount Grey of Fallodon as leader of the Liberals in the House of Lords, has had a long and varied experience in British politics. When only 23 he was Mayor of Worcester, and before he was 27 he was appointed Governor of New South Wales. He has also held the posts of First Commissioner of Works, Lord President of the Council, and Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, the last named being an office which has its origins rooted deep in the history of invasions from across the North Sea. Lord Beauchamp was educated at Eton and Christ church, Oxford. He is the owner of about 18,000 acres of land, and possesses a rich collection of art treasures. In 1913 he was prominently mentioned for the Governor-Generalship of Canada. Throughout his public career he has been an enthusiastic advocate of free trade.

BIOGRAPHIES OF REPUBLICAN STATE NOMINEES

Hiram Bingham—Hiram Bingham was born in Honolulu, Hawaiian islands, November 19, 1875. He is a descendant of Deacon Thomas Bingham who came to America and settled in Connecticut about 1650. Colonel Bingham's father was a pioneer missionary in the Gilbert islands.

He was graduated at Yale university in 1898 and for eight months after that was superintendent of Palama Chapel Mission at Honolulu. Later he served as chemist with the American Sugar company in the Hawaiian islands. He studied further at the University of California, receiving the degree of M. A. in 1900 and in 1901 he received the M. A. degree from Harvard. From 1901 to 1908 he taught history in Harvard. In 1905 he received the degree of Ph. D. from that university. He was preceptor in history and politics at Princeton in 1905 and 1906.

He began his career as an explorer by undertaking an overland journey from Venezuela to Columbia in 1906 and 1907, following this by a year of lecturing on South American affairs at Yale. He went as a delegate to the first Pan-American scientific congress at Santiago de Chile in 1908. In 1909 he explored an old Spanish trade route from Buenos Aires to Lima in South America and in 1910 he lectured on history at John Hopkins university and later at Yale.

He was the director of the Yale Peruvian expedition in 1911 which made the first ascent of one of the highest peaks in the Andes mountains, Mt. Corpuna, and on this trip discovered the lost city of the Incas, Machu Picchu, located Uiticos, the last Inca capitol and made a considerable alteration in the map of central Peru. He directed the Peruvian expeditions of 1912 and 1914-15 under the auspices of Yale—and the National Geographic society, making further explorations and investigations of South America. In 1915 he became Professor of Latin American history at Yale. He has written a number of books and articles and made numerous valuable contributions to scientific and literary periodicals. Incaland, his most recent book, had a phenomenal sale for a non-fiction volume and is considered one of the most interesting books of its kind on the American market.

During the world war Hiram Bingham, although beyond the age of active service, enlisted and was placed in charge of the United States schools of military aeronautics which were rapidly being organized during 1917. The military training schools were considered the foundation of the American air service and Colonel Bingham shared considerable credit for the almost overnight development of American aviators. Later in that year he was made Chief of Air Personnel in Washington and upon systematizing this department so that it was running satisfactorily he requested transfer to France. In March 1918 his request was granted and he immediately went overseas, where he was placed in command of the air aviation instructing center at Issoudun, France. Colonel Bingham was not merely content to be commanding officer of the Air service, but he was an active "flier" himself.

He is a member of many scientific societies and was the recipient in 1919 of a decoration from the French government. He was married in 1900 to Alfreda Mitchell of New London, and has seven sons.

John H. Trumbull—Senator John H. Trumbull of Plainville, republican nominee for lieutenant-governor, has long been active in financial circles in Connecticut and was instrumental in devising the excellent financial legislation at the last session of the general assembly, during which he served as chairman of the finance committee. Senator Trumbull has served two terms in the state senate from the fifth district and was president pro tempore of the senate in the 1923 session.

Senator Trumbull is prominent in the business and financial affairs of Plainville. He is president and a director of the Bristol and Plainville Tramway Co., director of the Plainville Realty Co., and president of the Trumbull Electric Manufacturing company.

The candidate for lieutenant-governor was a captain in the Connecticut State Guard, was appointed chief of ordnance by Governor Templeton, is a captain in the Officer's Reserve C. S. G., and a lieutenant in the Putnam Phalanx. He is a director of the chamber of commerce of both New Britain and Plainville and also a director of the Connecticut Children's Aid Society.

Senator Trumbull is a member of the board of governors of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies of New York, a member of the American Trapshooting association, the American Ornithological union, the Aero club of Hartford, the Hartford club, the Farmington Country club and the Hartford Gun club. He has also been illustrious potentate of the Sphinx Temple of the Mystic Shrine in Hartford.

Francis A. Pallotti—Judge Francis A. Pallotti, who was renominated for secretary of the state, is the only Hartford man on the republican state ticket. He was born there in 1886. He was graduated from the Brown school and attended Hartford Public High school. He was graduated from Holy Cross college, and from Yale law school. From 1918 to 1921 he was a judge in the Hartford police court and was vice-president of the street board at one time. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, Hartford Lodge, B. P. O. E., the Young Italian-American association, Foresters of America and the City club of Hartford.

Ernest E. Rogers—Senator Ernest E. Rogers of New London, republican nominee for state treasurer, merchant and banker, has had much legislative experience. He served in the house of representatives in 1921 and in the following session in the senate. He was senate chairman of the appropriations committee and chairman of the New London county delegation. He was mayor of New London ten years ago and since then has taken a prominent part in affairs of the city. He is president of the Connecticut Society of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the New London Historical Society. He was born in Waterford fifty-eight years ago.

Frederick N. Salmon—Comptroller Frederick N. Salmon, who was renominated for the office, was born in Westport. He was graduated from the public schools and attended business college, after which he went into the dry goods business, succeeding his father in 1894. He was elected treasurer of Fairfield county and was appointed a director of the Connecticut state prison by Governor Frank B. Weeks. He served in the senate in 1915 and again in 1917, representing the twenty-fifth district, and was alternate delegate to the republican national convention in 1920. He has been a trustee of the Westport library, the Staples high school and the Westport Methodist church and a director of the Westport Bank and Trust Co.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fire Prevention.

Mr. Editor: It is surely fitting that the late combination of oratory and demonstration should not pass unnoticed, especially as the general public is actually and logically concerned in the matter of danger from fires. In drawing conclusions from the many statistics and facts put out by the various speakers this writer is well aware of the danger he stands in of evoking opposition and partial ostracism in offering anything that may be construed into criticism; the participants being all honorable men. We noticed this, however, that although our highest authority stated that 90 per cent. of our fires were inexcusable and for the most part attributable to the cigarette as leading factor, no proposition was broached in the meeting to start propaganda to put out the cigarette. The cigarette logically as well as etymologically preceding the fire. We would note the inconsistency here, for without going into statistics we venture that more money and time are wasted in the burning of tobacco itself than in all the accidental fires it sets. In this writer's youth the church took a hand in organizing juvenile anti-liquor and anti-tobacco societies, and out of this came the men who are now fighting for prohibition; but we have no such societies now and a juvenile temperance pledge or a Father Mathew medal would be only found in an antique collection of curios. It is admitted on all hands that the hope of the future lies with the youth of today. Yet we are willfully in the disposal of the tobacconists.

We have societies representing about every bird that flies, and every quadruped that walks, but excepting the W. C. T. U., it is fair to say we have no total abstinence club, and that every other club is a smoker's club. Truly if Heraclitus lived today he would have a hearty laugh at our pretentious reformers and Democritus might well weep over our efforts to create enthusiasm by banquet and comic song, in the names of adding moral stata to the community.

The writer knows the fate awaiting his critique. Some good folks will clip it out for their scrap book. "Those who care." Those who don't may not think it worth wiping their razor on, but there will come a limit, and a sterner and more authoritative voice will speak out, and it will be this:

"Behold, I come quickly and my reward is with me. Let him that is righteous be righteous still, and he that is filthy let him be filthy still, and he that is holy, let him be holy still." Amen.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

JOY FROM SORROW

"Blessed are they that mourn, Matt. 5.4."

This is an absolute promise to all those who in the kingdom of heaven are brought into the experience of mourning.

But chiefly the blessing refers to those who mourn over ignorance and sin both in themselves and in others, who feel the sorrows of others, who realize the sins and needs of the world lying in wickedness.

It is not the taking away altogether of sorrow, but transforming and transfiguring it, and compelling it to bestow blessings otherwise impossible.

How did the Holy Spirit, the promised Comforter, comfort the disciples after the death of Christ? The eleven frightened men, who had been scattered as sheep without a shepherd, became lions; Peter, who a few days before had lied in terror of a maid servant, stood firm, immovable, before the magnates, who had crucified his Master. They all received strength, hope, assurance, light, courage. They were changed into heroes. And the death of Christ, over which they had mourned, became the power of God for the salvation of the world. Thus they were comforted.

The comfort comes from the divine grace shining on the mourning, as the rain bow on the drops of rain. Each one shall be comforted according to that for which he mourns.

If we mourn in poverty of spirit for the deepest reason, namely, sin, then the sweet assurance of pardon and the infusing of power to overcome our sin brings comfort, comfort with which the stanching of other wounds is poor.

Those who mourn for the sins of the world shall be comforted, for the state of the heart most impels and best fits us to save men from sin; and the labors for that end shall be successful; the world shall be redeemed; the kingdom shall come; and then every one who mourned over the sin of the world shall rejoice "with joy unspeakable and full of glory."

God comforts those that mourn by giving forgiveness, and insight, and larger hearts, and purer consciences, desire to relieve, courage and hope and heroism in relieving. Every noblest power of the soul is enlarged.

Those who mourn in the sickness, cares, burdens, and losses of which life is so full can find in Jesus a comfort beyond all expressions.

He comforts us in our sorrow by making them work out for good, ennobling the character, enlarging the sympathy and the power of helping others.

He comforts us also by revealing the world beyond this for which all this hard training is preparing us.

God will make all our sorrows to work out good to us, and when we see God's meaning and God's results we will be comforted. Many of the best blessings can come in no other way. He that never mourns for himself and others is narrow, and dull, and blind.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Thrift Cannot Be Forced

At various times efforts have been made under one circumstance or another to develop practices of thrift by compulsion.

But compulsory thrift has never been successful. This is a point to be borne in mind by those who, though actuated by the most splendid motives, may be endeavoring to compel habits of economy among those under their guidance.

Thrift is fundamentally a matter of mental attitude.

The saving of money, the elimination of idleness, the development of efficiency are all matters which primarily must depend for their success on the state of mind of the individual. Before a man practices thrift he must have an understanding of all that it involves. He must have an appreciation of its benefits as compared with the sacrifices it sometimes involves. He must be aware of all that it means in the development of his career. He must have a correct perspective of present economies as related to future benefits. He must know thrift. He must desire thrift. He must be thought sold on the whole plan of thrift practice.

Until such a condition has been reached every effort to compel him to follow these practices will only arouse his antagonism.

It is true, of course, that an employer can compel those who work under him to save a certain portion of their earnings. In some isolated cases individuals may, through this method, be started on the right road. But, broadly speaking, such practices will arouse so much discontentment, resentment and prejudice upon the part of employees that infinitely more harm than good will be done. Moreover, the chief benefit of thrift, namely, the development of personal discipline, will have been lost.

Teach thrift. Preach thrift. Encourage thrift. Inspire thrift. But do not try to compel it.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Wants to Know It All

Three year old Billy has been on the street with some boys there were not over careful of their language, and afterward used an oath of two words in the presence of his mother. The mother talked to him about the Piety and showed him that he should not use the name of the Lord in vain. Billy seemed impressed, then said: "Now, mother, tell me about durn."

Three Cents' Worth

A group was discussing how they saved pennies when they were young. The one getting the most money took the prize. He said he ordered three cents' worth of meat from the butcher for his cat. The meat was delivered at his home, but before it came the cat had caught a mouse, so he called the butcher and asked him if he would come and get the meat and take it back—refunding, of course, the amount paid for it.

It was reported that the butcher took the meat back.

Foolish Ambition

It is an indiscreet and troublesome ambition that cares so much about fame; about what the world says of us; to be always looking in the faces of others for approval; to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say; to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our own voices.—Longfellow.

Poor Advice

LOUIS MABREY DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME

Louis Mabrey, who for many years was a resident of this city, died suddenly with an attack of acute indigestion about 1.30 o'clock this (Saturday) morning at his home at Ocean Beach, New London.

Mrs. Mabrey was aroused by her husband's condition and called a neighbor, Attorney Thomas Dorsey, but her husband's death occurred before medical help could be secured.

For many years Mr. Mabrey was in charge of a department in the Boston store in this city but he resigned that position in 1907 and went into the catering business which he and his wife, who was Elizabeth Dill, before marriage, conducted successfully for a number of years. They also opened the Mabrey house at Ocean Beach, which Mr. Mabrey has continued to conduct since the death of Mrs. Mabrey and has made that his home.

He married again a number of years ago and is survived by his second wife and by three children by his first wife, Fred D., who is a teacher, Helen, who married Ernest J. Champlin of this city and lives in the west, and Lee, who lives in Pennsylvania.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John F. Onderdonk.

The life of Nettie May Carpenter, beloved wife of John F. Onderdonk, came to a close Friday morning at her home in Preston. Mrs. Onderdonk had been ill for a long time and had been most tenderly cared for by loved ones.

She was born in Preston, Nov. 14, 1869, the daughter of John and Mary H. Carpenter and had made her home in this town all her life. Twenty-nine years ago at the First Baptist church, she was united in marriage with Mr. Onderdonk, the service being conducted by Rev. A. S. Brown.

For a number of years Mrs. Onderdonk was teacher of a school in Ledyard but after her marriage she retired from teaching to care for her home. She had been a member of the First Baptist church and also took interest in the Brewster's Neck chapel where she was organist. Her interest in church work was shown by the number of years she served as Sunday school teacher.

Mrs. Onderdonk is survived by three children, Alfred Onderdonk of Norwich, Mrs. Raymond Lathrop of Plainfield and Mrs. Robert Thompson of Hallville; one sister, Mrs. George Partridge of Preston; two brothers, John E. and Clarence Carpenter of Fort Point and one grandchild.

News of her death will be received with sorrow by a host of admiring friends. A loving mother and kind friend, she possessed those qualities which easily led to lasting friendships.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Daniel Shea

The funeral of Mary T. Shea, wife of Daniel Shea, for 30 years a well-known resident of Charlestown, who died Saturday, Sept. 27, following a few weeks' illness, took place the following Tuesday from her home, 79 Green Street, Charlestown. There was a solemn requiem high mass in St. Francis de Sales' Church at 9 o'clock by Rev. George H. Quigley, assisted by Rev. Thomas J. MacCormick as deacon, and Rev. Francis X. Quinn, sub-deacon, which was attended by many neighbors and friends. There were many floral offerings. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden. Beside her husband, Mrs. Shea is survived by four sons, Daniel, James, Joseph and Richard Shea, and two daughters, Eva and Margaret Shea.

Mrs. Shea was formerly Mary T. MacDonald of New London and her husband is a brother of the late John G. Shea of this city.

CHARLES OWEN GEER WINS YALE SCHOLARSHIP

The Yale News announces that Charles Owen Geer, N. F. A., '24, son of Mrs. Geer and the late Charles D. Geer, of Poquetanuck, has won the Sterling Memorial high school scholarship, which is $300 for the first year.

It is an interesting fact that his elder brother, C. David Geer, now a Yale senior, received the same scholarship in his entering year.

MISSING PLAINFIELD GIRL AND NORWICH MAN ARE FOUND IN OHIO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Oct. 10.—It became known here today that Ethel Mildred Borden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Borden, who has been missing for about two years, has been found in Painesville, Ohio, and is under arrest there with Benjamin Saunders, formerly of Norwich, who has been sought by the police for abduction.

Mr. and Mrs. Borden left here this morning for the Ohio town to bring their daughter home.

Saunders, who was a railroad employe and lived here on the East Side, has successfully kept out of reach of the police ever since he deserted his wife in Montreal and fled with the Borden girl. His wife, Johanna Beswick Saunders, succeeded in making her way back here and died shortly afterwards, broken-hearted over the faithlessness of her husband and the perfidy of the girl who she had believed was her friend and whom she had taken into her home after they had become acquainted while they were patients in the Backus hospital.

The girl was a pupil in the convent school at Baltic in September, 1921, but left there suddenly one day when Mr. and Mrs. Saunders drove up in an automobile with a faked message that the girl's mother was dying at home. The convent authorities were tricked into letting her go, her sobs helping in the reception. That was the last heard of the three until the deserted wife struggled home and told her story before she died.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE VOTES FOR DIRECTORS

The annual primary election of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce closed at 6 p. m., Friday. One hundred forty-three members voted, each voting for four members for nomination. The eight members receiving the largest number of votes are the nominees for four directors who will be voted on at the final election which will close next Friday.

The eight nominees chosen by the membership are: C. E. Carpenter, Grosvenor Ely, George A. Finn, R. D. Judd, J. M. Lee, C. D. Noyes, H. A. Tirrell, A. M. Van Wagenen.

The election tellers are: J. A. French, J. S. Adams, H. M. Opitz, W. R. Dean, C. J. Hpefer, W. H. Aldrich, T. F. Cummings, W. J. Fitzgerald, J. F. Fleming, J. J. O'Rourke.

The directors of the present board who hold office for another year are: Rev. A. H. Abbott, Nelson J. Aviing, H. B. Cary, Jacob Munz, A. E. Story, C. E. Wills. Those whose term expires at this time, they having served for two years are: President H. M. Lenou, E. La Rue Bliven, Dr. H. B. Campbell, A. L. Peale, C. A. Saxton, J. N. Weymouth. Those who retire are not eligible for re-election for at least one year. Messrs. Ely, Lee and Noyes, placed in nomination at this time, have previously held the office of directors of the chamber.

COLUMBUS DAY WILL BE CELEBRATED IN CITY

The Italian residents of the city will celebrate Columbus Day Monday with a parade and band concert. The parade will start at 6.45 o'clock in the evening and the line of march will be as follows:

Water street to Burnham square, countermarch to Washington square and back up Broadway to Union square where the parade will be dismissed. The band concert will follow immediately after the dismissal of the band at Union square. The Italian Columbus band will head the parade and give the concert. Prof. Pasquale Pucca is leading.

The committee in charge announced Friday night that anyone who wishes to participate in the parade may do so by reporting on Water street, near the Majestic building at 6.30 o'clock. There will be plenty of red fire lighting up the line of march. The committee in charge of the plans comprises Anthony Giovanni, Milio Badaloni and Rocco Barbetta.

PORTRAYS INDIAN LIFE AT CAMP FIRE ENTERTAINMENT

An entertainment of unusual interest was given under the auspices of Okiya Camp Fire Friday evening at the Osgood Memorial before an audience of 100 when Mabel Frances Knight of Boston, who has studied American Indian lore and life at first hand gave the legends, music and dances of the First Americans.

Miss Knight appeared in full Indian costume and held the close attention of her audience as she told of her residence among the Indians and the knowledge she had gained of their customs and characteristics. Her portrayal gave her audience a new understanding of the Indian life and thought.

HOLY CROSS ALUMNI TO HONOR FR. DINAND

Holy Cross College alumni in eastern Connecticut are enthusiastic for a big November 11th celebration, when alumni and friends of Holy Cross are to have a great demonstration and banquet, in honor of the new president, Rev. Joseph Dinand, S. J. For six years Father Dinand served as president, then was transferred to New York as provincial of the order. The demonstration planned will indicate the joy of the alumni at his return to again administer the college affairs.

EVERY DAY SHOWER FOR MISS VERA STETSON

At the regular meeting of the Phi Alpha class, of the First Baptist church, at the home of Mrs. E. C. Dunbar on Colt street, Friday evening, a "Every Day Shower" was given Miss Vera Stetson, president of the class, in honor of her approaching marriage. Preceding the shower there was the regular business meeting and sewing hour. Miss Stetson, by means of various verses of poetry, was able to locate many beautiful and useful gifts which were hidden about the home. These gifts were suitable for the different days of the week. Mrs. Dunbar served dainty refreshments.

EAGLES HAVE PLANS FOR CLASS INITIATION

Norwich Aerie of Eagles, No. 367, held its regular meeting Monday evening with Worthy President Timothy Fields presiding. There was an unusually large attendance which was enthusiastic over the plans outlined for the coming year. John T. F. Burns was elected trustee of the aerie for one year. Three applications for membership were voted upon and the committee in charge of the class initiation which is to be held on Oct. 19 reported progress and outlined an attractive program for that day.

Two Fire Calls

At 12:15 o'clock this Saturday) morning the fire department responded to a telephone call for a fire in the awning above the office of Dr. Paul A. Schwartz in the Somers building on Franklin square. It is thought the fire started from a carelessly dropped cigarette butt.

At 5:10 o'clock Friday afternoon Engine Co., No. 2, Greeneville, responded to a call for a fire in the tenement house at No. 7 Tenth street and in short order extinguished a blaze which was beginning to spread. The house is owned by Andrew Zawacki and is occupied by his family and Walter Listfon and family.

COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNUAL CONVENTION HELD

Rev. Howard M. Wells of Old Lyme was elected president of the New London County Sunday School association at the afternoon session Friday of the annual convention of the association at the Central Baptist church. With Rev. Roderick MacLeod, the president, in the chair, the convention was called to order at 10.30 o'clock in the morning. Wallace I. Woodin of Hartford leading the service of worship. James L. Case of this city acted as chorister. Mr. Case, who is superintendent of the Central Baptist Sunday school, gave a short address of welcome, after which the convention got down to business with a Bible period, The Master Teacher, led by Prof. Wallace L. Gallup of Connecticut college, who drew lessons from the methods followed by Jesus in His teaching.

At the close of Prof. Gallup's lecture President MacLeod spoke his appreciation of the assistance given by the State Sunday School association and also by Miss Susan Penhallow of New London, the secretary of the county association. He then introduced Prof. O. W. Warmingham of Boston university. Prof. Warmingham, who delivered two other addresses, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, spoke on the topic The Place of Religious Education in Democracy.

About 12.30 o'clock the convention adjourned for the noon recess, during which dinner was served the 104 registered by the women of the Central Baptist church. The menu was as follows: Roast beef, sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, pickles, gravy, biscuits, pie, cheese, coffee.

James L. Case, superintendent of the Central Baptist church, was the toastmaster. The evening session was called to order at 7.30 o'clock, Wallace I. Woodin leading the service of worship the hymns being announced by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, this city. The third Bible period followed, Prof. Gallup leading, and speaking on The Master Friend. Prof. Warmingham's address upon the Glory of the Teacher's Task brought the convention to a close.

The convention adjourned about 9.30 o'clock. In all there was a total attendance of 104 churches being represented as follows:

GAVE MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER FOR NEWLY MARRIED COUPLE

A miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Calkins, who were married last Saturday, was given Thursday evening by twenty-five of their friends at their home at 61 Williams street.

The house was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers and foliage. The newly married couple received many beautiful and useful gifts. Games, music and stunts comprised the evening's program. Light refreshments of ice cream, assorted cake, cookies, fruit punch and candy were served by the hostess, who was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Mary Buckley, Mrs. William Buckley, Mrs. Jerry Angell and Mrs. William Calkins. An evening of fun was enjoyed by all.

Among those present were Mrs. Mary Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. William Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. William Calkins, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Calkins, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Angell, Miss Mildred Bailey, Joseph Grady, Miss Ruth Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Gauthier, Miss Ellen Nielson, Herbert Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hourigan, Mrs. Swan, Miss Frances Swan, Miss Mildred Swan, Miss Helen Tourtellotte, George Angell, Masters William, Richard and Frederick Buckley and Master Theodore Angell.

INDICTED FOR MURDER OF FREDERICK A. CLEMENTS

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 10.—Hallie Mowbray, 18 year old garage mechanic, who confessed that he assisted in disposing of the body of Frederick A. Clements, garage proprietor, of Burlington, which was found a week ago in the Shawseen river at Bedford, was indicted by the Middlesex county grand jury today for murder in the first degree. The date of the crime was given by the grand jury as Sept. 17.

Mawbray went to the Burlington police last Sunday and said that Clements, who was his employer, had been killed by two strangers as he slept in a loft over his garage. The motive was robbery, he said. The youth declared that he was forced by threats to assist the killers in wrapping the body in a quilt, attaching parts of an automobile as weights, and sinking the bundle in the river.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF KILLING HUSBAND

Newark, N. J., Oct. 10.—Mary Bruno, 22, was acquitted of murdering her alleged bigamous husband, Carmino, on Aug. 31, by a jury in Judge Caffrey's court today after an all-night deliberation. Bruno, who was father of Mary's eight months' old child, was shot down on the stairway of his home, the defendant had testified, after he threatened to shoot her. Judge Caffrey rebuked the jury for their verdict when he discharged them today, saying it was a miscarriage of justice and an incentive to criminals.

TAXICAB DRIVERS OUT ON STIKRE IN BOSTON

Boston, Oct. 10.—The entire driving staff of the Premier Taxicab company, comprising 125 men, went out on strike today in protest against a new wage schedule placed in effect by the company. The new scale provides for a guarantee of $3 a day and a commission on the drivers' receipts. The men formerly were paid a flat rate of $4 a day.

War and Disputes

What Tully says of war may be applied to disputing—It should be always so managed as to remember that the only true end of it is peace; but generally true disputants are like true sportsmen, their whole delight is in the pursuit; and a disputant no more cares for the truth than the sportsman for the hare.—Pope.

Old English Law

An old English law required all English seaports and trading towns to contribute to the support of warships or to build and equip such ships. The law fell into disuse and was included in the Petition of Right.

Greatest Drinking Song

The world's greatest drinking song, it is claimed, is "Let Me in a Tavern Die," written in the Eleventh century by Walter Map, who is also credited with a large part of the romances of King Arthur.

OVER 60 YEARS OF SUCCESS

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent tonic building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Entrenched Prejudice

Most nations, like most men, are docile only in youth; they become incorrigible as they grow old. When customs are once established and prejudices rooted, it is a dangerous and useless enterprise to try to reform them, the people will not permit their misfortunes to be touched upon, even for their instruction—like the stupid and cowardly sick who shudder at sight of a physician.—Jean Jacques Rousseau.

England's Tobacco

England always takes the best of the Havana tobacco and allows the rest of the world to get along with the leavings. An English importer of Havana who has been in the trade for 30 years says there are 100,000 cigar smokers in England, and that those islands consume 28,000,000 Havana cigars in a year—say $10,000,000 worth. This importer put the number of other sorts of cigars smoked in Britain at 400,000,000.

Lake Far Below Sea

The deepest hollow known in the lands of the world is the one in Palestine at the bottom of which lies the Dead sea. The hollow containing this salt lake is actually 1,300 feet below the level of the sea.

Poet Lost at Sea

It is a queer prank of fate that the author of a poem, "Shipwreck," should himself be shipwrecked and lost on sea. That is what happened to William Falconer, Scotch poet, in 1769.

MOOSUP AND WILLIMANTIC CLASH AT CARPET GROUNDS SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The Moosup club of which Henry Loughran is the manager will try to snatch the bacon from the fire when Moosup again plays Willimantic this Sunday. The shut-out score of 3 to 0 handed Moosup last Sunday doesn't set very well with Manager Loughran who still maintains that he has the better team of the two. This game is for a purse of $100 a side.

With the championship of Eastern Connecticut at stake the game with Willimantic Sunday promises to be the toughest base ball battle in many a day. The Moosup club is generally believed considered superior to their rivals, and local fans hope to see the championship pennant wave over Moosup this season. Weather permitting, the crowd next game should outnumber that of the last two Sundays when the attendance has been steadily increasing to an already high mark.

It is a question of one manager outwitting the other, as both are after a win at any cost, and both McQuillan and Loughran are good pilots. Manager Loughran will send in as good a ball club as any manager has put on the diamond in this part of the state. Moosup's firing squad will be

JACK CLABBY

Jack Davis and Tony West while their battery mates will be Allard and Bill Liberte. At first will be Artie Cuillard, whom Mgr. Loughran has snatched away from his rival McQuillan. Eddie Burns will be at second with Joe Faber of the Harrisburg team at short in place of Joey Hendricks who has been sent to the outfield. Hank of the Fredericksburg team will be at third. Jack Clabby has recently returned from a most successful season with the Allentown, Pa., club will be in left. Jack was the heavy hitter and home run king of the semi-pros in the Penn league this summer. He played in 111 games and batted for well over 300 and his home run record rivaled Babe Ruth's. Harry Mills will play center and Kenneth right.

McQuillan Not Afraid

Sports Editor

Mgr. H. H. Loughran, with a superabundance of nerve for which he is so noted, in his communication to our valuable paper recently has issued a challenge to my club to play another game in Moosup Sunday afternoon. You may be certain that this has been readily accepted and naturally the purse goes with it. To my mind the Moosup manager is acting as a child stripped of all his toys. Why not accept a defeat in good spirit? For the benefit of the baseball public I would state that Willimantic will be represented by a better team than appeared on the Carpet Grounds last week, regardless of the fact that Mgr. Loughran with his usual display of sportsmanship went out and by offering a better inducement managed to secure Lefty Couillard for his club. Couillard played a wonderful game for me at the first station last week but I am of the belief that our regular guardian of that bag goes him one better. Babe Adams has played under my colors for a number of years and every fan who has followed Eastern Connecticut baseball in the past knows he is some sweet ball player. With this exception my club will be identical as that which took the field last week. Mathewson will do the hurling, that same individual whom Mr. Loughran looked upon with disdain. Get down to business Sunday Mgr Loughran forget that loquaciousness and collect some collateral at the gate for you surely need it. Willimantic fans are coming down strong.

Giving credit where it is due I believe that the two umpires last week were perfectly impartial and believe me, if their decisions are as good as they were on our last visit there we will sew up that game in the very first inning.

JOHN McQUILLAN
Manager of Willimantic Club

BULKELEY SWEEPS SPRINGFIELD OFF ITS FEET, WINNING 20-0

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 10 — The Bulkeley gridsters got the jump on their Massachusetts opponents, the Springfield Tech eleven, and in the first quarter scored two touchdowns here this afternoon, and added another in the second quarter, winning out 20 to 0. Joe Barry, one of the Bulkeley halfbacks, suffered a broken ankle in the second quarter of the game and will probably be out of the game for the remainder of the season. Barry's injury is a clean break of the bone and it is hoped that he may be able to play during the latter part of the season. Barry was removed to a local hospital where the fracture was reduced and then taken to his home.

Bulkeley's first touchdown was made by Henkie after a series of end runs and line plays which advanced the ball to the Springfield five yard line. George Sheffiott made the second score after Springfield had lost the ball on fumbles in their own territory. The last touchdown of the game was made by Rice who ran forty yards to a touch down, zig-zagging through the entire Springfield team.

The loss of Barry will be greatly felt by the Bulkeley team as he was a dependable player and one who worked hard in every game.

THE PRESIDENT PRAISES THE WASHINGTON PLAYERS

Washington, Oct. 10. — President Coolidge immediately after returning to the White House from the final game of the world series, issued the following statement:

"Of course I am not speaking as an expert or as a historian of baseball, but I do not recollect a more exciting world's series than that which has finished this afternoon. The championship was not won until the 12th inning of the last game. This shows how evenly the teams were matched. I have only the heartiest of praise to bestow upon the individual players of both teams.

"Naturally, in Washington, we were pleased to see Walter Johnson finish the game for our home team, and make a hit in the last inning that helped win the series. It has to be kept in mind that though he was not successful in the two games which he pitched that it was his skill that had won the pennant, and put Washington into the world's series. Everyone was pleased to see him come back at the close of the last game.

The three contests which I witnessed maintained throughout a high degree of skill, and every evidence of a high class sportsmanship that will bring to every observer an increased respect for and confidence in our national game. It would be difficult to conceive a finer example of true sport."

Yantic's Reply to Challenge

Colchester after taking two severe defeats with scores of 14 to 3 and 9 to 4, is not satisfied and comes back with a challenge to play another game. Sunday Oct. 12 at 2:30 p. m. for $100.00. at Norwich fair grounds

Norwich thinks Colchester ought to be satisfied, but we are always willing to give a fighting team a chance, under the conditions that men who have played one or more games in this series with the possible exception of a pitcher, which "Colchester" refuses to make known. Some "Dark Horse" no doubt, as they intend to cop the game and the money. But Yantic is still confident they can repeat last Sunday's performance and take the long end of the score.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
(Fordham, New York Giants)

Fifth inning. Score 3 to 0 in favor of team in the field. Team at bat has runners on second and third with one out.

How should the infield play?

This is an easy situation for the infield to take care of, but too many amateur teams play it wrong. The infield should move back and play for runner at first, as such a position cuts down the chances of the batter making a single. Such a position, of course, may let in two runs if a single is made, but that cannot be helped. This position also best takes care of the batter hitting sharply to third or shortstop. If the former handles such a hit he can nail the runner from third at home. If the latter handles it he can catch the runner from second at third.

WASHINGTON IS DELIRIOUS WITH JOY OF VICTORY

Washington, Oct. 10—(By the A. P.)—The nation's capital tonight celebrated the winning of its first baseball championship with as much noise and racket as it greeted the news of the end of the world war.

From every street in the city rose the din of thousands cheering the arrival of the Senators in baseball's promised land.

The firing of small cannon, the crack of pistols, the bang of fire crackers, the honk of autos and the overworked lungs of half crazed fans were blended into a deafening roar.

From the capitol up Pennsylvania avenue to the white house, a cheering, howling mob surged. Traffic cops were lost in the melee as thousands of automobiles became twisted in a honking jam in the downtown streets of the city while machines almost ceased to move as occupants climbed out on running boards to yell.

Washington had lived to see its first world pennant—while many thought it would not live through it.

All the years of cultivated dignity that the city had stored up, exploded with a bang. The city that for two centuries has been called upon to witness the biggest celebrations of a nation, tonight went wild over the first celebration that it would really call all its own.

Thronging the streets in groups that ranged from three and four to long "lock-step" processions people, seemingly in countless numbers paraded and cheered.

Every person was equipped with some kind of a noise maker. Dinner bells had been snatched from the side board to clang for attention beside big bass drums. Whistles and horns from roaring people strove for supremacy from all sides.

ACADEMY PLAYS CHAPMAN TECH AT NEW LONDON

This afternoon at Morgan field the Academy will encounter its first opponent in the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league when Chapman Tech will be met. The Academy team made an excellent showing against the Connecticut Aggie Freshmen last Saturday and the week has been spent in smoothing out the plays so that the local high school team will take the field in excellent shape. The line will be the same as last week but in the backfield Ray Higgins, a fast traveling boy, will be sent in at right halfback in place of "Kippy" Carpenter. Coach Aitken is undecided who he will send in at left half back, the choice being between McGowan, a veteran, and Holdridge a rookie who has been showing up well.

Chapman Tech made rather a disagaist Stonington but the week has appointing showing in their first game been a hard one for the Tech team and reports from New London say that the Black and Red is a fast combination that will give the Academy plenty of opposition.

The Academy lineup today will be: Scott, le; Busch, lt; Hagberg, lg; Haslam, c; Gilman, rg; Lukoski, rt; Carlin, re; Williams, qb; Higgins, rhb; Mcgowan or Holdridge lhb; Hinricks, fb.

NEW RECORD FOR WORLD'S SERIES RECEIPTS MADE

Washington, Oct. 10—(By the A. P.)—A new record for world series receipts was established by the Giants and Senators. Figures for the seven games, $1,093,104, exceeded by $38,289 those of the only other million dollar series, the six-contest battle between the Giants and Yankees in New York last year.

Attendance figures were not shattered, however, the mark of 283,695 set in this series fell 17,735 short of the 301,430 who saw the classic last season.

Washington players will divide $148,991.63, of the total fund, and New York will split up $99,327.75. The remaining 25 per cent of the total players' share will be divided among the second and third place clubs in each league.

The Washington melon will be split into 26 shares, of $5,730 each, Manager Harris announced after a meeting of players which followed the game. Miller and Taylor, substitute infielders, and Al Schacht, coach, will each receive two-thirds of a share, and the 24 remaining portions will be equally divided among the other players, Coach Nick Altrock and Trainer Mike Martin. Lump sums will be donated by the players to Wade Lefler, outfielder, who was ineligible for the series, to the clubhouse boy, Frankie Baxter, and to the Senator bat boy.

The Giants left hurriedly after the contest to each a train and did not announce a division of heir cut. The approximate figures for each of the 26 men in the Giant eligible list, including Coach Jennings, would be $3,820.

PALACE WINS TWO FROM THE TAFTVILLE TEAM

At the Taftville Alleys on Thursday evening the Palace five of Norwich won two games from Taftville and are now in second place with the Peerless and Moosup tied for first. The games were rather one-sided with the exception of the last which was won by Taftville. Morin had high total with 321 while Tague had high single of 119. The scores:

GIANTS OUTFIELD AND OUTBAT THEIR OPPONENTS BUT NOT AT RIGHT TIME

Washington, Oct. 10—(By the A. P.) The Senators won their first world's series despite the fact that they were outbatted, and outfielded by their New York opponents. The final average show that the Giants batted .261 and fielded for a mark of .980 while the Senators hung up a hitting average of .246, and a fielding figure of .964.

Bill Terry Giant first-baseman, was the leading individual hitter with an average of .429, for five games. Roger Peckinpaugh, crippled hero, compiled a mark of .417 for four games and was second on the list for Joe Judge, playing in all seven games, was the real batting king, of the Senators, with a .385 mark.

Travis Jackson, of the Giants, and "Muddy" Ruel, of the Senators, had the poorest hitting records of any of the regulars, each getting two hits and having marks of .074, and .095, respectively.

"Goose" Goslin, whose record of three home runs, tied the mark established by Ruth last season, was the leading slugger with a total of 21 bases on 11 hits. Harris was close behind with 17, including two homers, while Frisch lead the Giants with 16 total bases, on 10 hits. Frisch had the most two-baggers, four, and he and Terry got the only triples of the series. Sam Rice was the leading base-stealer with two thefts.

Although their fielding average was not as good as the Giants, the Senators completed 10 double plays against for their opponents.

Tom Zachary, Washington southpaw, was the only pitcher to win more than one game, while Jack Bentley, of the Giants and Walter Johnson of the Senators, the iron-men of the series, each won one and lost two games. Marberry figures in four games, three of which he served in a relief capacity.

NUMBER FOUR

scores and each went into hree extra innings.

Mrs. Coolidge did not miss any of the fine points of the play and on one applauded more vigorously when Walter Johnson struck out Kelly with his smoke ball in the ninth, Frisch had tripled with one out and Young a left handed batter, who dotes of speed, came up and was purposely passed to get at Kelly. Johnson slipped over the first strike so fast that Kelly admitted later that he hardly saw the ball and then missed the next two that flashed over the plate. The crowd cheered and when the inning was over the wife of the president rose to her feet and clapped her hands as the old master walked to the dugout.

Zeke Barnes had the home boys swinging wildly at his elusive drop ball for the first three innings and the Senators went out, one, two, three, without making even a menacing gesture. Then Harris put his club out in front with a home run that carried into the cash customers in the left field stands. The young Washington manager worked the count down to three and two and Barnes tried to cut the inside corner with a fast inshoot. Harris swung and the ball sailed far over Wilson's head into the temporary stands. It was Harris' second circuit smash in the series.

John McGraw had to use all his strategy to stave off defeat but the blows fell in the 12th frame. The Giants manager switched his pitchers in the last innings so that the heavy hitting left handers of the Senators found themselves facing southpaws and then went back to a right hander when the situation demanded.

In the eighth inning after Harris had tied the score with a single which drove in two runs and put a man on second McGraw took out Barnes so that Rice would have to face a left hander in Nehf, who had only pitched yesterday. Rice was an easy victim of Nehf's curves. Again the Giants were in a hole in the ninth when the Senators had a man on first and third. With Miller coming up and facing a left hander McGraw switched to McQuillan and again the Giants escaped. Miller hitting into a double play. McGraw put in a pinch batter for McQuillan and then sent in the southpaw Bentley. Bentley just held the Senators in the 11th but the dam broke in the 12th when "Muddy" Ruel doubled and McNeely came through with a two base blow.

Walter Johnson looked like the Johnson of the season's play in the fourth inning that he pitched today. His smoke ball was varied with a fine change of pace and in the darkening shadows of the afternoon the Giants had their difficulties. The Kansas farmer twice fanned Kelly, the Giants heavy hitter, while the National leaguers had men on bases waiting to score, and whiffed a man in each of the four innings that he was on the mound.

Terry was the heavy hitter of the Giants, accumulating a battle average of 429, while Jackson was unable to fathom the Senators' pitcher and batted only .074 in seven games.

Just What Is Beauty?

Beauty cannot be described, since what seems beautiful to one may be plain to another. Ben Jonson's "most beautiful face" had to possess simplicity crowned by flowing hair and a sweet neglect; Spenser would have eyes like sapphires, teeth like pearls, and a forehead like ivory; Rogers insisted on archness and mirth. Every lover thinks his girl is beautiful.

Says "It's Surprising!"

After a demonstration in the new Willys-Knight Sedan equipped with the Lanchester Balancer, the famous aeroplane builder said—"It is surprising. I drove the car at all speeds up to 50 miles an hour and found absolutely no engine vibration."

Vibrationless Motoring

Automobile engineers have been striving for many years to lay the ghost of vibration—but it has remained for the Willys-Knight to bring to the United States the secret of vibrationless engine-running—

The Lanchester Balancer—a great discovery by a great genius—the invention of Dr. F. W. Lanchester, F.R.S., of Great Britain, builder of one of the world's most expensive motor cars.

With this new ingenuity of engineering, Willys-Knight achieves positive engine smoothness at all speeds. A smoothness almost incredible to the thousands and thousands of automobile owners who have always thought vibration in a car to be a necessary evil.

This achievement is all the more notable for being sponsored by a car with so many other great achievements to its credit. Willys-Knight long since ended the days of valve-grinding and carbon-cleaning—and the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine is known around the world as the engine that improves with use.

Leading engineering authorities, car owners, the public generally, are impressed by Willys-Knight's vibrationless performance. A ride is a new thrill—a new experience—a new conception of motoring pleasure. Take a ride today!

BURGLARS CAUGHT IN NORWICH

COMPLETE SENTENCE AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Oct. 10.—Victor Silvaggio and Joseph Lenowski were arrested this morning at the New London County jail, when their sentences for robbery expired, the pair being taken into custody by State Police Officer Henry J. Albright of Groton barracks, charged with burglary at Niantic several months ago. They were presented later before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davison and sentenced to 30 days in jail, but the execution of the sentence was suspended as it was revealed that a companion of Silvaggio and Lenowski, who is still in jail has confessed to the break and declared that Silvaggio and Lenowski had no part in the burglary, but remained outside the store while it was being robbed. The store was that operated by George Sheffiet and this was one of several breaks to occur in the vicinity within a few nights. The trio came to New London and were arrested and convicted of robbing a Main street Chinaman, the gang being apprehended in Norwich by the New London police, who put chase after the thieves. They escaped by getting a ride on a truck. The gang was taken into custody on West Main street in Norwich and just after leaving the truck.

In the police court today four persons who have reputations that are pooled, were ordered to get out of the city by sundown this evening or take the consequences of going to jail. The accused were Jennie Lenox German, charged with keeping a disreputable place at 21 North Bank street, and Grace Pringle, Lillian Caughey and James Moore, alleged to be frequenters of the place. The Caughey woman was charged with residing there for immoral purposes.

The prosecutor did not spare the accused when he presented the matter to the court for judgment. He said that the street had been cleaned up in recent years, but that the Gorman woman had recently hired a tenement and there she had allowed women of bad character to congregate and resort. He said the police department had received complaints as to the place. The Pringle woman was recently in court and was convicted of being a resident in a place that was known as 101 ranch. She was fined then heavily but her experience did not teach her wisdom. The Caughey woman is the wife of a linotype operator now employed in New York. She bears a bad reputation, said the prosecutor and has been convicted of adultery. She has been sent by the superior court to a reformatory and her children have been taken from her that they, too, may not be disgraced and led to a vicious life. Mrs. Caughey had told the police a story yesterday that she contradicted today. He likened her to a witness in the oil cases that have attracted attention because of the changes in the stories told. This woman said that Mrs. Gorman gave her a few beers which put her into a condition that she was not responsible for what she said. But her testimony is not needed, the prosecutor said, to show the sort of place the police have broken up. Mr. Cronin the prosecutor, declared that the place was not to allowed to continue. He said that North Bank street had developed into a business section and that it would improve if the places of the sort raided are cleared up and kept away. The counsel for the accused was without a valid defense, though he talked about the case some fifteen minutes. Judge Prince fined the parties $100 each and then suspended the collection of the fine with the proviso that the four prosecuted should get away from the city before the sun sank in the west.

William Wolmore, an employe of the Robert Gair company at Montville, was arraigned for intoxication and was fined $10. He pleaded that he had work to go to, so the court suspended judgment for 24 hours.

Abraham Fisher of State street; Mrs Adam Ballaban and infant son Jefferson avenue; John O'Neill, Franklin street; Mrs. Morris Lubchansky and infant son, Ocean avenue; Robert Grinadell, Westerly and Henry Friedman, Stonington, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

Margaret H. B. O'Connor has sold a house and lot on Home street to Lycurgus M. Bistare.

The funeral of Emma M., widow of Charles H. Taylor, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles F. Eldridge, of Niantic. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

A hearing was held Friday in the probate court on the admission of the will of Mrs. Mary Packer Clark. It is possible that relatives of Mrs. Clark will contest the admission of the instrument.

Miss Mary E. Moran, 16 Jay street, complained to the police today that during last night two veranda chairs were stolen from her residence.

Patrolman Henry Hick in making the rounds through State street late last night was informed of a fire in the office of Dr. Hill F. Warren in the Bacon block. A reflection of a flame was observed on a window and Officer Hick hurried to the second floor of the building and forced the door of the physician's office, only to find that the reflection was caused by a fire in an open grate. Dr. Warren was summoned and caused the office to be secured for the remainder of the night.

John Blake, veteran letter carrier began his vacation of two weeks today.

A Great Neck, Waterford, farm hand was found drunk and down this evening on Division street by Patrolman Patrick Sheehan. He was locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

rested yesterday afternoon, charged with the theft of tools from Robert Deane, Niantic. Maynard admitted his guilt by pleading guilty, but judgment was suspended upon Maynard compensating Deane for the latter's loss and paying the costs of the court.

Walter Slipiki, proprietor of a general store on Flanders road, Niantic, was arrested Thursday afternoon by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas of the state police at Groton barracks and Officers Honeyman and Stanton, charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell. Last night Slipiki was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis at Niantic and pleaded guilty. A fine of $100 and costs was paid by the accused. Slipiki has had the reputation of selling liquor for some time and the officers raiding the place found and seized a small quantity of various alcoholic drinks.

Mrs. Bertha Snell of Mystic, teacher at Nathan Hale Grammar school is in Boston, where she will remain over the week end as the guest of friends. Mrs. Snell is making the trip by automobile.

Mrs. Edward S. Neilan of Ocean avenue, Mrs. Terrence M. Cook, Garfield avenue, Mrs. T. Berry Fox and Miss Margaret Berry, of Neptune Park, have returned after a motor trip through the Berkshires and in New York state.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Dorothy Gillis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J .A. Gillis, 973 Bank street, to John M. Toohey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Toohey, Colman street. The wedding will be solemnized at St. Joseph's church, Nov. 12th. Miss Gillis is telephone operator at the local offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Mr. Toohey is a letter carrier attached to the New London post office.

Patrolman Braxton Hill was unable to perform duty tonight, being confined to his home, Ocean avenue, as a result of a severe cold.

James F. Murphy, familiarly known as "Dutch" Murphy, 23 Walden avenue, and employed by the New Haven railroad as a freight brakeman, was arrested tonight charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. In default of a surety on his bond he was locked up pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning. Murphy, who generally becomes involved in a fight when drinking, was in the vicinity of Bank St., and Lane A, about 8 o'clock. He became involved in an argument with John Rooney, 56, of Church street who had also been drinking. Murphy finally attacked Rooney and was administering a severe punishment to the man, who is old enough to be Murphy's father, when Parroman Michael Dorsey appeared. The arrival of the officer was opportune, but it did not save Rooney from a beating for the latter was bleeding and bruised about the face and head from the blows meted out by the younger adversary. The patrol was summoned and both Murphy and Rooney were locked up. Rooney was charged with intoxication.

Murphy, until about a month ago, was on parole. He was given thirty days in jail, as a police court sentence for creating a disturbance at the O'Leary restaurant and for attacking Patrolman Augustus Ray. The sentence was suspended six months. At the time Murphy was on the receiving ends of a beating instead of giving one, for Ray used his night stick on Murphy's head.

John Shea, 115 Winthrop street, employed in the freight service of the New Haven railroad, has been in New York several days, during which time he witnessed the baseball games between New York and Washington, returned this evening.

George Haven, former captain of police, who has been confined to his home, Blinman street, several weeks by illness, is now able to enjoy out of door exercises.

Irene Edwards, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Edwards, Station 5, Waterford, is confined to her home as a result of having suffered the loss of a portion of her thumb. The girl was chopping wood at her home a few days ago and the axe struck the right thumb, severing that member at the first joint. The child was taken to Lawrence hospital where the would was dressed after which she returned home.

Farmers in Groton and Poquonoc are dismayed over the appearance again this year of chicken flu and as a result of the plague, hundreds of chickens in both these towns have been wiped out. The plague is deadly once it starts in a flock and chickens succumb to the disease rapidly, it being common for the chickens to die within 12 hours following being stricken. Last year the epidemic killed several hundred chickens.

George Brown, who has been employed at New Orleans throughout the summer, has arrived in New London and is at the home of his father, John Brown on Pequot avenue. After a stay of several weeks Mr. Brown will return to New Orleans.

Giftware, of

FIBERLOID

The Happy Choice

As attractive as genuine jade, ivory or tortoise shell—but not fragile and not expensive. Its clever individuality arouses admiration. Its delicate beauty recommends it to all women. The wonderful variety of coloring and effects allows the most discriminating choice.

Now, at last, you may secure this smart toilet ware in small groups that are correctly selected for gifts. Each group is packed in a special gift box of blue and gold, at no additional cost. It is the gift which every woman loves to receive and is always acceptable.

Men find that giftware of Fiberloid is a charming gift to present—and that it is easy to choose one or more packages of correctly grouped articles. Fiberloid is a pleasing variation from the monotony of more ordinary gifts, and the cost is not excessive.

For yourself choose Fiberloid. Should you not wish to buy all of the articles at one time buy them group by group until your toilet table is completely dressed. The designs are many, and you can always secure the piece or pieces you wish in any of them.

THE PRICES RANGE FROM $4.25 FOR A THREE-PIECE SET TO $49.98 FOR A SET OF TWENTY-ONE PIECES.

SINGLE PIECES FROM 39c TO $5.98

WESTMINSTER

"In Him was Life," was the pastor's theme last Sunday, St. John, 1:4, first clause. Mrs. Augtust Edmund of New York, was one of the audience, as were Miss Inglis and her brother, George, the latter leading the singing and rendering a solo, during the morning worship.

Topic for prayer at home altars next Wednesday evening, Oct. 15, is based on St. John 14:1-15, in connection with Prayer.

Henry Starkweather of Danielson was in Westminster Thursday of last week. He was born in a house half way between Westminster and Hampton and as a young man taught the Westminster Hill school, having 49 pupils.

Mrs. C. H. Koch with her son Edgar left Saturday afternoon for Jackson Heights, L. I., N. Y., where she will make her home for herself and her daughters, Helen and Evelyn, who are in business and for Edgar and Elaine yet in school. Fred Lachapelle also took with them some of their household effects reserved from their auction last week Wednesday. The house si yet unsold.

Mrs. Axel Helstrom and children, Harry and Violet left for New York last week Thursday for the winter.

Mrs. Wm. Rollinson has returned from a week's visit at the home of the latter's niece, Mrs. Ernest Pollard of Taftville.

Week-end friends and relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Green were Dr. John Boynton with Mr. Geo. Washburn of Norwich. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tracy with their daughter, Alice and son Charles, of Putnam, George Weeks, of Plainfield, C. W. Bromley of Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and daughter Charlotte of Dorchester, Mass.; William Johnson of Maine, Mrs. D. M. Boren and son, James, Jr., of Hampton, Conn.

Fred C. Green, Julia and Raymond Green and George Weeks were Norwich visitors Saturday.

A good number met Wednesday at the parsonage for an all-day session. Amid much merriment they ate at a long table in the dining room, the bountiful meal provided by various members of the W. C. T. U. of Canterbury whose October meeting it was. Adjourning to the parlors, M Ray Bliven presided at a program in which the devotional portion was led by Miss Lucy Baldwin, recently elected superintendent of evangelism. Interesting items of importance in the coming elections and otherwise were given in response to the roll call and usual reports given and accepted, the conclusion being the W. C. T. U. benediction.

Next month's meeting, also an all-day affair, is to be held with Miss Corey at Canterbury Plains.

Over 200 were out election day.

A good deal of discussion occurred concerning the proposition to sell Willoughby school house and that of buying a tractor, road scraper, both items being decided in the negative. The hours of the November election are changed and are to be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Items of great interest appeared under Ekonk in Saturday's Bulletin concerning the next fellowship, fifth anniversary of the six churches of this region to be held there next Tuesday, Oct. 14, it is understood, though no date was definitely stated in the item.

Louis Washburn is at the home of his mother, Mrs. Wm. Dubberke, Hampton.

Arthur Bennett's camp had election day as a holiday.

John Hull and John Murray of Woodbridge were callers at the home of Woodbridge were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perkins.

POETRY

The Fool's Prayer

The royal feast was done; the King
Sought some new sport to banish care,
And to his jester cried: "Sir Fool,
Kneel now, and make for us a prayer!"

The jester doffed his cap and bells,
And stood the mocking court before;
They could not see the bitter smile
Behind the painted grin he wore.

He bowed his head, and dent his knee
Upon the monarch's silken stool;
His pleading voice arose: "O Lord,
Be merciful to me, a fool!

"No pity, Lord, could change the heart
From red with wrong to white as wool;
The rod must heal the sin; but, Lord,
Be merciful to me, a fool!

"'Tis not by guilt the onward sweep
Of truth and right, O Lord, we stay;
'Tis by our follies that so long
We hold the earth from heaven away.

"These clumsy feet, still in the mire,
Go crushing blossoms without end;
These hard, well-meaning hands we thrust
Among the heart-strings of a friend.

"The ill-timed truth we might have kept—
Who knows how sharp it pierced and stung!
The word we had not sense to say—
Who knows how grandly it had rung!

"Our faults no tenderness should ask;
The chastening stripes must cleanse them all;
But for our blunders—oh, in shame
Before the eyes of heaven we fall.

"Earth bears no balsam for mistakes;
Men crown the knave, and scourge the fool;
That did his will; but Thou, O Lord,
Be merciful to me, a fool!"

The room was hushed, in silence rose
The King, and sought his garden cool,
And walked apart and murmured low
"Be merciful to me, a fool!"
—Edward Rowland Sill.

Trees

Then said Jehovah unto men:
"I will set in the desert the green fir tree,
The pine and the box together shall be,
Where the fragrant boughs of the cedar swing
Shall dwell all the fowl of every wing:
Thou shalt not destroy, when the nations fight,
A tree good for food or pleasant to sight;
For this is the law of your earthly span,
The tree of the field is the life of man."
Thus spoke Jehovah unto men.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mistress—Do you ever sweep under this carpet?

Maid—Yes, mum, evething. — Answers, London.

Beeche—Did she make you feel at home?

Ashe—No, but she made me wish I was.—Exchange.

Mr. Stock—Why does the young author look so blue?

Mr. Shares—It appears that he isn't read.—Answers, London.

Mistress (about to have tea)—Why are you taking away the cake, Mary?

Servant—I didn't think you'd be wanting it—I've got three friends in the kitchen!—London Opinion.

Mrs. Kindheart (about to give a beggar a penny)—Poor man! And are you married?

Beggar—Pardon me, madam. D'ye think I'd be relyin' on total strangers for support if I had a wife?—Northern Daily Telegraph.

Hardware Dealer (attempting to sell automobile tools)—Why don't you take your car to pieces and overhaul it yourself? Don't you understand it well enough to?

Mr. Churchins—I understand it well enough not to!—Good Hardware.

The grocer's new cashier and bookkeeper told her employer she had lost his check-book.

"But it doesn't matter," she added "I took the precaution of signing all the checks as soon as I got it—so, of course, it won't be of use to any one else.—The Progressive Grocer.

Dorothy, aged 5, had been given a pretty blue silk sash and the first day she wore it she was constantly running to her mother to have it tied.

"Why, Dorothy," said her mother, "this makes the fifth time I've tied your sash this morning. You must learn to tie it yourself."

"But how can I, mamma," replied the little miss, "when I'm standing around in the front all the time?"—Chicago News.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

AVOID SELF-PITY AND ESCAPE MOST OF YOUR GRIEF.

KEEP YOUR GRIT

Hang on, cling on
No matter what they say;
Push on, sling on.
Things will come your way.

Sitting down and moving
Never helps a bit;
The way to get there is
By keeping up your grit

Tasks die too easy
They seem to fade away;
They make a little error,
And give up in dismay.

The kind of men that's needed
Are the men of ready wit;
They laugh at pain and trouble
And always keep their grit.

The Forget-Me-Not

When to the flowers so beautiful
The Father gave a name,
There came a little blue-eyed one—
And timidly it came—
And standing at the Father's feet
And gazing in His face
I said with low and timid voice.
And yet with gentle grace.
"Dear Lord, the name thou gavest me
Alas I have forgot."
The Father kindly looked on him
And said "Forget-me-not."

INTERESTED IN CALIFORNIA LETTERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: This letter should have gone last Saturday but I put it off till it was too late.

California Poppy: I have read your letter with interest. California and I think it the best composed piece that has come from any part of the country. I hope you will write often and give us more of that same talk; we will always imagine that we live in California and the letter is so real and interesting.

Tuney: Your letter in last Saturday's issue was fine. I have a brother-in-law and wife living in San Diego so that makes the letters from there of special interest to me.

Rural Delivery must have gone there at the wrong time in the year for the weather favorable. Guess he was disappointed. No wonder! As soon as I read about how he was taken sick and that was enough to make him so. As I read on and came to the letter from Nelle Bay I immediately thought down the recipe how to prepare a husband.

Nelle: One of the most helpful, and I'm sure many will put it into practice.

Captain Brown: Wake up and write us again soon.

Received birthday cards from Joan True Blue, Rosy Cheeks and 1492. I surely enjoyed all of them and thank you for thinking of me.

Jessie: The letter I promised to write may come some time, so don't get discouraged. I have put it away and so have lost the address but will make a special effort to find it soon. Much praise and success for the Social Corner, the girl readers and editor.

MISSES THOSE WHO ARE GONE

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: As I have appeared in the roll call a short time ago I am very glad to say present if it is not too late. I have sent a letter in for some time but have forgotten the corner. I must have had a nice time at the Buckingham ball week Wednesday. We had also a nice dinner.

We had a grand entertainment. The singing was enjoyed by all. But we missed the sisters who have passed away, and Still Water. They were such a help to us, either by reading or reciting. Also Sweet Fancy. We miss her letters and poems we used to send in to help fill the corner page.

But they have answered a higher roll call. Then those of us that are left behind are here only for a short time when each and everyone of us shall pass on to a nobler and higher life and answer to a higher roll call. Let us gaze on those vacant chairs, now filled at our meetings I hope and may realize that they are with the Master.

Tuney: Was glad you answered present to your name. You were more than I was. Yes, I am busy yet. Am not through yet. I wish you further would send in a letter. We used to write good letters.

Cenzi: Where are you? Do not hear from you? Are you in Japan?

Paleface: It is a long time since I have seen you. Hope to see you soon. Was glad you sent in a letter last week. It seemed nice and like old times the day you called on the corner. We had a nice chat. I won't say like had a delightful time at the meeting. This summer I was at the church to the club picnic also at Twice Twenty's and at Lefflingwell.

Twice Twenty: I was up through your town Sunday. I looked over at your home as we passed by and thought what a nice time we all had one summer at your home at the picnic. We drove on out through Brooklyn. It was a long ride. The scenery was beautiful as the foliage is changing its colors. It was a beautiful sight to look upon.

White Clover: I saw your letter last week. Am glad the frost has not bitten us yet. Someone said the frost killed the clover but am glad we can say present. I am coming up to see No. 1 soon.

Don Pedro: Was glad you were able to be with us at the Buckingham. Come again before it gets too cold.

With best wishes

RED CLOVER

SANDWICH FILLING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Try my sandwich filling. Use two hard boiled eggs, one large green or red pepper, with stem and seeds discarded, and put them through the meat grinder, alternating them, and not too much at a time. I use melted butter or bacon fat warm to hold it together. Kitchenette flavor adds to it for me or anyone who likes onion. It can be spread on any kind of bread.

Whoever made the coffee last Wednesday knows how. I wish I knew where they bought it and exactly how they made it. It did taste good and no mistake. The young ladies sang so beautifully it was worth going to hear them. The instrumental Chime Bells played by the young lady was very fine and new. If the walls of the Buckingham could only talk!

BAVARIAN RICE CREAM

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I find another month has begun and I suppose another letter is due, as I understood when I became a member that each member was expected to at least send a word or two once a month, if not able to attend the meetings, to hold their membership in the Corner.

I am sorry to say I haven't been faithful as I should have been but will for the month of October say. Hello! I still consider myself a member and trust others do.

I have enjoyed the roll call very much and have the full list saved. I have missed one or two of the names which I had in my little book but perhaps they have dropped out of the Corner and I not being able to attend any of the gatherings for the past 2 or 3 years now have no way of knowing.

I was so pleased to see by Jack's Wife's letter that she had not forgotten me and wrote her that if she wanted me and it wouldn't be perfectly convenient for her to have me, I would arrange with friends to spend part of one day with her before it gets too cold.

And two friends who have autos have agreed to make that possible if we can arrange dates. One will take me and the other come after me. Now, Jack's wife, let me hear from you. Have you a phone or one near you that you can use? My number is 145.

I had a nice long call from Lucille a few days ago and how we did visit!

I have not seen Scottia, Delight, Canterbury Belle, Nelly Bly, Capitola or Calla Lilly for a long time—all summer in fact, also some others. Bug for one—but remember all sisters I am home nearly all the time and always glad of a call.

Will some of you if you never have—try this recipe and report if you like it.

Bavarian Rice Cream: 1 cup rice (after it is cooked), 1-2 cup sugar, yolk 2 eggs, 1 pint sweet milk. Well mixed and cooked in double boiler till like thin custard, 2 level tablespoons plain gelatin dissolved in cup water, whites of 2 eggs beaten stiff and flavor.

Remove the custard from the fire, add the other things, mix well, then put in cold place to set. Serve with sweet cream.

Best wishes for the Corner and editor for all the efforts to make it a success. I did want to meet with you all at Bumble Bee's but no use. I extend my sympathy to Great Grandma's family. I met her once at Aunty No. 1's several years ago but often thought of her especially the days of our club meeting, since the doxology at dinner time in her home while the company was at the Buckingham.

CHATTY LETTER FROM KINGSTON BROWN

Dear Editor, Sisters and Brothers: Hope you are feeling fine this lovely weather. How well you all have done in keeping our own page full to over flowing with nice letters. We do enjoy them so much. What an deal day for the meeting at Buckingham Memorial. Sorry I could not go. Better luck next time.

Rural Delivery: Nothing was said about Kingston Brown's eyes or feet. Perhaps she has a glass eye wears rubber tan shoes and the lovely raven locks might be a wig with a few grey hairs stuck in for effect. How could one be graceful in a dance with big feet?

How ever she is entirely won over in favor of the radio. They are wonderful. I have listened in several times lately. I enjoyed it very much. I should like to have one but must have the car first. The day I get my Chrysler I shall hie me away to the nearest store and get a set. With my radio evenings and my car days I shall expect to be very happy. If this dream comes true I shall call on every one of the Social Corner folks after first calling on the editor.

This is a nice way to curl your hair: take a small strand of hair, wind it in and out on curlers that look like large hair pins lean the head against the table with the curlers on the table, cover with a cloth which has been dampened press with a warm iron and a wavy curl will result which will last quite a long time.

Baby's rompers are nice made to button up on the outside of each leg and across the back instead of from knee to knee through the seat. I have just made some this way using a McCall pattern.

If troubled with ants use Black Flag. The little red ants got into my ice box which stands near the outside door. I put a little of the Black Flag a powder around the casters and the ants left and never came back.

Where we live is very sunny. The sun comes in all the windows—not a shade tree near and it would be very uncomfortable were it not for the fact that I have learned how to keep the rooms cool in this way. Let the windows remain open until late in the evening or one or two open all night is better and the rooms will be quite cool the next morning. Then keep windows closed during the day. It was very nice here all through the hottest weather. King Jr. gave me this advise on house keeping after trying his hand at it for a few days. He said when a dish is dirty wash it was your clothes as soon as dirty. put them on when you need clean ones, don't iron them and make your bed as soon as you are out of it. I asked him where would be found the time or place for sewing, canning, cooking and baby tending and he said "Live in the kitchen," as he had done," and cut out all the other work." He had cut out washing only the very necessary dishes as I found out later.

In looking around for a small basin to use in preparing supper this is what I found in a large kettle used for preserving three sauce pans four basins, six cups, three large pans all of aluminum and nearly ruined. I soaked them days to get them clean.

Primrose: Thou best of all flowers. I am glad you liked my recipe for cocoa cake. I hope the sisters won't feel they have to give the place of residence along with nenname when writing. That would spoil it all. We would all know who is who and there would be no fun.

Tola: Your letter was fine. People that borrowed from me never returned what they borrowed and so I lend or borrow no more.

Well the fairs are over for this year. The exhibits by the different granges were fine, better then usual. What would we do without the grange! I witnessed the degree team giving the first and second degress at Pachaug recently. The work done by the two degree teams was wonderful. Hoping the sick are better and all are enjoying this nice weather I am as ever

RECIPES AND GREETINGS

Dear Cornerites: I think I will try and pen you a few lines and surprise some of my Social Corner friends. I will have to answer to my name at the roll call, although I haven't attended any of the meetings, but I shall endevor to turn over a new leaf and go and see some of my old friends I suppose you sisters have been busy canning and I have got a lot done myself. There are always so many helpful hints in the Corner page for a new housekeeper I always enjoy reading them.

Did any of you sisters ever try and make this kind of pudding? You can use apples, peaches, pineapple, blueberries, etc., for the fruit. Fill a buttered hish with sliced fruit and pour over the top a batter made of one tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 1-2 cup sugar, and 1 cup flour in which has been sifted 1 teaspoon of baking powder and a little salt. Bake in a moderate oven until made of one cup of powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg and flour.

Salmon Puffs: Remove skin and bones from 1 pound of salmon, chop meat fine and add one tablespoon melted butter, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, 3 well beaten eggs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, pinch of salt, and dash of pepper. Pack in custard cups and bake for one-half hour. You can serve this with or without white sauce.

Whipped Cream Salad Dressing: 1 desert spoon mustard, 1 dessert spoon sugar, 1 desert spoon salt, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup vinegar. Cook in a double boiler. Whip 1-2 pint cream and add when the above mixture is cold.

Honeysucker: How are you and your family? Have you any new crochet patterns? I hope so.

Red Cedar: I was pleased to read your letter and am glad your pen isn't rusty. Try and write some more interesting letters to us sisters.

Theoda: I haven't seen you for a long time. I hope that you aren't sick. May be I'll see you at Franklin hall.

White Clover: Have you done any canning? I suppose you'll start housecleaning before long.

Well I guess I'll ring off tonight and let some of the other sisters help fill the page.

SEA BIRD, (Nov. 11.)

APRIL PULLETS LAYING AND OCTOBER RASPBERRIES

Social Corner Friends: Another perfect day has had its ending. About sixty gathered at Franklin hall Wednesday to enjoy the company of old friends and new. I am sure we all enjoyed the dinner which was so bountifully provided. Our sister Whirlwind with her corps of capable helpers did everything possible for the pleasure of others.

A little while ago I had a birthday, and I want to thank Jennie Katydid, Remember Me August, Foxglove, Foxglove's Mother, Ohio, Whirlwind and Lo, for the cards they remembered to send me.

I made a birthday cake for one of the fresh air children that stayed with me for two weeks this summer.

I decorated the cake, put twelve candles on it. And she was the most delighted and surprised child you ever saw. She carried some of it home to her mother.

I wonder how many are picking red raspberries in October. Every other day I pick enough for supper. The bushes hang loaded with green berries.

I have three Barred Rock pullets that have been laying since the 28th of September. They were hatched the latter part of April. Who can beat it? When I attended school our teacher commenced the day with a chapter from the Bible, a song was sung and then the roll call so once again I will answer, present.

Best wishes,

WILTWYCK.

APPROVES IDEA OF A PIN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As my name was on the roll call several weeks ago I will now say present. I have been so busy canning and planning for my picnic that I didn't get a chance to write.

I think it a very good idea of Caro for us to wear an emblem pin or button to let people know we are Social Corner sisters. The sisters from the different clubs would get acquainted so much easier. If they were riding any distance on a train alone and happen to see a lady with a pin or button it would be much easier to start a conversation then it would with a stranger. So I think it a very good idea. Hoping the rest of the sisters think so.

MAKING YOUR MONEY GO A LONG WAY

Dear Members of the Corner: At this time, when almost everything is "going up" and the prices of nearly all the necessities of life are steadily rising, it is vastly more important than it ever was before that we should get the worth of our money.

It costs a good deal more to live than it used to, and for this reason it behooves the great majority of us to be much more careful inour expenditure than in the days when our money went farther.

But this complaint of high prices is not the exclusive grumble of the present age by any means; our grandfathers found fault in the same manner because they had to pay more for various commodities than in the days of their youth.

No doubt this state of mind goes back almost to the beginning of things. Perhaps Noah when he came out of the ark, complained because the flood had put the price of green vegetables way up out of sight, all of which reminds one irresistibly of the old story of Washington throwing the silver dollars across the Potomac. Whether or not the Father of His Country indulged in such a pastime is open to doubt but a tale to this effect was told to a certain well known senator when he was visiting Mount Vernon. Perhaps he did. You know a dollar went farther in those days.

Now, if you want a dollar to go just as far as possible be a little careful how you spend it. Make up your mind exactly what you want and then be sure you get it. If have wanted to get different articles and the party would say these are just as good. I bought an article two years ago of a party who came to the door, and because he didn't "knock" the dealer I usually bought of (I do so hate a knocker. I had my share when I started in business here.) I bought this article. He said, "It is just as good but no better," so he persuaded me to take a substitute. My agent came two years after, which was last week. I had forgotten about purchasing this article from another agent. I said, "I will order another for my son. This is worn. He said, "Let me see it. We will give you a new one for it." I immediately procured the article, showed it to him and he replied, "This isn't ours," and I looked and there was another firm's name, so I find for every first class article there are many imitations, and a good many dealers do and will push the sale of inferior articles instead of the first class article.

So you see the substitute has no reputation to sustain; the first class article has, and it stands to reason the latter is the best, for I would have had a new article, had I needed it but probably if I had bought the first class article I wouldn't have needed another.

I learned that when you accept a substitute or an inferior article, the chances are really against your getting a "square deal."

So when you buy products—articles of any description—see that you get the best possible value for your money. Otherwise it will not last.

These great manufactures have worldwide reputations to uphold, so cannot afford to give you anything but the best.

So I want to say avoid substitutes if you want to make your money go a long way.

KITTY LOU.

PICKING HUSBANDS

Dear Cornerites: A party asked me what kind of a man to marry. An alleged authority on mankind has given his views on the sort of men that make the best husbands. Among the really good ones he classifies the lawyer and the all round journalist.

He does not get enthusiastic over the popular doctor as a husband and a musical genius or a man of letters gives him cold chills and shudders. The author, he says, is so fond of his fine sentences that he is disagreeable when the baby cries and makes himself generally odious about his food, and noise of the children, and any domestic infelicities that may come along.

The musician cares for little except his art and the wife is often secondary to the claims of a prima donna.

All in all a good journalist seems to have the strongest points. He is a bit of a philosopher, is likely to be practical, makes the best of what cannot be helped, and is full of alternatives. The lawyer is good to have in the house. He is likely to be alert, a good judge of human nature, a good talker and quite as fond of listening as hearing the sound of his own voice. He studies human nature at home as well as abroad and is altogether a good fellow.

MISTER DOOLEY.

GREETINGS TO ALL.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been some time since I have written to the Corner page. I have yet have been interested in the roll call. How it has woke up the sisters! My what a roll page and running over these days it don't seem my luck to get to any of those nice picnics I read so much about. So I will tell you how I meet with the Sisters. As I have my breakfast and also my dinner all by myself I can do as I like. So when everything is ready down goes the good Corner page at my left and I have a picnic by myself. My only regret is they are too soon caught up. I see where some of the brothers are getting the fever. Well, do you wonder. I think it would be nice if they had a page of their own but do think they would enjoy it just as much as we sisters do. I suppose they are a little shy but there is no harm in asking our kind editor as he has already shown us he is only too glad to please everyone.

Swamp Apple: I can't make my ants eat poison. How do you manage to? They seem to be too wise and won't go near it. But I do think when poison is put around it keeps a great many away. One sister told of poison fly paper. Well I fixed some and they looked it over and soon left.

E. M. R. C. P.: Did you get the book of views I sent you some time ago?

Balsam Fir: Congratulations, if not too late, and was very sorry to hear of your burns, but trust you are well long before now.

Hope: Have tried some more of your nice catsup.

Angle B: How are you and the Mr. and Mrs.? It seems nice to see old friends.

Rural Aunty: Hope you are all well by now and wonder if you will know Who is Who when you read this letter. My, but I got your number good and I would like to get some more as the letters are so much more interesting when we know the writer. I think I know many of them but not by the pennname. Well, Aunty, do you know we had quite a bad accident on the way home. I came very near getting a broken neck. I could hardly turn my head for two days. I was meeting two cars coming in the opposite direction. There was a car parked side of the road. The two cars we were meeting were taking about all the road so the car in front of me slowed down very quickly to drive carefully between the parked car and the cars we were meeting in the opposite direction. Then the car in back of me collided violently with the rear of my car and as I felt the blow I turned my steering wheel to the right to avoid hitting the parked car and before I could stop my car I was driven by the impact up a three-foot bank and jammed against a tree so violently that my bumpers were badly bent. The driver of this car ran away without saying one word to me and when he found out we were hot on his trail, as they got his number, he had the nerve to send me a bill for the damage done to his car.

As my letter is already too long must stop with best wishes to all.

ANNA Z (April 25).

HOW TO CAN SHELL BEANS.

Dear Corner Folks, one and all: Again I am here for a little chat. First, I wish to say "Thank you" for yellow slip that arrived last week.

I was pained and grieved to hear of the death of Great Grandma. Only last week I had a nice card from her and she seemed at that time to be in her usual health. To her sorrowing relatives I will say I was very sorry to hear of their bereavement in the loss of mother and grandmother. My prayer is that they may find great consolation in the thought that some day, in God's own good time, they may see her again.

Rainbow: I will tell you how I do my shelled beans. After shelling, etc. fill the jar half full, then I add one teaspoon of salt, a small piece of raw salt pork, about two inches wide and three inches long. Fill up the jar with beans, then fill to overflowing with cold water, put covers on and partly put clamps on; cook for three hours in a boiler with rack. Then snap down the clamp and, lo, your beans are all ready for winter. Last year I did 36 jars. This year only half that number. By all means I think it pays. They are all flavored and ready for immediate use. In the winter many times I take a jar of beans and a jar of corn and in a twinkling I have succotash all ready for the table in much less time than it takes me to write this. I am way over the 100 mark now with more to do yet. I am going to can some meat. Haven't gotten to that yet as I have a lot of work to do and have been having a great deal of company.

Savilla: Have you returned from W. yet? I have been expecting to hear from you every day but think you must still be in Massachusetts. As soon as you get home get in touch with me as I have a message for you.

Calla Lily: Have you ever heard anything from your Social Corner register?

Rural Delivery: How about the radio? Do you think they are worth the money?

Yours for the good of the Corner.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

NEW WAY OF MAKING A CUSTARD

Dear Editor and Sisters: What a change this lovely October weather from the horrid disagreeable weather of September!

Primrose: You have got my curiosity working overtime. Do you live in Putnam or Willimantic? I had planned to go to Willimantic Oct. 8 but had to give it up at the last minute.

Roberta: I took a walk down by your house last week but I don't know any more than I did before. Do you live upstairs or down? I live in a two-family house. Do you know which side I call mine? Put on your yellow bow and come and call.

Whirlwind: Am patiently waiting for the promised letter.

Faye Verna: The man of the house was at Hammanasett Beach for a couple of days last summer in August. He is very enthusiastic about it.

I was at a friend's house recently and was quite interested in her method of making a custard. She prepared it in the usual way and then put it in a double boiler to cook. It was a new way to me.

To the sister who inquired about Certo will say that I do not find it satisfactory. Had no luck at all with it.

Greetings to all.

GREETINGS FROM PAPA'S BOY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Here I am again after being still for some time. I enjoyed the picnic at Buckingham Memorial this month and am planning to be there in November.

To Great Grandma's daughter I send my deepest sympathy in the loss of her mother. I remember taking her to church on Goshen hill many times when I was a small girl.

Mary Larkin: You'd be surprised if you knew who is who. Coming to the third and fourth degrees?

Diamond: Your canning will be out the way soon so plan on the November meeting.

Calla Lily: I'm surprised to think you didn't know me the last meeting day, but will see that my cake is there if I am not.

Ready: If you are in Norwich come to our meetings.

Rural Delivery: I hope you won't give up waiting for that letter but you know on a farm one can keep pretty busy.

Chelsea: Sorry to disappoint on the call but will explain it all later.

Primrose: Do you live in Norwich now? I am wondering if I saw you Saturday on the street. If it hadn't been so near bus time I should have spoken.

Savilla: Am looking for that call. Come on! With best wishes to all.

PAPA'S BOY.

SUPPOSING

Dear Sisters of the Corner: I heard a little success story not long ago which is well worth passing on, and which should be inspiration to workers everywhere. The best of the story is that it is true in every particular. It is a story of "supposing". The story commences in a little Michigan town where, as a small boy, Mr. Selfridge, "supposed" wonderful things for his mother's ears. He was always supposing this or that—building air castles perhaps; but castles in the air are not to be spoken of lightly. If we will set at work and put a solid foundation under them. The boyish habit of supposing strengthened with the lad's growth. When things went wrong he found great comfort in supposing they were better, much better. When he went into the biggest of Chicago's stores as a clerk he began supposing what he would do if he should be made head of the department. Then he thought what course he would pursue if he were manager; and when he held first one position and then the other he brought every faculty into play to serve a rightful purpose.

It was not a great while before he began "supposing" a mercantile establishment of his own. He pictured ways and means of conducting it successfully, thinking out the details as if he was already in possession. Needless to say he got it and then came a vision of a store in the largest city in the world—a store of which should be representative of what we all believe to be the greatest nation on earth—backed by American principles and conducted along American lines. Today he owns that store. Some one asked Mr. Selfridge to tell the secret of his marvelous success, and he answered smilingly, but earnestly, that it all came by supposing. You are sure to note the fact that this "merchant of London-town" has but carried out the suggestion of building castles.

He built this castle in his mind, he held fast to the vision of what he desired, and then proceeded to actualize it. The unseen world is the real world—the world of power. That which we see about us is simply the effect of a wondrous cause of the working of which we are now gaining a dim comprehension.

The one who desires to succeed must learn to create in mind that which he desires to see expressed—pressed out if you please—in the seen or material world. He must believe that the way will be shown him to actualize his desires. He must overcome all traitorous doubts, while he cultivates steadfastly that "substance of "things hoped for" which will remove mountains. Seeming failure should never be allowed to breed discouragement. He must not see what is alone; he must see what may be in the while working towards the goal. To him who wills ways are never wanting.
